A new order on the Michigan Central road compels all baggagemen to wait until the passengers have alighted before loading baggage, and then approach from the direction from which the train has arrived, thus avoiding all accidents and reducing the danger of being run down by trucks.

C. F. Patterson is now up-town agent for the D. & L. N. as well as the T. & M. R. R. (formerly C. J. & M.) and the office is at the Lilley House. This is a great convenience to all who patronize the road.

Several gangs of men are at work ballasting the D. & L. N. track between Tecumseh and Adrian, and it will only be a question of a short time when the road bed will be in fine condition.

During the summer season the D. & L. N. will make a rate of one dollar for the round trip from Tecumseh to Detroit every Sunday. Tickets good on date of sale only.

The latest in the line of R. R. gossip is that the D. & L. N. will build from Dundee into Detroit, but have not as yet decided what road will be used as a terminal.

D. W. Caldwell, president of the Lake Shore Railroad, died at his home in Cleveland, Ohio, Tuesday afternoon of rheumatic gout, after a week's illness.

Conductor Wm. Lockard, of the D. & L. N. local freight, has rented a part of P. J. Welling's residence on Chicago street and will move his family here.

The through freights with their 90-ton engines are again running over the D. & L. N. between Tecumseh and Adrian. Sink hole is all right.

W. A. Peters, traveling passenger agent of the Ohio Central, who resides in Detroit, visited his brother, E. J. Peters, yesterday.

The Lima Northern sink hole has sunk out of sight, it is hoped for all time to come, and trains are running regularly.

D. & L. N. train No. 40 stopped at Ridgeway Thursday to take on two excursionists who were determined to go to Detroit.

Superintendent G. R. Haskell and Travelling Freight Agent Ollie Hunt were in Tecumseh Wednesday.

E. W. Hines, of the freight department of the D. & L. N., was in town on business Wednesday.

Section Boss Haley is moving his family to Tecumseh from Oak Shade, O.

The C. J. & M. is no more. Toledo & Milwaukee is now the name.

Will Tecumseh Bite?

EDITOR HERALD:

Christian Greetings!

I have something in my possession which should belong to your town and you wonder, no doubt, what it is. It is the powder horn of old Chief Tecumseh. It came into the hands of Asa Benton in 1776; Christopher Woodbridge, 1830; Abraham C. Benton, 1833; Stephen Oldst, 1853; Elias Losecor, 1862; into my possession, 1886.

If the town of Tecumseh will pay me what it is worth, I will sell it as a relic into your museum.

Hope to hear from you.

Yours etc.,

Teaches Prof. Work's Garment Cutter, of St. Louis, Mo.

We have decided to organize and teach a class in this town where ladies, both old and young, can learn to cut, fit and make any garment worn by the family. We are prepared to teach you this valuable trade as it should be taught; our teachers are all expert dress makers; the system is the same as is used by all tailors; actual measure. The fashions are published, giving complete instructions and diagrams for drafting every garment worn by ladies, gentlemen and children. We will make you a first class ladies' tailor. The trade will be valuable to you as long as you live. Call at the school and see the system.

The following ladies are now taking lessons over the above mentioned system and others are coming into our school daily: Misses Lena Titus, Amanda Pitbeam, Lillie Cook, Anna Gaston, Mary Lahn, Lena Hardenburg, Carrie Sawyer, Mrs. G. A. Smith, Mrs. Henry Heesen, Mrs. L. C. Hayden and Mrs. A. J. Ware, all of whom live in Tecumseh. Our terms are easy and prices liberal.

This school is located in the Tindall property, corner of Ottawa and Pottawatamie streets, Tecumseh, Mich., under the management of Mrs. E. E. Kinney, of Adrian, Mich. School hours are from 8 to 11 a. m. and from 1.30 to 5 p. m.

We are glad to note that the State Agricultural Society, which has been reported as being too much embarrassed with indebtedness to be able to hold a Fair in 1897, has emerged from its cloud and has made such settlement with its creditors as to put it on its feet again. The society has held forty-seven annual fairs, and has been of great service to the state in agricultural and industrial lines. Its exhibitions have always been creditable and full of interest. The Fair goes to Grand Rapids this year, where there are fine grounds, good transportation and an attractive city with plenty of accommodations for exhibitors and visitors. Our readers should remember the date, Sept. 6th to 11th, and make a point to attend and help sustain this very useful society.

John W. Cook, Sr.,

Who for a long time has been a resident of Tecumseh, died at his home July 13th. He was born in Buffalo N. Y., May 22, 1827. When quite a young man, he like many others, thought to try his future in the west, came to Palmyra, Lenawee county. Here he first met Miss Jane Morseman, who afterwards became his wife. She, with four sons and three daughters, remain to mourn his departure. For many years he has been a familiar form upon our streets and in our vicinity. The work of his hands may be seen in many of the homes and public buildings of this and adjacent towns. But the hands once so busy, now silently rest. He united with the Baptist church in this place ten years ago last winter, and he was a regular attendant until failing health compelled his absence. He served his country in two wars, first the Mexican, and then in the rebellion. From wounds received in this service, he was ever after a sufferer, and as age advanced and strength failed his suffering at times became intense. He was a member of Beers Post, and by his comrades he was borne to his last resting place. He has fought his last battle, and rests in the eternal camping ground of earth's soldiers. His life work done, he lays his armour by, to await the last bugle call.

CARD OF THANKS.—We desire to express our appreciation and gratitude to the many friends and neighbors, who so kindly tendered their sympathy and rendered their service in our recent bereavement, occasioned by the death of husband and father.

BALL GAME.

A Close and Exciting Game.

The third game in the series for the county championship between Clinton and Tecumseh drew the largest attendance of the season and a prettier or more interesting game was never seen on the grounds. Both teams played gilt edged ball from first to last and the battery work of each club was on a par with the National League. Each team having a game to their credit, great interest centered in this particular one. Each club wanted it and did their utmost to win it. Each man kept his eye on the ball and fielded his position well while there were no phenominal plays. It was a clean and steady exhibition of playing that was most satisfactory to the friends of both teams. Although the home team were the victors, they had nothing to crow over and the Clinton team have no reason to feel sore. As far as ball playing is concerned the teams are evenly matched and this, like the former game, was lost to Clinton simply by their becoming rattled, not by superior playing.

NEW TARIFF BILL

Changes That Have Been Agreed Upon by Conference Committee.

The Differences Between the House and Senate Are Very Clearly Explained.

Mr. Dingley States the Amount of Revenue That Is Expected to Be Realized.

The Conference Bill as Passed by the House and Sent to the Senate.

Full Text of the Sugar Schedule—Analysis of the Whole Bill as Finally Agreed Upon.

Washington, July 20.—The tariff bill was pushed through the conference stage yesterday after two hours' discussion before the full conference committee—democrats and republicans. The democratic conferees offered amendments to the report, but were met with the statement that it would merely consume time to urge amendments, as they would be rejected.

Mr. Wheeler (dem., Ala.) offered amendments placing cotton bagging and cotton ties on the free list; also a substitute proposition for rebates on these articles. These and other amendments were withdrawn, however, as there was no prospect of favorable action on them.

Revenue Expected.

As to the question of revenue to be raised by the bill, Mr. Dingley, in his speech, pointed out the difficulty resulting from the large anticipatory importations. The bill next year, he calculated, would raise $225,000,000, $75,000,000 more than the present law. Over $40,000,000 had been lost in this year's revenues by the importations of wool and sugar and other things, the duty on which was raised in the bill, so that he calculated that the bill this year would raise $185,000,000.

New Sugar Schedule.

The full text of the sugar schedule as finally agreed upon by the house and senate conferees is as follows:

"Sugars not above No. 16 Dutch standard in color tank bottoms, strups of cane juice, melada, concentrated melada, concrete, and concentrated molasses, testing by the polariscope not above 75 degrees, .95 per pound, and for every additional degree shown by the polariscope test .035 of one cent per pound additional, and fractions of a degree in proportion; and on sugar above No. 16 Dutch standard in color, and on all sugar which has gone through a process of refining, 1.95 cents per pound; molasses testing above 40 degrees, and not above 56 degrees, 3 cents per gallon; testing 56 degrees and above, 6 cents per gallon; sugar drainings and sugar sweepings shall be subject to duty as molasses or sugar, as the case may be, according to polariscopic test. Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to abrogate or in any manner impair or affect the provisions of the treaty of commercial reciprocity concluded between the United States and the king of the Hawaiian islands on January 30, 1875, or the provisions of any act of congress heretofore passed for the execution of the same."

Duty on Sugar Cane.

The conference restored the house rate of 10 per cent. on sugar cane. Saccharine is made $1.50 per pound and 10 per cent. ad valorem.

The confectionery paragraph is changed to read as follows:

"Sugar candy and all confectionery not specially provided for in this act, valued at 15 cents per pound or less, and on sugars after being refined when tinctured, colored, or in any way adulterated, 4 cents per pound and 15 per cent. ad valorem; valued at more than 15 cents per pound, 50 per cent. ad valorem. The weight and the value of the immediate coverings, other than the outer packing case or other covering, shall be included in the dutiable weight and the value of the merchandise."

The republican conferees also made public a statement concerning the conference report in which it reviewed the changes made. Of sugar the statement says:

"The house differential between raw and refined sugars and the general features of the house schedule are preserved, and the senate amendments increasing the differential to one-fifth and providing for a reduction of one-tenth of the duty on raw sugars not above 87 degrees, which would have given a duty of 1.39 on 88 degree sugar and only 1.26 on 87 degree sugar, are not adopted.

Beet Sugar.

"In deference to the wishes of those interested in beet sugar production, that the senate rate of 1.95 cents on refined sugar might be retained as an increased encouragement to this industry, the duty on raw sugars is increased .07½ cents, so as to make the increase on them the same as the increase on refined sugar, and thus leave the differential between raw sugar and refined the same as in the house bill. And to meet the objection which has been urged that the house rates on low grade raw sugar show a higher ad valorem than those on the higher grades the duty on 73 degree sugar is reduced .05 cent and then the duty per degree increased regularly from .03 cent (as proposed in the house bill) to .03½ cent, in order to raise the duty on raw sugars the same as on refined.

"By this arrangement the duty on raw sugars of 100 degrees purity is raised from 1.75 cents (as proposed originally by the house) to 1.82½ cents, and the duty on refined sugar is raised from 1.87½ cents (as proposed originally by the house) to 1.95 cents, thus giving the same differential of .12½ cent between raw and refined sugar at this point as was originally given by the house.

"As this arrangement will increase the revenue over $2,000,000 and at the same time give additional encouragement to the production of sugar in this country, it is thought to be a desirable consummation."

Wool.

The changes in the wool schedule made in conference leave the duties on disputed items as follows:

Paragraph 354—The duty on wools of the first class, which shall be imported washed, shall be twice the amount of the duty to which they would be subjected imported unwashed; and the duty on wools of the first and second classes which shall be imported scoured shall be three times the duty to which they would be subjected if imported unwashed. The duty on wools of the third class, if imported in condition for use in carding or spinning into yarns, or which shall not contain more than eight per cent. of dirt or other foreign substance, shall be three times the duty to which they would otherwise be subjected. Paragraph 367—On blankets and flannels for underwear, composed wholly or in part of wool valued at no more than 40 cents per pound the duty per pound shall be the same as the duty imposed by this act on two pounds of unwashed wool of the first class and in addition thereto 30 per cent. ad valorem; valued at more than 40 cents and not more than 50 cents per pound, the duty per pound shall be three times the duty imposed by this act on one pound of unwashed wool of the first class and in addition thereto 35 per cent. ad valorem.

On blankets composed wholly or in part of wool valued at more than 50 cents per pound the duty per pound shall be three times the duty imposed by this act on one pound of unwashed wool of the first class and in addition thereto 40 per cent ad valorem. Flannels, composed wholly or in part of wool valued at above 50 cents per pound shall be classified and pay the same duty as women's and children's dress goods, coat linings, Italian cloths, and goods of similar character and description provided by this act; provided, that on blankets over three yards in length the same duties shall be paid as on cloths.

Paragraph 370—On clothing, ready made, and articles of wearing apparel of every description, including shawls, whether knitted or woven, and knitted articles of every description made up or manufactured wholly or in part, felts not woven and not specially provided for in this act, composed wholly or in part of wool, the duty per pound shall be four times the duty imposed by this act on one pound of unwashed wool of the first class and in addition thereto 60 per cent. ad valorem.

The legislative proviso to this paragraph inserted by the senate was changed so as to read as follows: "That if any country or any dependency shall impose an export duty upon saw logs, round manufactured timber, stave bolts, shingle bolts, or heading bolts, exported in the United States, or a discriminating charge upon boomsticks or chains used by American citizens in towing logs, the amount of such export duty, tax, or other charge, as the case may be, shall be added as an additional duty to the duties imposed upon the articles mentioned in this paragraph when imported from such country or dependency."

The senate amendment making free paintings, drawings and statuary was also stricken out.

Reciprocity.

The reciprocity provision, as agreed to by the conference, contains some of the features of both the senate and the house bills on this subject.

It also contains some retaliatory measures. It sets forth its purpose to be that of "equalizing the trade of the United States with foreign countries exporting to this country the following articles:

"Argols, or crude tartars, or wine lees crude; brandies or other spirits manufactured or distilled from grain or other materials; champagne or all other sparkling wines; still wines and vermuth; paintings and statuary."

The president is authorized to enter into negotiations or commercial agreements in which reciprocal concessions may be secured in favor of the products of the United States. He is empowered to suspend by proclamation the duties upon these articles whenever equivalent concessions may be obtained, as follows:

"Argols, 5 per cent. ad valorem."

Brandies or other grain spirits, $1.75 per gallon.

Champagne in bottles containing one quart, $5 per dozen; containing one pint, $3 per dozen; containing one-half pint, $1.50 per dozen; containing more than one quart, in addition to the $6 rate, $1.90 per gallon.

Still wines and vermouth, 35 cents per gallon, and other rates in proportion where the goods are bottled.

Paintings, etc., 15 per cent. ad valorem.

The president is empowered to revoke the concession when satisfied that the agreement is not adhered to in good faith by any other country with which an agreement shall have been made.

Retaliatory Clause.

What may be termed the retaliatory clause of the provision is that which empowers the president to suspend by proclamation the provisions of this act providing for the free introduction of coffee, tea, Tonquin, or tonka beans, and vanilla beans coming from any country which imposes duties upon products of the United States he may deem to be reciprocally unequal and unreasonable. The rates which he is thus empowered to fix are:

On coffee, 3 cents per pound; on tea, 10 cents per pound; on tonka beans, 50 cents per pound; on vanilla beans, $2 per pound; on cuts, $1.

The president is required to act within two years in securing these reciprocal trade treaties, and they are to be submitted to the senate for its ratification. Articles are to be reduced to the extent of 20 per cent. in these treaties, and the president is specifically authorized to enter into negotiations which will place certain articles upon the free list for a specified period of five years.

WAS A "LEEMISH" CAR.

The Owl-Car Passengers Finally Found Out.

He seemed painfully conscious of the ludicrous figure he cut as he burst through the wildly flapping curtains of a north-bound, all-night car and scraped himself into a seat which had been neglected by the other occupants on account of the sea of moisture which it contained. His face was belligerently red and his widely-staring eyes, anticipating with maniacal vigilance any tendency to laughter which his appearance might provoke, blazed forth a challenge to the entire car and successfully dispelled the rising spirit of jocundity.

The night was the most tempestuous of the present season, and in order to escape the gusts of wind and water that assailed the car from every direction some of the "owls" had gathered in the aisle, while others had perched upon the backs of seats, and some had opened up their umbrellas. The conductor, with an air of intrepidity born of a familiarity with situations of the kind, passed to and fro among the passengers collecting nickels. He was an ideal "owl" conductor, bristling with a sense of his importance, and ostentatiously indifferent to the comfort and convenience of his guests.

"Ez ish leemish ghar?" asked the late wild-eyed arrival as the despot jolted past.

The unintelligible gibberish met with no response. Another block was passed before the street car magnate came forward.

"Ez ish leemish ghar?" was repeated somewhat petulantly by the Swede—for he was now discovered.

Everyone but the autocrat seemed buried in an effort to translate the jargon, and some even ventured so far as to turn an inquiring eye upon the speaker. But the glances were quickly withdrawn, for the glitter of implacable hostility in those wild eyes had become intensified. Several more blocks elapsed.

"Ez ish leemish ghar?"

And this time the potentate had stopped close by to take a fare.

"What?" snarled the latter, with scornful intonation.

"Ez ish leemish ghar?"

For a moment there was a reflective pause—his majesty was thinking.

"Limits car? Yes."

"Vell, vy don't you say so? I ask you tray or four times."—Chicago Journal.

Spiders as Pets.

Ladies are not generally popular spiders with either sex. Yet a lady writer affirms that they can be made the most little pets in the world." She says how she collected a common garden spider and kept the sweet lady in a glass tumbler for three weeks. She watched her "building her house of fine silk" and raising a family, and, finally, the writer, "she soon learned to take flies from my hand and drink water from a leaf which I gave her fresh every day." There are, indeed, according to this lady, few things so agreeable as a spider, whether regarded as an object, a thing of beauty, a slayer of flies or a household pet.

Salaries of Rulers.

The "divine right of kings" does not prevent them from asking and obtaining good salary for the work they do. The king has to eat, and in order to eat he must have money. Usually they get enough salary to make life secure. The czar gets $25,000 every year, the sultan $18,000, the emperor of Austria only $10,000, and Emperor William $2,000 less. Queen Victoria has $35,000 to spend every week, while her son spends as much, although his income is less than half that sum.

MEDITERRANEAN HOUSE RENTS.

Highest at Gibraltar and Lowest on the Island of Malta.

In no place on the surface of the globe is rent so high as at Gibraltar, the reason being, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, that the geographical position of the town precludes the possibility of its being extended in any direction. A long, narrow strip of what was once sea beach is alone available for building purposes. All the rest is precipitous rock.

Upon this narrow parapet, in some cases less than 100 yards in width, are crowded the homes of 25,000 people. As much as ten dollars a week is asked and obtained for the use of one small room, and this, too, in a place where the normal rate of wages is quite ten per cent. less than in America. Naturally, the overcrowding is fearful, and, the water supply being scarce and intermittent, cleanliness of living, as we understand it, is almost impossible.

No wonder that in the old days the plague and the cholera ravaged the "rock" with a virulence unknown in the filthy and pestilential cities of the far east.

In Malta, on the other hand, house rent is ridiculously cheap. Anywhere outside of Valetta an excellent seven-room house can be had for $15 a year, while rates and taxes are unknown. The houses are built entirely of the cream-colored stone of which the island is composed, and which is so soft that it can be cut with a saw into blocks or slabs of any desired size or shape. So, while the Maltese builder is digging up his foundation, he is, at the same time getting out the material for his walls, his flooring and his roof.

WORKED AN OLD TRICK.

The Deaf and Dumb Man Had to Speak.

"In my time," said a broker to his friends at Delmonico's the other day, according to the New York Times, "I have observed many sad and touching scenes, but never one which affected me as much as the one I witnessed last week.

"Passing along a busy thoroughfare, I paused for an instant in order to read and reflect upon the miseries of a man who bore the legend 'Deaf and Dumb,' picturing to myself my own condition under like circumstances, when the following remark somewhat startled me:

"'Say, Jimmie, here's a poor deaf and dumb man. Father gave me five cents to spend, but I think I'd rather give it to him. He needs it more than I do.'

"This was followed by the chink of a coin in the tin cup.

"Instinctively I turned to the boy who had made this remark to his companion and said:

"'Noble boy, I overheard your generous words. You shall not want for the money. Here is a dime.'

"With a curtsey and 'Thank you, sir,' he fled.

"I turned to the deaf and dumb man. The muscles of his face seemed to be working to a degree rarely seen on a man bereft of those important senses. Unable to contain himself longer, he blurted out:

"'Say, you're dopey. That kid has worked that racket before. That fi-pence is made of lead!'

"I went home and communed with myself."

CUPID IN JAIL.

A Reminiscence of a Sly Courtship Years Ago.

"Cupid is no respector of persons or places," says a member of a well-known Washington family, according to the Star, "for while 'love laughs at locksmiths,' Cupid, to my knowledge, has made himself felt behind prison bars. Do you remember the old Washington infirmary, which stood behind the courthouse? Well, that was the jail in old times—from 1804 to 1838. In those days there was imprisonment for debt, and quite a handsome young man, unable to meet his obligations, became a prisoner. The jailer lived in part of the building, and his family included a pretty daughter. Cupid set to work, and the bars were no obstacle. In a little while looks betrayed Cupid's conquest. One day, while on the street—debtors being allowed to go outside, but not beyond the prison bounds—they met, had a talk which ended in the procurement of a marriage license, engagement of a minister and the marriage. They returned to the jail, and telling what they had done, the father gave the son-in-law a job as assistant jailer, thus enabling him to pay the debt, and when he died the son succeeded him."

LAUNDRESS TOOK THE HINT.

Made a Buttonhole Large Enough for the Soldier's Improvised Button.

The private soldiers' washing at a home station is usually done by the married soldiers' wives, who are expected to sew on missing buttons and do general repairs. Patrick McGinnis, says the Troy Times, had a good deal of trouble with his laundress. Sunday after Sunday had his shirt come back with the collar button off or else hanging by a thread. He had spoken to her on the subject, and she had promised to see to it, but still the buttons were always missing. One Sunday he got out of patience when a missing button had made him late for church parade. "Bad luck to the woman!" he exclaimed. "Begorra, I'll give her a hint this time, anyhow!" He then took the lid of a tin blacking box about three inches in diameter, drilled two holes in it with a fork and sewed it on the shirt, which he sent to be washed. When his washing came back he found his laundress had taken the hint. She had made a buttonhole to fit it!

Belgium's Forests.

Little Belgium has several first-class fortresses; Antwerp, and the fortified towns of Dendermonde and Diest, on the Meuse, Liege, Huy and Namur, and on the French frontier, Mons, Tournay and Ypres.

WOMEN LIVE LONGER.

More Centenarians Among Women Than Among Men—Why Is It So?

A report from the office of the registrar-general of England shows that there are more female than male centenarians, says the Baltimore Sun. Out of 1,000,000 people 225 women reach the age of 100 years, while only 82 men round out the century. Now, the great conundrum which is proposed is: Why is this so? According to the popular superstition, it takes much longer for a woman to reach even the age of 50 than it takes for a man to reach that age. If this is true, it makes the showing all the more remarkable. It has even been asserted that association with women makes a man live longer, as shown by the fact that the average life of the married man is longer than the average life of a single man. The fact, however, is denied by the endmen at the minstrels, who says that the life of the married man is not really longer, but only seems so.

So far there is no satisfactory explanation of the original proposition why more women live to be 100. Some say it is because women are less addicted to tobacco and strong drink, others say that it is because it is more healthy to spend money than it is to earn it, and so on. It may be many of the men who would live to be 100 are killed at an early age in casualties to which women are not exposed. It may be that tight lacing is a life preserver, and it may be not a fact, after all. Possibly the English registrar-general may be mistaken. The situation is replete with possibilities.

FAR-SEEING FATHERS.

Planned the Capital at Washington for the Nation's Future Greatness.

Our great-grandfathers had some idea of the future grandeur of this country when they planned the great capitol building at Washington, for, although this magnificent structure is one of the noblest public buildings in the world, there is reason to believe that its plan is, in the main, what was projected by Washington and his coadjutors, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The old north wing was founded by Washington in 1793 and finished in 1800; the old south wing was founded in 1511 and very soon after completion both were burned by Ross and the British troops. Between 1817 and 1827 the edifice was rebuilt, and the new extensions, forming the present chamber of the house of representatives and of the senate, were begun in 1851, the house moving into its new quarters in 1857 and the senate not until 1859. The dome was erected between 1856 and 1865. The length of the capitol building is 751 feet and 4 inches, its breadth from 121 to 324 feet, it covers 153,112 square feet; from the base line to the top of the statue its height is 287 feet and 11 inches. It cost over $13,000,000.

MINED DURING HARD TIMES.

Total Value of Minerals Dug Out in This Country During 1896.

The annual supplement of the Engineering and Mining Journal shows that the total amount of the mineral and metal production of the United States in 1896 was $751,732,782, an increase over 1895 of $18,791,264.

In gold the total production was $58,660,637, or $11,830,437 more than 1895.

The production of silver was 56,222,322 fine ounces or 9,891,087 ounces more than the previous year.

The pig iron production was 8,623,127 long tons, a decrease of 821,801 tons.

Coal production amounted to 187,373,477 tons, being 1,922,167 tons less than 1895.

The production of copper was the largest ever reported, being 467,822,973 pounds, or 81,350,000 pounds increase.

The production of lead was 174,792 tons; of spelter, 77,637 tons; of quicksilver, 833,480 flasks: of alum, 77,700 tons; of cement, 8,487,265 barrels, and of salt, 13,354,573 barrels.

The production of gold, silver, copper and pig iron is greater than that of any other country in the world, and that of coal is exceeded only by Great Britain.

An Important Omission.

At a prayer meeting recently held in one of the churches not a thousand miles from Utica there was manifested a desire on the part of some of the participants to praise themselves. One man, says the Utica Observer, even went back to the days of his boyhood to show how good he had been even at that time. He said that one day, while walking along a country road, he suddenly discovered in one of his pockets a dollar belonging to his employer, which he had neglected to turn over to the latter. With crushing force the thought came to him that his employer would miss the dollar and believe him to be dishonest. Overcome by that thought he sat down by the roadside and wept. There the story ended. Those who heard the pathetic narrative were deeply moved, and one of the women present subsequently told her young son about it, probably with the intention to produce a good effect upon the youthful mind. But the youthful mind didn't seem to be impressed. The thoughtful boy remained silent for a few moments, and then he burst out with: "Say, ma, did the man tell whether he ever gave the dollar back?"

The Press in Japan.

Japanese journalism, says a missionary's wife, is a singular profession in many of its features. There is practically no such thing as freedom of the press in Japan. Whenever a newspaper publishes something unfriendly to the government it is suppressed, and the editor is sent to prison. The real editor is never imprisoned, though. Every newspaper has what the Japanese call a "dummy editor," and his sole duty is to go to jail every time the paper is suppressed for offending the mikado. Then the real editor changes the name of the paper, and keeps on publishing it. Dummy editors spend most of their time in prison.

Odd Varieties of Matches.

Among the odd varieties of matches now in vogue are the "vestas," of which the splint is a waxed cord; "fusees" for lighting in a wind, with a short, thick stick tipped with a large mass of chlorate of potash composition, and "natural gas" matches, with a very long splint for lighting natural gas fires. In former days the manufacture of phosphorus matches was attended with great danger to the workmen from the fumes, which caused a decay of the bones of the jaw. Many persons were poisoned from carelessness in handling them, and numerous conflagrations occurred on account of the ease with which they were ignited. The "parlor match" had its origin with the manufacture, in 1848, of Schrotter's amorphous phosphorous. This product has neither odor nor taste, is not poisonous and does not take fire at ordinary temperatures.

—The completed mileage of railways in India, according to recent returns, is 19,724, and there are 3,600 miles under construction.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan [illegible] tire are mended about as e[illegible]man would close a hole in h[illegible]ith a bit of court plaster. [illegible] of the inner tube of the tire [illegible]es a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

Order by Mail.

No greater aid to the shopping community has ever been devised than the Mail Order System. Ladies living at a distance and occupied with the various duties of life cannot always find time to visit the city to purchase the various articles they may desire. To them the system is invaluable. They may be a thousand miles away, but still can purchase their goods as easily and satisfactorily as if they were to visit our store in person. A postal card directed to us will bring you a price list of goods or any samples you may desire to see. You can then sit quietly at home and make your selections without the bother of going to market, and thus escape all the crowding and jostling that is incidental to the large dry goods houses. Our Mail Order Department is well equipped. The most experienced salespeople attend to your wants. They are alive to the swift-changing fashions; their experience in the business teaches them which are the most serviceable and stylish goods. The customer at a distance has sometimes a decided advantage over those who purchase in person. When we receive an order it is placed in the hands of a salesman who knows all about the goods to be selected. He will not make any mistake, and he selects articles that he knows will give the best satisfaction; whereas there are cases when you would not make such judicious purchases yourself.

HELPING HIM OUT.

How a Wife Ruined Her Husband's Story.

Crawley and his wife were at a dinner party the other night, observes the New York World, and Crawley, who had been waiting three-quarters of an hour for the opportunity, suddenly burst out with:

"That reminds me of a little story. I heard the other day about an absent-minded man who was going to take a bath one Saturday night and—"

"You are mistaken, my dear," said the wife of Crawley's bosom across the table in her calm yet firm voice. "It was not Saturday night, it was on Wednesday night. You always get it wrong when you try to tell the story; and I think that even a simple little story should be told correctly if at all, and you are so apt to get muddled on the main points of a story that I'd better help you out by telling the main points myself, which were that the man was very absent-minded and one night when he had filled his bath tub full of water preparatory to taking a bath, his head was so full of other things that what did he do but plunge right in without taking off any of his clothes! Those are the main points, and now you may go on with the story, Mr. Crawley."

And Crawley laughed lightly as he said: "I guess there is nothing left to tell; my dear," but the thoughts and strong desires that were hidden away in the secret recesses of his heart only Mr. Crawley knew as they went on their homeward way.

TWO WIVES.

One Given by the Church and One by the State.

Italy enjoys at the present moment the distinction of being the only civilized country in Europe where it is possible to commit bigamy without exposing one's self to any danger of punishment, says the New York Tribune. Since the constitution of the kingdom in 1870 the authorities have insisted that only a civil marriage is legally binding. On the other hand, the church refuses to recognize this form of matrimonial union as valid, and requires the faithful to go through the religious service, venting its displeasure on those who seek any civil sanction to their alliance. The government has repeatedly tried to secure the enactment of a law providing for the punishment of any priest who should have performed the religious marriage service without the latter having been preceded by a civil ceremony. But the vast body of the people in Italy are Catholic to the core, and would not tolerate any measure which had the appearance of encroaching on the rights of the church. The result is that to-day large numbers of unscrupulous people take advantage of the condition of affairs to have two wives, one in the eyes of the church and the other in the eyes of the civil authorities. And they can do this without the slightest danger of being called to account or of being punished.

BUTCHER GOWNS.

And Gowns, Dusters, Coats and Sleeves in Various Occupations.

Butchers' gowns, which are made of cotton and linen, come often in all white, sometimes in blue check, often in material that is plaided off with lines on white ground. Sometimes the lines are all of the same color; sometimes lines of two or three different colors are woven into the fabric. There are many tasteful designs in the materials used for butcher gowns. Beef handlers wear usually a gown or duster made of a dark blue material, says the New York Sun.

Fish dealers wear a duster or gown of blue check. Grocer's dusters are made most commonly of blue linen, as are the dusters worn by druggists; they are sometimes made of a striped cotton material. The bartender wears a white duck coat, and there are white duck coats made for barbers.

There are aprons made in various styles, for butchers, bartenders, and others. Aprons are almost always white. Sleeves are sold for butchers made of white material, and also of material to match the gown. Straw cuffs are worn by many. Winter ulsters are made for butchers and others whose business or occupation may make them desirable.

There are tailors who confine their attention to the making and selling of butcher and other gowns, dusters and coats, and the aprons, sleeves and cuffs commonly worn with them.

"TEAR PITS" OF THE DEER.

Grounds for the Poets' Claims That a Stag Weeps.

Both the poets and the prose writers of imaginative or contemplative turn of mind have often alluded to the tears shed by stags and other wounded creatures of the deer family, says the St. Louis Republic. Shakespeare put it in this way in describing the injured stag:

The big round tears
Coursed one another down his innocent nose
In piteous chase.

There is, of course, more poetry than truth in these references to the actual shedding of tears by members of the deer family, yet it is a fact that such animals are provided with a curious set of organs, the action of which has given rise to the tear shedding belief. The organ in question is the lachrymal sinus or "tear pit," which is situated just below each eye. It is a kind of closed cavity, capable of being opened at the pleasure of its owner and which secretes a greasy, waxy fluid. When creatures provided with this curious organ get hurt or become enraged it has the effect of softening the waxy substance in the "tear pit." When so softened, it escapes as tears would and flows down over the nose and face.

The uses of this queer set of so-called lachrymal organs are not clearly understood by the zoologists.

AGREEABLY DISAPPOINTED.

He Thought She Was Begging, But She Merely Wanted the Mustard.

One of the richest men living, whose immense wealth makes him a target for poor people, has recently been in Paris and the way in which he repelled one of the applicants for his generosity is related like this, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch: On the opposite side of the hotel table sat a woman who had once been rich.

"Monsieur, you Englishmen are so chivalrous—so ready to assist those in distress."

"Yes," said the man of wealth, hesitating. He had heard that before and thought he knew what was coming next.

"Would you, with your usual generisity, do me a favor and a great kindness?"

"Yes, madam—that is, it depends somewhat—"

"Think well, monsieur, before you promise, for it is a great kindness."

It was the same old plea that he had heard many times before from people who wanted a loan.

"I am afraid, madam, that I shall have to—but what is it you wish?"

"Only that you would be kind enough, monsieur, to pass me the mustard. You have everything on your side of the table."

TWO TYPES OF THE SOUTH.

Early Settlers from England Leave Their Traces to This Day.

The two leading types of southern population are plainly the Virginian and the South Carolinian of the tidewater. For this fact there are both historical and physiographic reasons, declares the Atlantic. Virginia was the first and South Carolina the second southern colony to be settled by well-to-do Englishmen who desired to found permanent homes. The introduction of slavery and its application to staple crops speedily gave an aristocratic tone to society in both provinces, but between them, in North Carolina, and to the south of them, in Georgia, there were fewer wealthy settlers and no staple crops to speak of, so that from the first society in these provinces was more or less democratic in spite of slavery. Before, however, the gentry of the coast could expand and occupy the country lying between the Blue Ridge and the Alleghanies and beyond the latter range of mountains a very different sort of people had moved in and taken possession. Among these people, owing to their habits and the nature of their soil, slavery could take no strong hold, hence they remained democratic and distinct from their tidewater neighbors, as, indeed, they are to this day.

A BUNCH OF LILACS.

BY CAROLINE LEROW.

ARTHUR NORTHRIDGE was discouraged. Sitting on the top of a broken-down stone wall, he looked over the rough pasture land to the little, weather-beaten house beyond, and decided that he had never been quite so much discouraged in all his life.

It had not been a very long life, it is true—only 14 years—but he felt that morning as if he had lived a great while and to very little purpose. He wanted so many things, and had so few! More than all else, he longed for an education, or, concluding that that word expressed too much for him, for a few books, at least. He could read, and think over what he read even, without a teacher; but he certainly could not read without books. As for buying any, that was an absurd idea, under present circumstances.

Arthur and his mother could hardly buy enough to eat, and had to pay interest, too, on the mortgage placed on the little house—a poor piece of property, but all Mr. Northridge had left when he died, six months before. Mrs. Northridge took in sewing for awhile, but the rheumatism in her hands was growing worse every day.

Arthur had worked at very small wages nearly all winter for a machinist in the village; but the machine shop had burned down and the machinist had moved away. To tell the truth, Arthur could not feel sorry about either of those occurrences, even though he tried from a sense of duty.

He positively loathed machinery. He loved birds and flowers as much as he hated wheels and lathes and gearing. Still, when the machinery stopped the money stopped also—that was the worst of it—and apparently no way in which he could earn more. He wished the words from one of the pieces in his old reading book would not keep going through his head in that monotonous manner:

"I'll find a way or make it!
I'll find a way or make it!"

He could do neither, he was sure. And so, what was to become of him and his mother?

"Oh, Morton! Morton! Look at that!"

Arthur gave a start, coming back in an instant from a visit to the great trees of California, and saw a carriage rolling by, which, in accordance with the wish of the lady who occupied it, drove to the stone wall.

She was not looking at Arthur, though her eyes were shining, and her lips parted in a sort of delight. Something on the ground had attracted her attention. Arthur looked in the same direction. A bunch of lilacs, which he had been holding in his hands during his long reverie, had fallen unawares, and the lady had seen it. He sprang down, picked it up and offered it to her.

"They're a good deal wilted," he said. "If you'll wait a minute I'll run home and get some fresh ones."

"No, indeed!" the lady replied, quickly.

She pressed the withered flowers against her cheek. There were tears in her eyes, though only a moment before she had certainly been smiling. Her husband was smiling then as he looked at her, seeming to understand her mood. He put his hand into his pocket, looked more closely at Arthur, hesitated, and withdrew it.

"My wife is not well," he explained, "and the lilacs remind her of her old home. She is very fond of them, and they'll help her more than medicine. It's the first time she's been able to drive out from the city. We are very much obliged to you."

Arthur only bowed. He was a little overcome by such a display of emotion over a simple bunch of lilacs—half-wilted, too—and watched the carriage with interest as it drove away.

A moment later a sudden idea occurred to him, in so perfect and practicable a shape that he did not even stop to consider it. He started off on a run to a house which stood near by, in a turn of the road.

Farmer Sanford was busy building a strip of fence.

"Will you please lend me your old Kate and the red wagon for the rest of the day, Mr. Sanford?"

"What?"

The old man could hardly believe his ears, which, perhaps, was not so strange after all, considering that he was gradually growing deaf.

"I'd like to hire it if I had any money," he went on boldly. "I'm going to try to make some, and if I do I'll pay you as soon as I get back. If not, I'll work it out on the fence. Will that do?"

Farmer Sanford heard plainly enough this time.

"That sounds more like business," he said, in his peculiar rasping voice. "I don't keep horses to lend, and old Kate isn't so young as she once was. Mind that when you're a-drivin' her."

Arthur's next trip was to his own home, a little further on.

"Mother, I've borrowed Mr. Sanford's horse and wagon, and I'm going to take a load of lilacs up to the city and try to sell them."

And while he spoke he cut away large clusters of them, putting them into a couple of pails of water he had placed in the wagon.

"Why, that's a crazy idea, Arthur!" his mother replied. "Paying money for lilacs! What made you think of such a thing?"

"I'll tell you when I get home, mother—after you've helped me count the money I'm going to bring with me."

And he laughed for the first time that day. He was too busy and too excited to explain just then.

Arthur's eagerness, combined with old Kate's infirmities, made the trip seem long to him; but he at last reached that part of the city where he had mentally decided to go into business.

Kate halted in a dejected attitude at the corner of one of the principal business streets. It was a street in which nothing was bought or sold but money. Great crowds of men surged in all directions over the sidewalks. Wagons and cabs filled up the space between. It was all roar and rush and rattle.

In the heart of it stood Arthur Northridge, in the old wagon with the lilacs.

"Holloa! My wife would like some of those. How much, youngster?"

And a hurrying man stopped short and handed Arthur a two-dollar bill.

"That's a whiff from my mother's front yard," exclaimed another man before Arthur had time to reply to the first one. "Give us a bunch, boy. I can't wait for the change."

And, flinging down a quarter, he seized a cluster of the flowers and rushed on again.

"I'm in a hurry, too," the first customer explained. "Don't keep me waiting."

And he held out his hand impatiently.

"But I can't change it, sir," Arthur replied. "I've just gone into business. Plenty of stock, but no ready money."

The gentleman laughed at the words, and looked at Arthur appreciatively.

"And I have nothing in the world but this one bill," he said, in his turn. "Plenty of money once. Made it all—easy—on this street. Lost it all—easy, too—in the same place. Keep out of it, boy, unless you come on this sort of business. But my wife shall have some lilacs, anyway."

He fumbled in his pockets, found a ten-cent piece, gave it to Arthur, and passed on.

By this time quite a group surrounded the wagon.

"Lilacs, five and ten cents!" This was the formula which Arthur had thought out for himself as he drove old Kate along, wondering if it could possibly be considered extortion to charge so much for what was to him so valueless. But he did not need to adopt this plan of calling attention to his wares. The sight of them was enough—so suggestive of the solitude and sweetness of the country—in the crowded, dusty, wearying city street.

When the last flower had been disposed of and old Kate was heading for home, Arthur had ample leisure in which to reckon up his profits—three dollars and fifty-five cents.

He could hardly believe it, and counted the money again and again till he proved the accuracy of the calculation.

"What am I to pay you for the horse and wagon?" was his first salutation to Farmer Sanford, as he drove into the yard. "I haven't fed her, for I had no chance."

"Had any dinner yourself?"

"Not a mouthful. I've been too busy."

Nothing could have so inspired old Farmer Sanford with respect and admiration for the lad as his willingness to go hungry for the sake of making a little money. In his vernacular, that was "su'thin' like."

"Well, considerin' as old Kate wouldn't have been doin' nothin' today, I suppose 50 cents would cover the damages."

Without volunteering any explanation, Arthur engaged the horse and wagon for the next day, and went home. He had a long story to tell his mother that night; and the next morning, taking all the lilacs that were on the place, he started off on his second trip to the city, selecting another corner this time, but on an equally busy street.

Fortune seemed as ready to favor him as on the preceding day, and sales were brisk for half an hour. At the end of that time, Arthur felt a hand on his shoulder, and looked up to see the gentleman who had met him by the roadside two days before.

"Gone into business, have you, my boy? How did this happen?"

He asked the question with great interest.

"Oh, sir!" Arthur answered, with animation, "it all came from the bunch of lilacs. I thought if the lady cared so much, other city folks might care, too, a little. At any rate, I thought I'd try and see what came of it."

"Was it necessary—that is, did you—did you—"

"We are very poor, my mother and I," Arthur replied, without waiting for the completion of the question. "I don't know what will become of us when the lilac money is all gone, for I can't get anything to do. If we lived in the city it might be different, but—"

Arthur was obliged to turn his attention to a customer.

"Come around to my office before you go home to-night."

And the gentleman, handing him a card, walked away down the street.

Arthur Northbridge was happier when he went home that night than he had been since his father died. He had another long story to tell his mother, and even more interesting than the first one.

"It seems that Mr. Emery's son, his only child, died six months ago. It almost killed Mrs. Emery, so they gave up their home in the country and went to the city to live. Their front yard was full of lilacs, just as ours is. Their boy was very fond of them. He was about my size, and when she saw me sitting on the wall, and saw the lilacs, too—well, you see, it sort of upset her. Mr. Emery says they keep two servants, and if you go there to keep house for them you'll only have to oversee things. I know I shall like to work in his office, it's so pleasant. Mrs. Emery is coming to see you to-morrow. Isn't it strange what great things have happened just from a bunch of lilacs—and half-wilted ones at that? I sent Mrs. Emery a lot of fresh ones—the last I had left. I'm never going to worry again, mother, as long as I live!"—

A HERO HONORED.

Statue of Gen. John A. Logan Unveiled in Chicago.

Thousands Pay Tribute to His Memory—Imposing Military and Civic Pageant—Mrs. Logan Gives a Reception.

Chicago, July 23.—Thursday the center of the west was a little mound in Lake Front park. Past its base for hour after hour swept rank after rank of men who had been defenders of their country throughout days which are at once the brightest and the darkest in its history—rank after rank of fighting men of to-day—and rank after rank of boys who are to be the soldiers of the future. From three o'clock until six, the broad expanse of Michigan avenue was swept from curb to curb by a marching host. From end to end it was a glittering vision of weapons of war, tossing plumes and standards, and throughout its length a vast concourse of people packed sidewalks, filled windows, and scaled roofs to see as the soldiers marched how Illinois kept faith with the memory of John A. Logan.

In front of the little hillock upon whose summit stands the inspiring and lifelike statue of Logan as he appeared while rallying the broken ranks of the Army of the Tennessee, 33 years ago Thursday, was erected a large stand and upon it was seated his wife, his children, his grandchildren and his brothers. In the absence of President McKinley, who was unavoidably detained in Washington, Secretary of War Alger, represented the government. Old friends and comrades of Logan were there in profusion. Members of his old regiment, members of the grand army, and members of the Loyal Legion, all gathered in great numbers to do him honor.

GEN. JOHN A. LOGAN.

The Statue Presented.

Henry W. Blodgett, president of the board of commissioners appointed by the state to erect the statue, was applauded vigorously when he arose to deliver his address, in which he presented the memorial work of bronze to the state of Illinois. The address detailed the appointment of the commission, its work, and the speaker related how Logan came to offer his services to President Lincoln.

Gov. Tanner Accepts.

Gov. John R. Tanner, in accepting the gift to the state, said, in part:

"Most gladly do I, as the humble representative of this commonwealth, accept, in behalf of the people, this monument to the memory of one of Illinois' most beloved and gifted sons. And, in accepting this memorial for the great state that Logan so truly loved and so long served, I shall make my few words accord so far as I can with the historical lessons which the life and career of John A. Logan so pointedly teach to the rising generation of Americans."

George R. Peck's Oration.

The oration of the day was delivered by George R. Peck. Mr. Peck followed Gov. Tanner and said in part:

"Illinois is proud and happy. Waiting patiently for a fitting time, she opens all her welcoming gates and bids the world take note what breed of men she rears. Here is the product of her soil, and here she brings a mother's exultant heart to be enshrined. This great city, the lake with all its breadth of waters, the prairies stretching outward to the west, and the sky mingling light and cloud in an ever-changing picture, are resplendent witnesses of the scene. The event, the hour and the men are historic.

"Once, upon a day like this, the pulse of summer was beating hot and fierce, when a great leader fell, as leaders must fall, if it be so appointed. Some are here to whom it seems but yesterday. They remember the clustering pines, the thickets dark with the foliage of July, the spires of Atlanta wooing them forward yet a little farther, and they remember, too, as they will remember always, the message, speeding like an arrow in its flight, that told how McPherson lay dead in his harness, ere yet his fame had passed its dawn. Surely I am not wrong in saying that never was this nation in more deadly peril than when the army of the Tennessee was left, like some great rudderless ship, in the grasp of the storm.

LOGAN MONUMENT.

"'Of what avail are men,' says Carlyle, 'when we must needs have a man?' But the man came: nay, he was already there, naming, as was his wont, in that imperious way which scorns to parley with fate but subdues it with a glance. On that day—July 2, 1864—John A. Logan was born to immortality.

"Here we place his image for all generations. Here we salute the soldier, the statesman and the man, in memory of that sublime moment when he took into his keeping the flag, the issue and the cause.

"Our days are like the weaver's shuttle. We are hastening to the end. Is it not something to remember, something to be proud of forever, that, in this great ceremony, those who followed another flag than his have come to pay their tribute to the great citizen-soldier? Men of the south, the grand army welcomes you and the nation greets you with an open hand. Brave men cannot hate forever. If we conquered you once you have, in a beautiful sense, conquered us to-day when you mingle your love with ours for the heroic, for the patriotic and—surely I may say it—for the flag which has been saved for us all.

"Here we make a sacred place. Here we consecrate a name already consecrated in our bravest annals. We give the statue to the world, in the presence of the wife he loved and honored and whom we love and honor. His children and his children's children are here to learn how great a name they bear.

"He is not ours alone; but yet we claim him. In coming years the throngs that crowd the avenue will see a silent figure always on duty. They will know—all the world will know—it is Logan. Illinois has kept her trust."

The Salutes Fired.

A feature of great interest in the celebration was the firing of salutes. At the moment when little John A. Logan, grandson of the general, pulled the line which threw aside the draped flags, a salute of 13 guns was fired, the army leading with a boom of cannon, the revenue cutter Gresham following, and shore batteries then alternating with government boats till the significant 13 had been counted. The second salute came as Gen. Brooke gave the command to march and the great parade started north in Michigan avenue.

The Parade.

The programme at the monument was completed shortly after three o'clock. The parade and review followed. Troopers falling in line in Twelfth street at the command of Grand Marshal Gen. Brooke, department of the Missouri, marched north on Michigan avenue past the reviewing stand. Over 20,000 men were in line, headed by a squad of police on foot. Survivors of Gen. Logan's old regiment, Thirty-first Illinois volunteers, led the van, proudly bearing the old regimental flags, tattered and torn by 200 confederate bullets.

Naval Review

The pageant on land was supplemented by the finest marine display ever seen on Lake Michigan. Grouped around revenue cutters Gresham, Fessenden and Calumet, which anchored just off the monument, were nearly 200 vessels, of the merchant marine and private yachts, all gayly decorated for the occasion.

At Night.

Shortly after eight o'clock Mrs. Logan and her party left the Auditorium annex for the Coliseum. An immense throng had gathered to witness the Coliseum garden's fireworks, which were on a par with the lavish and beautiful display shown at intervals during the world's fair. At the conclusion of the spectacle the crowd turned into the Coliseum, where, for over an hour, Mrs. Logan, Secretary and Mrs. Alger and Sculptor Saint Gaudens received the thousands who pressed into the building.

DEATH OF J. R. DOOLITTLE.

The Ex-Senator Passes Away at the Home of His Daughter.

Providence, R. I., July 28.—Ex-United States Senator Doolittle, of Wisconsin, died at 9:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at the home of his daughter, at Edgewood.

EX-SENATOR DOOLITTLE.

near this city. Bright's disease was the cause of death. He was 83 years of age.

[James R. Doolittle was born on a farm in the town of Hampton, in the neighborhood of Lake Champlain, and not far from the Vermont line, on January 3, 1815. Judge Doolittle was the sixth in line of descent from Abraham Doolittle, who was sheriff of New Haven county, Conn., in 1648.

The repeal of the Missouri compromise, which followed Pierce's election, and the position assumed by Stephen A. Douglas toward the admission of Kansas and Nebraska operated to drive anti-slavery democrats out of the party. Thus Judge Doolittle became one of the founders of the republican party. He was elected to the United States senate as a republican from Wisconsin, January 22, 1857. Judge Doolittle was a great friend of Abraham Lincoln, and he was in sympathy with Lincoln's administration. In 1863 he was again reelected to the United States senate from Wisconsin.

Of late years Judge Doolittle practiced law in Chicago, and resided most of the time with his daughter, Mrs. Frindell, of Racine. A year ago he was stricken with la grippe and never fully recovered.]

THE MONEY QUESTION.

Message from President McKinley on Currency Reform.

The House Took Action Before Adjournment, But the Senate Sent the Document to the Finance Committee—Text of Message.

Washington, July 26.—Before the adjournment of congress on Saturday President McKinley sent to both houses the following message:

"To the Congress of the United States: In my message convening the congress in extraordinary session I called attention to a single subject—that of providing revenue adequate to meet the reasonable and proper expenses of the government. I believed that to be the most pressing subject for settlement then. A bill to provide the necessary revenues for the government has already passed the house of representatives and the senate and awaits executive action.

"Another question of very great importance is that of the establishment of our currency and banking system on a better basis, which I commented upon in my inaugural address in the following words:

"'Our financial system needs some revision; our money is all good, but its value must not further be threatened. It should all be put upon an enduring basis, not subject to easy attack, nor its stability to doubt or dispute. The several forms of our paper money offer, in my judgment, a constant embarrassment to the government and imperil a safe balance in the treasury.'

"Nothing was settled more clearly at the late national election than the determination upon the part of the people to keep their currency stable in value and equal to that of the most advanced nations of the world.

"The soundness of our currency is not where questioned. No loss can occur to its holders. It is the system which should be simplified and strengthened, keeping our money just as good as it is now, with less expense to the government and the people.

"The sentiment of the country is strongly in favor of early action by congress in this direction, to revise our curency laws and remove them from partisan contention. A notable assembly of business men with delegates from 29 states and territories was held at Indianapolis in January of this year. The financial situation commanded their earnest attention, and after a 'two-days' session the convention recommended to congress the appointment of a monetary commission.

"I commend this report to the consideration of congress. The authors of the report recommend a commission 'to make a thorough investigation of the monetary affairs and needs of this country in all relations and aspects and to make proper suggestions as to any evils found to exist and the remedies therefor.'

"This subject should receive the attention of congress at the special session. It ought not to be postponed until the regular session.

"I therefore urgently recommend that a special commission be created, non-partisan in its character, to be composed of well-informed citizens of different parties, who will command the confidence of congress and the country, because of their special fitness for the work, whose duty it shall be to make recommendations of whatever changes in our present banking and currency laws may be found necessary and expedient, and to report their conclusions on or before the 1st day of November next, in order that the same may be transmitted by me to congress for its consideration at its first regular session.

"It is to be hoped that the report thus made will be so comprehensive and sound as to receive the support of all parties and the favorable action of congress. At all events such a report cannot fail to be of value to the executive branch of the government as well as to those charged with public legislation, and to greatly assist in the establishment of an improved system of finance.

This community was shocked Monday when the news came of the terrible tragedy enacted between 5 and 6 o'clock that morning at the residence of Chas. Gadd northeast of town, whereby N. N. James' was killed and Miss Martha Minor lying at the point of death. Many theories and speculations have been circulated as to the cause of the horrible deed. The inquest developed nothing definite as to how the deed was done or by whom. The theory accepted was that James shot the girl and then himself. James' remains were taken to St. John's undertaking rooms, his relatives in Ohio notified and, after hearing from them, they were buried in the cemetery here Wednesday afternoon. THE WRONG HOUSE.

But a Man in the Same Condition Was Evidently Expected.

The member of congress from—I won't say where, says a writer in the Washington Post—is the kindest-hearted fellow alive. He was going home very late a few nights ago, he says, when he met a young man whom he knows. The young man was hopelessly drunk. The congressman happened to know where he lived, and kindly guided him home. A light was burning in an upper window of the house, and the congressman had no sooner pulled the bell than the door was flung open and a tall and vigorous woman appeared. She said not a word, but she grabbed the intoxicated young man by the collar and gave him a shaking that fairly loosened his teeth in their sockets. Into the hall she shook him and slammed the door. The congressman was descending the steps when the door opened again and his friend flew out as if flung from a catapult. He landed at the foot of the stairs and the congressman picked him up. He was very much frightened and he was almost sober. He managed to gasp out:

"We don't live here. We—we moved last week."

That's all the congressman's story, but I think the really interesting thing would be to know what happened to the man who does live there.

TO A GOOD OLD AGE.

Many of the Dwellers in the Caucasus Live to Be Centenarians.

Last year an old peasant named Ivan Kouzmin was reported to have traveled from Moscow to Kief at the age of 140. He was said to be in good health, says London Lancet. He had formerly been coachman to Count Sheremetief, but in 1840 was sent to Siberia, where he spent 54 years, returning in 1894. His is not the only instance in which a Siberian exile has survived to extreme old age. Two years ago there was said to have died in Samara one Lavarentil Efimoff, who had attained the age of 150. According to the newspaper reports of him he took part as a boy in the famous Pugatchef rebellion in the reign of Catherine the Great, and for his share in that brief but sanguinary outbreak spent 30 years of his life in Siberia. Recently there was said to be living in the village of Vank (Saratof government) an Armenian aged 110, the proud ancestor of 91 descendants, of whom 71 were still living. His name was David Kazarian. Another Armenian, a priest named Ter-Mikaeliantz, was reported not long ago to be living at Gori, in the Caucasus, at the age of 108. He was still able to walk to church and once a year performed the liturgy. If recent history in the Turkish empire continues to repeat itself such instances of longevity among Armenians seem likely to become rare.

SCOTCH SINECURE.

That May Be Obviated After Running Six Hundred Years.

It is proposed by the lord of the treasury to commute the payment of £242 15s, which is annually paid to the holder of the ancient office of heritable usher of Scotland.

The office, says the London Mail, was originally conferred on Alexander Cockburn, of London, and his heirs, by an act of parliament in Scotland in 1393, and the original grant was confirmed by subsequent acts of the Scottish parliament in 1681 and 1686, the latter act attaching a salary of £250 a year to the office, but certain statutory deductions have reduced the amount now payable to £242 15s.

In 1805 the office, with the salary, being a heritable subject capable of being assigned away, was acquired by Sir Patrick Walker for £7,600, a sum equivalent to 31¼ years' purchase of the salary. In 1890, the question whether the grant was permanently binding was submitted to the law officers of the crown in Scotland, who stated that in their opinion it was legally binding, as resting on a series of acts of the Scots parliament.

No duties of an onerous kind are or have been required for a long time from the holder of the office, and it is now proposed to commute the payment at 27 years' purchase.

Get Trusted for Their Fares.

It is perhaps not generally known, says the New York Sun, even in Brooklyn, that persons of respectable appearance may travel on the street cars of that city when they have no money. A woman who has left her purse at home, or a man who has spent all his change speculating in stocks, if ordinarily well dressed, has only to tell the conductor the condition of affairs, on boarding a car, to get carried to any desired point. The conductor gives the penniless passenger an envelope addressed to the office of the company in which to forward later the lacking nickel. This is done as a matter of course, and only a passenger who looks disreputable meets with refusal. This system has been in operation some time, which is apparent proof that the passengers who thus get trusted for their fares use the envelopes given them for the purpose for which they are intended.

The Door Bell in Massachusetts.

The story is going the rounds now of a young man who visited the Tapley school one day to see a teacher. He got hold of the fire alarm, thinking it to be a door bell, and gave it a good ring. In a few seconds the school children came rushing by him, and it was not many seconds before the building was being rapidly emptied. The man stood by in a dazed sort of way and watched them go by and could not imagine what all the fuss was about.

GOOD SHOOTING UPTOWN.

It Was Years Aback and the Spot Was the Treasury Building.

"Some years ago," says an old gunner, "according to the Washington Star, "I had fine sport in pigeon shooting on Fifteenth and F streets, northwest. I do not wonder you look surprised. I was employed in the treasury at the time—a little before the war—and the pigeons that roosted on the cornice and about the capitals of the colonnade had multiplied, and they were so numerous as to inconvenience the employes. To those particularly who were in the upper stories of the building they were an intolerable nuisance. The superintendent of the building secured from the mayor a suspension of the law prohibiting the use of firearms within the city limits so as to allow gunning about the building before seven o'clock in the morning by such persons as he should designate. I having had the reputation of being a good shot and with a mouth set for a pigeon pie dinner secured permission to shoot. One morning's shooting was enough for me so far as the bird pie dinner was concerned, for some of the birds were so aged and tough that hide and feathers were too much for the lead; and many of those killed who found their way to kitchens were too much for the teeth. The sport was kept up for several days, more to the benefit of the department in contracting the circulation of the birds than for the pleasure of eating the game secured, and thousands were slain.

THE CHINESE IN NEW YORK.

Industrious, Temperate, Peaceful and Charitable to One Another.

There is a Chinese population of nearly 10,000 in New York city, but it is a rare sight to see any Chinaman applying for help at any of the public charitable institutions of that city, says a Gotham exchange. The Chinese are always ready to assist each other in all the emergencies of life. Most of them belong to societies of mutual assistance on the Chinese plan. When one of them is penniless he can borrow money. When one is ill nurses furnish the needed service and if he dies the expenses of the burial are always easily obtained. Several hundreds of them have become well off through the business of their washhouses. There are no loafers among them; they are all noted for their industrious lives. Few of them are addicted to the opium habit, though many of them occasionally indulge in the fumes of the drug. It is mainly the wealthy men among them who enjoy the luxury of Chinese wives, but others who desire to form white matches find no difficulty in doing so, as far as obtaining mates is concerned. As a rule the children born of these unions adopt the American style of life. The Chinese of New York boast that they produce proportionally fewer criminals than any other element of the population.

TOMMY WAS A STRATEGIST.

How He Recovered His Drumstick from the Bottom of the Well.

A little boy dropped his drumstick into a well. In vain he entreated his parents, the gardener, the footman, the coachman, the cook, the housemaids to go down into the well to recover his drumstick. In his distress, says the London Telegraph, a brilliant expedient occurred to Master Tommy—he secretly carried off all the plate from the sideboard and threw it into the well. Great was the consternation when the plate was missed, and an active search for the robbers took place. In the midst of the alarm and the confusion Master Tommy ran with the news that he had found the plate. "Where?" was the cry. "Down the well," replied Tommy. "I saw it quite plain shining at the bottom—spoons, ladles, bread-baskets, salvers and all." The housemaid hurried to the well, at the bottom of which, sure enough, the plate was seen. A ladder was procured, a servant descended and the plate was brought up. Just before the last article was fished up Master Tommy whispered to him: "John, please bring up my drumstick when you go down for the soup ladle."

TECUMSEH, MICH., JULY 30, 1897.

FINANCIAL LETTER.

Chicago, July 29, '97.

The past week has been one of continued advancement from a financial and industrial standpoint. The reports of the commercial agencies show that trade is steadily increasing in all legitimate channels. The cheapness of money continues, and this is an important factor in many operations of a far-reaching character, the ultimate benefits of which will be large. With the passage of the tariff bill comes a certainty that for the next four years at least it will be possible for prudent men to formulate and execute plans of great magnitude in manufacturing and other industrial enterprises.

The New York stock market, which is of necessity an unfailing index of the light in which aggregated capital regards the situation, is most encouraging in its recent substantial rise and present firmness. A marked instance of the changed feeling now obtaining in regard to securities is the advance of about 35 points in sugar, which is now being bought on an investment basis and put away in strong boxes by men who have only its earning power in view. The stocks of the crop-carrying railroads are another instance of the confidence of the public in the fixity of the present improved conditions. It is a known fact that our grain yield this year will be large. The better foreign demand is a demonstrated fact, and with such immense quantities of freight to be moved between now and the holidays the earnings of the granger roads cannot but be most gratifying. That the benefits to be derived from this increased business have to some extent already been discounted is shown by the fact that the advance in these stocks has been most marked during the last 30 days, as witness the following table of prices of granger stocks at the opening this week and a month ago:

	June 26.	July 26.
C. B. & Q.	84 5-8	88
St. Paul	81 3-4	88 1-4
Rock Island	73 7-8	81 1-4
C. & N. W.	117	118

This is a magnificent showing for the properties whose prosperity is directly dependent upon good crops and good prices for the same throughout the Northwest and therefore the figures are of value as well as interest to every farmer, merchant and mechanic in those states. In such parts of the west as do not produce largely of grain there are equally important facts pointing to prosperity of a permanent nature. Prices for live stock are much more satisfactory than for years past, and the production of precious metals and those largely used in commerce is large. Gold, silver, copper and lead to the value of hundreds of millions of dollars will be taken from the ground this year in Colorado, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana and California.

It is for this reason—the visible increase of real national wealth as evidenced by our grain fields and mining industries—that the New York stock market is high and firm and that it will continue to advance until a much higher plane of values is reached is the belief of many.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning All Roads Running Through Tecumseh.

Conductor Wm. Lockard moved into the Welling house this week.

Perhaps Adrian has not heard that the general offices of the road are to be at Tecumseh.

The Presbyterian Sunday School contemplates an excursion to Devil's lake in the near future.

E. W. Hiner and Ollie Hunt of the D. & L. N. Made a flying trip to Tecumseh yesterday.

Art Lee was at Addison Jun. tion Wednesday night, taking the place of Night Operator Hopper, who was sick.

A. L. Richmond, auditor of the D. T. & M., and D. & L. N. roads, has rented Dr. Reed's house on Logan street, and will occupy it at once.

E. B. Hathaway, Ass't Supt. has rented, a part of Mrs. Hall's residence on Chicago street and will move his family here this week.

W. H. Harper Jr. of Ottawa O. purchased, this week, 15 acres of gravel on the line of the D. & L. N. from Geo. Tilton and will ship it to Ohio.

It is reported now that the vacancy in the presidency of the Lake Shore will not be filled until some time this fall. In the meantime General Manager Caniff is virtually acting president, although the title has not been conferred upon him. The prevailing opinion is still that S. R. Callaway will be called to fill the position.

Supt. G. R. Haskell has rented the residence that H. L. Jones is building on Kilbuck street, and will take possession as soon as it is completed.

C. H. Roser was here from Detroit Tuesday, and rented Mrs. Kingston's residence to be used for a time for general railroad offices of the D. & L. N. and D. T. & M. Railroads.

J. R. Megrue, president, C. A. Chambers Gen. P. and F. Agent, E. W. Hiner A. G. P. A., G. R. Haskell Gen. Supt., E. B. Hathaway Ass't. Supt., C. H. Roser, chief engineer, L. C. Snell, J. B. Flanders, J. S. Brailey and A. J. Richter were over the road from Toledo to Allegan on a tour of inspection Tuesday and stopped at Tecumseh enroute both ways.

Several of the officials of the C. J. & M. will in all probability go with the new Milwaukee, Detroit & Toledo railroad. Fred C. Whipple, chief clerk of the C. J. & M., has tendered his resignation to accept the position of assistant general freight agent of the M. D. & T. railroad, with headquarters at Detroit. J. B. Flanders has also been offered a position on the new road. Just what Mr. Flanders' title would be or whether he will accept or not is not known. He would probably be in active management of the property with the title of superintendant or general superintendent.—Blade

Among the changes that are taking place on the Detroit & Lima Northern railroad is the establishment of the train dispatcher at Tecumseh. Telegraph line men were busy putting in wires yesterday and to-day, and the village to the north of us will have the advantage of that office for the present. It means three operators and their families. When the new depot is finished in Adrian, which will probably be commenced soon, it is thought offices will be established in the second story for the trian dispatcher. The D. & L. N. company has been doing some heavy ballasting lately and the road is rapidly being placed in shape.—Adrian Telegram.

At last the fate of the Michigan division of the C. J. & M. has been officially and definitely settled. It will be operated in connection with the Detroit & Lima Northern. The road will not be owned by the D. & L. N., but will be controlled by the same general officers. Joseph R. Megrue, who has been elected president of both companies, was in that city to-day and made this official announcement to the Blade. He said that the name of the road had not definitely been decided, but it would probably be the Milwaukee, Detroit & Toledo, as announced in yesterday's Blade. President Megrue said that the car ferry to Milwaukee was an assured fact, and that it would be running in the near future. This will give Toledo another trans-lake line, one that will make some very important new connections for the Northwest. General Freight Agent Chambers, of the road, was in the city to-day, getting in touch with the southern connection at Toledo. He assured the representatives of Toledo lines that the new road would be in the field for business in a few days.—Blade.

Bulletin No. 1. of the D. T. & M. R. R. issued from the office of J. R. Megrue vice-presdient, and dated July 29th is as follows:

Having purchased the Michigan Division of the former C. J. & M. Ry. extending from Toledo, Ohio, to Allegan, Mich., will assume control and operation thereof, August 1st, 1897. Effective August 1st, 1897, the following appointments are made:

C. H. Roser, Chief Engineer and Purchasing Agent, located at Tecumseh, Mich.

G. R. Haskell, Superintendent, located at Tecumseh, Mich.

A. L. Richmond, Auditor, located at Tecumseh, Mich.

G. C. Shiffer, Car Accountant, located at Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. Chambers, Gen. Freight & Pass. Agent, located at Detroit, Mich.

F. C. Whipple, A. G. F. Agent, located at Detroit, Mich.

R. St. Sohn, General Agent, located at Toledo, Ohio.

J. R. MEGRUE,
Vice-President.

The office will be moved to Tecumseh in time for business Monday Aug. 1 and aside from the persons mentioned in the above the train dispatcher and and his assistants will also be located at Tecumseh. On and after Aug. 1 the D. & L. N. and D. T. & M. will be managed and operated by one crops of officers.

In securing the D. & L. N. R. R. Tecumseh has received much more than she bargained for. Already many families have moved in and this bringing of the general offices to Tecumseh will be of untold benefit to the town. Aside from the prominence it gives the place in railroad circles the coming of new people adds thrift and life to the community.

The verdict of every resident of Tecumseh is that they fully appreciate the town's good fortune in being geographicaly located so as to be the headquarters for the roads, also that every thing shall be done to retain the offices here and to make the new comers welcome and contented in their new home.

Yesterday afternoon four men from below Britton were in town and filled up on whiskey—it worked nicely. They wanted a scrap, had a longing for one so to speak. About 7 p. m. on Railroad street one strayed from the others, followed a man, pounced upon him and in short order was a badly whipped individual. It drew the usual crowd of spectators.

Miss Hattie Osborn, of Macon, was married to Mr. Harry Perkins, of Hudson, at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Osborn, Wednesday, July 28, Rev. Mr. Cansfield officiating. The wedding was a happy affair, beside the relatives, many school-mates and friends of the young people being in attendance. Mrs. Perkins was educated in Tecumseh and has hosts of friends here who wish her God-speed and happiness through life.

James Elliott, the village clerk, is usually a very quiet, well behaved young man, but when he goes fishing no one can tell a thing about him. Last Friday Jim went fishing, came home early, changed to his best attire and, laden with a light heart and box of chocolates called on his best girl. Meantime his friends secured the fishing outfit with which was constructed a "dummy" which except the facial expression resembled Jimmy very much. Said "dummy" was placed in Jim's chair and leaned over the table in a very "sick" position and Doctors North and Tefft sent for to prescribe for that tired feeling. Both medical gentlemen "bit" as did about a score of other victims. But the meanest part of the joke was when a friend notified Jim at the home of the young lady that a license was wanted down town and during his absence proceeded to take his place with the lady and eat the chocolates.

Last week two of our ardent fishermen went to Devil's lake with a fine lot of minnows which required time and labor to secure. Reaching the lake they proceeded at once to indulge their passion for the sport. After baiting their hooks, they fastened the minnow pail to the boat and put it in the water. Fish were biting and soon they each had one. On going for more bait, to their astonishment there was no bait. The pail was gone. To shore they went and after hard work secured some worms which they left on the dock while doing something else. Some ducks came along while they were absent and gobbled up the worms. You may know what followed. The only consolation they received was tendered by Jerry Harkness who advised them in the future to put their bait in a tree. Even fishermen have some unpleasant experiences.

It is probable that the Lamb Bros.' fence plant will move to Adrian. While Tecumseh regrets to lose any kind of an industry, still it is but natural that, as the stockholders are all Adrian men, the works should be moved to that city. When the stock was first put on the market Tecumseh capitalists did not buy because they thought Lamb Bros. had nothing to sell. The patent was on a machine to weave wire fence and even now it is far from doing perfect work. The HERALD wishes Lamb Bros. and their company all success and regrets to lose the gentlemen and their enterprize from this community.

Ball Game.

The game between the Diemels, of Detroit, and the home team last Friday, while not being what might be called an exciting one, still had some very interesting points. Harris, Tecumseh's pitcher, was in the best of form and very few of the visitors reached first, and those few were, by clever fielding, retired before completing their circuit to the home plate. Girardin, for the Deimels, was not able to hold the Tecumseh hitters down and, after 7 hits had been made in three innings, he was retired from the box in favor of Kuhnline whose work was less effectual. Heesen did a clever bit of fielding in the sixth and Lowe played his usual excellent game at second. Kelly, Tecumseh's new fielder, did well with the stick, but had no chance to show himself in the field. It must have been an off day for the Detroit boys for they handled the ball like children, but much credit must go to Harris for his admirable work in the box.

A Midnight Encounter.

VERNAL CHOICE was a pretty and commodious villa, and Dovecottam a select and salubrious suburb. To the happiness of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Green—lately made almost complete by the arrival of the veriest cherub that ever came down from Heaven—there were but two drawbacks. The first was of Maurice's making. He had a ridiculous fad about gas fittings. He believed them to be in a chronic state of leakiness. He told his long-suffering wife almost daily that more gas escaped through unsuspected cracks and defective joints than served to illuminate the cozy rooms of Vernal Choice.

Mrs. Maurice Green's bugbear was burglars. Nothing could shake her conviction that when a burglar took his "dark suburban way" his objective would be by decree of fate, Vernal Choice. Thus it came to pass, that, nightly, while Maurice was turning off the gas at the meter—he would on no account allow anyone else to do it, as "gas is such a fickle thing"—his little wife was on her knees in the bedroom, not, as might be supposed, saying her prayers—though she made the same kneeling serve both purposes—but timidly peering under the flowered terra cotta valances for the burglar that never came.

Sometimes it would happen that the gas popped out just as she was in the act of raising the curtain that might reveal the tragedy of her life, and then, with a little scream, she would seek the matches—she never could put her hand readily on the matches—and light the delicately shaded candle on the dressing table, ere proceeding with her search and her devotions. At such times, when Maurice ascended from the underground regions, where the gas meter meted out its dole, to the company of his wife above stairs, she would rate him, right soundly for so gentle a little body, for what she styled his "absurd fad" about turning the gas off.

"What do a few extra feet of gas signify, when three precious lives might some night be sacrificed for lack of a light?" she would exclaim, with as much dramatic fervor as if she had been before a row of footlights and a crowded pit, instead of a blue-tinted corrugated candle and a mildly scornful husband.

When Maurice wished to be withering, he was always studiously alliterative in his choice of words. He never failed to pooh pooh the burglar notion. He said it was "the merest moonshine," and that there were "crowds of costlier cribs to crack than Vernal Choice, you bet!"

Mrs. Green, as a rule, deigned no answer. She hated slang, and wondered how a man of Maurice's sense—except upon the meter question—could stoop to its use. She generally refrained from saying so, however, like the sensible little woman she was, and, resignedly filling the baby's feeding bottle, and tucking the little cherub with sundry croonings in its bedside cot retired for the night, leaving Maurice to blow out the corrugated candle.

It was winter, and it was midnight. Maurice had a cold, and so had the baby. The "little cherub," in fact, had a "touch of bronchitis," and his hard breathing as he slumbered restlessly in his little cot, plainly testified the fact through the darkness.

"I wonder," murmured Mrs. Green, as she lay listening to the troubled breathing of the child on the one hand, and the influenza snore of her husband on the other—"I wonder if the little pet is warm enough. I'm anxious about his little chest, bless him! I'd take him into my bed, only Maurice doesn't like it. The little fellow kicks the clothes off so! What could I do to prevent him from taking cold afresh? Happy thought!—there's that little woolen wrap in the spare bedroom. It's either in the middle drawer of the dressing-table or in the wardrobe, I know.

"Poor Maurice! he would willingly go and find it for me, but I wouldn't disturb him to-night for the world. I'm glad I succeeded in persuading him to sleep in his dressing jacket. Those nasty influenza colds need care, and I'm so apt to uncover him in reaching over to baby. I'll slip into the next room myself."

Thus soliloquizing she quietly got out of bed—for where baby came in fear flew out—pushed the turned back bedclothes gently against her husband's back so that he would not miss her, and proceeded to feel for the matches. The little receptacle at the bed head was empty. Not a match! "Oh, dear, dear, why will Maurice insist upon turning the gas off at the meter, especially when the baby is unwell?" she sighed, as she slipped into her dressing gown, which fortunately was hanging on the brass knob at the foot of the bed.

Slippers she could not find. Nil desperandum! She knew to a foot where the wrap was, or at least she thought she did, and she would know it the moment she laid a finger on it. The little cherub in the cot coughed in a choking manner. Light or no light, the wrap must be found, and, without further delay, the little mother walked gingerly into the next room.

No one could fail to find the wardrobe, as it was the first article of furniture encountered on entering the room. When its door opened it was possible to view one's self from the bedroom door, for it consisted of a three-quarter length mirror in which Mrs. Green was wont to inspect the "hang" of her latest costume.

"I'm almost sure it's in the dressing table drawer," mused Mrs. Green, growing accustomed to the darkness, and assisted by a suspicion of moonlight that shed a pale, uncertain light both through the skylight on the landing and the window opposite the wardrobe. Acting upon this, though she ignored the wardrobe for the present, she crossed the room to the dressing table, and, after sundry clickings of little brass handles, and tentative pulls at wrong drawers, at last opened the right one, but failed to feel the wrap.

"It must be in the wardrobe after all," she thought, and, accordingly, closed the drawer with some noise, tripped across the dark room, opened the wardrobe door with some difficulty, and buried herself in its spacious recesses.

Maurice was a heavy sleeper, and, consequently, apt to be a bit bemuddled on first awakening—more especially in the dark. On this particular night, after apparently dreaming for a full fortnight of "excursions and alarums," he awoke with a violent start. The room, to him, was pitch dark. There was not even the suspicion of moonlight on this side of the house. Besides, the blinds were down. He sat up, every nerve and sinew taut now. He was fully awake.

"By jingo," he breathed, and he felt the cold sweat start to his brow, "she was right. They've come!" He put out his hand to wake his wife. He felt her form under the bulging bed clothes at his side. He could hear the baby breathing huskily. There was only one other person in that house unaccounted for. That was the little servant maid. But why should she be trying drawers in the spare bedroom? No, they had come after all. Mrs. Green was right. It was burglars.

Maurice withdrew his hand, which rested on the hillock by his side, with the thought: "I'll not waken her, poor soul. She'd be scared to death. I'll know the worst first." So thinking, and with a sort of infatuation—which was perhaps bravery—to get a glimpse of the marauder, he stole out of bed, buttoned up his dressing-jacket, took the little bedside chair by the back, and, thus armed, his heart beating like a muffled drum, stealthily turned the corner between the two rooms.

A faint light came through the landing skylight. Heavens! the villain was at the other end of the room, right opposite the door. What he was doing he could not make out, for he looked like a man seen through a mist. The wretch! Just then the draught along the landing took Maurice shrewdly on the bare legs. The influenza asserted itself. He fought against it desperately for a moment. It but augmented the force of the explosion. Like a thunderclap he sneezed.

There was a muffled exclamation in the room. Maurice rushed forward with uplifted chair. The burglar, too, had a chair, and was making at him with equal fury. Crash! The house seemed to have fallen. There was a fearful clatter of falling glass, a piercing shriek, the sound of a body falling on the floor, and all was still, but for the wail of the frightened babe in the room he had left.

What had he done? He kneeled down, careless of the broken glass, and his hand rested on a bare foot. Sick with apprehension, he groped elsewhere, and encountered a plaited head and a few curling pins. "A match! a match! My kingdom for a match!" he would doubtless have said, had he not been so terribly upset.

Just then a rectangle of light appeared and increased until, pale and trembling, stood the little maid in the doorway, a farthing dip in her hand, amazed to see the following tableau vivant: A wardrobe door, swinging upon its hinges, with its long mirror smashed to fragments; a chair, with a broken leg, lying close by; a horrid man in a night shirt and dressing jacket, kneeling at the feet of a prostrate woman in a dead faint, a dressing gown and plaits, who was none other than the horrified man's wife.

Maurice Green never turns the gas off at the meter now, except when he takes his wife and family away for the summer holiday. Mrs. Green still looks under the bed for possible burglars before retiring for the night, but Maurice has never dared to chaff her since he mistook his own faint reflection in the wardrobe mirror for a desperate burglar.—Tit-Bits.

He Was Alive.

The grenadiers of the famous "Old Guard" will never be forgotten, in France as long as the memory of brave men shall live in the national heart. But some of them, at least, were as bright as they were brave, as the following trustworthy anecdote bears witness:

One fine morning, after peace had been concluded between France and Russia, the two emperors, Napoleon and Alexander, were taking a short walk, arm in arm, around the palace park at Erfurt. As they approached the sentinel, who stood at the foot of the grand staircase, the man, who was a grenadier of the guard, presented arms. The emperor of France turned, and pointing with pride to a great scar that divided the grenadier's face, said:

"What do you think, my brother, of soldiers who can survive such wounds as that?"

"And you," answered Alexander, "what do you think of soldiers who can inflict them?"

Without stirring an inch from his position, or changing the expression of his face in the least, the stern old grenadier himself replied, gravely:

"The man who did it is dead."—Youth's Companion.

A Spur.

"Bailiff," said a western judge one day to an officer in charge of the jury, "will you please inform the jury there will be a horse race in Merrick's field at three o'clock?"

The jury had been out for 48 hours, but in less than 30 minutes they came into court with a verdict.—Tit-Bits.

Delicate Proposal.

He—Are you a member?

"No; only married women are eligible."

"Ah! Would you allow me to—make you eligible to membership?"—

GUESTS FLEE FROM FIRE.

Jennison Park Hotel, Near Holland, Burns at Night.

Holland, July 25.—The big Jennison Park hotel, at Jennison Park, on Black lake, near here, was destroyed at four o'clock Saturday morning by a fire that reduced it to a pile of ashes in less than 45 minutes. There was an unusual gathering of guests at the hotel because of a "grand opening" ball given the night before by Manager J. B. Bryant. The fire followed within an hour of the closing of the dining-room, but even from the tired sleep of that hour the 120 guests and 30 employes were awakened in time to escape with their lives from the very rapid spread of the flames. Several persons were hurt, none seriously, however. The cause of the fire was an explosion of a gasoline burner on the ground floor near the kitchen of the hotel. It was used for heating water, and a watchman lit it about 3:30 o'clock and went to another part of the building. Five minutes later that portion of the building was filled with flames, and within an hour the main building and the detached annex were in ruins. The loss is about $30,000. Some 80 of the guests and most of the servants, all sleeping in the main building, escaped in their night robes and several lost heavily in valuable clothing and jewelry. Mrs. Muhlhauser and her daughter lost diamonds worth $2,000.

TAKE THEIR OWN LIVES.

One Woman and Two Men Commit Suicide in Detroit.

Detroit, July 27.—Three persons committed suicide in Detroit Monday—Mrs. Frances Schischke, aged 45; Charles Weitzke, a tailor, aged 58, and an unknown man who jumped off the ferryboat into the river.

Luis, the 15-year-old son of Mrs. Schischke, went into his mother's bedroom to call her at six o'clock Monday morning. He found her sitting in a rocking chair dead. She had shot herself in the forehead. She and her husband separated three years ago, and since then she had been the only support of her six children.

Charles Weitzke sent his family, consisting of a wife and five children, to look at the circus parade Monday morning, and in their absence committed suicide by hanging himself to a crossbeam in the garret.

The unknown man who jumped into the river cried: "Here goes nothing," as he made the leap. The passengers threw life-preservers to him, but he refused to cling to them.

BOOM IN FURNITURE.

Big Factories at Grand Rapids Are Crowded with Orders.

Grand Rapids, July 24.—The fall furniture season "opening" is drawing to a close, and in figuring up the results the manufacturers find that it has been the most satisfactory opening they have had since the spring of 1892. The number of buyers in the market was 369, and the arrivals next week will swell the total for the month to 400 or more. Conservative estimates place the increase of the business this season over that of July, 1896, at 25 per cent. or better. Some of the manufacturers report orders booked already to an aggregate larger than the entire sales of last fall, and there are none that do not report an encouraging increase. All the factories here are running full time, and most of them with full forces of men.

Big Sawmill Burned.

Menominee, July 23.—The sawmill plant of Donovan & O'Connor in this city was burned a short time after starting the machinery. The fire started under the band mill, and in a few seconds the entire structure was in flames. Nothing but the surrounding lumber could be saved. Nelson Kennedy, the band-mill filer, was badly burned about the head, neck, hands and arms. The owners of the mill had made contracts recently for sawing from 6,000,000 to 10,000,000 feet of logs. The loss on the mill is $25,000; insurance, $10,000.

The Blueberry Crop.

Negaunee, July 24.—The blueberry crop promises to be an excellent one this season, and the first berries are already in the market. The season will be at its height in about two weeks, and from now until then the number of pickers engaged in gathering the berries in Marquette, Delta, Alger and Luce counties will increase daily until perhaps 2,000 persons will be engaged in the work. The blueberry crop of Marquette and adjacent counties will be worth $60,000 to $75,000 this year.

Saginaw Street Cars Running.

Saginaw, July 27.—The street cars were started up here Monday night, after being shut down for a week. The receivers took hold without any resistance from the old management and paid the $18,000 due the city. The stockholders of the company still say they will push the case in the United States court.

New Insect Attacks Peaches.

Decatur, July 26.—Fruitgrowers in the northern part of the Michigan peach belt report that a new insect pest has destroyed nearly all the peaches in the larger orchards along the lake shore, in Oceana county. The pest has not as yet made its appearance in other parts of the fruit region.

Crushed to Death.

Decatur, July 23.—Otto Werner was crushed to death under a farmer's wagon at Jackson while trying to climb upon a wheel.

RAISES THE ASSESSMENT.

Old Members of the Knights of Maccabees Must Pay Higher Rates.

Port Huron, July 24.—The supreme tent, Knights of the Maccabees, after a long discussion over the question of raising the assessment rates of old members 50 per cent.; to the standard by which new members are assessed, adopted a compromise. It provides for two extra assessments each year upon all members admitted prior to July 1, 1895, allowing such members, however, the privilege of surrendering their membership certificates and obtaining another, upon which the assessments will be the same as those upon members who have joined since July, 1895.

YOUNG WOMAN KILLED.

Cruel Murder in the Woods near Crystal Falls.

Crystal Falls, July 26.—Within a mile of this place Saturday evening Miss Pearl Morrison, one of the city's most highly esteemed young women, was foully murdered. Miss Morrison had spent the afternoon visiting friends at Great Western mine location and left the residence of the Misses Brooks at about five o'clock to return home. She never reached there, and her father went in search of her Sunday morning, but could find no trace of her. Three large parties started out to make a systematic search of the woods on the east side of the river. They had hardly entered upon their work when they were met by Miss Brooks, who reported that a tramp whom she had given supper to the evening before had returned to her house shortly after dinner Sunday and said that he had found a dead girl in the woods and guided her to the spot where the dead girl lay, and whom she found to be her friend and guest of the day before, Pearl Morrison. Miss Brooks took the party to the place where the object of their search lay. The girl's face was badly battered and her throat showed the finger marks of the man who had strangled her. There was ample evidence that the murderer had satisfied his bellish lust after killing the poor girl. The spot where the murder took place is about a quarter of a mile from the main road, leading to the mine and about 30 feet from the Blaney creek road. The brush was trampled down for several feet around where the girl lay, showing that she had made a desperate fight before she gave up her life. Several circumstances connected with the finding of the body by the tramp who gave his name as Peter Bunce, and claims to hail from nowhere in particular, are very suspicious and point strongly to him as the murderer. He is under arrest.

A paper bag, containing a lunch given to Bunce by Mrs. Harris and found near the spot where Pearl Morrison was murdered Friday night, is regarded here as strong evidence against Bunce. Several other circumstances help to build a strong chain of circumstantial evidence around him, and one of the strongest is the fact of him reporting the finding of the body. It is now thought that his object in doing so was the hope of receiving a reward. He can give no satisfactory account of his whereabouts from 3:30 o'clock until six o'clock, between which hours it is known the murder was committed.

MAY REDUCE ITS CAPITAL.

Business of Michigan-Peninsular Car Company Has Decreased.

Detroit, July 28.—Holders of preferred stock in the Michigan-Peninsular Car company are anxious on account of a threatened reduction of the capital stock of the big car building concern. The corporation, which was formed in 1892 by the consolidation of five car building and iron working concerns, has been doing little business the past three years in proportion to its capital, which consists of $3,000,000 common and $5,000,000 preferred stock. The latter guarantees dividends, but has no voting power. Senator McMillan and associates are heavy holders of the preferred securities. Col. F. J. Hecker and Charles L. Freer are said to have gained a controlling interest in the common stock and in the $2,000,000 of bonds issued by the company. The plant is said to inventory about $3,000,000.

Peppermint Oil Crop Injured.

Decatur, July 28.—The distilling of peppermint oil has begun in the mint fields of this region, where two-thirds of the crop of the United States is produced. Late frosts and grasshoppers worked considerable injury in some parts of the district, while in other portions the first fields cut are producing much less oil an acre than last season. Conservative growers estimate that the yield of oil will be nearly up to that of last season by reason of the largely increased acreage devoted to the culture of peppermint this year.

Pingree to Fight Burrows.

Lansing, July 28.—Gov. Pingree on Wednesday emphasized his intention to back Col. John Atkinson for the United States senatorship to succeed Julius C. Burrows, whom the governor does not like for the important part he took in securing the passage of the Dingley bill. The new tariff law does not suit the governor because he says it puts too much tariff on hides, an article which he uses extensively in his business.

ELECTRICAL INDUSTRIES.

Business Places and Private Houses Full of the Lively Force.

An idea of the vast extent of the electrical industries can be formed when it is stated that careful investigation reveals the fact that the capital invested in various electrical arts is not less than $1,500,000,000, says the Boston Herald. The very magnitude of this vast capital indicates the enormous extent to which electricity now lends its aid to the other natural forces previously brought under human control. One can scarcely enter an industrial establishment of any importance, a public building or a private residence having any pretense of comfort or luxury, without meeting with familiar or unfamiliar electric appliances. Not only are electric motors to be seen everywhere, but the electric current is made to regulate the operation of steam throttle valves, clocks and many other appliances of machinery. It is not easy to guess where all this will stop. No doubt electricity will continue to invade fields wherein mechanical construction has heretofore been wholly relied upon and other mechanical movements will, in their turn, be supplanted.

How He Can Handle a Bulky Fodder Crop with Ease.

In cutting ensilage or fodder, a little work transferred from hand to horse power often goes a great way to lessen expense. A simple method is shown below of unloading fodder or hay. Two ropes about 50 feet long, depending on the length of the rack and height of load to be drawn, are used, one end of each being fastened to the hind axle of the wagon. They are then passed back and over the top of the rack between the two outside boards on either side. While loading, the ropes may be brought back under the outside of the rack and fastened almost any place on the rear part. When the load is completed the ropes are drawn over the fodder and tied to the back of the rack, acting in the capacity of a binding pole. To unload, fasten the ropes to a beam, and with the team draw the wagon slowly out from under the load. The first time may not always prove successful, but with a little practice the wagon may be unloaded in a few minutes.

UNLOADING FODDER MADE EASY.

The ropes should be so laid that they will not catch to anything. The fodder must be placed evenly on either side and the distance apart of the ropes is to be determined by practice. In unloading, if the fodder is heavy, the front end of the rack must be tied to the wagon or the hind end placed almost directly over the hind wheels, as the weight of the fodder is liable to tip up the rack. In tying the ropes to the beam or post, do it high enough to prevent the drawing downward upon the fodder. They should be of equal length, which may be regulated by one man drawing down on one or the other while unloading, as he finds it necessary. The team must be driven slowly. It is best to practice a few times on quite small loads and notice the effect upon different ways of loading and the place the fodder is to drop, by loosening or tightening the rope.—Farm and Home.

STORAGE OF GRAIN.

Care Must Be Taken to Insure Its Keeping in Good Condition.

On the average farm it is nearly always necessary to store more or less grain. Oats for seed and feeding, wheat for seed and exchange at the mill for flour, as well as to market. Wheat is a cash crop and can be turned into money at any time; it is often as good a plan to store the wheat in the granary and sell as the money is needed as to sell direct from the machine, when the threshing is done, and then put the money in the bank.

But it is essential when grain of any kind is to be stored away that pains be taken to store in such a way as will insure its keeping in a good condition. This granary should be clean, well-ventilated and as nearly vermin-proof as possible. A separate building will generally supply these conditions more fully than any other.

If a new granary is to be built, the work should be done in good season, so as to be sure to have it ready when the threshing is done, as there is always more or less loss every time that small grain is handled, and it is quite an item to handle it as little as possible.

The granary should be built with the floor well up from the ground, set on pillars; put inverted pans or sheets of iron over each post to keep out rats and mice; have a good, solid floor and be sure that it is tight. Have good ventilation at the top. The size must, of course, depend on the quantity of grain to be stored, but it is best to have plenty of room, so that in case it is necessary to store damp grain there will be room to stir it about.

With an old granary a thorough cleaning out should be given, and it will be better if the inside is thoroughly whitewashed, using a good lime wash into which a small quantity of carbolic acid or copperas has been stirred.

It is hardly good economy to start a crop in such a way or under such conditions that it will not be reasonably sure of keeping in good condition. There is always some loss in storing grain; it is quite an item to make this as small as possible.—St. Louis Republic.

How Manure Is Wasted.

There are two ways in which stable manure is most likely to be wasted. One, the most obvious, is the wasting by rains, which will wash away all that is soluble in it. But the other, less thought of, is even more dangerous though unseen. That is the wasting by the passing away as ammonia of all the nitrogenous parts of manure. The ammonia is very volatile. Pour some into a saucer and leave it exposed to the air, and most of its strength will disappear after a few hours. If some potash is put with it that will absorb a part of it, turning it. If the potash be caustic, into saltpetre. But the far greater part of the ammonia is given off by decomposing manure heaps and escapes into the air, where it becomes useless as a fertilizer.

Harness that is crusted with sweat and dirt should be cleaned.

PASTURES NEED CARE.

The Future of Hay Farming in the United States.

The desire to cultivate as much land as possible in order to get the most possible from it has led to general neglect of meadow and pasture lands. Only when it is found that the soil had lost so much fertility that it would not pay for cultivating was it seeded down or left to grow up with such herbage, both weeds and grass, as nature provided. The result is that most of the land now in grass is by that very fact discredited as being presumably fit for nothing else. Yet there is in all grass land a constant tendency to increase in fertility. It is so even when the land is left to grow up with the weeds and bushes. These shelter the surface, hold the leaves that fall on the land from being blown away. The decomposition of these leaves gradually builds up the soil, and to this must be added the excrement from animals fed on the herbage which the soil is still able to grow.

Usually when the improvement of grass land is determined upon the soil to be turned under and rot is regarded as an important part of the soil assets. Improving the land as meadow and pasture by manuring it and still leaving it unplowed is hardly ever thought of. Yet as in most cases the grass land is, even with manure, not quite rich enough for profitable cropping, the experiment is worth trying of applying to it such manure as can be had and see what the increased grass or hay product will be worth. This is done successfully in England. Why may it not in the older parts of this country? The demand for hay is generally good in all eastern cities. Will it pay to fertilize grass lands so as to make the growing of hay profitable? If it will not pay to maintain fertility in grass land, the logical sequence is that all hay or grass taken from it helps to reduce fertility so that the soil will be worth nothing for the production of any kind of crop.

If is likely that in the future, as in the past, most of the hay crop in this country will be produced in the years when the rotation between cultivated crops and grass requires that the land be seeded. Our climate is not moist like that of England. Hence it cannot keep a good sod so many years without plowing and reseeding. This also is so much the best for cultivated land that there need be no fear that the profits of cultivated crops will so lessen the amount of land in grass that there will not be hay enough to feed with grain and coarser fodder, nor that it will fail to be supplied at reasonable prices.—Cultivator.

CORNFODDER BARROW.

two feet long, and two feet apart and three inches wide by one and one-half inches.

The straps (D) are old pieces of carriage tire bent as shown. The legs are fastened on with a single bolt and the uprights by a long screw. The braces for the uprights are notched in and nailed. When it is desired to use the barrow for grass put in a floor of half-inch white pine; also nail half-inch boards from B 1 to B 2 and fit in side boards from B 2 to B 2 and from B 1 to B 1.

White pine or cypress will be strong enough for the dimensions given. If heavier wood is used use smaller size.—National Stockman.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

A good male animal will improve a whole herd.

All heavy crops are grown in a rich soil thoroughly cultivated.

Change the bill of fare frequently if you want the teams to do well.

Good management with stock is that which insures a steady growth.

Market all the poor sheep as soon as fat; there is no money in keeping them.

Early maturity is one of the best methods of lessening the cost of early maturity.

By keeping stock growing and gaining they will be making something every day.

The keeping of good sheep is as profitable as the keeping of any other kind of stock.

One advantage with both sheep and hogs is the quick returns it is possible to receive.

Good land, good seed, good tillage, good manure are four essentials of good farming.

Hogs require salt the same as other stock. Keep a supply where they can help themselves.—Farmers Union.

Some Effects of Weeds.

Weeds not only impoverish the soil, but they shade and occupy the ground to the detriment of other plants. We are all familiar with the serious effects of spring weeds on the growth of nearly all kinds of crops produced in market gardening. How, if care is not exercised, they choke the slender onions, just from the seed, and cause the young beets and parsnips to become pale and worthless. Weeds are hardy plants, and in their struggle for existence, unless checked, force to the wall the more tender plants which it is man's province to grow and cultivate.—Rural World.

AN ACCIDENT.

Mr. Quintus Hummel, of 118 Michigan Ave., Detroit, tells a War Story of his own Experience, and the Result.

(From Detroit News.)

Our representative called at 118 Michigan Avenue, the residence of Mr. Quintus Hummel. Mr. Hummel is a veteran of the late war, and received, in the campaign, an injury which has given him much pain and suffering since. He belonged to a Michigan cavalry regiment and his horse becoming frightened one day reared up, throwing him backward. In falling he struck his spine on a sharp stone, inflicting a deep cut over five inches long. The injury affected the kidneys. About two years ago the left kidney started to bleed, and has been doing so ever since. Mr. Hummel, in a few pointed sentences, gave our representative the following account:

"The accident of my 'war days' left me in bad shape; pain in my back and spine rendered me almost useless, and I was compelled to give up work entirely. I could not turn over in bed without assistance. I have spent hundreds of dollars in various ways trying to find relief. Physicians have told me my spine was honeycombed for 18 inches. I had given up in despair, never hoping for relief, when a friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills, and they have done me a world of good. The pains have disappeared from my back, and the bleeding of my kidney has almost entirely stopped. I know I can never be entirely cured, as I would have to be 'a new man,' but Doan's Kidney Pills have done more to make me feel like 'a new man' than all the other things I have tried during past years. I have not had any recurrence of the pain or bleeding since taking them."

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

LITERARY NOTES.

Brimming with interesting facts and bright allusions is Ned Arden Flood's paper, "Street Life in London," contributed to The Chautauquan for August. It is finely illustrated with interesting scenes from the great metropolis.

Helen Watterson Moody begins in the August number of Scribner's some satirical and humorous discussions of the problems that are agitating women. The series is called "The Unquiet Sex," and the first type discussed is "The Woman Collegian."

Harper's Bazar of July 31 will contain a practical and useful article of particular interest to students of music, on "The Pianist's Left Hand," by Aubertine Woodward Moore, and a clever sketch by Marion Harland, entitled "The Feathered Ishmaelite."

The tenth installment of "White Man's Africa," by Poultney Bigelow, in the midsummer's Harper's, contrasts British and Boer government, with special reference to the Jameson Raid and the present troubles in the Transvaal. The illustrations are by R. Caton Woodville.

The complete novel in the August issue of Lippincott's is "Two Daughters of One Race," by Edgar Fawcett. It is a domestic tale of love and blindness, with a single hero, and two heroines whose characters are in marked contrast. Its well-known author has done no better work.

Here's a last word of advice to the athletic "summer girl" of '97: "Pack your common sense with your sporting goods and carve your motto, 'Go slow,' on the handlebars of your wheel, on the handle of your racquet, the pommel of your saddle, on your fishing-rod and rifle, on your oars, and, last of all, on your conscience;" for it is every woman's duty to keep well and strong during her vacation, for the happiness of her friends as well as of herself.—From "Home Remedies for Over-Exertion," in Demorest's Magazine for August.

The suggestive question "How it feels to be a problem?" is discussed in the August Atlantic by W. E. B. DuBois. This article, entitled "The Strivings of the Negro People," is particularly interesting owing to the fact that the author himself is a negro, a recent graduate of Harvard University, and a man of broad cultivation. In this paper he makes a striking statement of the disadvantages under which his race struggles, and gives the reader the benefit of his own reflections on the cultivated negro's anomalous position in America.

McClure's Magazine for August will be a special midsummer number, with a frontispiece drawn expressly for it by Boutet de Monvel, the eminent French illustrator. Among the contributors will be Rudyard Kipling, Cy Warman, A. Conan Doyle, Anthony Hope, Robert Barr, James Whitcomb Riley, William Canton, Madam Blanc (of the French "Revue des Deux Mondes"), Hamlin Garland, Robert Louis Stevenson, John Kendrick Bangs and Albert Bigelow Paine. It will have a special cover, and most of the contributions will be fully illustrated.

Harper's Weekly of July 31 will contain several features of particular interest and timeliness, among them illustrated articles on the "Recent Mining Congress in Denver," and on the "New Niagara Bridges." Rev. F. E. Clark, president of the Society of Christian Endeavor, will write of the recent convention in San Francisco, Henry James will contribute a letter from London, and there will be a capital golf story, entitled "Colonel Bogie," by Gustave Kobbe, with three illustrations by W. T. Smedley. The number will also contain illustrated descriptive articles on Hawaii, and on the Scandinavian Exhibition in Stockholm, the latter by W. S. Harwood, the Weekly's special correspondent.

Truths Told in a Few Words.

A child's respect for its parent is not secured by over-leniency any more than by over-severity.

A daughter should never seek nor be allowed to "outdress" her mother. In every family the mother should be the best-dressed member.

The discarded finery of a daughter should never constitute a mother's wardrobe. No one feels especially dignified in the presence of one whose old clothes she is wearing, and a mother should at all times preserve her dignity before her children. The mother who never loses her queenliness will never lose her crown.

Preventable misfortunes consist, chiefly, of manifold things, little to do, but immense things to have done.

The man who earns one dollar and spends two, and the man who earns two and spends one, stands on either side of the hair-line between heedlessness and discretion, between ruin and safety.

Parents generally receive that measure of filial respect they deserve—not always, perhaps, but very generally.

When a mother allows her daughter to appropriate her wraps, gloves, veils, or other articles of personal attire, she begins a policy of familiarity which, sooner or later, breeds contempt. A respect for one's belongings engenders a respect for their possessor.—August Ladies' Home Journal.

Between 1878 and 1881, in a single Roman village district, 707 heads of families in a population of 1,200 families were flogged for not paying their taxes.

Sensitiveness is a natural quality. We cannot destroy it if we would, and we would not if we could.

MATINEE.

The second racing matinee was held at Bill's driving park Saturday afternoon. The track was in fine shape, events interesting and good time made. Owing to a tire giving out on Lapham's bike sulky, which had to be taken uptown for repair, it was late before the racing began. The 3:00 trot or pace was the first race called with the following staters in order given: Leopard Rose, spot. m., E. Prichard, Tecumseh, having the pole; Minnie Aragon, bm, W. S. Roberts, Lenawee Junction; W L., ch r g, Wm. Lapham, Onsted; C. J. V., g g, C. J. VanDoren, Adrian; and Laura Keene, b m, A. Rundel, Adrian. The struggle was principally between Laura Keene and Wm. L., but the mare had the most speed and won. In the 3rd heat Laura Keene acted badly and finished 4th. In this heat Leopard Rose made a great burst of speed at the head of the stretch and came in a close second.

The named race had three starters: Lady Vedder, bm, C. Vedder; Calando, ch g, L. Knowles, Wolf Creek; and Elsie O., g m, F. Davidson. Although it was Elsie O.'s first race, she won handily in straight heats.

In the 2:40 trot or pace three horses faced the wire in the following order: Prairie Lil, blk m, Wm. Cadmus, Macon; Frank B., g g, J. Vescielus, Lake Ridge; Minnaloid, bm, Wm. Gauntlet, Milan. Although Minnaloid is very speedy, she is willful and erratic and as bad a starter as can be found, and Frank B. would have won easily in straight heats but for a bad start in the 2nd heat. When Starter Kyle sent them off with Minnaloid several lengths ahead of Frank B., this was done owing to the mare's acting so in starting and Kyle thought F. B. would beat her down the stretch. This was the only heat, however, in which she kept her feet, and Frank B. could not overcome the lead though he made a gallant struggle. He is a steady trotter and lowered his record for a half mile.

E. D. Newcomb was quite seriously injured last Friday afternoon by being kicked in the forehead by a horse. He was in a field at work when a storm came up and he took shelter under the wagon having a blanket fastened around him. After the rain was over he went to crawl out from under the front end of the wagon when the horse kicked him. He was unconscious for some time.—Brooklyn Exponent.

Postmaster O. R. Pierce and Ed Garrison were canvassing the business men of free silver complexion Wednesday, soliciting co-operation in an effort to form a stock company to purchase the plant of the defunct Vibrator, and continue the publication of the paper. A meeting of those who expressed a willingness to go into the enterprise was held in the third story of the Maxson building Wednesday evening, and we understand a committee was appointed to negotiate with Dr. Eaton, the present owner, with a view of purchasing the plant. The new company will be capitalized for $1,000, and stock will be sold in blocks of from $10 to $25. An effort will be made to secure the services of a Mr. McDonald, who is at present conducting a newspaper at Ligonier, Ind., who will assume editoral management. Dr. Eaton will return from Port Huron to-day, and it is expected the deal will be consummated so that the first issue will appear next week.—Hudson Gazette.

VICTORIA AS A GIRL.

Childhood Days of the Queen Who Has Now Reigned Sixty Years.

There stands in one of the rooms of Kensington palace, London, an old faded doll house, a headless horse and a model of a ship. They are the toys with which Queen Victoria used to play when she was a little girl, about 75 years ago. In another room, not far away, is a bronze plate showing where the queen of England was born. Although Victoria was to become one of the greatest monarchs of her age and to reign longer than any other English sovereign, she spent a rather dull time as a little girl. There were no companions with whom she could play, so her mother bought her a great many dolls, until she had a family of 132 of them. The name of each she entered in a book and wrote out its entire history, where it came from, how it lost its nose, how its dress was torn, and finally, how its sawdust blood ran out and left it only a bunch of rags. With these dolls the little princess performed many ceremonies of state. Their feet were so fixed in the long board that they could stand upstraight and she marched them around in many wonderful ways.

One of her other sports was riding out on her white donkey, whose head was adorned with blue ribbons. An old soldier led it by the bridle. Sometimes she took a drive in a small pony chaise, led by a page. One day a dog ran between the pony's legs; it swerved and upset the little carriage. The princess would surely have been injured or killed, if a soldier who was passing had not caught her in his arms. His name was Maloney, and he was warmly thanked and generously rewarded by the duchess of Kent, her mother.

Victoria had to study much harder than many little girls, for she was to be fitted for a most important work. She began to learn from books when she was five years old. Later she was trained to speak French and German, as well as English, and, by the time she had reached her eleventh year, Italian, Latin, Greek, mathematics, music and drawing were added to her studies. The princess was very fond of drawings, and early began to sketch from nature. She was much interested in natural history and was delighted with her first visit to the British museum, and asked that she might often be taken there. She also took much pleasure in learning simple botany, which she studied with her uncle Leopold in the woods.

Another pastime she found in visiting her "Uncle King," as she called George IV., then king of England.

At 18 years of age, before she was really grown to womanhood, she was crowned queen of England. When it was time for her to marry she didn't have to wait until some nice young man asked her. She had to do the asking herself, because the queen of England is so great that no one she could marry could presume to ask her. She confessed to her dearest friend that proposing to Prince Albert was the "most trying ordeal" she had ever experienced.—Chicago Record.

BEST DISINFECTANT.

Pure Air Is More Efficacious Than the Most Costly Drugs.

After all that is said of disinfectants in the drug line, the best is pure air and in large volume. At least all other disinfectants are very inefficient, unless plenty of pure air accompanies them.

All rooms that are to be disinfected should have plenty of air admitted to them as the first requisite of beginning operations. Often it will be found quite sufficient in itself to disarm mild contagion.

The majority of people are too sensitive on the subject of letting pure air into sick-rooms, where an abundance of it will prove not only of immense benefit to the sick one, but be the safeguard of the whole household. Direct drafts of air upon the patient are always to be avoided, unless, perchance, it is a case of suffocation, when air in quite vigorous motion about the patient is what he most needs. But there are ways to keep the best of air in a sick-room without putting the patient in any peril, and ways that will prove the means of getting him out of peril from confined, unaerated contagion. Certainly if the rest of the house is filled with good air, it may enter from this source and do much to purify and disinfect the sick-room, a point never to be neglected.

As for the sick-room itself, and I hope it has more than one window, I would advise that a board the exact length of the width of the window be placed under the lower sash. This board should be about six or eight inches wide, and be a good fit. After two windows are raised upon such boards, you will have a good supply of air coming constantly into the room—a fine interchange—never striking the patient direct.

Fires may be run and regulated so that the patient undergoes no risk of getting cold, and a room is warmed easier when it contains a goodly portion of oxygen within its limits.—

THRILLING LOVE TALE.

Sioux Maiden Wooed and Won by a Cultured Foreigner.

Recently there was a wedding ceremony at Bismarck, N. D., that was the culmination of an extraordinarily strange love romance. Thomas Dulaine Cronan married Picture Eyes. Cronan is a young Irishman of fine family and excellent connections in Ireland and England. Picture Eyes is the daughter of John Moose, a full-blooded Sioux Indian.

Picture Eyes is a very pretty Indian maiden. She is now well educated and her tastes, inclinations and surroundings are cultured. She is 25 years old, and as pretty, well-dressed and well-groomed a girl as is to be seen shopping in Bismarck.

The story of the love that won her and changed her condition of life, mental and material, is as melodramatic as a tale of Ouida's. Seven years ago there came to this section of the country Thomas Dulaine Cronan, a young Irishman, a stalwart chap, good-looking, well-dressed, well-educated, and with the manners of a man of the world. He came over to look after the interests of an English syndicate with large holdings near Bismarck.

His ponsor was Moreton Frewen, the noted English advocate of bimetallism, who visited the United States last fall to write of the strenuous campaign of the free silver men for the London Times. Cronan one night rode into Medora, the town established by Marquis de Mores, when that young French nobleman embarked on his fantastic enterprise of raising cattle for the world's markets, and at the same time ruining the beef monopoly established and maintained by Chicago's "Big Four," and found a mob surrounding the jail.

The mob was clamoring for the life of an Indian who was a prisoner in the jail charged with horse stealing. A plucky little deputy sheriff was on the steps of the jail "standing off" the mob by his pistols. Cronan leaped from his horse, and actuated by a curiosity to see such a wild western scene as a lynching, shouldered his way into the mob. While listening to the imploring speeches of the deputy sheriff and the threats and curses of the crowd of lynchers, he saw an Indian girl, blanketed and moccasined, darting hither and thither among the clamorous throng, frantically and tearfully making a plea in Sioux, a tongue unknown to the tenderfoot from Ireland.

Cronan quickly learned that she was the daughter of the accused Indian, for whose life the mob was clamoring. Struck by her beauty and helplessness, Cronan forced his way through the throng, and, leaping up on the steps beside the little deputy sheriff, drew his weapons and added his voice to the pleadings of the deputy sheriff. Cronan's eloquence, added to the officer's, was effective, and the mob dispersed.

The next day the Indian proved an alibi and was released. Cronan sought out the Indian girl, the life of whose father he had been instrumental in saving. He found her in a miserable unclean tepee in the Indan camp on the outskirts of the town. He fell in love with her. His love making was all in the sign language, for Cronan could not speak a word of Sioux, and Picture Eye was equally ignorant of English.

Cronan again returned to England, but not until he had made arrangements for Picture Eye's education. When he saw his bride next he found her a demure, pretty, well-dressed, well-educated girl, thoroughly well able to hold her place in any society.—N. Y. World.

DRESSING FOR SALAD.

Mrs. Rorer Gives Receipes for the French and Mayonnaise.

To make French dressing, put a half teacupful of salt and a quarter of a teaspoonful of white pepper into a bowl; add gradually six tablespoonfuls of olive oil. Rub until the salt is dissolved, and then add one tablespoonful of vinegar or lemon juice. Beat well for a moment and it is ready to use. It is much better if used at once. Cream dressing is made by heating a gill of good cream. Moisten a tablespoonful of corn starch with a little milk; add it to the hot cream, cook a moment, then stir in the well-beaten yolks of two eggs. Take from the fire; add a half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper and a tablespoonful of vinegar or lemon juice.

Put the uncooked yolks of two eggs into a clean, cold soup dish, then add a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne pepper; work these well together, and then add, drop by drop, half a pint or more of olive oil. You must stir rapidly and steadily while adding together. After adding one gill of oil, alternate occasionally with a few drops of lemon juice or vinegar. The more oil you use the thicker the dressing. If too thick add a half teaspoonful or more of vinegar until the proper consistency. More or less oil may be added, according to the quantity of dressing desired.—

MOLTEN STREAMS.

They Cause Great Loss of Life in the Philippine Islands.

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 4.—Five hundred reported killed up to July 1 is the record of the terrible outbreak of the great volcano of Mayon, on the island of Luzon, one of the Philippine group. All night of June 26 this volcano began throwing up ashes and lava in immense quantities and flames were thrown upward considerably over 100 feet above the crater. The next day 56 bodies were recovered at a considerable distance and the most recent dispatches to Hong Kong up to July 8 stated that not less than 500 were known to be killed.

It was probable, said the dispatches, that the loss of life would reach into the thousands, depending on the length of eruption. On that date lava streams and ashes had reached the cities of Bacacay, Malipot and Liboy, and their destruction was certain. Fifteen smaller towns between these and the volcano had been destroyed and scores of the agricultural population had been overwhelmed while attempting to escape.

FELL FROM A GREAT HEIGHT.

Terrible Fate of a Trick Bicycle Rider at a Brooklyn Park.

New York, Aug. 2.—A man known as Prof. Arion, but whose real name is supposed to be McDonald, was killed at Ridgewood park, Brooklyn, Sunday night. As a part of the entertainment which was being given during a Hessian festival the professor was advertised to ride a bicycle on a wire strung about 75 feet from the ground. When half way across the wire the professor lost one of his pedals, causing the bicycle to topple over. The bicyclist fell to the ground, bringing with him an electric wire which he carried with him for the purpose of giving an electrical display. In the fall he fractured several ribs and sustained internal injuries. He died soon after his removal to a hospital.

BLEW UP THREE CHILDREN.

Sad Result of Fiendish Attempt to Destroy a Residence.

Butte, Mont, Aug. 4.—What was evidently a fiendish attempt to blow up the house of John O'Meara, superintendent of the Moonlight mine, near here, resulted in the death of three children. What appeared to be a roman candle was found near O'Meara's residence by Mamie Benson and two little girls.

While playing with it one of the children struck it with a piece of iron. It exploded and the O'Meara child was literally peppered with fragments of brass, lead and glass. The other two children were terribly cut. A hole torn in the ground showed that the bomb was charged with dynamite.

WIND AND HAIL.

They Do Great Damage to Crops in Iowa and Minnesota.

Sioux City, Ia., July 31.—Hail severely injured crops in this region late Thursday night. From Rock Rapids and Sioux Center it is reported 50 to 75 per cent. of the small grain was ruined and that some fields were utterly destroyed.

Luverne, Minn., July 31.—The crops in a strip five miles wide and 30 miles long in this county were entirely destroyed by hail Thursday night. The storm extended through five townships and the loss is total where it struck.

TREASURY REPORTS.

Receipts, Coinage and Circulation of National Bank Notes.

Washington, Aug. 3.—The government receipts during July were $39,027,364 and the disbursements $50,100,908, leaving the excess of expenditures over receipts $11,073,544.

During July the coinage executed at the United States mints amounted to $670,850, as follows: Gold, $377,000; silver, $260,000; minor coins, $33,850.

The total circulation of national bank notes on July 31 was $230,758,936, an increase as compared with July 31, 1896, of $1,816,431.

Made a Great Throw.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 4.—John Flanagan, the champion hammer thrower, surpassed all records Tuesday by throwing the 16-pound hammer 157 feet 4 inches. He was giving an exhibition at the athletic meet of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and this record will not stand as the world's record. On his second throw he beat his world's record of 150 feet 8 inches by one inch.

Chinese Insure Their Lives.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Advices received at the state department from China are to the effect that the higher classes of Chinese are taking very kindly to American plans of life insurance. Even in Tien Tsin American agents are already doing a profitable business. Chang Mow, managing director of the Chinese Mining company, was among the first to insure.

THE GROWING CROPS.

A Scorching Sun and Lack of Rain Cause Alarm.

Heavy Loss to Corn Has Already Resulted—Extreme Heat at Many Points—Wind, Rain and Hail Cause Ruin.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 2.—Reports as to damage to the corn crop in Kansas, Oklahoma and the Cherokee strip as a result of drought and the prevailing hot winds are pouring into headquarters here of the Santa Fe and Rock Island roads, whose lines practically cover the state. A summary of these reports indicates the conditions to be as follows: In Oklahoma it is estimated that the damage will amount to 20 per cent. The damage in southern Kansas east of Winfield is slight, upland fields being the only ones hurt. West of Winfield the damage is estimated at 50 per cent. Along the Santa Fe for 100 miles west of Emporia, on the main line, a 60 per cent. damage has been sustained. The Hutchinson branch reports 50 per cent. gone. From McPherson to the Nebraska line and in eastern and northeastern Kansas the railroad reports state that the crop has not been seriously injured. It is estimated that the damage to the crop generally throughout Kansas, Oklahoma and the Cherokee strip is about 40 per cent. Railroad officials here state if the hot winds continue two days longer the damage will amount to 60 or 70 per cent.

All the Country Was Hot.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Extreme heat prevailed Sunday throughout the country. Rain in the Rocky mountain region and showers in Springfield and Cincinnati reduced the temperature in those places somewhat. The temperature in different parts of the country ranged from 64 degrees at San Francisco to 102 degrees at Kansas City. For three days Kansas City has sweltered with thermometers at 102 degrees. Throughout Kansas intense heat has prevailed, and reports as to the condition of the corn crop are gloomy. Hot winds have swept across the state, and in the southern and western parts, where rain has been needed for many days, farmers are losing hope. In addition to the damage from the heat, chinch bugs have made their appearance and threaten the crop.

St. Louis, Aug. 2.—Ninety-eight degrees in the shade was registered by the weather bureau at four o'clock Sunday afternoon. This was the maximum temperature for the day. On the streets where the full force of the sun was felt the thermometer showed 100 and over. There were several prostrations, the most serious being Herman Moss, aged 23, and Arthur Gumness, aged 43.

Furious Storms.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—A gale of 56 miles an hour, carrying with it a terrific thunderstorm and some hail, swept across from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi valley early Sunday morning damaging crops, wrecking buildings and causing loss of life. It was followed later by extreme heat, which resulted in many prostrations. The storm extended only from the eastern border of Lake Michigan through the lower part of Minnesota.

Telegraphic reports show the storm to have been unusually severe at several points. At Baraboo, Wis., wheat and corn fields were laid low and washouts occurred on railroads. The residences of William Marriott and William Wallace were considerably damaged by lightning. At Butler, Ind., the steady downpour saved the crops, which were suffering from drought. At Valparaiso, Ind., residents claimed that never before had there been so severe a storm. In the city 500 trees and telephone poles were blown down. Many head of live stock were killed by lightning and the crops suffered greatly.

Loss of Revenue.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The bureau of statistics, treasury department, has prepared a statement showing the estimated loss of revenue to the government on account of increased imports during the months of March, April, May and June, 1897, in anticipation of the increased duties imposed by the new tariff act. The aggregate net loss is estimated at $32,666,427.

Wonderful New Gun.

New York, Aug. 2.—The national government is building a new ten-inch wire gun for coast defense that will astonish the world. It will weigh 30 tons and hurl a 600-pound shell with a muzzle velocity of 2,985 feet per second. It will be wrapped with 75 miles of wire weighing 30,948 pounds.

No More Room for Recruits.

Washington, Aug. 4.—The army of the United States is now filled to the enlisted strength allowed by law, and further enlistments will be made only with the view of replacing deserters and men whose enlistments expire.

A Leader Shot.

Scottdale, Pa., Aug. 2.—William Cummings, the leader of the nonunion miners at this place, was shot dead in a quarrel with union men. W. C. Hubbs was arrested for the crime.

Killed by Lightning.

Webster City, Ia., Aug. 3.—Lightning struck in 20 places inside the city limits Monday morning during a severe storm. Two children of John Luppus, south of town, were instantly killed.

A FATAL CYCLONE.

Seven Persons Killed in Their Home in Illinois.

Strange Freak of the Twister Saved the Town of San Jose from Destruction—A Number of People Injured.

San Jose, Ill., July 31.—Death and desolation followed rapidly in the wake of a cyclone which swept across this section of the country at seven o'clock Friday night. Seven persons were killed outright and three seriously injured. The house and barn of Dr. A. C. McDowell on the outskirts of the town were demolished by the fury of the wind. The town itself escaped only because the cyclone rose about 2½ miles north and passed over too high to cause any further serious damage. It is probable that more deaths may be reported later from the outlying districts. The dead are: A. C. McDowell, Mrs. Samuel Brownlee and three children, Jessie Groves, and a grandson of McDowell. The injured are Mrs. McDowell, a son and a daughter.

House Blown to Fragments.

The McDowell homestead was torn into fragments from its foundation to the roof. The barn met the same fate, and with its contents was swept out of sight. Inside the house the family of Dr. McDowell, consisting of five members, had taken refuge together with Mrs. Samuel Brownlee and her three children, and Jessie Groves, the daughter of a neighbor, who had come to the McDowells' to spend the evening. When the cyclone struck the house everything it contained was swept in every direction. Not a stick of timber nor a whole piece of furniture was left intact, and buried beneath the ruins were all of the occupants of the house. Following the cyclone came a deluge of water resembling a cloudburst. This, however, did not deter neighbors who witnessed the destructive work of the cyclone from hurrying to the rescue of the McDowells. Those who were alive beneath the ruins were taken out as soon as possible and carried to neighboring farmhouses, where their injuries were given medical attention.

GROWS DEFIANT.

The Sultan Sends War Ships Into Cretan Waters.

Constantinople, Aug. 4.—A dispatch from the Dardanelles late Tuesday announces that the second naval division of the Turkish fleet, consisting of seven war ships, commanded by Hari Pasha, has sailed for the Island of Crete.

Fears are expressed here that the departure of the Turkish naval division may lead to a collision with the international fleet in Cretan waters, in view of the announcement of the foreign admirals that they have decided to oppose by force the landing of Turkish reenforcements in the Island of Crete.

DETERMINED TO DIE.

Desperate Attempt at Suicide of a Cleveland Man.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 2.—Thomas Cushing, a molder, aged 33 years, Sunday afternoon stood before the mirror in his room at a boarding house and cut his throat with a razor. When taken to the operating room on the third floor of a hospital, he made a rush for a window and threw himself out, falling 50 feet to the roof of the engine-room. His body crashed through the skylight, struck an iron bar in its descent and rolled to the floor of the engine-room. Cushing is still alive but it is believed he will die.

A SAD FATE.

Two Indianians, with Their Wives, Drowned at Carlisle.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 2.—Carlisle, a town about 30 miles south of here, is in mourning. It was a tragic Sabbath for the quiet place, four of its inhabitants meeting death by drowning. The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Grant Hammond and Mr. and Mrs. Abner Morris. The Hammond and Morris people were seen to go in bathing, and later their clothing was found on the river bank. It is believed one of the women was seized with cramps, and the others were drowned in trying to rescue her.

Hail Stops a Train.

Ottumwa, Ia., Aug. 4.—This city was the center of terrific thunder and hailstorms Tuesday night. The Rock Island passenger train, Chicago bound, was stopped by the storm. Hailstones of such quantities and size rolled on the track in the cuts that the train was brought to a stop. Every window in the train was broken. Crops were cut to pieces.

Four Boys Drowned.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 2.—Four small boys were drowned here Sunday while swimming. Willie and George Young, brothers, aged 16 and 18, were drowned in Brush creek. Henry Hall, aged 11, perished in the Kaw river, and Fred Bridgeford, aged 14, was drowned in a little creek emptying into the Missouri.

Tesla's Latest Discovery.

New York, Aug. 4.—Nicola Tesla announces the completion of his latest discovery—the simultaneous transmission of messages by means of the earth's electrical currents to as many scattered points on the earth's surface of the globe as may be desired.

—The completed mileage of railways in India, according to recent returns, is 19,724, and there are 3,600 miles under construction.

Who are injured by the use of coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation called GRAIN-O, made of pure grains, that takes the place of coffee. The most delicate stomach receives it without distress, and but few can tell it from coffee. It does not cost over one-fourth as much. Children may drink it with great benefit. 15c and 25c per package. Try it. Ask for GRAIN-O.

Sick stomach means sick man (or woman). Why not be well? Sick stomach comes from poor food, poor nourishment; means poor health, poor comfort. Shaker Digestive Cordial means health and a well stomach. If we could examine our stomach, we would understand why it is that so little will put it out of order. But, unless we are doctors, we never see our stomach. We only feel it. We would feel it less if we took Shaker Digestive Cordial. Shaker Digestive Cordial makes your stomach digest all the nourishing food you eat, relieves all the symtoms of indigestion, acts as a tonic and soon makes you well and strong again. The more you take, the less you will feel of your stomach. At druggists. Trial bottle 10 cents.

TOWERS FOR LIGHTS.

Electric Lamps at a Great Height Have Not Proved Successful.

When arc lights were first introduced for street lighting there was a very exaggerated idea of their lighting power, says the Engineering News. A light of 1,000-candle power seemed such a powerful illuminator that the idea was very naturally conceived of placing lamps on the top of tall towers and lighting the whole area of a city. Several municipalities adopted this tower system of lighting, of which the best known example is doubtless Detroit. It was at once found, however, that a cluster of arc lamps 150 feet or more from the ground might be an excellent plan for lighting the whole of a large area, but was a very poor plan for lighting city streets. In the average American city, with long blocks, the streets comprise not more than one-third of the area. Hence with the tower system of lighting 66 per cent. or more of the illuminating power is wasted in lighting up house roofs, back yards and vacant lots.

Nearly every city of which we have information that originally adopted the tower system of lighting has abandoned it. It is therefore quite surprising to learn that Des Moines, Ia., proposes to put in a municipal street-lighting plant and to use the tower system. What consideration influenced the city authorities to adopt this system we do not know, but we would strongly urge them to investigate the experience of Detroit and other cities with the tower system of lighting before they construct such a plant in their own city.

TROLLEY WITHOUT WIRES.

Paris to Have an Electric System That Is Robbed of Many Dangers.

The electric trolley system to be introduced in Paris in time for the international exposition of 1900 is vastly different from that commonly employed in the United States, inasmuch as the dangerous overhead wires are absolutely done away with. The new system, says the Philadelphia Record, is the invention of the French engineer Bochet, and, while rather simple, it steers clear of the objection on account of unsightly obstruction, which is usually raised when overhead wires have to go up. Bochet establishes overhead contacts from electric lamp posts belonging to the city. The distance between posts being somewhat smaller than the length of the electric train, consisting of two or three cars, so that contact is always assured at one point at least. Through flexible points of contact suspended from each electric light post along the proposed line the current will be taken up by means of a copper rail fastened along the edge of the roof of the car not less than 14 or 15 feet from the ground. The contact point will slide along that copper rail, and there is not the slightest difficulty in establishing a continuous current if the points of contact are made sufficiently elastic. The current is allowed to return to the power station through the track of the line, as usual. This system offers all the benefits of the overhead, as well as of the underground systems, without any of their shortcomings.

BELL WEIGHING 98 TONS.

Over Twelve Feet High and Raised So That It May Be Rung.

For some time past there has been a sort of deadheat between the two biggest bells in the world, the one at the catehdral in Moscow and the other in the unfinished pagoda of Mengoon, a little north of Mandalay, across the river. If the former was the bigger of the two, says the New York Journal, is was cracked, and, therefore, useless as a bell, while the latter, though whole, had dragged its supports down till it rested on the ground, and would not emit any sound. Now, however, it has been reswung, and can claim attention as the biggest bell, in working order, in the world. It averages over a foot in thickness. The bell itself is over 12 feet high, and the shackle, which was intended for logs of timber, about 12 feet. The pin in the shackle has a diameter of 16 inches. The bell was cast about the beginning of the century by King Bodaw-paya as an accompaniment to the huge brick padoga which he never finished. It is said to have been cast on an island and rafted across. No proper means yet exist for striking the bell, but when hit with a heavy piece of wood it gives a deep, vibrating boom.

Ancient Thermopylae.

An officer of the English intelligence department reports that in spite of the fact, which is well known, that the sea has receded since ancient times, the strategical position of this ancient pass is still immensely strong. The alternative route by Beleghi, which crosses the hills 1½ miles north of the springs by well-engineered zigzags, is equally capable of defense, and leads into a country of a most difficult character. Either pass might be held indefinitely by 5,000 men. The coast road is absolutely commanded from the heights so that a comparatively small force would render it impassable, while the flat lowland lying near the sea is marshy and intersected by dykes.

To Preserve Elephants.

An adequate effort is at last to be made to prevent the extinction of the elephant. The government of India has adopted a regulation preventing the killing of these animals in a reserve which extends from Sheikh pass to the Afghanistan frontier. The area is approximately 200 miles by 50. The herds of elephants which remain in this reserve are at present confined to a much smaller area of about 40 miles square in the Gadabarai mountains.

CALF WRECKED THE BICYCLE.

Wheelman-Farmer's Disastrous Experience on Pneumatic Tires.

Grant Adams, a farmer who lives not far from Kingston, N. Y., wears golf stockings and rides a bicycle. There is a story, too, that he has a bicycle plow. He drives cows to pasture mounted on his wheel, and the other day he started to lead a calf to an adjoining farm.

The calf, says the New York Herald, was of the good old-fashioned kind which resent new-fanged ideas. He came of a race which had been led around by bare-footed boys, with tattered trousers and many freckles.

The calf looked at the two runaway wagon wheels in front of him and grew rebellious. He pulled at the rope, which was tied around Adam's waist. Then he determined upon a plan of action. That calf put his best feet foremost, and a moment later he was running down a hill, with a bicycle coasting behind.

Adam had no brake, and back pedaled with all his might. The calf drew the machine and rider after him. The animal made a quick detour to the right, Adams, in trying to avoid the calf, ran into a rock.

There was a confused jumble of bent spokes and punctured tires. Adams clung to his bicycle, and the calf dragged bicyclist and the almost disintegrated machine over the rough country road.

A farmer saw this trio approach and headed them off. The machine and Adams were a wreck, and the calf was triumphant.

QUEER BIRD NOW EXTINCT.

Discovered and Studied Only by Its Oddly Constructed Skeleton.

A nauralist has lately brought to England the bones of an extinct bird new to science, which has received the name of Genyornis. He exhibited these very interesting specimens at the last meeting of the Zoological society, and made a few remarks concerning the finding of them in Lake Callanbolla, formerly known as Lake Mulligan, in South Australia, says the Westminster Gazette. He explained that the lakes which one sees so abundantly marked in the map are nothing more or less than dry clay and salt pans, evidently very uncomfortable to camp near. The bones of this extinct species are found there in great numbers, but owing to the action of salt and water, which is found a very little way below the surface, the remains are very brittle and difficult to deal with. The circumstance of so many being found in this one lake bed is probably due to the birds having been driven there en masse in a time of great drought in search of water, for on the surface there could be traced the outlines of skeletons lying as they died, probably bogged and too weak to struggle further in search of water. The feature that strikes the ornithologist in these bones is the shortness of the phalanges, clearly showing that the suggestion which has been made as to the Genyornis being a marsh bird is untenable, for such a heavy bird would have needed very long toes to tread on marshy ground.

Sharp Scotchman.

The Scottish American tells a story of a cobbler who was sentenced by a Scottish magistrate to pay a fine of half a crown, or, in default, 24 hours' hard labor. If he chose the latter he would be taken to the jail at Perth. "Then I'll go to Perth," he said, "for I have some business there." An official conveyed him to Perth, but when the cobbler reached the jail he said he would pay the fine. The governor found he would have to take it. "And now," said the cobbler, "I want my fare home." The governor demurred, but discovered there was no alternative; the prisoner must be sent at the public expense to the place he had been brought from.

CLEVELAND CHAINS.

Most bicycle chains are riveted together, which means that the pins or rivets are of soft metal, and will wear or "stretch."

We make ours with blocks and pins of steel, hardened by our own process, thoroughly tested, and guaranteed to show less stretch than any chain made.

You cannot rivet hardened steel, but there's another way to do it—cut shows how.

Cleveland features are all distinctive and peculiarly good; send for Catalogue and learn about them.

Geld Mining on the Saskatchewan River.

The gold obtained from the sand bars of this river seems to be washed down from the rocky mountains by the strong currents of water in the spring and summer. After heavy rains and floods like those of June in this year the find is much greater than when the river has not risen so high. The largest and best paying quantities are found on the sand bars although one can go any place in the river and pan out a little.

The process is as follows: The gravel is thrown into a slanting trough about four feet long by one foot wide. Water is then poured over it, carrying it down to a second trough about the same size, but at the upper end of which is a grizzley. The grizzley is an arrangement made of iron rods about the size of a lead pencil placed a little apart and arranged to slant over the two sides of the second trough, so that when the gravel comes down upon it only the dirt and finer portions pass through while the pebbles and stones fall off to the ground. This second trough has upon the floor of it a strip of blanket, and as the fine dirt washes over this the gold and black sand stick, being the heaviest, while the dirt passes on. At the end of the day's work the blanket is taken out of the trough and rinsed gently with clean water in a tub to remove the gold and black sand. Then while both lie at the bottom of the tub in the water, a quantity of quicksilver is poured in and washed around. The silver collects the gold but does not touch the black sand. The quicksilver containing the gold is then poured into a piece of buckskin and the silver squeezed out, leaving the gold behind. The gold is now called a gold sponge and contains a little quicksilver with it, to separate which the sponge is burnt by placing it in a hot pan. This leaves a lump of the metal in its pure state.

If the gold is collected as it is found on the blanket, it is seen to be in very fine flakes. I have seen seven dollars worth in a phial of a beautiful sample and so fine and flaky is it that if the finger is placed over the open phial while it is tipped up, the little adhereing to the finger cannot be replaced in the phial. Rubbing it with another finger seems to flatten and crush it to nothing and yet being gold and heavier than sand it falls and sticks to the blanket while the sand is being washed off and a quarter inch stream of water is pouring over it for hours in the day.

The black sand contains gold and in paying quantities, but no process is convenient to this place by which a separation can be made. It is kept by the miners and will probably bring a profit before long.

The foregoing system of mining is the common hand mode in use here for some time. There are miners who contrive means of their own by which pumps and horse power make the labor lighter and more expeditious, and this year scows for steam machinery have been built, upon each one of which three men and three boys are employed, but the principle is all the same—the troughs, grizzley and blanket do the work. The newly invented conveniences make it possible to handle a greater number of tons of gravel a day, and the result of this is some of the scows are producing $35 of gold per day.

RAILROAD NEWS.

At the south end of Maiden Lane, in the village of Tecumseh, may now be found the busiest lot of men in the county. Here is situated a solid stone (colored) building used as the general offices of the D. & L. N. and D., T. & M. railroads. General Manager Roser and Supts. Haskell and Hathaway representing the managing department, and Auditor Richmond and his assistants attending to the accounting work, together with Train Dispatcher Allen and his "tickers," make this part of town busy indeed. The grasshoppers and crickets on the old "Patterson" farm are astounded at the growth of the south end and their songs are drowned by the noise of the telegraph key. As yet there is no sign carved in the front of the building but the workers are a happy, busy, good natured set of men who are posted in the methods of railroads and satisfied with their quarters till better are provided.

There were about one hundred passengers from this station on the Detroit & Lima Northern excursion to Detroit on Sunday. The train that passed through here was composed of eight coaches, and carried excursionists bound for Detroit from as far south as Springfield, O.—Adrian Times.

J. S. Brailey was here yesterday. He brought with him a contractor to figure in the moving of the station and freight house.

The D. & L. N. people have purchased the Moshier property corner of Railroad and Cummins streets, and will at once move the present C. J. & M. station and freight depot there. The location of the station at the crossing of the L. S. & M. S. saves one stop for every train. For the Tecumseh people this will be a most convenient location. A number of different contractors figured on the moving of the buildings yesterday, and the work will be commenced at once. It is probable that a separate building will be built for the offices.

The L. S. & M. S. will carry Co. C to camp in a car attached to the regular train next Tuesday morning. The baggage precedes the company, going Sunday. Adrian and Coldwater companies meet Co. C at Lenawee Junction and all go via Dundee.

The Lima Northern has completed a sidetrack into the Industrial home grounds, and is now constructing one to old floral hall, on Lawrence park, which will be used for a warehouse by Clark, Mason & Co.—Adrian Times.

A dispatch from Columbus says that the Cincinnati Northern is to be annexed to the Lake Erie & Western. From the same source comes the announcement that Frank B. Drake is to be general manager of both lines.

Twenty five cars in two sections fetching the retail grocers and their families from Jackson to the Casino at Toledo, passed over the D. T. & M. yesterday morning. A happy and well taken care of crowd.

The D. & L. N. has made the following week end excursion rates to Detroit: Going Saturday, return Monday, $1.50 round trip; going Sunday, return Monday $1.00; going and return Sunday, 75 cents.

New York dispatches dated yesterday state that S. R. Calloway will be appointed president of the L. S. & M. S. and that W. H. Canniff will take his place as president of the Nickel Plate.

Two new comers in railroad circles arrived yesterday. A. C. Stutsman, chief clerk in the accounting department and H. J. Dunbar who is also in the auditor's office.

A change of time will go into effect on the D., T. & M. about the middle of next week. D. & L. N. trains will not be effected.

Rentable houses are very scarce. Four different parties were at Fred Chiverall's to rent his place Saturday evening.

Lake Shore train will be held at Adrian Saturday night until close of evening performance of Ringling Bros.' circus.

The road force is getting the track between here and Adrian in better shape every day.

D. & L. N. trains will be held till after the circus tomorrow evening.

Electric light wires are being placed in the railroad offices.

- - - GREETING. - - -

To the Citizens of Tecumseh add Vicinity:

It having become the "correct thing" for ladies of all classes to become proficient in the art of dressing becomingly, we come to you with one of the best systems of Tailoring for ladies now in use, known as "Works' Garment Cutter," of St. Louis Mo., This system is now used successfully in New York, Chicago, St. Louis and many other leading cities of this country and Europe. By it, any garment worn by ladies, children and men, may be safely produced. It will enable mothers, wives and daughters to save many times its cost each year. Any lady intending to follow dress making as a business, will find it practical, reliable and easy to learn.

It is throughly a "Tailors' System." We use no models, but make use of the square, tape and scales. The garment is cut by actual measurement and proven by balance measures. We believe we are justified in asking fathers and mothers if it is not reasonable to teach your daughters an art that will enable them to dress becomingly at a greatly reduced cost.

This art, thoroughly learned, will prove of great benefit during life and should adversity take from them their available means of living, this knowledge will prove a great boon. Any bright girl of 15 can learn the art and become as proficient as her elders, and the practice in construction will develop her as she becomes older thus rendering her independent. We invite all ladies of the city and vicinity to call at any time, and, except during school hours, our teachers will be pleased to explain the method in detail. We cordially invite all dress makers to call, trusting they will be the gainer and not the loser thereby.

The lessons will be of two hours duration at each session, beginning at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m. daily, and 7 p. m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Students from a distance may have free use of the school room for practice during their stay. The school will be graded and students graduated with a diploma. There will be a primary, intermediate and senior class, thus enabling students to commence at any time. The length of time required to complete the course will depend upon the aptitude of the student.

This school is located in the Tindall property on the corner of Ottawa and Pottawatamie streets, Tecumseh, Mich., under the management of Mrs. E. E. Kinney, of Adrian, Mich.

Having had 28 years' experience in dress making, I am pleased to refer to my friends and neighbors that I have examined the system being taught in the school at my home, and am willing to acknowledge that it far surpasses any system that I have ever examined. Chief among the many features are its measurements. These are simple, and the balance measures employed prove unerringly the correctness of the original measures. I believe the statements made in this letter can and will be fully carried out, and that any person availing themselves of this opportunity will have no cause to regret it.

The Tecumseh wheat market is booming. I. Frensdorff & Son are buying at the Globe Mills and C. A. Slayton up town. Harry Bice's three year old daughter Marion who has been a great sufferer for nearly two years from what was supposed lung or broughial trouble, Abseses forming at different times, the other day had as she was wont to do a severe coughing and vomiting attack and all at once exclaimed, "Ma there's the book." It seems that when about a year old she put a common dress hook in her mouth and as they supposed swallowed it, for after a spell of severe strangling she seemed to be all right. It now appears that she inhaled it and it must have lodged in one of the bronchial tubes. It was badly corroded being black and flesh was attached to it, they now think she will become strong and healthy. It is certainly a strange csse.

James Kingan, who lives on the Bresie place in Brownville and who is in feeble health, met with a serious accident Monday evening that may lay him up some time. It was after dark when he and his daughter, who had been over to town, drove up before the house. As he got out of the buggy he was run into by Jack O'Hara, living between Clinton and Macon, who had been here to mill and was returning home. Mr. Kingan was carried some distance before he fell to the ground when the wagon ran over him. What O'Hara was doing driving out of the road, as he was close to the fence, is not known. Mr. K. did not think at first that he was hurt and as O'Hara failed to stop when called to, he got in the buggy and drove after him, overtaking him at "Kissing Hollow," where some conversation ensued, giving him an opportunity of satisfying himself as to who the party really was. On asking O'Hara what he proposed doing for running over him, Jack whipped up his horse and away he went. On returning home Mr. Kingan began to feel that he was hurt. A physician was called who found that besides severe bruises, one or more ribs were broken. O'Hara had a one horse wagon and evidently was under the influence of liquor or the accident could not have occurred. Although Mr. K's injuries are not as serious as reported in the Adrian papers, they are severe enough. As yet no legal steps have been taken in the matter.

THE DECISIVE HOUR.

You stand to-day at an angle
Where divergent pathways meet,
And one looks rugged and toilsome,
And one seems smooth to the feet;
But the rough road leadeth upward
To the hills of truth and light,
The other ever downward
Unto the vales of night;
And a voice crieth:
"Choose ye! Choose ye!"

One road is strewn with flowers,
And sweet with rare perfumes;
But noxious are the odors
Of those deceitful blooms;
And many are the pitfalls
That lie the path along;
Though mirthful the wayfarer,
Soon hushed is his gay song;
While stays the moment—
"Choose ye! Choose ye!"

Who takes the upward pathway
Must tread the briars among,
Yet mounting up, triumphant
Shall voice the victor's song.
The heights he gains are vocal
With anthems from on high;
The fragrant winds that fan him
Seem bringing Heaven nigh.
Oh, heed the warning:
"Choose ye! Choose ye!"

"IN MOURNING."

BY MARION HARLAND.

SHE had called "strictly on business." The fact was made known to me in a variety of ways. Before the tall figure, draped in sable, entered the library where I sat, I heard her impress upon the maid who answered her ring at the door, that she "would detain me for a very few minutes, having come on business. She would not send in her card but that she feared there might be some mistake as to her name."

The card preceded her on the maid's tray. A wide desert of inky bordering encircled a timid oasis of white in the middle of which I read her name. There was no room for the address. The owner of card and name alluded to the omission, when the business had been attended to.

"I should be glad to have you look in upon me sometime," she was good enough to say. "We are still living at 71 West —th street. My address is not on my card because I am not 'receiving' this season, being in such deep mourning."

She had begun the conversation by apologizing for setting foot within my doors.

"You must think it strange that I have called even on business. But my errand is one I could not intrust to a servant, or explain by letter. Otherwise I should not be here. I have gone nowhere except once a Sunday to church since my mother's death six months ago. Sometimes I have no heart even for church service. They recall too many harrowing associations."

In nearing the subject she drew out a pocket handkerchief edged with two griefful inches of black, as a precautionary measure. She could not have stanched a dozen tears with the sheer linen cambric center.

Yet she was not a fool, or even foolish, upon other subjects. The business that had brought her to me had to do with a benevolent enterprise. It was so full of excellent sense, and she stated it so clearly, that I exclaimed in honest admiration as she concluded. I represented, furthermore, that she was the fittest person to lay it before the board of directors to which both of us belonged. She shuddered, as at a breath of icy wind.

"Oh, I could not think of that! I will write out my ideas on the subject and send them to the secretary, to be read at their next meeting, provided, of course, that my name is not mentioned in connection with them. When I begin to go out again, one of the first places at which I shall be seen will be the board meeting. I seldom missed one before my affliction."

I "hoped," by and by, "that she was taking advantage of the fine weather to walk and drive in Central Park and in the country."

She sighed deeply, her smileless face taking on a darker shadow.

"I drive out every day—with the windows closed, of course, until we are out of town, and then I choose the loneliest country roads. But Nature seen through a crepe veil isn't quite herself."

"I should think not, indeed!" ejaculated I, involuntarily. "Is it just to yourself and kind to your friends to seclude yourself so rigorously? Do not your health and spirits suffer in consequence?"

A deeper sigh and a gentle flutter of the sable-rimmed scrap of cambric.

"I could not reconcile any other course with my sense of what is due to her who has gone. She deserves any and every mark of respect I can show her, and there is so little I can do for her now."

I prudently refrained from suggesting a doubt as to the benefit derived by the departed relative from her daughter's dutiful depths of sustained misery. Nor did I ring for the tea equipage while she stayed. The sight of the social teapot and hissing kettle would, I felt, jar upon her finest sensibilities. Her presence grew oppressive. Her gloomy swathings were voluminous and aggressive. A crepe veil depended from a crepe bonnet; a monstrous crepe butterfly started up from the back of her neck; her light cloth mantle was weighted with crepe trimming; the waist of her gown was of crepe, and the skirt of some fashionable, crapy stuff with a foot trimming of English crepe. She and her appointments—I could not dissociate her from them—sucked up the sun rays pouring through the window behind her, and exhaled in return a steam of black dye that poisoned the air. Not a line of white relieved the picture, and the lifeless tones of her voice, the dull misery of eyes and expression, were in keeping with the dense shadows.

When she had gone, I rushed to the windows, threw them open and gasped for breath. A fold of her crepe seemed to have fallen between me and the gladsome earth, and to dim the blue of the summer heavens. Had the visit lasted five minutes more, I must have burst into tears and grown hysterical.

Happily for myself and for the guests who are almost sure to take their tone from the hostess' spirits, the second comer of the afternoon was Miss Barbara Robb. She brought me a big bunch of nasturtiums from her own garden. Such nasturtiums as flower for no other amateur horticulturist whom I know. Maroon, and pale brown, and buff and blood-red, with leaves as large as the palm of my hand. I snatched at them and buried my face in the honeyed bitter of their wholesome hearts.

"Oh!" in one long inhalation of spiciness and gratitude. "Thank you! they take away the crepy smell and the horrors."

While the story, from which the mourner's name was scrupulously withheld, was in telling, four other women dropped in. Miss Barbara, as the only one who had heard it all, led off in the discussion:

"The poor soul believes her sorrow to be sincere, and it is, to some extent. Presumably she loved her mother, and she misses her sadly. Nevertheless, the emotion which she now nurses and parades is conventional sentimentality. At the bottom of her heart she is afraid that she will not seem sorry enough to satisfy the expectations of her critics, and may fall short of the standard she has set up for herself as 'the proper thing in the circumstances.' She watches her spirits as a trained nurse watches a patient's temperature. Settled sadness is normal. A rise towards natural cheerfulness is repressed as an indignity to the dead. In another year, dull jet will be indicated by Mrs. Grundy, and lusterless silks will be the indices of mitigated grief. In three years' time the gloom of bereavement will shade off through gray and lavender into white, and so be decorously dismissed with a return to colors. The proprieties will have been fully conserved, and the daughter's conscience be void of offense. She and her guild are unconscious poseuses, as truly the bond slaves of a senseless and cruel custom as the Hindoo woman who is 'suttee.' I should have less patience with the custom if so many who follow it blindly were not good, sensible women."

"There is a comical side to it sometimes," Mrs. Fay's jolly little laugh is peculiarly infectious. I think this is because the happiness it expresses is utterly free from guile. "I was at the Adirondack hotel some years ago, when three pretty sisters, who were the belles of the house, heard of their cousin's death in New Orleans. The news reached them by the afternoon mail. They promptly retired to their bedroom, and the places and the beaux they had brightened for a week past, knew them no more for 24 hours. Then they appeared upon the verandas, all three of them in white gowns with black sashes and black neck and wrist ribbons. They promenaded and chatted gayly, first with one then with another admirer and friend, until ten o'clock, when they discreetly retired. On the third evening after the blow fell upon their cousinly hearts, the black ribbons were exchanged for lavender, and they sat as wallflowers in the ballroom, refusing to take the floor. 'You know we have just lost a friend,' answered each invitation to dance. They did not go upstairs, however, until 12 o'clock.

"On the following night—I assure you that every word of this is true!—the trio were arrayed in virgin white, and further, as Miss Robb would say, conserved the proprieties by figuring in none but square dances. The fifth evening beheld them resplendent in full dress, and engaged for every waltz within ten minutes after they entered the ballroom. The gradations were artistic, and edifying to the uninitiated. To me the whole proceeding was irristibly funny."

I had marveled with secret amusement, that Mrs. Blunt had held her peace, even from good, all this while. She made up for lost time now:

"I call it a traversty of the most sacred feelings of the human heart! Yet it is all of a piece with the barbarous unchristian custom of putting our bodies into mourning for the affliction of our spirits and souls. At the very best—when, according to Miss Robb's charitable judgment, those who shroud themselves in unwholesome crepe and hideous bombazine are honestly grieving, and under the fond delusion that they are honoring the dead by risking health and sacrificing becomingness—the practice is ridiculous. When the etiquette of woe is prescribed by the same arbiters of fashion who regulate the pitch of our bonnets, the length of our skirts and the width of our boot toes—the thing is degrading. The old Hebrew laws, which declared one unclean for a given period after he had touched a dead body, were more tolerable, and were based upon sanitary principles. There is no sense in the dictum that one must not cross her neighbor's threshold for so many years after she has closed her husband's eyes; so many months after she has mourned a parent; so many weeks if an aunt has been taken; and, as with Mrs. Fay's chime of belles, may tone down—or up—from sorrowful seclusion to social gayety in five days after a cousin's death."

Being mortal, she had got her breath back, and Mrs. Fay's contagious laugh rippled across the compulsory pause.

"I met a friend yesterday, dressed in new and deep black, although not in crepe, and asked: 'Are you in mourning, my dear? I had not heard that you have lost a friend.'

"'I haven't,' she said, airily. 'Only my husband's brother whom I have never seen. He died in Algiers ten days ago. So, I only black. I don't mourn.'"

The positive woman was not to be diverted from the chase.

"I for one, refuse to gauge my sorrows by the enactments of the Grundyan congress. Such mourning as is adjudged to be decent in this day entails expense, labor and thought, at a time when other and unavoidable expenses press heavily upon people of moderate means, and when attention to such affairs as shopping, fitting and making up black is an agony. When, as Mrs. Fay's witty friend put it, the blacking is not mourning, the obligation becomes despicable. From my point of view the practice is worse than useless and silly. It is, in five cases out of ten, a vulgar and vile sham that disgraces Christian civilization."

I had had time to think of many things while she, whom Barbara long ago nicknamed "the positive case," discoursed. Uppermost in my mind were two queries: What gives the reformer the patent right to assail intemperately what he chooses to brand as dogma and prejudice? And why do we conservatives submit meekly to such onslaughts? Because belief in the Bible as the revealed Word of God is almost 2,000 years old, the skeptic's fulmination against "bigotry and superstition" is heard respectfully. The disciple of a new school of medicines has free course for his denunciation of the regular practitioner as "poisoner" and "butcher," and should the old-school doctor recriminate he is branded as narrow and discourteous to a seeker after truth. Is the American Athenian so wedded in turn to each new thing as to take for granted, at the first blush of opposition, that the wrong must be with that which is established and conventional?

In the present instance, neither of the two women present who were wearing mourning garments retorted upon Mrs. Blunt in kind. Perhaps the tender thoughts of those who were gone, that came to each with the daily putting on of the memorial raiment, were too sacred to be tossed from tongue to tongue.

So, it was Dr. Wynne, in a love of a gray-and-pink costume, whose calmly-judicial accents poulticed the pained silence succeeding the epithets "vulgar and vile."

"The custom of wearing mourning has the recommendation of convenience, at least. It prevents many mortifying blunders. If my acquaintance, Mrs. John Smith, whom I encountered at a a drygoods counter this morning, had worn the conventional weeds, I should not have hoped audibly that Mr. Smith should not suffer from the heat this summer as he did last year when I met him at the seashore. And—" after waiting for the general laugh to subside—"you would have discerned nothing amusing in the death of a husband and father. I had never heard of his demise, for, if I had, I had forgotten it. Mrs. Smith would have spared herself exquisite pain and me a bad quarter of an hour, by signifying in her apparel the change in her condition."

"I had a still more disagreeable experience lately," chimed in Miss Robb. "An old schoolfellow who lives in Cincinnati called to see me in passing through the city. She was handsomely dressed, but not in black, and I did not at once notice that she was paler and more quiet than she used to be. So when she said, regretfully: 'You may have heard that I lost both my daughters last year—one in May, the other in September,' I answered, gayly enough; 'You couldn't have expected to keep such pretty girls long. Who were the fortunate men?'

"She threw out her hand in a gesture I cannot describe, it was so eloquent of grief and horror.

"'Don't, Barbara! I mean that both of them died!'

"A mourning gown would have been a protection to her, and also to her friends."

Mrs. Williams spoke now for the first time. She buried her husband six years ago, and has never laid aside her mourning.

"You have used the right word, Miss Robb. The dress which tells that a great storm had swept over one's life averts careless remarks that would be cruel, and is a lien upon the sympathy of the veriest stranger who has known sorrow for himself. And what is called the sentimental side of the question is not without weight. When I was a girl of 14, I saw my sister die. It happened that, as we stood about her bed, I was the only person present who had not on a black or dark gown. I wore a pink lawn. The incongruity of the bright color with the somber cast of my emotions and the awful scene left an impression upon my mind that was conviction. In sorrow, one shrinks as instinctively from brilliant colors and ornaments as from gay society. They jar upon the aching heart. The wounded creature longs to hide its hurt in a dark, quiet corner, until time and divine grace bring healing or strength to endure and to live."

Another and a longer break in the talk followed. Mrs. Blunt rallied for a new, but gentler, attack.

"There may be—there must be—something that appeals to human nature and the finer affections in what strikes me as heathenish, or so great a multitude would not adopt the custom. But what must be said of such slavish subservience to times and seasons, such scrupulous observance of measurements and shades as we have heard described here to-day?"

Mrs. Williams made answer:

"That there is a difference between genuine mourning and being merely 'in mourning.'"—The House Wife.

—There is a very remarkable tree in Mrs. Elizabeth Porter's front yard at her home in the suburban part of Glasgow, Ky. It is an old locust tree, and in the dryest of weather a continued shower of mist or vapor can be seen coming from its branches. A shower bath can be had beneath its foliage at any hour, day or night.

SETTLERS CLAIM A VICTORY.

New Development in a Contest Over Land in Michigan.

Marquette, Aug. 2.—Land Commissioner Hermann has sent back to the Marquette land office the contest between the Michigan Land and Iron company and the settlers. This will cause an open contest for 50,000 acres of land, and may jeopard the title to nearly ten times that much. The land claimed by the Michigan Land and Iron company is the old Marquette, Houghton & Ontonagon railroad grant, which was given to aid the construction of a line from Marquette to Ontonagon in 1851. It consists of 460,000 acres. Since passing to the new corporation its title has been in dispute, and settlers have squatted on 50,000 acres of the best homesteads. The company filed an application for patents covering swamp, timber and mineral lands. The commissioner's action in granting an open hearing in the land office requires all the settlers to be notified, and the company will have to prove in open court that it comes under the railroad grant confirmatory act passed in 1887. The settlers say it will be impossible to do this, and are rejoicing in their victory.

CRIMINALS BREAK JAIL.

Prisoners at St. Joseph Cut Bars of Their Cell and Escape.

St. Joseph, Aug. 3.—Four prisoners escaped from the county jail Monday morning by sawing the bars from their cell and the outer corridor. The men were Alexander McDonald, who attempted to murder Brakeman Jennings; Louis Ake, of South Bend, a bicycle thief; Otis Bentley, of Hersey, and Frank Roby, of Rochester, Ind., burglars. The men were all awaiting trial. The sheriff has offered a reward of $125 for their capture and has gone to Chicago, where he thinks one of them has fled.

Badly Injured.

Adrian, July 30.—Frank McPhail, a farmer of Madison township, while taking gravel out of a pit a few miles south of the city, was caught under a land slide and buried beneath nine feet of earth. His head was doubled up between his legs, and rested there until his fellow workmen dug him out. It took three men to lift a piece of clay off his back, that had dropped from the top. Dr. Kirkpatrick fears that his back is broken. The flesh is fearfully torn and bruised.

A Profitable Bureau.

Lansing, July 30.—Ex-State Oil Inspector McMillan made his final settlement with the board of state auditors Thursday, and turned into the state treasury a balance of $5,212.56, which represents the net earnings of the inspection system for the first six months of this year. The total receipts for that period were $17,987.40, and the disbursements $12,774.84. Of the latter $10,154.87 represents the aggregate salaries paid the state oil inspector and his 22 deputies.

Drowned in Diamond Lake.

Niles, July 30.—At Diamond lake Wednesday afternoon four society girls, two from near Cassopolis and two from Vandalia, were taking a cruise around the lake when a sudden gust of wind capsized their yacht. Dora O'Dell was drowned, but Mary Skinner, Clara Whitehead and Etta Train were rescued after a hard struggle by a young man whose name could not be learned.

Increased Wheat Crop.

Detroit, Aug. 3.—Gillet & Hall, the veteran grain dealers, in speaking of the new crop, said: "It is coming in slowly, because it is about three weeks late, but is of a very fine quality. The crop will be 25,000,000 bushels, as against 15,000,000 last year. Sixty cars of new wheat came in Monday, making 150 on the crop. Preparations are now making for a free movement."

Death of a Pioneer.

Pinckney, July 30. — Thompson Grimes died at his home in this village of paralysis. Mr. Grimes was born in Cortland county, N. Y., November 10, 1824. In 1846 he moved to Michigan, locating in the village of Pinckney, and had been a resident of the village ever since. He did much to help the building up of the town.

Peculiar Fate of a Child.

Lansing, July 29.—The two-year-old child of a farmer named Johnson, south of this city, was drowned in a peculiar manner. The little one stood on a chair, and fell across a barrel of water. It balanced on the edge of the barrel so that it could move neither way, and its face only was submerged, causing suffocation.

Bad for the Wheat.

Muir, July 30.—The almost daily rains of the past week have proved a serious drawback to the harvesting of the wheat crop, and much of it is growing in the shocks. The yield is the best for many years, some fields yielding as high as 40 bushels an acre.

Case Ended by Death.

Deerfield, July 30.—John Diver, one of Deerfield's oldest citizens, is dead. He had gained quite a little notoriety from the law suit which had been brought to determine his mental condition, and which was ended while he was at death's door.

Held for Murder.

Crystal Falls, July 30.—The coroner's jury in the Pearl Morrison murder case ended its investigation Thursday afternoon and recommended the holding of Peter Bons for the murder. The evidence against him is purely circumstantial, and very weak.

Rev. Dr. Mulhern Dead.

Grand Rapids, July 31.—Rev. Dr. D. Mulhern, one of the oldest Baptist pastors in Michigan, is dead. He was 87 years old and had been 65 years in the pulpit, beginning in England. Two sons and three daughters survive him.

Crushed to Death.

Decatur, July 23.—Otto Werner was crushed to death under a farmer's wagon at Jackson while trying to climb upon a wheel.

FARM & GARDEN.

THE CORN HARVEST.

Labor-Saving Devices Have Made Its Gathering Easy.

Harvesting the corn crop is being made easier every year by improvements in labor-saving machinery and devices. Large commercial crops are cut, tied and left in straight rows by the improved corn harvester, while the bundles placed in shocks or stooks of 12 to 20 bundles to cure are then drawn to the barn and run through the shredder. Farmers who cannot afford the latest and improved machinery, or who have small areas of corn, cut by sled as illustrated below, or by hand cutter. The armfuls thus cut have to be tied in bundles, various materials being used for this purpose, some using two or three cornstalks, others a small handful of long, strong straw, swamp grass or willows. But whether cut by improved machinery or by hand cutter, the large bundles, shocks or stooks have to be securely fastened to withstand the fall wind and storms.

To make a corn cutter, as portrayed herewith, make a platform with runners six feet long and two inches thick; the higher the runners the higher it will cut; eight-inch plank should do. Mortise three crosspieces of two by four into top of runners. Nail boards on cross ties to make a platform 30 inches wide and nearly six feet long. Get a good steel knife and make it very sharp, say 22 inches long and five inches wide. Bevel the edge from the bottom or underside. Have a rod made with an eye in the center and curved, in order to fasten either end to a runner and hitch a horse in the center. This rod should be of one-half inch round iron, and long enough to work nicely, as shown at a. Bore a hole in platform or runner, and put in a stake about six inches high (b) even across with the base of rod (c). Another stake of the same size, but 20 inches high, on the right side of platform near the edge, and 21 inches from the front of platform (d). Take a rod of five-eighth-inch iron 67 inches long and weld a piece of flat iron one-half inch thick and eight inches long to the end of it, bolt the flat piece to platform (13 inches from center to back of platform), and bend the rod forward 17 inches above the platform, as in e. Bend the rod so as to have it extend out over the edge of the platform, over and back of the knife (b), then bend the rod in so as to extend about two inches over the platform at the center two by four cross brace (f). From there bend the rod out to g. Be sure to have it carry the same height all the time.

The bends in the rod are made in order to bring in the corn and lay it across the platform without the help of a man. In this way the danger of standing over the knife is averted. Nail a small stick something like a lath from top of stake d to the outside runner a few inches ahead of the knife. Bolt the knife to platform about 26 inches from back part of platform with two bolts, and have the knife slant back considerably. I put a scrap piece of two-inch plank under the platform at c and h, to make the platform more solid where the large rod and knife were bolted fast. The large rod from g to e should be with bends 50 inches long. Directly across it is 48 inches, thus using two inches for bends. The large rod is outside of stake d about five inches. Hitch on a quiet horse, hang the lines on d and ride on rear of platform, and when a large pile of corn is cut and laid across the sled, stop and shock it up.—Farm and Home.

WOMEN AS FARMERS.

Peculiar Scheme to Be Inaugurated by a Nebraska Woman.

Mrs. Hattie N. Bemis, of Arabia, Neb., does not see why women should not be successful as farmers, and announces that she is going to try the experiment if she can get a dozen women to assist her. She owns a large tract of land in northwestern Nebraska which she says she intends to give to 12 deserving widows of northwestern farmers. In return she will require them to cultivate it without man's assistance. She says she will start them out with all the machinery they need, a sufficient supply of cattle, horses, swine and poultry to serve as a nest egg, and money to last them until the first harvest can be disposed of. She admits that the climate is dry, but proposes to instruct her wards in the operation of a system of soil culture by which method experiments have proved the rainfall of the section is sufficient to insure bountiful crops. The nearest the women will be allowed to come to dealings with men is to sell the crops to them. If Mrs. Bemis ever learns that a man has been employed about the premises the farms will revert to her. Any member of the community who marries will also forfeit her title to a share in the property.—Chicago Chronicle.

Success Depends on Thought.

Many a farmer goes plodding along, earning but a scant living, with no rest in sight this side of the grave, who might by a little reasoning, and the adaptation of circumstances surrounding him to the idea in view, making a specialty of some one line of farming, and make a paying business of it. But this takes energy, both physical and mental—and he drifts on in blissfull ignorance of the chances and opportunities surrounding him, by which he might have gained a comfortable competence for his old age.—Rural World.

ABOUT LIGHTNING RODS.

Farmers Should Avail Themselves of the Teachings of Science.

Any man who will travel through the country with his eyes open will notice a great many lightning rods on buildings which instead of being a benefit are a positive injury. For example, they will be found lying down on the barn or the house, or broken off, or cracked perhaps near the ground. Rods of this kind are of no use whatever and an injury rather than a benefit. We see no benefit in having glass insulators but regard them rather as an injury. It is, therefore, well the first wet day to look after these disabled rods. As we have frequently stated, the lightning rod requires first good ground connection, by which we mean that it should be imbedded far enough in the ground to reach permanent moisture. Next, it should have close metallic connection with the buildings, and finally it should reach several feet above the comb, be well supported and drawn to a fine point, and if this is galvanized the better. It may be made out of round iron or twisted smooth wire, or copper ribbon. All good rods cover the three or four points above mentioned. A man my spend quite a little money in lightning rods, or he may put them up cheaply, according as his purse or fancy dictates. A man may take a spool of good barb wire, give it good ground connection, nail it to the building, run it over the comb along the roof, over the comb again, and back to the place of beginning and connect it at the four corners of this quadrangle at the ground by another piece of barb or smooth wire, or by two or three strands of smooth wire twisted together, and give it good connection and he will have a very good lightning rod. A man who will plat three or four smooth wires together, give them good ground connection, staple them to the building, support them three or four feet above the comb by a stay, separate the points and sharpen them at the upper end, will have a fairly good lightning rod.

What we are insisting on is that farmers should avail themselves of the teachings of science on this question and protect their lives and property as cheaply as they can and still secure effective protection.—Wallace's Farmer.

FOUR-HORSE LINES.

An Arrangement Excellently Adapted for Field Work.

"Can you tell me how to drive four horses abreast with two lines, and without jockey sticks?" was recently asked us.

For field work the arrangement shown in the sketch presented herewith is perhaps as good as any. Put the ordinary check lines on outside horses as shown by L. Have four coupling straps made with snap on one end and an adjustable loop on the other end, by means of which its length can be readily adjusted. Separate cut (S) shows how straps are made. The loop works in hame ring, while the snap fastens to bit (B). Snaps may be used on both ends.

HOW TO DRIVE FOUR HORSES

Another arrangement is to use lines on outside horses, same as here shown, and instead of the four coupling straps, use but three, and with these couple the horses heads together right through.—George T. Pettit, in Agricultural Epitomist.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

Attack a ringbone just as soon as it makes its appearance.

If the dog is heavily coated mercifully shear him this hot weather.

A contemporary does not like hog wallows. We do. A hog was never injured by a good wallow.

The merciful man will have shade for the stock. So will the man who works for the greatest profit.

Every farmer should own a breast strap for use on horses that show symptoms of sore shoulders.

The stallion ought to be driven fast enough to cover him with lather. Then rubbed down thoroughly.

Rotten swill and hot weather are bad mixtures for the hog. Pure water is much better than such swill.

As a rule farm work does not require a big, heavy horse. A lighter horse is better.—Western Plowman.

Clearing Fence Corners.

Nothing more clearly shows the painstaking and careful farmer than to have fence corners between fields or along the roadside kept free from weeds, grass or shrubs. As a rule all the old-time fence corners were kept scrupulously clean. A good deal of valuable hay was made from what the scythe reached in and cut there. But when the horse mower and the self-binding reaper came into use, it every year became harder to find anybody who could be hired to clear out the fence corners. The result was that the ax rather than the scythe was required, and the growth, instead of being restricted to fence corners, encroached each year more on the cultivated fields.

Get the Land in Condition.

Prof. Bailey says that the first step in the enrichment of unproductive land is to improve its physical condition by means of careful and thorough tillage, by the addition of humus, and perhaps by underdrainage. It must first be put in such condition that plants can grow in it. After that the addition of chemical fertilizers may pay by giving additional or redundant growth.—Farm News.

Our representative called at 118 Michigan Avenue, the residence of Mr. Quintus Hummel. Mr. Hummel is a veteran of the late war, and received, in the campaign, an injury which has given him much pain and suffering since. He belonged to a Michigan cavalry regiment and his horse becoming frightened one day reared up, throwing him backward. In falling he struck his spine on a sharp stone, inflicting a deep cut over five inches long. The injury affected the kidneys. About two years ago the left kidney started to bleed, and has been doing so ever since. Mr. Hummel, in a few pointed sentences, gave our representative the following account:

"The accident of my 'war days' left me in bad shape; pain in my back and spine rendered me almost useless, and I was compelled to give up work entirely. I could not turn over in bed without assistance. I have spent hundreds of dollars in various ways trying to find relief. Physicians have told me my spine was honeycombed for 13 inches. I had given up in despair, never hoping for relief, when a friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills, and they have done me a world of good. The pains have disappeared from my back, and the bleeding of my kidney has almost entirely stopped. I know I can never be entirely cured, as I would have to be 'a new man,' but Doan's Kidney Pills have done more to make me feel like 'a new man' than all the other things I have tried during past years. I have not had any recurrence of the pain or bleeding since taking them."

MOTHER! There is no word so full of meaning and about which such tender and holy recollections cluster as that of "MOTHER"—she who watched over our helpless infancy and guided our first tottering step. Yet the life of every Expectant Mother is beset with danger and all effort should be made to avoid it.

Mother's Friend so assists nature in the change taking place that the Expectant Mother is enabled to look forward without dread, suffering or gloomy forebodings, to the hour when she experiences the joy of Motherhood. Its use insures safety to the lives of both Mother and Child, and she is found stronger after than before confinement—in short, it "makes Childbirth natural and easy," as so many have said. Don't be persuaded to use anything but

MOTHER'S FRIEND

"My wife suffered more in ten minutes with either of her other two children than she did altogether with her last, having previously used four bottles of 'Mother's Friend.' It is a blessing to anyone expecting to become a MOTHER," says a customer.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a hole or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into the inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

Be sure to use the inner tube that will be baby, like this:

LITERARY NOTES.

The American Monthly Review of Reviews for August devotes itself with accustomed thoroughness to the new tariff. The editor, in "The Progress of the World," discusses the subject in its general bearings, while Mr. Charles A. Conant, of the New York Journal of Commerce, reviews the salient features of the new law in an impartial and luminous article.

The Arena for August offers a long and varied list of contents. The opening article, "Evolution: What it is and What it is not," is by Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of the Leland Stanford Junior University, of whom an excellent portrait appears as a frontispiece. The article gives a lucid exposition of the latest ideas regarding evolution in its various aspects, and corrects sundry popular misapprehensions concerning it.

In the North American Review for August Prof. Abram S. Isaacs thoughtfully discusses the question, "Has Judaism a Future?" Professor Isaacs admits that the ultimate phase of Judaism baffles inquiry as much as the ultimate phase of human progress, but that the tendency in all modern faiths is toward unity, simplicity and purification, and that when the nations shall have reached the heights of perfect brotherhood Judaism's future will have dawned.

The Forum for August fully maintains the high standard of that magazine, both as regards the general excellence of its articles and the care evidenced in their selection. Senator Hoar, whose contributions are always interesting and forceful, gives his views upon the conditions of "Statesmanship in England and in the United States." He is of the opinion that, as compared with their English prototypes, American statesmen are placed at a great disadvantage by reason of the shortness of their terms of office.

The August issue of Table Talk, outside of its usual useful and entertaining departments, such as "The New Bill of Fare," "Housekeepers' Inquiries," "Seasonable Menus and Recipes" and "Fashion Notes," assumes quite the air of camping life, giving an article on "Cooking in Camp" by Cornelia C. Bedford, and a sketch entitled "Memory of Camp Life on the Plains" by Mrs. Grinnell. It also contains the story of "Strange Plants and Fruits as Food" by Ethel Ramsey, and other seasonable and interesting matter. A sample copy will be forwarded free to any of our readers who send their name and address to Table Talk Publishing Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

STORY OF A COLOR FAD.

How the Craze for Lilac Had Its Birth in Vienna.

Many years ago, in the days of her radiant beauty, her imperial majesty, Empress Elizabeth, of Austria, sat for her portrait to Schrotzberg, a fashionable Viennese artist. The picture, says Munseys, was painted at the request of the empress' royal cousin, Ludwig II. of Bavaria, and was destined to grace the walls of his gallery of beautiful women in Munich. The artist recognized the importance of his commission, and gave to the canvas all the skill of his genius, which, in the matter of color, had no equal in Germany. The robe of the empress was of imperial purple, of so marvelous a tint and so wonderfully painted that it dimmed even the charm of the sovereign lady's matchless beauty. Artists tried in vain to imitate it, pens to describe it, and in time it came to be known as the "historical lilac."

In the ballrooms of Vienna a tint bearing the name of Kaiserilla is in vogue, which is as near the shade of purple in which Schrotzberg clothed his beautiful empress as looms and pigments can make it. In this country lilac has long been considered a color for the middle-aged women, but now young girls are taking a great fancy to it, and the coming summer we are told will see it a reigning tint. Max Nordeau may be right in the theory that devotion to violet is one of the surest signs of degeneracy, but the stylish woman of today would much prefer to be called "degenerate" than "unstylish."

JUST LIKE WINGS.

A Frenchman Who Is Endeavoring to Fly Against the Wind.

Louis Pierre Mouillard, a French resident of Cairo, has, says the Philadelphia Record, invented a flying machine, comprising an aeroplane of concave surfaces, attached to the body of the aviator and arranged to permit movement of the planes in a horizontal direction only with reference to the body of the aviator, the apparatus depending solely for support upon wind pressure, and not upon any downward thrust upon the air, either by flapping wings or revolving propeller wheels. To a breastplate, provided with an artificial sternum, are hinged wings, each on a vertical axis, so as to be capable of forward or backward motion, the wing frames of aluminum tubing being covered with silk or other suitable fabric. When the planes are thrust forward the aerodrome rises; when they are pulled back it descends. The wings are controlled by a spring, upon which, the inventor says, "the life of the aviator depends," and which must be strong enough to hold the two wings with their edges on a straight line at a speed of 22 miles an hour. The aeroplane can glide upon the air by a fall from a height sufficient to procure a speed which shall cause the air to support the apparatus, or, by a skillful utilization of the force of the wind, which must blow at least ten miles an hour. The weight of the apparatus should not exceed 55 pounds, and it is intended to sail with winds varying between ten and twenty-five miles an hour.

It Does Sound Fishy.

A man who resides on the East side relates an incident which may be true, but it sounds fishy. His boy caught a large sucker a couple of years ago, and since that time he has been experimenting with his finny pet somewhat. The fish, says the Punxsutawney Spirit, has been kept out of the water so much that it generally became accustomed to it, and frequently flopped out of the water itself and followed the boy around. Finally the boy placed it in a pen and gradually reduced its bathing periods until it became acclimatized, abandoning entirely its native element. It would follow the boy around like a dog, and one day he started over to town across the swinging bridge with the pet fish flopping along after him. But alas for boyish hopes! The fish made a slight miscue and flopped overboard into the creek and drowned before the boy could rescue him.

Russian Criminals.

One of the most curious results of the investigations made by doctors in the Russian jails is the statement that each group of criminals has its own peculiar color of the eye. A legal journal at Odessa states that it has been found that thieves and murderers usually possess "chestnut brown" eyes. Robbers—that is to say, thieves in a large and violent line of business—have slate-colored eyes, and the same is stated of criminals convicted of swindling. The vagabond classes have eyes of azure blue tint. The color most observed among minor criminals and those convicted of slight offenses is "chestnut brown green."

Indiana Crop Reports.

Reports on the Indian wheat crop are beginning to come in. From the central provinces we learn that the area of wheat is only 1,898,022 acres, as compared with 2,714,454 acres for 1896, and a ten years' average area exceeding 4,000,000 acres. The estimated out-turn is 324,475 tons, against 368,338 for 1896, and 784,802 as the ten-years' average.

Boston, Aug. 3.—A sextuplex telegraph wire was successfully operated between here and New Haven, 200 miles, three messages being sent over the wire simultaneously.

Racine Shows Growth.

Racine, Wis., Aug. 2.—In 1895 the population of Racine was 24,900. It is estimated from the school census just taken that there is now a population of 29,000 people.

THE RETIRED BURGLAR.

A Brief Consideration of Matches from His Point of View.

"There is this to be said in favor of the sulphur match," said the retired burglar, reports the New York Sun, "that it is noiseless when struck; but its odor is decidedly against it. More than once, when I have struck a sulphur match in the hall, I have heard some light sleeper, when the pungent fumes of the sulphur permeated the atmosphere, turn in bed in the adjacent room.

"I stuck to sulphur matches for a long time—naturally enough, I suppose—but finally I came to use parlor matches altogether. They are noisy, but odorless, and it may be possible to scratch them when teams are passing, or when the wind is blowing, or there is some other noise abroad. At any rate I came to prefer, from experience, the noisy, odorless match to the silent sulphur.

"O course the ideal match for anybody in my business would be one that should be both silent and odorless. It is a wonder to me that nobody has invented such a match; it is greatly needed, and I should say that it would be comparatively easy of invention. Now that I have retired, maybe I will devote myself to the invention of such a match and to do something to promote the interests of an arduous and none too remunerative calling."

THE STREET CAR CONDUCTOR.

Not the Least of His Trials Is the Wear and Tear Upon His Hands.

That the lot of the summer car conductor is not an enviable one can readily be seen from the following story of one who has charge of an open car on one of the Traction company's lines in this city, says the Philadelphia Record: "Just look at these hands," he said, exhibiting a pair of palms that were chapped, hardened and covered with a yellowish substance. "Anyone looking at them would naturally suppose that it has been a long while since soap has been used on them, and yet I washed them thoroughly before leaving the depot for this trip. This yellow color is caused by the bars, which I handle going from one step to another to collect the fares. The handle bars are of brass, and, as this metal is very sensitive and subject to weather changes, which affect it in the form of a layer of rust, I, using the bars as a support, get the same on my hands. While this polishes the brass, it makes my hands coarse and hardened, and this also accounts for their yellow appearance. It is very bad for the hands, especially if you happen to have a flesh wound or a sore, which, coming in contact with the rusty bars, is liable to poison your blood, but what is to be done? You can't wear gloves, as it is hard to handle cash with the mittens on."

VENDISH WORDS REMAIN.

Germany Is Full of Places Bearing the Old-Time Names.

Consul General De Kay writes for the Century a paper on the Serbian swamp Vendland, under the title of "An Inland Venice." Mr. De Kay says: "These people speak German to the lordings as we pass Vendish to our boatman, but the Vendish is disappearing because, for the sake of the army, its teaching is discouraged. Throughout all this district, far over into Saxony, only a few churches still offer sermons in the old tongue. Yet if the Vendish tongue disappears the names of places will tell the tale, even as such names as Brandenburg and Saxony still do. Dresden, Leipsic, these are Vendish words—or call them Slavic, with the broader term that now means the race. And hereabout are Cottbus, Vetschau, Muschen, Brahmow, Babow, Dlugy, Raddush, Leipe, Lehde, Byhleguhre, Straupitz and Lubben. And the filesses that wind or shoot straight in and out of forest and cleared fields retain Vendish names: Mutniza, Blushnitza, Rogazo, Zschapigk, Polenzo, Groblitzo and Nabasatz. Efforts have been made to give German names to many of them, but country people everywhere are great holders to precedent, and the people who stick so tightly to their old costume are not going to give up their place names without a struggle."

HISTORIC MARRIAGES.

One Union Which Paved the Way to Christianity in England.

The marriage of Ethelbert, king of Kent, with Bertha, the Christian daughter of Charibert, king of Paris, paved the way to Christianity in England. The marriage of Henry VIII. with Anne Boleyn was one of the principal factors leading to the reformation. Etheldred the Unready's marriage with Emma of Normandy gave the conqueror an excuse for asserting his claim to the English throne. The marriage of Henry I. with Matilda of Scotland reconciled the people to the conquest by restoring the line of Cerdic. Henry II.'s marriage with Eleanor of Aquitaine made England the first continental power in western Europe. The marriage of Henry VII. with Elizabeth of York closed the bloody Wars of the Roses. The marriage of Margaret, daughter of Henry VII., with James IV. of Scotland ultimately led to the union of England and Scotland. Finally the marriage of Sophia with the elector of Hanover put a line of German princes on the English throne.

CHIEF POKAGON IS ILL.

Aged Indian Believes He Is Going to the Happy Hunting Grounds.

Niles, Aug. 3.—Chief Simon Pokagon, of the Pottawatomie Indians, is dangerously ill at his home in Lee, Van Buren county. The old man expresses a belief that he is going to leave for the happy hunting grounds. He is 80 years old, and is the author of "The Redman's Greeting," a booklet printed on the bark of the white birch tree, and was prominent in the exercises of Chicago day at the world's fair. His father, Leopold Pokagon, sold the land on which Chicago is situated to the whites in 1833 for three cents per acre, and the claim, amounting to some $200,000, is still in litigation. His followers now consist of a band of 180. They occupy a narrow strip in the northern part of Van Buren and Berrien counties.

HIGH PRICE FOR POTATOES.

They Sell for $1.40 Per Bushel at Negaunee.

Negaunee, July 31.—There was an advance of 25 cents per bushel in the retail price of potatoes here Thursday, and they are now held at $1.40. A year ago the farmers here had their potatoes on the market at from 65 to 80 cents per bushel. All the potatoes sold here at present are from below, as none of the farmers have yet commenced to dig their crops. It will be fully three weeks before homegrown potatoes are on the market, and the price of new potatoes will rule high until then. Old potatoes are very scarce, consequently the new stock is in big demand. There promises to be a very large yield in this vicinity this year. The farmers here think their crops will be larger this year than for several years past.

Crop Conditions.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 4.—The weekly crop bulletin has the following on the situation in Michigan: "Excessive rainfall in a few central counties delayed harvest, but did no material damage; generally weather conditions were favorable for harvest and growth and timely, but uneven showers improved garden truck, beans, pastures and late potatoes; oats have short straw, fairly well filled heads, are ripening fast, being cut and finely secured; corn made splendid growth, and is beginning to ear heavily."

Object to Wage Scale.

Battle Creek, July 30.—Laidlaw Bros., of Detroit, who received the contract to do $18,000 worth of paving in this city, only offer laboring men one dollar per day, and $2.50 per day for teams. Laborers heretofore have been paid $1.50 per day. The contractors threaten to bring in outside labor, and the local men say there will be trouble if they do. The paving contract calls for the giving of preference to Battle Creek workmen, but does not stipulate the rate of wages.

Drowned at Holland.

Holland, Aug. 4.—Miss Clara Hall, aged 18, a daughter of Sherwood Hall, a prominent carriage manufacturer of Grand Rapids, and Miss Ethel Herrick, aged 18, a daughter of George G. Herrick, proprietor of a grocery store at Ottawa Beach, while bathing Tuesday afternoon were washed off a springboard into 14 feet of water and drowned. The bodies have not been recovered.

Found in a Cistern.

Port Huron, July 30.—The body of Franz Klumpp, a middle-aged German, who owned a large stock farm near the city, was found in his cistern. He evidently attempted suicide by cutting the arteries in his arms, but finding this means of death slow he jumped into the cistern. Klumpp had been divorced from his wife, but no special reason for the suicide is known.

Tramps Charged with Murder.

Niles, Mich., Aug. 2.—Two tramps who refuse to give their names were arrested here Friday midnight, charged with having murdered a tramp at Kensington, Ill. The dead man was shot during a quarrel, and the other two tramps boarded a Michigan Central train. They were discovered when the train arrived here and were taken back to Kensington.

Death Comes Suddenly.

Grand Rapids, July 30.—George Spicer, a well-known Kent county farmer, was found dead in a hayfield Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. He was 40 years of age and single. He was apparently well when he left the house. A boy, who went to take water to him, found him dead. Heart disease was the probable cause of death.

Village Band Shut Out.

Niles, Aug. 3.—The village council of Mecosta has set a new precedent for like legislative bodies. It has no ear for music and, therefore, has passed an ordinance declaring that any person found or caught practicing with a band instrument within the limits of the village shall be fined.

Fatally Burned.

Grand Rapids, July 31.—Mrs. Wallace J. Scoby was fatally burned Friday night and her little son, 17 months old, suffocated. Two daughters, older, escaped. The mother dropped a lighted lamp and her clothing caught fire. Her husband is on his way to Mexico on a business trip.

Blew Out His Brains.

Ludington, July 30.—James Christensen, a heavy stockholder in the B. J. Goodsell Hardware Co., committed suicide by blowing out his brains with a revolver. It is said that Christensen had been drinking and was despondent.

Veterans to Meet.

Allegan, Aug. 3.—The seventeenth annual reunion of the Allegan County Soldiers' and Sailors' association will be held on the fair grounds at Allegan on the 17th, 18th and 19th of next month.

Fatal Runaway.

Niles, Aug. 3.—Mrs. George Schrbach, of Montrose, was killed in a runaway accident. Her three children were badly injured.

BIG GAIN IN EXPORTS.

Gratifying Showing with Reference to the Balance of Trade.

The Past Year's Experience Very Satisfactory, and for the Coming Season Greater Advances Are Looked For.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The revised statistics of imports and exports for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1897, show a large increase in the exports over the previous year and a large increase in the balance of trade in favor of this country, notwithstanding the heavy importations in anticipation of the enactment of the Dingley law. The exports for the year amounted to the enormous sum of $1,030,001,300, against $863,200,487 for the year ended June 30, 1896. The imports amounted to $754,717,609, against $779,724,674 for 1896, and the balance of trade in favor of the United States was $275,283,691, against $85,476,213 for 1896.

It is expected that the figures for the present year will show a balance for the United States even greater than the last year, for the reason that the heavy importations made before the Dingley law went into effect will tend to reduce imports for some months to come, and at the same time exports of farm products promise to be large and at higher prices than last year.

The heaviest anticipatory importations were of wool and of sugar—the imports of sugar being 1,010,894,798 pounds more than for 1896. This represents very nearly the amount of sugar on which the refiners will make an added profit equal to the increase of duty in the Dingley law over that in the Wilson law. The sugar imports from Germany alone last year amounted to over 1,500,000,000 pounds.

An official of the treasury department, referring to these figures, said that on account of the duty imposed by the Dingley law the sugar refiners had additional protection to the amount of $2,500,000 on each 1,000,000,000 pounds of sugar imported from Germany. He declared that Germany ought not to object to the new law, because she is now the great beet-producing country of the world, and the United States has to take her sugar.

GRIFFITH WINS.

Elected to Succeed Late Congressman Holman, of Indiana.

Greensburg, Ind., Aug. 11.—The special election held Tuesday in this (the Fourth) congressional district to select a successor to the late William S. Holman, the "watchdog of the treasury," resulted in a democratic victory by an increased majority over that given Mr Holman last November. Francis Marion Griffith, the democratic nominee, secured a plurality which will probably exceed 1,200. Mr. Griffith is a resident of CONGRESSMAN-ELECT GRIFFITH.

Switzerland county. He was a state senator for two terms, and while in the legislature he gave evidence of good statesmanship. He is a fine orator and an able man. He is a descendant of Gen. Francis Marion, the revolutionary hero, and it is for him that the candidate was named.

Awful Atrocities.

Constantinople, Aug. 10.—An official dispatch received here says several thousand Armenian agitators from Persia invaded Turkey last Friday. They killed 200 of the Migriki tribe, including women and children. The wife of the chief was put to death with the most cruel torture, and several other victims had their noses and ears cut off. The authorities have taken measures to capture the marauders and to provide for eventualities in the Vileyat of Van.

Caused Heavy Loss.

Viroqua, Wis., Aug. 10.—A wind, rain and hailstorm, which passed over this part of the county Monday, did more than $100,000 damage to the tobacco farmers on Coon Prairie, the heart of the growing section of the county. Fully four-fifths of the crop is destroyed. Tobacco had never given such a promising outlook and was nearly ready for cutting.

Accepts the Nomination.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 10.—S. P. Leland has accepted Dr. E. L. Eaton's place on the prohibition ticket, and will cancel all the dates for his lectures after August 30, and will stump the state during September and October.

Passed Away.

Quincy, Ill., Aug. 10.—Marcus B. Merriman, of St. Joseph, paymaster of all the Burlington lines in Missouri, died Monday morning at Blessing hospital of Bright's disease, aged 48.

ing nothing about his death, and concluding with the statement that if the outrage be of anarchist origin, it has no political complications, with the additional assertion that the whole of Spain is tranquil and that there is not the least symptom of any alteration in the state of public affairs. This dispatch says the assassin is apparently an Italian.

For these reasons the Spanish ambassador, Count de Casa Velencia, in the course of an interview, said: "The belief that the crime is not political, but the work of a fanatical anarchist, is borne out by the fact the criminal is an Italian. We all know that of recent years Italian anarchists have been very active. Witness the assassination of President Carnot and the attempts on King Humbert and other similar crimes. They were all committed by Italians."

THE NEWS IN WASHINGTON.

Secretary Sherman Forwards a Message of Condolence.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Official notice of the killing of the Spanish premier reached the state department Monday morning in a telegram from Minister Taylor, in which he stated that he had expressed profound sympathy with the government. The secretary of state immediately caused to be drafted the following message of condolence, which was forwarded to Minister Taylor, after having been submitted by telegraph to President McKinley:

"Taylor, American Minister, San Sebastian, Spain: Your action approved. Renew in name of the president his expression of deep sorrow and sympathy for the loss borne by Spain in the death of Senor Canovas del Castillo, the prime minister of Spain, one of the most eminent of the statesmen of our time, and convey condolence to family of the deceased.

"(Sig.) SHERMAN."

Secretary of State Sherman received the first news of the affair through press bulletins. He expressed deep interest in the details. He said that the deplorable event would have some effect on the political affairs of Spain, but to what extent he could not say. As to the consequences on the conflict in Cuba he did not care to talk.

Senator Morgan, of Alabama, a member of the foreign affairs committee of the senate and the champion of Cuba in that body, predicted in an interview that the assassination might be the forerunner of a complete change of government, a republic replacing the monarchy.

This, he thought, was the present tendency and the sad event he regarded as an evidence of the disintegration of the Spanish government.

WILL HELP CUBA'S CAUSE.

Sympathizers Think Insurgents Have Cause to Rejoice.

New York, Aug. 9.—Emilio Agramonte, president of the Jose Marti revolutionary club and the Marti Charity organization, of this city, heard the news of the killing of Premier Canovas at his home. He thought Sagasta would be the successor of Canovas. He thought the death of Canovas could not but help the cause of Cuba.

Washington, Aug. 9.—Col. A. A. Auguira, who is stopping in Washington, said: "The assassination of Canovas will result in the dethronment of the Spanish monarchy and the freedom of Cuba. I am certain that Canovas will be succeeded by Sagasta, his political rival and the leader of the liberal party. Sagasta will undoubtedly take immediate steps to conciliate the Cubans by granting them reforms, but it will be too late. I expect to see Cuba free within 90 days and the republic of Spain established soon afterwards."

EXCITEMENT IN HAVANA.

Enormous Crowds Gather to Learn All the Cable News.

Key West, Fla., Aug. 9.—Intense excitement prevails in Havana over the news of Premier Canovas' assassination. Enormous crowds assembled before all the newspaper offices to read bulletins about the murder of the prime minister. Among the Spanish of all classes most profound sorrow was expressed. It was everywhere pronounced to be a calamity of too great magnitude to be estimated at this time. All recognize that its bearing on affairs in Cuba is of the greatest moment, but of necessity comment on this point is most guarded. The insurgent party is confident that the death of Canovas means the downfall of the conservative government, the recall of Weyler and the freedom of Cuba. Capt. Gen Weyler was summoned to Havana by Marquis Palmarola, his secretary, immediately after the receipt of the cable announcing the assassination of Canovas.

Sued by the Cramps.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The William Cramp & Sons' Ship and Engine Building company of Philadelphia brought suit against the United States government in the court of claims to recover damages alleged to have been incurred by the company in building the battle ships Massachusetts, Iowa and Indiana and the cruisers New York, Brooklyn and Columbia. The complainants cite delays and defaults of the United States in furnishing the armor plate and plans under the contracts as the basis of the proceedings. The amounts claimed in the several suits aggregate the sum of $1,736,149.

Well-Known Railroad Man Dead.

Galesburg, Ill., Aug. 9.—Oscar F. Price, general solicitor of the Illinois line of the C. B. & Q. road, died Friday night at Kenosha, Wis. He was a man of widest influence in this part of the state.

DEATH OF CANOVAS.

An Assassin's Bullet Ends Spanish Premier's Life.

Shot Down by His Wife's Side, He Dies Within Two Hours—Tragedy May Cause Grave Crisis—Its Probable Effect on Cuba.

Madrid, Aug. 9.—Senor Canovas del Castillo, prime minister of Spain, was assassinated Sunday at Santa Agueda, by an anarchist. The murderer fired three shots, two of which struck the premier in the forehead and another in the chest. The wounded man fell dying at the feet of his wife, who was with him, lingering in agony for two hours and then passed away at three o'clock Sunday afternoon with the cry of "Long live Spain," which were the last words upon his lips.

Santa Agueda is noted for its baths. The place is between San Sebastian, the summer residence of the Spanish court and Vittoria, the capital of the province of Alava, about 30 miles south of Bilbao. The premier went there last Thursday to take a three weeks' course of the baths, after which he expected to return to San Sebastian to meet United States Minister Woodford when that gentleman should be officially received by the queen regent.

The assassin was immediately arrested. He is a Neapolitan and gives the name of Rinaldi, but it is believed that this is an assumed name and that his real name is Michele Angino Golli.

At a special meeting of the cabinet Sunday under the presidency of Senor Cos-Gayon, minister of the interior, the latter announced that he had been intrusted by the queen regent with the premiership ad interim.

An Anarchist Conspiracy.

The murderer declares that he killed Senor Canovas "in accomplishment of a just vengeance," and that the deed is the outcome of a vast anarchist conspiracy. He is believed to have arrived at Santa Agueda the same day as the premier, and he was frequently seen lurking in the passages of the bathing establishment in a suspicious manner.

Europe Shaken by the News.

The terrible news swept over Spain and the people went into mourning for the victim of the awful crime. Europe was shaken by the story of the assassination, and words of sorrow and sympathy were flashed from every court. The revolutionists in Spain were silenced and the liberals, who had fought the monarchist leader, were horrified at the crime.

Killed for Revenge.

Golli has confessed that he killed Senor Canovas to avenge the Barcelona anarchists, and the insurgent leader, Don Jose Rizal, who was executed at Manila, Philippine islands, on December 30 last, as the instigator of the Philippine rebellion. Dr. Rizal denied that he was a rebel leader, but he admitted that he had drawn up the statutes of the Philippine league. In Golli's room the police found a large double-barreled pistol. It appears that when he left the house Sunday he carried a parcel, which is believed to have contained a bomb. The theory is that he hid this somewhere in the fields.

A dispatch from Barcelona says that Golli arrived there in December, 1895, coming from Marseilles. He was employed in the printing office of the Review Social Science, managed by the anarchist engineer Tarrida Marmel, formerly imprisoned in Montjuich fortress at Barcelona. Golli was implicated in the terrible crime of the celebration of Corpus Christi, although he left Barcelona a few days before it occurred. He was denounced to the police for complicity [illegible] but disappeared.

A special dispatch from San Sebastian says that Golli saluted Senor Canovas each morning with great politeness. His effusiveness aroused the suspicion of the premier, who mentioned the matter to the proprietor of the baths, only to be reassured by him. Golli confesses that he followed Senor Canovas to church and to other places, waiting for an opportunity when he could surely accomplish his purpose. He says he regrets that he has been unable to kill Gen. Polavieja, who was governor-general of the Philippine islands when Dr. Rizal was executed last December.

Cannot Be Tried as an Anarchist.

The prisoner cannot be tried under the laws providing for the trial and punishment of anarchists, as this law is so framed that a person prosecuted under its provisions must have used or attempted to use explosives in the commission or attempt to commit the crime charged against him. However, there is no doubt Golli will be summarily tried and senteneed. The public demands the adoption of stringent measures against anarchists and, also against those who are in sympathy with them.

Sagasta Talks.

In the course of an interview Monday afternoon Senor Sagasta, the liberal leader, said: "The country's politics must not depend upon an assassin. The conservatives ought to remain in power under the guidance of men like Marshal Campos, Senor Pidal and Senor Elduayen. Nevertheless, if the queen-regent appeals to the liberals, they are ready to respond."

Not a Political Crime.

London, Aug. 9.—The Spanish embassy in London has received two telegrams, the first briefly stating the fact of the assassination and the second coming direct from San Sebastian, stating that Senor Canovas had been the object of an infamous attack, but save

COLD IN HEAD

A TRUE HELPMATE.

Congressman's Wife's Scheme to Gain Popularity.

Great successes often depend upon small considerations, and the wife of a member of congress, a statesman to whom his constituents are wont to point as a man of the people whom flattery cannot divert from his old custom and associations, fully realizes this fact, says the Washington Star. A school friend who had not seen her since girlhood surprised and delighted her with a visit not long since.

"How industrious you are!" exclaimed the visitor.

"In what way?"

"I don't know. I suppose it is fancy work. I know that you used to have a great aversion to plain sewing. But you must be very diligent indeed to have your work basket in this room."

"Would you like to know what I am at work on?"

"Certainly."

"You shall see for yourself. Here it is." And she held up to view a half-knit sock of old-fashioned blue yarn.

"You—you don't mean to say that your husband wears things like that?"

"Oh, no. He wouldn't think of wearing them. I have a whole lot that I will give away to anybody who will use them."

"Do you do this for pleasure?"

"No. It isn't at all for pleasure. It's business, and I never occupy myself in that way except when it is absolutely necessary. But I always keep the work handy, and whenever one of the old-fashioned, rural voters of my husband's district comes to make him a call—and you have no idea how many honor us with that attention—I get it out and knit away for dear life. It is a good deal of bother, but it's worth it, for you really can't imagine how it pleases them!"

GETTING REVENGE.

A Little Girl's Resentment Toward an Aching Molar.

It is claimed that this story originated in Cleveland, a claim which may very well be true, because Cleveland—and especially the east end—has more precocious children to the acre than Boston could boast of in her palmiest days, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. This particular precocious infant lives on a pretty cross street in that favored locality. Not long ago she was troubled with an annoying and persistent toothache. Finally her mamma took her to a dentist and the dentist interviewed the troublesome tooth. After examining it he told her that the best thing to do under the circumstances was to have the tooth extracted, as it contained a very large cavity and this was the seat of the trouble. Bracing herself firmly in the chair she bade him go ahead and remove the acher. After the operation was over she carefully wrapped the tooth in paper and declared she would take it home.

Next day her mamma noticed that she was an unusually good girl, and, upon looking around, located her in a window seat industriously poking sugar into the cavity of the extracted tooth. Her mother demanded the cause of this strange proceeding.

"Why," she said, "I'm pokin' sugar in the old thing just to see it ache!"

FOLDING FURNITURE.

Furnishings of a Bedroom That May Be Packed in a Box.

The old saying about living in a bandbox may come to be a reality befort another decade, for now the complete furnishings of a sleeping or sitting-room may be packed in a box six feet long by two and one-half wide and a little more than two feet in depth. A clever Englishman is the creator of this folding furniture. With it persons traveling will not be obliged to lament the absence of their own beds and bedding, but may carry such things with them as personal baggage.

One of these boxes contains a washstand with tiled back and shelves underneath, a dressing bureau with a swinging mirror, a cane-seated chair and one rug upholstered chair, together with bed, bedding, draperies, a toilet set, and a wardrobe of comfortable size. This furniture is made of well-seasoned hard wood. Each part fits into its place and fastens without the aid of nails or screws. In the dressing bureau drawers, for example, the bottom is drawn out and the sides fold together. What a boon this furniture will be for frequent movers who are never satisfied with one place for any length of time, while the camper out may carry his home with him.

No Worse Than Nice.

The attacks upon the morality of Monte Carlo are made by its rivals for popular favor, if we may believe Henry Labouchere. The English radical says: "Every year the number of visitors to Monte Carlo increases and every year more desperate efforts are made by its rivals along the Riviera to prejudice the place with the British public. That Monte Carlo is a paradise in a moral sense I am not going to suggest. Every man of the world knows that, like other places entirely devoted to luxury and pleasure, society there is not exactly an assembly of saints. But that Monte Carlo is any worse than other pleasure resorts of a similar character I emphatically deny. As to the results of the gambling everyone who has been behind the scenes knows that infinitely more mischief is done in the gambling hells of Nice every season than at the tables of Monte Carlo, and I doubt whether even Nice, which is in many respects a sink of iniquity, is any worse than Ostend has been during the last few seasons."

BLUE ASBESTOS.

Canada and Italy Have a Serious Competitor in Africa.

Canadian and Italian asbestos will find a serious competitor in the blue asbestos recently discovered in the Cape Colony, since the South African product is less than half as heavy and furnishes fibers considerably finer and longer than any other, says the Detroit Tribune. The South African fiber has been worked into webs, which are but little inferior to those made of vegetable fiber, and are absolutely fireproof. Twine, cord and rope made of this blue asbestos will not only resist fire, but also most of the known chemicals, corrosive vapors and atmospheric influences. These qualities will open a new field for the employment of asbestos fabrics in chemical laboratories, and for the caulking of chemical apparatus.

A novel application of this material is the working of blue asbestos fiber into mattresses for hospitals. They are cooler in summer and warmer in winter than those made either of animal hair or vegetable fiber, and no vermin can live in this mattress. Experiments are now being made of working this fiber into cloth for firemen's apparel. Of course the long fiber blue asbestos can also be employed for all the uses to which white asbestos has been put heretofore. While a trifle more expensive, its superior qualities make it well worth the difference.

CANNON BALL STORY.

Alfred Grissom Tells of a Narrow Escape in Alabama.

Alfred Grissom, the manager of the summer excursion boats, has a cannon ball story which he says is Gospel truth. People in the excursion business have a strict regard for veracity, and many of his friends believe every word of it, says the St. Louis Republic.

Several years ago, the story runs, Mr. Grissom was in St. James parish, La. He had occasion to visit a sawmill where the big cottonwood logs were being cut into lumber. His attention was attracted to a particularly large log, when suddenly there was a loud crash, like that of the teeth striking a nail.

Windows were broken, men shouted and the machinery was stopped. Mr. Grissom was not hurt as he had imagined. Something had happened and he stopped to see the cause. The big log was removed from the rack and split open. A large cannon ball was imbedded in the center. The saw had struck it and broke into a myriad of pieces which flew in all directions. Five pieces passed through his hat, one struck his watch and glanced off, another hit a silver dollar in his vest pocket and left a scratch along its surface. Luckily, none of the flying particles struck his body or did other injury than break a few panes of glass in the office compartment.

A STUCK-UP CAT.

Kansas City Kitten That Fooled with Fly Paper.

A small, gray kitten in Kansas City walked back and forth in a store window the other day; conscious of her graceful appearance she lifted her feet daintily and curled her tail up over her back. Suddenly a noise in the store startled her, and she lowered her head and dropped her tail, as she turned stealthily to investigate. This was a mistake. For the tail came in contact with a piece of sticky fly paper, and all the efforts she made to remove it but increased her discomfiture and humiliation. She shook her lithe body, and the tail was wagged vigorously, but the paper held her faster and tighter than it ever held a fly. She put her forepaw down; it stuck. Her little hind paw came to the rescue, and was held where it fell. Frantic and mewing piteously, she rolled over and over, till enwrapped in a drapery of flypaper, she tumbled off the window platform and was gone. No one knew where or how, with but two feet free and those on corners diagonally opposite, she had managed to get out of sight and hearing. But she did it, and the flypaper went with her.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

FINANCIAL LETTER.

Chicago, Aug. 10, 1897.

Wheat has had a healthy range during the last week, the price of the September option, which is the one most traded in, fluctuating from 74 5-8 to 78 3-4. From this high point there was a falling off of not only being noted at Saturday's close, and before the opening was very strong at 76 to 76 3-4, showing that the slump of Saturday which ran the price down to 74 1-8, was the result of local short traders. But not of any changes in the conditions which fix the intrinsic value of the cereal. The most potent of these conditions according to advices by Schwartz, Dupee & Co., is the largest short crop of the European crops, and to the causes for the advance already mentioned in the correspondence must be added the possibility that on account of a poor yield by her own grain provinces Russia will prohibit the exportation of wheat. Should this occur, France and Germany, which take practically all the Russian export wheat, will be short about 100,000,000 bu., the amount exported from Russia in 1897, being 308,000,000 bu. The Russian crop this year, however, is from 25 to 50 per cent. short of last season's production, so that in any event the exports will not be nearly as large as usual.

France, which is always alert on questions affecting its food supply, has steadily led in the bidding for American wheat, and Paris cables this morning reported a slight advance. Liverpool was steady, and the English are exhibiting their usual procrastination about coming into the market on an advance. They have for the last four years been so accustomed to seeing wheat on the decline that they are loath to believe the present substantial rise a permanent one. Thus far the foreigners have made the American market since prices started up from the 65c mark, and this without much assistance from England, but should speculative buying on a large scale begin in this country present figures would look anything but high. The price conditions which have now been established a sufficient length of time to make it seem reasonable that they will be maintained until another crop is in sight assure the American farmer about $100,000,000 more for his farm products than was obtained in 1896, and there is nothing apparent which can materially reduce these figures, while much may occur to broaden and strengthen the present market.

The immense crop of corn in sight and the surplus left over from the crops of 1895-6 have acted as a deterrent to any marked advance in that cereal, and the range of prices has been small. Until wheat advances to a figure at which there will be substitution of corn for that cereal by European consumers, or crop damage of a serious nature occurs better prices are not looked for by traders.

In provisions the situation is considered to be statistically strong, although prices have for some time been at a low range. The facts seem to be that in ribs, where most of the attacks by the bears have been made, facts do not warrant their action. There are 20,000,000 less ribs here now than a year ago, and while hog receipts have been large it is claimed that hog cholera in several western states has so alarmed farmers that they are hurrying all their available hogs to market. This is especially true of Missouri, and if the calculations of those who believe in higher prices for hog products are correct the present big run of hogs will stop very suddenly when the end comes and cause a quick advance to figures much above the present ones.

The following table shows the range last week of the principal commodities dealt in on the Chicago Board of Trade and closing prices today:

	Last week.	Tuesday.
Wheat	74 5-8—78 3-4	77
Corn	26—29	26 5-8
Oats	16 5-8—18 1-7	18 5-8
Mess pork	7.35—8 32 1-2	7.70
Lard	4.20—4.55	4.25
Ribs	4.52 1-2—5.00	4.70

FINANCIAL.

This has been a week of old-time activity and prosperity in the stock market, the extent of the transactions and general character of the appreciation of securities not having been approached in the last four years. Conspicuous among the leaders were the grain-carrying roads of the west, and today they sold at the highest point since the panic of 1893, Rock Island going to 85 1-8, Burlington to 96 1-4 and St. Paul to 94.

The industrial stocks have also done well, Chicago gas selling up to 103 and tobacco to 94. Sugar has hung around 144 all the week.

EPWORTH LEAGUE CONVENTION.

The Adrian District Epworth League held their annual convention at Tecumseh this year on Tuesday and Wednesday, Aug. 10th and 11th. In honor of their arrival our home League was busily engaged for several days beforehand in providing suitable entertainment for the two hundred and fifty or three hundred visitors expected. As a result their efforts were crowned with success which even exceeded their expectations.

The audience room of the church was beautifully decorated with red and white bunting, the E. L. colors, while in the center of the room hung a large Maltese cross, the emblem of the League. The rostrum was a mass of green, some of the finest plants in the village having been loaned for the purpose. Down stairs was a toilet room, a check room for wraps and baggage, and a prettily decorated parlor.

There was no forenoon session Tuesday, the morning being occupied with the reception of the guests and provision for their entertainment.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

The afternoon session opened promptly at 2 o'clock with a song service led by Fred Buck, of Adrian, and a prayer service led by Mr. Vandeventer, the well known evangelist, after which C. E. Wakefield, of Morenci, the district president gave a short address in which he expressed his appreciation of the responsibilities of his position and his efforts to fill the trust.

This was followed by fraternal greetings from the societies of the various churches of Tecumseh to the delegates here and a short address of welcome by the Rev. J. P. Varney. "We welcome you as guests representing a great religious movement. We welcome you for ourselves. The people of Tecumseh will welcome you into their homes and the young people have made much preparation to their name most heartily I bid you welcome." To which Rev. Cansdell, of Ridgeway, responded, thanking the people of the village for their most kind and hearty welcome, saying in conclusion, "We know that you welcome us; we are glad to be welcomed. We partake of your carnal goods, we give you of our spiritual goods; thus we may both be benefited. May God bless the Tecumseh societies here for their welcome to us."

After music the annual reports of the officers were given. Miss Mary Eaton, superintendent of the Junior League, reported 427 Junior members in the district, 22 new members having been added during the past year and 20 having united with the church. Owing to delays of the various Leagues in answering her inquiries, only a partial report could be given.

The recording secretary, Miss Sutton, of Clayton, gave a report of the proceedings of the convention of 1896. Amendments suggested and adopted.

The corresponding secretary, Miss Dewey, of Cambridge, reported 46 Leagues in good condition last year of whom 5 failed to report this year, 4 more apparently in a state of collapse, the remaining 37 in good condition.

District Treasurer Fitzgerald reported only 15 answers to request for due money. Received in total, $35 62. A motion was raised and carried that the report be left open until a later meeting.

Then followed a recess of five minutes after which 30 Leagues gave 2-minute reports of the work they were doing. This was followed by a song by Messrs. Tansley, Hurry, Conklin and Day. A motion was then made and carried that the appointment of committees and miscellaneous business be deferred till a later meeting.

TUESDAY EVENING.

The evening session opened with a song service and scripture reading. The committees on credentials and nominations were then appointed, after which three minute talks were given by Revs. Lewis and Hudson.

Then came the address of the evening by W. Scott Jones, of Detroit. His subject was, "What makes the Wheel go round."

What makes the Epworth wheel go round? Grace, gumption and grit, or in other words, grace, common sense and persistence. The essential element of the wheel is power. Power can be increased at will. The Sunday-shool is indispensable for this. Prayer-meetings and class meetings are a great help.

It takes common sense to make the wheel go. In the prayer meeting the common sense leader is always prepared for any emergency so that the meeting never drags. What we need is more love for old-fashioned methods. It is the old-fashioned girl who knows how to go ahead. We all love the old-fashioned young men in novels. We need common sense as applied to methods of work.

The third element is grit or persistence to hang on in spite of opposition and go straight ahead. Be not content to simply drift, but seize your opportunities. Keep your eyes open; going through the world with them half shut you are only half alive. Persistence requires self-denial but Self-denial is the twin brother of Prosperity. In conclusion "Are we stronger today than we were a year ago? Are we better trained for the work of life and more impressed with our responsibilities? If not, God help us to get down on our knees to ask for Divine Guidance.

The meeting closed with a selection by the quartette. After the meeting a reception was given to the delegates in the church parlors and ices served.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

The Wednesday morning session opened with a "sunrise" prayer meeting at six o'clock led by Mr. Vandeventer. The service was well attended.

Promptly at 9 o'clock the forenoon meeting opened with a consecration service. The forenoon was principally devoted to recollections of the Toronto convention. At 9:30 came the Junior Hour, devoted to Junior work and suggestions. Short papers were read on the following subjects: "The Junior League can help Temperance Work," "Bible Study for the Juniors," "Conversion of Children," "Junior Work as seen by a Boy." These were followed by a song by Mr. Vandeventer, after which came a five minute recess.

B. C. Day then gave an address, "Trips." He described his bicycle trip to Toronto. From this he likened a bicycle trip to the journey of life as applied to Epworth Leaguers and showed how through the journey of life they may help one another over the hard places.

Rev. H. B. Marsh, of Tiptop, then gave an address on "Echoes of the Toronto Convention." He aimed to present the principal thoughts presented by eminent people from all points of the continent and enlarged somewhat upon the methods of work in the spiritual department of the League.

After a musical selection came the committee reports at 11:30, which were adopted.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

The afternoon services began at 2:00 o'clock with devotional service after which came a paper by Miss Franc Baker, of Morenci, on "The Proper Relation the League should bear to the Cause of Missions." This was one of the most important papers of the convention.

Miss Baker, having formulated a few statements, proceeded to say that the relation of the Epworth League to missions is its relation to Christianity itself. She stated her belief that God, in controlling the stupendous movements of modern history, includes in his plan the arousing of the young people in a general interest in world-wide missions. With Dr. Barrows she too believes that "there is surely and swiftly coming a revival of enthusiasm in foreign missions." If the Epworth League and these other divisions of the grand army of young people, will, without wavering, march triumpantly into the twentieth century, with a strong purpose to take the world for Christ it can be done. She exhorted all to remember their vows on coming into the church, "to give of their substance according to their ability for the support of the Gospel." She quoted Bishop Ninde, the E. L. president, as saying: "A great compelling purpose must possess the E. L. or its enthusiasm will abate and its activities languish." The paper was brightened by many incidents and all felt there was need of serious undertaking in order to "lift up" fallen humanity Christward."

A discussion of the subject pro and con was started by Mrs. D. H. Ramsdell, of Clinton. The next subject on the program was an address, "How to make the League effectual in Revivals," by Rev. W. J. Balmer, of Morenci.

In early times their protracted efforts were supplemented by a lay element consisting of local preachers, exhorters and class leaders, of whom the first had special gifts for preaching, while the exhorters related experiences and exhorted to repentance while class leaders aided by prayer and songs. Methodism has changed perhaps for the better. The E. L. is growing up to take the place of the old time aid. They can help by being earnest Christians themselves, by prayer for the work and pastor, by prayer meetings in the houses, by work in the revivals.

A discussion of the subject was led by Milo Dole, of Adrian.

Then came the question box conducted by Clarence Noble, of Ann Arbor, after which an adjournment was voted upon till evening.

During this session the officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President—C. E. Wakefield, Morenci.
1st Vice Pres.—B. C. Day, Tecumseh.
2nd " —Flora Kemp.
3rd " —Nettie Storms.
4th " —Alice McMahon, Pinkney.
Rec. Sec.—Maggie Sutton, Clayton.
Cor. Sec.—Addie Camburn, Adrian.
Treas.—Chas. Snell, London.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

This session opened with a consecration meeting led by Mr. Buck, Adrian. Then came the report of the committee on resolutions, which report consisted of resolutions on the death of Dr. L. P. Davis, welcome to the new presiding elder, and also endorsed the resolutions of the international convention on temperance and abstaining from tobacco and questionable amusements. Signed by D. H. Ramsdell, S. Milo Dole and W. L. Balmer. Amended and adopted.

Following was the evening's address by J. H. Grant, of Manistee, state E. L. president. Subject: "Our Debt to the Average Man." The main idea he put forth was that the average man was at the bottom of all good works. Even the success of Methodism must be laid to the average man who for doing the hard work should receive the lion's share of honor. In conclusion he said, "Pastors, wegas Leaguers will help you to lift up fallen humanity."

After this excellent address a collection was taken which amounted to over $10 and was donated to the Tecumseh chapter.

To close the convention Presiding Elder Shier held an altar service which was indeed a holy time.

During this convention our home League provided entertainment for 300 delegates and were amply repaid for all hard work by the amount of good they received.

Teachers' Examination.

The regular teachers' examination for Lenawee county will be held in Whitney's opera house, Adrian, Thursday and Friday, Aug 19 and 20. All applicants should be provided with paper, pen and ink. The examination will begin promptly at nine o'clock.

- - - GREETING. - - -

To the Citizens of Tecumseh add Vicinity:

It having become the "correct thing" for ladies of all classes to become proficient in the art of dressing becomingly, we come to you with one of the best systems of Tailoring for ladies now in use, known as "Works' Garment Cutter," of St. Louis Mo. This system is now used successfully in New York, Chicago, St. Louis and many other leading cities of this country and Europe. By it, any garment worn by ladies, children and men, may be safely produced. It will enable mothers, wives and daughters to save many times its cost each year. Any lady intending to follow dress making as a business, will find it practical, reliable and easy to learn.

It is throughly a "Tailors' System." We use no models, but make use of the square, tape and scales. The garment is cut by actual measurement and proven by balance measures. We believe we are justified in asking fathers and mothers if it is not reasonable to teach your daughters an art that will enable them to dress becomingly at a greatly reduced cost.

This art, thoroughly learned, will prove of great benefit during life and should adversity take from them their available means of living, this knowledge will prove a great boon. Any bright girl of 15 can learn the art and become as proficient as her elders, and the practice in construction will develop her as she becomes older thus rendering her independent. We invite all ladies of the city and vicinity to call at any time, and, except during school hours, our teachers will be pleased to explain the method in detail. We cordially invite all dress makers to call, trusting they will be the gainer and not the loser thereby.

The lessons will be of two hours duration at each session, begining at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m. daily, and 7 p. m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Students from a distance may have free use of the school room for practice during their stay. The school will be graded and students graduated with a diploma. There will be a primary, intermediate and senior class, thus enabling students to commence at any time. The length of time required to complete the course will depend upon the aptitude of the student.

This school is located in the Tindall property on the corner of Ottawa and Pottawatamie streets, Tecumseh, Mich., under the management of Mrs. E. B Kinney, of Adrian, Mich.

Having had 28 years' experience in dress making, I am pleased to state to my friends and neighbors that I have examined the system being taught in the school at my home, and am willing to acknowledge that it far surpasses any system that I have ever examined. Chief among its many features are its measurements. These are simple, and the balance measures employed prove unerringly the correctness of the original measures. I believe the statements made in this letter can and will be fully carried out, and that any person availing themselves of this opportunity will have no cause to regret it.

MUSICALE.

The recital given by Miss Root's pupils at the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Slayton on Pearl street last Friday evening was one of the most enjoyable ever given in Tecumseh. The house is well calculated for an entertainment of this character and on this occasion was taxed to its utmost. That the large company present enjoyed the program rendered, the liberal encore given each number fully attested. From the youngest to the more advanced pupils all reflected great credit, not alone to themselves, but to their able teacher as well. The program, consisting of twenty instrumental selections, was admirably arranged and was so varied as to make it very interesting. Most of the celebrated composers were represented in the selections. There were duets, trios and four pieces for eight hands. Mrs. L. W. Kimball, of Clinton delighted all with her vocal selections. She has a wonderfully sweet and musical voice, highly cultivated and her enunciation was so perfect that every syllable could be understood. She kindly responded to an encore with a pretty ballad.

The following of Miss Root's pupils contributed to the evening's enjoyment: Grace Norris, Raisin; Nina Allen, Adah Beebe and Ethel Hampton, Tipton; Raynor Heaussler, Alma Schmid and Cynthia Bailey, Manchester; Ora Gillespie, Mary Mills, Naomi North, Percy Slayton, Laila Knapp, Fred Frost, Florence Eccles, Louise Erskine, Grace Erskine, Wolcott Marsh, Julia Lowry, Ethel Slaytop, Lena Smith, Edyth Shull, Stella Zimmerman, Maud Beneway, Floy Freeman and Erma Kyle.

BALL GAME.

A large and expectant audience gathered to see what promised to be an interesting ball game between the Detroit Athletic Club team and the Tecumsehs, last Friday, and for the first three innings the most sanguine expectations were realized in spite of the fact that McLeod, the Detroit umpire, had done very poor work throughout. Not a run was made in the first two innings. In the third Dingwall, of the Detroits, made a hit, stole second and scored on a hit by Callahan. Two additional hits, which were scattered, comprised all the safe batting that was done off Harris, who was pitching elegant ball. He was, however, completely at the mercy of a very poor umpire which was discouraging to say the least. In the fourth the Detroits scored 4 runs by means of 2 hits and a disgusting combination of errors and rank decisions, after which only one more inning was played. At the end of the fifth an attempt was made in behalf of the Tecumseh team to have some change made which would improve the umpiring, but Mr. Guiney, the Detroit captain, absolutely refused to consider anything of the kind and at this point the home team was called from the field and the game discontinued.

The outcome is much to be regretted but it seems as if there was nothing left to do but stop the game. McLeod has gained a very bad reputation for himself throughout the state and it is strange that his poor work was tolerated in other places and more so that an organization such as the D. A. C. should be compelled to reach out for such as he even in the scarcity of good umpires. The score was as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	R	H	E
D. A. C.	0	0	1	4	0	5	4	2
Tecumseh	0	0	0	0	0	0	3	3

AS THEY ARE.

Self-constituted sages draw strange fancies from afar,
And mock the man who sees and paints things earthly as they are;
They like to mount to airy heights on fancy's feathery wings,
But scoff at those who tell stern truths of earth-lifes' common things;
Perhaps they mount so high, that things so plain to people here,
From dizzy elevations in distorted shapes appear.

And yet we live in daily touch with haggard things and poor,
We see the lowly sphere in which men suffer and endure;
The touch of poverty and pain the overcrop of ills,
The dissipation and distress which curses ere it kills;
All these are near us every day, stern spectres of each hour,
What wonder that some paint it all in words of pitying power?

We cannot always soar aloft 'mid sunsets' golden bars,
Float with the eagles in ozone among the silvery stars,
Sail out on seas of crystal to the islands of the blest,
And bask in calms and tropic palms which glorify the west;
Some must do daily where the city's pulses beat,
And note the misery which lines full many a squalid street.

Here settle dregs left festering there by eddies of life's sea,
Where demons of most horrid mien feast long in ghoulish glee;
Where passions fired by alcohol make cesspools black with lust;
Where happiness is hollow and joys crumble into dust;
Where vice carouses, buzzard-like, on human carrion fed,
Where conscience wears a coat of mail and principle is dead.

Some painter with the pen must sketch these things with faithful touch,
Not palliating evil or condoning overmuch;
Not softening the glooms of hell or padding lurid truth
With silken words as cushions used to break the fall of youth;
Let human beings yet uncursed see these things as they are,
And knowing what has peopled hell sheer off, unscorched, afar.

We need the faithful art which shows the plain, unwelcome fact,
Which scorns disguise or vain deceit in purpose, word or act;
Which, not despising fancy, yet the truth unvarnished knows,
And does not care to paint the reptile posing as the rose.
We human beings may not yet soar bird-like in the air,
So near the sun that dazzled eyes see neither ill nor care,
But see, reveal and then relieve soul-sorrow everywhere.

I. EDGAR JONES.

DOCTOR RENA'S .... AMUSEMENT CRUSADE.

BY JEANNETTE S. BENTON.

THE pretty suburb of Hyde Park was in a riot of greenness and bloom under the hot June sun. The bay-windowed and balconied Merrill house looked terribly imposing to John Hathaway as he went slowly up the broad walk. A sound of merry girlish voices floated through the window, and he walked still slower. He was a diffident man, and would much rather have faced a battery than gone through with the errand he was bound on; but he must, and big, strong man as he was, his eyes grew wet as he thought of the reason. He rang the bell.

"I should like to see Miss Rena Merrill," he said to the servant.

She looked a little surprised, then directed him to a chair in the hall, and went into the parlors. A moment later a girl came out, a very pretty girl, airy and proud-looking.

"Did you wish to see me?" she asked, wonderingly.

He crushed his hat nervously in his hands.

"Yes, marm," he answered. "I suppose I came on a very queer errand, but I had to."

And his eyes filled with tears.

"Of course you don't know us. My name is John Hathaway. We live back here about three blocks. But we know all about you. Time and time again we have heard of your beautiful speaking, and my wife has wanted to hear you always. Since she has been sick she sort of seemed to have it on her mind all the time. Yesterday she heard the doctor telling me he was afraid she couldn't pull through, and she said: 'John, if I am going to die, there's just one thing I want. I want you to ask Miss Merrill to come and recite for me.' Sick people get fanciful sometimes, you know," he said, apologetically. "I hope you'll excuse the liberty."

"Wants me to come and recite something?" the girl repeated. "Why, how funny! I am sure I don't know," looking doubtfully at the unmistakable work-day aspect of the man before her. "Does she want me to come now?"

"The doctor didn't say how long it would be," he answered simply.

People who did not like Rena Merrill said she was spoiled. Possibly she was, but something in the pathetic hopelessness of the visitor's voice and the sadness of his homely, honest face suddenly touched her.

"Of course I'll go," she said impulsively, pinning on her wide, white hat; "now, too. I'll be back sometime," she remarked cavalierly to the wondering girls in the doorway; "just amuse yourselves until I come."

The man hurried ahead, and stood waiting in the doorway of a trig, box-like little house. Everything was clean and still; an air of solemn expectancy brooded over the place.

A woman came into the entry. Her face was portentous and important-looking.

"Have you got her?" she asked, in a loud whisper. "It's an awful queer notion for a dyin' person to take," she continued, turning to the girl. "She's growing weaker. It's slow fever, you know, miss; but I guess she can hear yet."

Rena followed her into a room rather bare, but painfully clean. On the spotless pillow was a white, wan face with closed eyes. Another woman sat by the bed fanning her. The dark eyes opened slowly, and a weak voice whispered:

"I knew she'd come. Now I'll hear her."

Rena stood at the foot of the bed, for the first time in her life painfully embarrassed.

"What shall I recite?" she asked appealingly of the women.

They sat with decorously folded hands.

"Something suitable to the occasion," one said, primly.

Rena thought a shade of protest flitted across the white face on the bed. "Little Boy Blue" flashed to her bewildered memory, and she eagerly caught at it. Even to herself her voice had never sounded so pathetic as she told the tender little story.

When she finished, the two stolid women were wiping their eyes, and heavy tears lay on the sick woman's white cheeks. Again she opened those weary eyes, and to the girl's thought there was beckoning in them. She followed her impulse, and bent over the bed.

"Now something—different," the woman gasped.

A sudden inspiration flashed to Rena's mind. She stood well out in the room and commenced the "Chariot Race" from "Ben Hur." Both nature and art had done a great deal for her in an elocutionary way. She had recited before critical friends, and envious ones, before exacting, cultivated audiences, but her wildest fancy had never placed her in so difficult a position as this. The homely room, with its chilling quiet, the death-like auditor on the bed, her solemn eyes following every movement, was oppressive and uncanny, but never had she recited as she did that day.

The great amphitheater with its brilliant, frenzied populace, the rush and trample of the horses, the breathless hush, the crash of the wild chariots, the triumph of the matchless Arabs and their wonderful driver, swayed and surged and beat through the room like a mighty wind.

The two women sat with open mouths and staring eyes.

The man had come inside the door and stood erect, clenching his hands in his excitement.

"That was a race as was a race," he said, in a loud, resonant voice, forgetful for an instant of everything but the story.

Then they looked toward the bed. The sick woman was sitting up.

"Oh!" she cried, with a note of long-drawn ecstasy, then fell back exhausted.

"She's dead!" cried Rena, in a quiver of fear.

There was a horror-stricken instant. Then she roused and spoke almost strongly, grasping convulsively the girl's warm, dimpled hand in her cold, wasted fingers.

"Maybe I'll live till to-morrow, if you'll promise to come again."

"I'll surely come," Rena said, softly, then slipped out.

She was full of her odd experience, but she told it at the dinner table that evening with a touch of hesitancy. Somehow she did not feel like having much said about it.

Dr. Randolph was there, too, and she wondered anxiously what he would think. Somehow, the recitation of a thing like that to a dying woman suddenly seemed rude and ill-timed. Her cheeks burned.

The doctor looked at her thoughtfully.

"Possibly you can cure her, Miss Rena," he said. "Sometimes in a low fever the patient gets apathetic and indifferent, and slips away from sheer lack of energy. Maybe you can reverse the idea somewhat, and, as a second Scheherazde, chain the poor woman to life by your eloquence."

He looked up and caught the deep flush on Rena's face.

"I beg your pardon, Miss Rena, I am not entirely joking. I do not know the case, but that result is not impossible. How about to-morrow, though? Had you forgotten the golf match? I believe the party is to start at seven and return by moon rise."

Rena caught her breath.

"I had forgotten," she answered.

She sat silent, hardly touching her dessert. The party going out next morning were just the people she liked. The exhilarating spin over the perfect roads in the lovely, fragrant June morning; the informal dinner at the charming clubhouse; the moonlight return—and Dr. Randolph. It was so seldom he spared time for an outing.

"It would be absurd to give up such a lovely day just for the mere possibility of benefit to the woman. Why, the doctor half made fun of it himself."

Then her promise flashed to her mind.

"I don't seem to be doing much of anything else lately but forget; that settles it, though," she thought, straightening up energetically; "of course I can't go."

People think rapidly, and Rena, looking up at the end of her cogitations, noticed they were all silent, as though waiting for her to go on.

"I really did forget about the Downs, and promised her to come back, so of course I can't go," she said, decidedly. "But I wish you wouldn't mention it to anyone, because I don't do it for goodness, you know, but simply because I promised."

The next morning she gathered a great handful of dewy pink and white roses before she went to the little white house, wondering as she did it, whether they might not be for the dead rather than the living.

John Hathaway met her at the door.

"She is waiting for you," he said.

The sick woman was alone; her eyes were open, and she was watching the door intently.

"She's come," she announced, triumphantly, as though she had come off victor in a doubtful case. "And see the beautiful roses!"

"Yes, and you shall have them where you can enjoy them," replied Rena, scattering the fragrant mass over the snowy bed and its occupant.

Mrs. Hathaway gave a little gasp. The roses were dreadfully dewy, but they did smell good. Still, it was not roses she wanted.

Rena answered the unspoken wistfulness of her face.

"Now, what do you want me to recite?" she asked.

"I wish you'd say something real funny. I haven't heard anything funny in so long," Mrs. Hathaway answered, imploringly.

"Whatever can I recite that's 'real funny?'" thought Rena, in dire perplexity. "Everything funny is so mixed up with the pathetic. I might tell them 'How Katie Entertained Her Sister's Beau.' It's pretty near as bad as 'Curfew Shall Not Ring,' but I believe they will like it." So she told the absurd little story of Katie's exploits.

John Hathaway roared with delight.

"The cute little rat!" he cried, admiringly, "didn't she just get it on that sister of hers?"

The roses over Mrs. Hathaway tumbled around as though they were experiencing a small earthquake,

"I didn't know anything could be so funny," she gasped, wiping her streaming eyes. "Can't you go on?"

"Aren't you afraid it will hurt you?" asked Rena, apprehensively.

"Hurt me! I haven't felt so stirred up and good for months."

It was nearly an hour later when Rena emerged breathless and rosy from the cottage, and met Dr. Randolph at the gate.

"Why, I thought you went to the Downs!" she said, astonished.

"No, I concluded not to go. How is your patient?"

"Oh, doctor, there was never anything like it!" she cried, ecstatically. "You were right. All she needed was 'rousing,' and I roused her. I'm sure she will get well. I recited everything, from 'Katie Entertaining Her Sister's Beau' to 'When Grandmamma Danced the Minuet,' and furnished my own orchestra. They did enjoy it so! It was just lovely!"

"Doctor," she said, rather hesitatingly, "do you know other people like those, you know, who might like something of this kind?"

"Yes, Miss Rena, I have a whole hospital full who would surely like 'something of this kind,' to whom it would be a joy and a delight, even if you did not cure them all."

"I think I will go to them, then," Rena replied, with decision. "It's more fun than anything I've tried yet."

Taking that view of the case, the "fun" was certainly shared in good measure in the convalescent and surgical wards of the hospital, and many dreary hours were shortened and made brighter by her efforts.

It was never reported that she saved the lives of any of the patients, so it was Mrs. Hathaway's proud boast that "as far as she had heard tell she was the only person who had ever been cured by elocution."

But the enjoyment and delight those poor mortals experienced, the pain and troubles they forgot, were legion. It was a new world to so many of them, a world full of such grand thoughts, such loving ones, such side-splitting, innocent mirth, that in many cases it was a more lasting tonic than the medicine they took. While "Doctor Rena," as her friends all dubbed her, declared she never had so lovely a time in all her life as she had had since she commenced her amusement crusade, and Dr. Randolph—but that is another story.—The Household.

THE MINISTER'S FEE.

It Was a Good One, But He Did Not Know It for Nearly a Year.

Many stories have been related of the odd form adopted by eccentric young people in presenting the marriage fee to the minister, but not one have I heard that quite equaled in unique method the story told by the minister of an Episcopal church in the northwest section of the city.

A young couple was to be married, and each party being a scion of a wealthy family the minister naturally looked forward to a generous reward for his offices.

The ceremony was performed, and the groom, at the proper time, handed the minister an envelope a little larger than the ordinary size, and the contents appeared to be of such soft thickness as to satisfy the clergyman that his hope had been realized.

In the privacy of his own apartments the seal was broken, when, alas! all pleasant anticipations faded away, for there was but—a pair of gloves—a very fine, very elegant pair, 'tis true, but still only gloves.

And so the man of God swallowed his disappointment and laid the souvenir away.

Nearly a year afterward, when a special occasion called for their use, the minister bethought him of the gloves and brought them to the light.

He found considerable difficulty in fitting them to his hands, and, upon examination, lo! in each finger, neatly folded, was a fresh, crisp five-dollar bill.

And now the reverend doctor makes careful search of any unusual object a marriage fee may take the form of, lest that which may appear frivolous at first may prove a blessing in disguise. —Baltimore Telegram.

Slow in Operation.

Dr. Elisha Kane, the arctic explorer, on being asked what he thought of a certain after-dinner speech, replied that it was like an arctic sunset. "What do you mean by that?" asked his friend. "It was bright and interesting," replied the doctor, "but provokingly long in operation."—San Francisco Argonaut.

BONS CONFESSES.

Tells the Story of His Horrible Murder of Pearl Morrison.

Crystal Falls, Aug. 6. — Bons has confessed to having outraged and murdered Pearl Morrison. The confession was made to Detective Charlesworth, whom Bons supposes to be his friend. He said he saw Pearl leave the main highway and take the Blaney Creek road and followed her. He made an insulting proposal and was repulsed. He struck the girl three times in the face, knocking her down, and jumped on her stomach. He then outraged her twice. Just as he was about to leave his victim, who he supposed was dead, she groaned and opened her eyes. He then choked her until he was satisfied that life was extinct. He returned to the place the next morning to make sure that she was dead; if not, he intended to complete his fiendish work. Bons started his criminal career by burglarizing a store in his home in Norway, Mich., in 1892, when he was but 16 years old. Since then he has committed a number of burglaries and hold-ups all over the country.

Bons' confession was made a second time in the hearing of Attorney Henderson, of Norway, and M. B. McGee, a leading citizen. The fellow is undoubtedly insane or is acting the part to perfection. This is not the first crime of the nature he has committed. He has been identified by a young girl at Norway as the man who committed an assault upon her several months ago.

The appeals of leading citizens prevented a lynching Thursday night. The miners employed in the surrounding locations are now making threats, and a well defined report is current to the effect that they have formed an organization and will invade the village for the purpose of lynching Bons. In the meantime it is expected that Sheriff Waite will take the precaution to move the prisoner to another county.

TERMS OF PRAISE.

Applied to Naval Militia by Assistant Secretary Roosevelt.

Washington, Aug. 7. — Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, who has just returned from a tour of inspection of the naval militia of several states, speaks as follows of the organization in Michigan:

"In Michigan I was only able to see the first and third divisions, and from their commander to the most recently enlisted landsman I have nothing but praise for the workmanlike way in which their duties were performed. No battalion on the coast can make a better showing. The discipline is excellent. The commissioned officers, aside from the commander, who is a naval academy graduate, have all worked their way up through the ranks, and the seamen, ordinary seamen, and landsmen (who form the bulk of the battalion, for no landsman is made an ordinary seaman until he passes the rigid examination required to show his fitness), are for the most part business or professional men, who largely pay their own expenses, who are actuated simply by a sincere spirit of patriotism, and who show by their efficiency the effect of painstaking and faithful performance of duties which must often be irksome. I consider these divisions fit now to be put in charge of one of our smaller cruisers."

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGED.

Manager of a Bicycle Company in Trouble.

Grand Rapids, Aug. 6.—Charles A. Thayer, vice president, treasurer and manager of the Hamilton-Kenwood Bicycle company, was arrested Wednesday on a capias for the alleged embezzlement of $4,000 of the funds of the company at the instance of James A. Droste, to whom as trustee the accounts of the concern were assigned when the plant was mortgaged to the J. Frederick Baars estate. It is claimed that before the mortgage was given he took all the money in sight and went to Colorado, only recently returning. Thayer came here from Hamilton, Ind., bringing his bicycle works here and consolidating them with the Slight works under the name of the Hamilton-Kenwood company, with $200,000 capital.

Mortgage for $750,000 Filed.

Detroit, Aug. 10.—If the mising of $750,000 is any evidence, the Michigan Telephone company has plans for much work in the near future. There was filed in the offices of the city clerk and of the register of deeds copies of a mortgage covering all the real estate and telephone plants of the company in this state. The mortgage is given to the Guaranty Trust company of New York, and is given to secure the issue of 750 bonds of the denomination of $1,000 each, with interest at five per cent., to be paid in gold at the office of the Guaranty Trust company, July 1, 1917. The bonds are dated July 1, of this year.

Thomas B. Raymond Dead.

Bay City, Aug. 10.—Thomas B. Raymond, aged 79, a first cousin of Abraham Lincoln, and one of the first settlers of this region, died Sunday morning. He was born in Cayuga county, New York, December 18, 1818. He came to Saginaw in 1862 as a ship carpenter, and moved to West Bay City, then Wenona, in 1864. Mr. Raymond invented a rafting pin used 20 years, which greatly facilitated moving logs. His mother was a sister of Lincoln's mother.

Lumber Plant Burned.

Frankfort, Aug. 10.—The Crane Lumber company's sawmill and lumberyards were burned Sunday at South Frankfort. The loss is $85,000, and insurance $61,000. The fire throws 150 men out of employment. The works will not be rebuilt, as the company owns heavy tracts of pine in the south and Manitoba.

SEPARATED FORTY YEARS.

Strange History of William Davis and His Sister, Once Slaves.

Niles, Aug. 11.—Forty years ago William Davis and his sister Mary were slaves in the family of James Matlock, a rich Georgia planter. Just before the war Matlock died and William and Mary were sold to pay the debts of the estate. They were parted and for 40 years neither heard of the other. After the war William took the name of Davis and came north to Niles. He began the dray business, amassing a small fortune. Tuesday he learned that his sister was still alive and was in San Francisco. She sought her brother William that she might leave her fortune of $150,000 to him. When she was sold she was bought by a wealthy woman, who took her to California. When this woman died she had no relatives to leave her money to, and so made Mary her heir. Mary is now 83 years old.

OUTING OF STATE TROOPS.

Encampment of Michigan Militia at Island Lake.

Island Lake, Aug. 11.—Without any question the best encampment of state troops ever held in Michigan opened here Tuesday, and there are over 2,000 troops here. The feature of the camp is the fact that for the first time in the state's history the governor's staff is made up entirely of men from the service. Heretofore politics has governed these appointments, and soldiers have served for years only to see men put over them who did not know which side to hang their swords on. Gov. Pingree, however, appointed every member of his staff from the active service and established a precedent which makes the troops jubilant. Quartermaster General White turned the camp formally over to Brig. Gen. Lyon, who at once issued orders naming it "Camp Pingree."

DISH PROVES FATAL.

Noted Chef Eats Toadstools to Test Their Effects and Dies Soon After.

Grand Rapids, Aug. 9.—Francis Warlop is dead, and it was his curiosity to know how toadstools tasted that killed him. He was chef of the Lakeside club, a favorite place for dinners and summer banquets, and a lady brought him a basket of what she supposed were mushrooms and wanted them cooked for a dinner. Warlop said they were toadstools, and she left the basket at the club. Later in the day Warlop cooked a few and ate them to see how they tasted. He died Saturday morning in spite of all the doctors could do for him. He had been chef in New York, Chicago and other places and was considered an expert on mushrooms.

Klondike Party Broken Up.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 11.—Charles Anderson, D. Webber and Charles Frast came to the city on their way to the Klondike gold fields. They left Ionia, Mich., with $1,000, which was placed in a common purse, with Frast as treasurer. Tuesday Webber and Anderson called at the central station and reported that Frast had disappeared. They asked the police to aid in the search for him.

Saginaw, Aug. 7.—Messrs. Morley and Loring, receivers for the Union Street Railway company, have applied to Judge Snow for an order directing President Snow and Treasurer Woodruff to turn over to the former all the books and papers belonging to the company, including the lease of the bridge at Bristol street. The officers have been cited to appear Saturday morning and show cause why the order should not be issued.

Niles, Aug. 11.—Miss Josie Hubert, a domestic in the employ of Joseph Morris, at Martin, is enjoying a most remarkable sleep. Two weeks ago she left her work in the forenoon on account of drowsiness and in a few moments was in a sound slumber. There have been no signs of awakening since and the physicians have been unable to arouse her. She seems to be enjoying good health.

BUDDING FRUIT TREES.

Most Successfully Done in Moderately Dry Weather.

The usual season for budding is from the first of July until the latter part of September. The season varies, however, with the locality, the proper time being when the tree is in active growth and the bark parts readily from the wood. It is also necessary to delay the work until the buds are well matured, and it can be continued as long as the sap moves. It is not safe to begin too early, as the tree may heal over the incision made by the insertion of the bud, and therefore prevent growth. If left until quite late, imperfect union may be the result from drought or from early frost.

The buds are taken from matured lat-

erals of a thrifty young tree. The twigs from which they are cut should be about the size of a goose quill. In removing a bud from the branch, begin half an inch above it, cut down through the bark and take up a small bit of wood, having the knife come out one inch below the bud. Leave a small part of the leaf stem attached by which to handle it. Buds can be kept for a week or ten days after removal, provided they are packed in a box and surrounded with slightly moistened moss. It would be best not to cut off any wood when the bud is removed, but it is difficult to do this without injury to the root of the bud.

Trees are budded when from one to five years old, preferably at the earlier date. Choose a smooth portion between leaves, make a horizontal incision through the bark and at the upper end one at right angles to it, the two cuts forming a capital T. Raise the bark on each side of the horizontal cut slightly, grasp the bud by the leaf stem left on for that purpose and slip it into this incision. With a strip of bass bark or old muslin bind the bud in place, and the operation is completed. Be sure that the knife used in budding is perfectly sharp, for smooth cuts must always be secured. One of the chief difficulties is to remove the bud properly from the original stem, but this can be accomplished after a little practice.

The budding is most successful in moderately dry weather, as the sap is in the best condition to form a union. When rows of trees run north and south, put the buds on the west side, and when they run east and west put them on the north side. This will enable them to resist the north and west winds, as they are capable of much greater resistance when the pressure is toward the stem than away from it. In very young trees insert the bud about two inches above the ground. If much work is to be done, it is advisable to get a regular budding knife, which will not be expensive, and is almost essential to first-class work.—Orange Judd Farmer.

MENDING BROKEN TREES.

Peculiar Results of Half-Girdling with Wire Bands.

In going through an old orchard where the great gales of the fall of 1894 blew over many trees, cutting and splitting off half the tops of others, I was struck, says J. H. Hale, in the Connecticut Courant, with the amount of abuse a peach tree will stand and yet recover. In clearing up the wreckage some of the split trees were bolted together, others had wire bands put on, and still others had the broken half cut away entirely, the split trunks smoothed up with a drawing knife and the one-sided head shortened in to balance it a little better. Trees treated in the latter method, while having a scarred trunk, with bark only on one side, have full rounded-out heads, as good as though no harm had been done, while the wiring process has girdled many limbs and left pretty poor trees. The bolted trees look fairly well, but none are so good as those that were thoroughly pruned, with no attempt to save broken limbs. This experience covered about 1,000 trees, and in any future breaking or splitting down I shall cut everything away, confident that however lopsided a tree may be two years' new growth will put it in better shape than by any other method. A peculiar result of half-girdling some trees with wire bands, was that the fruit borne on them has been larger and of brighter color, ripening from ten days to two weeks earlier than the same varieties of trees without wire bands. This might be an advantage in some seasons with certain varieties, and if only a portion of a tree were girdled at one time, no serious harm would come of it.

ORCHARD CULTIVATION.

Fruit Must Receive as Good Care as All Other Crops.

Good tillage increases the available food supply of the soil; it also conserves its moisture.

Trees should be made to send their roots deep into the soil, in order to fortify themselves against drought. This is done by draining the soil and by plowing the orchard rather deep.

This deep plowing should begin the very year the trees are set, and it should be continued every spring until the habit of the tree is established.

Moisture is retained in the upper soil by very frequent but shallow tillage, by means of which the surface of the land becomes a mulch for the soil beneath.

Tillage should be begun just as soon as the ground is dry enough in spring.

This tillage should be repeated as often as once in ten days through growing season—from spring until July or August.

Tillage should not exist for the purpose of killing weeds.

Late cultivation may be injurious by inducing a late growth. At all events it can be of small utility when the tree begins to mature and rains become frequent. This season of respite gives the grower the opportunity of raising a green manure, and of adding fertility to his land at trifling expense and with no harm to his trees.

Fall plowing may be advisable for farm crops, but not for orchards.

Only cultivated crops should be allowed in orchards early in the season. Grain and hay should never be grown.

In general level culture is best. The modern cultivators and harrows make such cultivation easy.

Trees, especially apples, are often trained too high, because of difficulty of working close; but modern tools permit the heads to be made low.

Harnesses with no projecting hames nor metal turrets should be used in bearing orchards. Those requiring no whiffletrees are also useful.

Potash is the chief fertilizer for fruit trees, particularly after bearing.

Potash may be had in wood ashes and muriate of potash. An annual application of potash should be made upon bearing orchards. Of the muriate from 500 to 700 pounds to the acre.

Barn manures can be used with good results, particularly on old orchards.

Cultivation may be stopped late in the season, and a crop then be sown upon the land. This crop may serve as a cover or protection to the soil, and as a green manure.—Prof. L. H. Bailey, in Stark Bros.' Orchard Bulletin.

BAGGING GRAPES.

New Method Devised by a North Carolina Grower.

Mr. R. H. Reeves, Buncombe county, N. C., has for several years practiced successfully a new method of bagging grapes, as shown in the accompanying sketch. The bag is made of the cheapest kind of white cotton cloth of two sizes to hold grapes having small or large clusters. Two clusters are put in each bag, which is pulled up over the vine, then turned over and pinned, as shown. Birds cannot pick through such bags; water will not stand in them, nor can wind or driving rain beat them to pieces, as is the case with paper bags. A hundred cloth bags can be "run up" on a sewing machine in half an hour and they will then last for years. There are a few varieties of grapes that do not need bagging; and a few that will not bear this confinement, but most of the grapes now grown can only be raised in perfection by some protection of this sort.—American Agriculturist.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Young orchards often need additional fertility.

Be on the lookout for the leaf-eating caterpillar.

In pruning cut out all weak and crowded branches.

There is little danger of injuring an orchard by manuring.

All pruning cuts made at this time should be covered with oil or wax.

Keep a good lookout for tent caterpillars during the summer.

Weeds and suckers should be kept down between the rows of raspberries and blackberries.

You can crowd fruit trees and plants only at the risk of getting reduced crops of inferior fruit.

The secret of growing extra fine strawberries is to cut off the runners as fast as they appear.

Fruit trees that have been grafted need to be looked after to see that the stock does not make shoots.

With a young orchard at this time it will be a good plan to stop cultivation and mulch carefully, leaving the soil in good tilth.—St. Louis Republic.

No Rakings After Harvests.

Under old methods of harvesting the steel rake was a very important adjunct to secure scattered grain. Yet even in those days good farmers did not find those rakings very valuable, as they were always stained and often nearly ready to sprout by alternate wet and dry weather. The new harvesters leave no rakings, and as what would otherwise be wasted is thus saved for market, it makes a material addition to the crop. We know farmers who used to thresh the rakings separately and grind them for hog feed rather than mix the stained with the marketable grain.

ONE ON A.

Order That He Had Neglected to Obey.

"I had a queer experience with a man on a Mount Auburn cable car this morning," said a Fifth street cigar dealer to a Cincinnati Tribune man. "You know there is a sign in the car which reads: 'Don't put your feet on the seats,' or something to that effect. Probably they were afraid that you would scratch your shoes on the rough seats. Anyhow, the sign's there.

"On the car there was but one other passenger, evidently a friend of the gripman. He was sitting in the seat next to the official, and the two enjoyed a long and animated discussion concerning the system of transfers soon to go into operation over the new extension of the Oak street line. In a careless way I had placed my foot upon the seat, or rather my toe was against the edge, but in no danger of harming the woodwork. The gripman reached over and in an authoritative tone said:

"'You must take yer feet off the seats. See the sign? Them's our orders from headquarters, and we must obey them.'

"'Is that so?' said I. 'Do you obey all the orders that are given out?'

"'Sure,' said he.

"'What's that order up there?' said I.

"'Which?' said he.

"'That one that says: "Don't talk to the gripman." You have been talking to your friend for 15 minutes and never once told him to stop talking to you.'

"He looked dazed for half a minute, and then said:

"'That's one on me, partner. Let's saw wood, and say nothin'.'

"Then I rested my feet in peace."

LUBRICATING A WATCH.

No Other Piece of Machinery Will Run So Long After a Single Oiling.

Very few of the millions of people who carry watches realize to what a powerful extent lubrication is developed, and what an extraordinary number of turns the balance wheel makes with one oiling, says the Philadelphia Record. A Chestnut street watchmaker, whose knowledge of these wonderful pieces of mechanism is not exceeded by any man in this city, has made up an interesting table of comparison to show the perfection of lubrication in a watch.

A watch will run on one oiling from a year to a year and a half. Every minute the balance wheel turns on its axis 450 times, and 27,000 times in an hour. Accepting the year as the time the ordinary watch will run with one oiling, he finds that if the driver of a locomotive was as well oiled as a balance wheel of a watch, it ought to run 60 miles an hour day and night for 648 days, or well on to two years, with one oiling. In that time it would traverse a distance equal to nearly four times the circumference of the earth.

In view of the fact that in reality few locomotives will run one day without reoiling, he maintains that the watchmaker has developed his art to a far greater degree than the locomotive builder has yet been able to reach.

HUGE KITES TO AID SCIENTISTS.

A Princeton University Party to Explore the Famous Mosas Cliffs.

Prof. William Libby, of Princeton university, accompanied by several scientists of repute, has begun an exploration of the famous Mosas cliffs in the United States Indian reservation of New Mexico. It is expected that the task will require many weeks for its completion.

Prof. Libby, who is a geologist and an Arctic explorer, conceived the idea of attempting to investigate this district years ago, but no means offered itself until William J. Eddy, of New York, perfected his kite machines for aerial transportation. Mr. Eddy has built a contrivance formed of four huge kites arranged in a square, four feet apart. These kites can be sent up in the air to a height of 800 feet. The apparatus was sent by express to the scene of action and an expert in their use sent by Mr. Eddy to fly them, under Prof. Libby's directions.

GRANT'S LOG CABIN DECAYING.

Structure Removed from St. Louis to Philadelphia Needs Care.

The old log cabin once owned and occupied by Gen. Grant, which he had brought to Philadelphia from St. Louis 20 years ago and which is now in Fairmount park, is fast decaying. Many of the logs have been rotted by the elements and others have been carried away by relic hunters.

Gen. Grant presented the cabin, with the original furniture in it, to his friend, the late George H. Stuart. It is still the property of the Stuart estate, and neither the city nor the park commissioners can do anything with it.

George H. Stuart, Jr., applied four years ago for permission to remove it from the park, and permission was granted, provided the grounds would be restored to their original condition. Nothing has been done in the matter since. It is possible that the grand army men will take some action toward preserving the cabin.

A Queer Accident.

A curious instance of hairbreadth escapes was recorded with the explosion of a steamship in Monmouthshire dry docks. Two men who were standing on the quay at the time of the shock were lifted bodily off their feet, carried back some distance and hurled to the bottom of the adjacent graving dock, where they found themselves standing side by side uninjured.

Building Their Own Vessels.

Though it costs from 25 to 50 per cent. more to build merchant vessels in France than in England, according to Vicomte d'Avenel, France will build her own ships.

A BACK BLOW.

The Weapon Small,—but None More Certain or Effective.

In these times when backs are lame, when almost every other one we meet has now and then, or all the time, a back that aches or pains—"a weak back," "a bad back," a back that makes their life a misery to bear—and still they go on day by day in pain and suffering. Now 'tis the easiest thing in the world to give this played out back "a blow" that will settle it, and put in its place a new one equal to any. It's just like this: hit at the cause; most backaches come from kidney disorders. Reach the kidneys, start their clogged-up fibres in operation; when this is done you can say good-bye to backache.

Here is a case from Battle Creek: Mr. Josiah M. Stoup lives at 51 Broad Street, he was a member of the Battle Creek police force for many years. As a member of the force he served the city well, but the rough weather he was often subjected to laid the foundation of kidney disorder, which has troubled him very much. Here is what he says about it:

"About three years ago, while on the police force, I contracted from exposure a kidney trouble, which has since given me no end of trouble. The pain was right through my kidneys and across the small of my back; if sitting down and I wanted to stand up, I had to arise very slowly and gently to avoid increasing the pain; I had such tired-out feelings all the time, and I was steadily getting worse. About two months ago, hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box. Their action and effect was most complete, they removed the old aching pains for good. I can now get around as quickly as anybody. Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly as represented."

MANY THINK!

when the Creator said to woman, "In sorrow shalt thou bring forth children," that a curse was pronounced against the human race, but the joy felt by every Mother when she first presses to her heart her babe, proves the contrary.

Danger and suffering lurk in the pathway of the Expectant Mother, and should be avoided, that she may reach the hour when the hope of her heart is to be realized, in full vigor and strength.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations of the Railroads.

Again comes around the story of the Wellington Burt right of way and its purchase. Mr. Burt has long controlled a right of way between Toledo & Detorit. It lies to the eastward of the two existing lines; and now it is said that the reorganized Detroit, Lima & Northern has designs on that right of way, and proposes to have a slice of the trade along the Detroit river. This line would have some advantages. Those interested in the road are also owners of considerable holdings in coal mines along the road, and would be in position to cut into the coal traffic of the two present roads, which nets about $6 a car. With a coal supply and a fair chance for outgoing freight, the new road might have a very tidy business. It is said that surveyers in this interest are already at work. It is certain that engineers are running lines around Ecorse and are not telling for whom they are working, nor for what the survey is being made.—Detroit Journal.

The 6:25 D. & L. N. train carried a lot of people to the circus Saturday night. Among those who went were, Messers Geo. Marsden, T. Holderway, Gus. Cummins, Charles Spencer, Joe Smith, Arthur Harding, Charles Burridge, H. W. Stevens, A. W. Slayton, Earl Slayton, Carl Updike, Wm. Witherell, Fay Anderson, and Wes Bordine Messers and Mesdames Hyde, Hayden, Chase, Freeman. Misses Helen Anderson, Minnie Corey, Edith Corey, Florence Brewer, Abbie Matthews, Jennie Lawton and Floy Freeman. During the day 185 tickets were sold at the D. & L. N. station for Adrian and 40 by C. F. Patterson. The Lake Shore carried a good number and any number drove and wheeled over. You can bet on old Tecumseh when it comes to taking in a circus.

Since the Detroit, Toledo & Milwaukee has gained an entrance into Detroit the Ohio lines have been bringing a presure to bear upon it to break down the arbitary rate from Toledo to Detroit on coal. This arbitary rate was established over twenty years ago, and has been maintained almost without a break up to date. While the Ohio lines have been embroiled in all kinds of wars over coal rates, a minimum has been maintained by the Michigan lines from Toledo to Detroit and Michigan points. During the past few years the Michigan lines have weakened somewhat, but never become entirely demoralized. Now, if the Lima Northern can only be persuaded to cut the rate, the Ohio lines expect to force the Michigan lines to a prorating agreement.—Blade.

The Detroit & Lima Northern road, so we are told, is figuring on a big excursion, to take place at Davis's lake soon, on the occasion of a big excursion that is being arranged for. The officials are planning a collision, to take place with two freight trains. The trains with locomotives attached, will be started two miles apart, at full steam. Then the engineers will jump, leaving the trains to come together somewhere on the road near the excursion. It will be a novel sight, and wake the echoes of the hills around the lake with the exclamation.—Telegram.

And now comes the report from Detroit, the D. & L. N. are having a right-of-way between Toledo and that city, and that the road will have their terminal in Detroit and that it will be directly opposite the Union station. "Yarns" are frequent in railroad circles, but the peculiar thing is that so far the realities about the D. & L. N. have proven even better than the "yarns."

Last Sunday the regular train brought several car loads of excursionists from Lima, Ohio. The grade just south of Adrian was a little to steep for one engine to pull them on the return trip, so Superintendent Haskell came to the rescue with the "goat" engine from Tecumseh, pulling the throttle himself.

By reason of the disorganizing of the old C., J. & M., the forces in the Van Wert shops will be reduced, and some of the old C., J. & M. engines will be laid in at Van Wert. The work of the Michigan division will now be done in the Detroit, Toledo and Milwaukee shops.—Blade.

A corps of surveyors for the Detroit and Lima Northern railroad are at work running a line from Dundee to Detroit. The route is along the north side of the Dundee branch of the Lake Shore road.—Adrian Times.

The trouble between the Gas company and the Detroit & Lima Northern road, over a side track near the city roller mill, has been amicably settled out of court.—Messenger.

Anyone desireing to rent houses should leave word at the HERALD office. Houses are in great demand, in fact there seems to be almost none at all to be found.

Mr Buel, of Tipton, commenced moving the D. & L. N. freight house Wednesday, and the building is now very very near its destination.

Auditor Richmond expects another man in his department today. His offices are much to small for the work.

Five persons bought L. S. & M. S. tickets to Niagara Falls yesterday at this station.

Clinton sent 75 people to the circus at Adrian Saturday over the Lake Shore.

Ollie Hunt was over from Adrian Wednesday and again Thursday.

E. W. Hines A. G. P. A. of the D. & L. N. was here yesterday.

A negro who went swimming in Hillsboro river, near Tampa, Fla., in a mother hubbard gown, was drowned in five feet of water, because the dress entangled his feet.

The Queen's Meissonier.

In the Contemporary Review Mrs. Emily Crawford, writing her reminiscences of Queen Victoria, thus describes the purchase of one of the cleverest little canvases Meissonier ever painted. The occasion of the buying of the picture was a visit to the Palais de l'Industrie in Paris. "Prince Albert singled out as worthy of admiration a horrid little painting that had every quality manipulation could give—'Le Rixie,' or 'The Brawl.' Ruffians were shown engaged in a deadly tussle. The technique was marvelous. Meissonier up to that time a struggling artist, was the painter. The emperor bought the painting behind the queen's back for £1,000, and presented it next day to her husband as a birthday gift. The subject was inauspicious. It would have startled an old Roman in the prince's place." Certainly Prince Albert had good taste, and so had Louis Napoleon, as far as Meissonier is concerned.

Teetotalers Were No Good.

One of the best-known stories in connection with the late Sir Benjamin Ward Richardson's advocacy of temperance tells how he had been on a visit to one of the three or four small towns in England which have no public houses. Although there were 4,000 people there the doctor was nearly starving. One day a young medical man came to Sir Benjamin for advice as to taking the practice, and Sir Benjamin, placing his hands on the young doctor's shoulders, said: "Take my advice and don't. Those wretched teetotalers not only shrink accident, but when wounded heal so fast that there is neither pleasure nor profit after the first dressing."

Awful Result of Storms in Germany.

Berlin, Aug. 9.—The cloudbursts and inundations which have devastated the eastern parts of Germany were the worst which have occurred since 1870. According to local statistics 105 persons were killed in Silesia alone, and in Saxony the casualties will not fall short of 180. The financial losses foot up over 150,000 marks.

Detroit Jockey Club Meeting.

Some of the best stables of race horses in the country are engaged in the stake events of the Detroit Jockey Club and the others now in progress at the Grosse Pointe track. The races end Sep. 24th. Among the important racing events will be the race for the Campau Stake. The Wayne Hotel stake is for two year olds and in it are engaged some of the best youngsters in America. The Street Railway stake is at three quarters of a mile and is designed to give some of the high classed sprinters a chance to settle the question of superiority. The Hotel Cadillac stake is for three year olds and will bring out many of the colts and fillies that are engaged in the Derby and the Campau. The two year olds will have another battle royal in the Hotel Normandie stake which is a handicap and designed to bring the colts and fillies together at an adjustment of weights which will give each an equal chance. The Voight Brewing Co. offer a stake for three year olds and upwards which will bring out a strong field at a mile and a sixteenth. One of the fixed events that is aptly named is the Sensation Stake, a race at a longer distance than any race given except the annual Thornton stake in California. This race will be two and a half miles and will bring out an enthusiastic audience of old timers who may recall this class of racing and prefer it to the short races now so much in vogue.

There will be a large number of hurdle races and steeplechases, the closing event of the meeting being the Dominion steeplechase over the full course for a purse of $1000. There are over 100 different stables represented and the list comprises many of the most celebrated racing establishments in America.

HONEST, BUT CUTE YANKEE.

His Hencoop Straddles the Line Between Arizona and Mexico.

There is a funny case of international honesty down in Arizona, just on the line between that territory and Mexico, says the Washington Times. A Yankee farmer lives there, one Amasa Barrow by name, and it is his business to raise chickens. Chicken feed is cheap in Mexico and chickens bring fine prices in Arizona, but to raise fowls in Mexico and bring them across the boundary, or to buy the feed and bring it across, would involve the payment of a considerable duty, which would eat the profits about as fast as the hens could eat the corn. As for smuggling, that was not to be thought of.

Amasa is a Yankee, and he is so honest that his neighbors say he wouldn't take advantage of a man in a horse trade. But he is also full of Yankee ingenuity, and after deep cogitation he built a long, slim hencoop, one-half of it in Arizona and the other in Mexico. On the line there is a gate. Over the line there are barns containing feed. At feeding time the gate is opened, and the chicken fancier shoos his flock into Mexico, where they eat their meal. Then he shoos them back to the protection of the American flag, where they digest this Mexican grain, lay their eggs and carry on their family affairs. Mr. Barrow saves about 50 per cent on his grain, and makes about that much on his chickens, and if there is any smuggling done it is done by the innocent and irresponsible biddies.

HE HAD A GLASS EYE.

Blunder of a Physician That Caused Much Concern.

Several victims of an accident were taken to the hospital one day lately, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. Two of them were thought to be seriously hurt. A man, who may be called Smith, was badly cut and bruised, and internal injuries were feared. He had a bad heart, and had not regained consciousness when the ambulance reached the hospital. An interne felt his pulse, and, carefully pushing back the lid of one of the eyes, gazed earnestly at it.

"Poor fellow, there's no hope for him," he announced. "The pupil of his eye is greatly dilated, and that's a sure sign where there is heart trouble."

A little later one of Smith's friends called at the hospital and inquired about him. The young physician repeated what he had said before, explaining the method by which he arrived at his conclusion.

"Which eye was it you looked at?" queried the friend.

"The right eye."

"Well, there's a peculiarity about Smith's right eye."

"That so? What is it?" inquired the young doctor, with scientific interest.

"It's a glass eye," said Smith's friend, and the next day Smith was discharged from the hospital.

SPLENDORS OF A PALACE.

Russian Rulers Are Surrounded with More Than Oriental Magnificence.

No western imagination can easily conceive the idea of the splendor with which the Russian rulers are habitually surrounded, says the London Mail. Chairs and tables of solid silver, ivory thrones, ablaze with brilliants and sapphires, walls of amber and floors of mother-of-pearl—these things sound like an eastern fable, but the czar has them all. At Moscow, in the great palace within the sacred Kremlin walls, there are not only crowns and scepters covered with diamonds, but also saddles, stirrups and sets of harness covered with similar gems. There are hundreds of swords, daggers and scimitars, the sheaths of which are literally masses of pearls, rubies and turquoises. Rare tapestries, marvelous china from Sevres and Japan, flawless gems from Asia, priceless antique manuscripts and jeweled book covers—these are a few of the objects scattered about the czar's 12 palaces with a royal prodigality.

Galusha Grow's Eyesight.

Ex-Speaker of the House and Representative Galusha A. Grow, of Pennsylvania, is 73 years old, but he writes without glasses as readily as a boy of 18. The other day he was writing in the secretary's office of the house some autograph passes to the reserved gallery and some one complimented him on his good sight. "It is because I began to wear glasses as soon as I needed them," said the veteran Yankee, for he is a native of Connecticut. "I have at home the ones I wore when I was much younger, and they still fit me. I use them sometimes for reading the newspapers."

Brigandage in Greece.

Brigandage is rampant at the present moment in Greece. This is accounted for by the disbandment of large bodies of volunteers, who, owing to the stagnation of trade and industry, have no employment or means of livelihood and have taken to highway robbery for the purpose of avoiding starvation. Most of them were permitted to retain their arms when dismissed from the service, and are now putting these weapons to private account.

A Short Term.

The shortest period that a member of parliament has represented a constituency is two hours. Lord George Hamilton was reelected as member of the Ealing division of Middlesex, on being appointed secretary of state for India, and the parliament to which he had been admitted was dissolved within two hours after his election.

Uncrowned Rulers.

There are many reigning sovereigns at the present time who have never taken the trouble to be crowned. Among them may be mentioned the German emperor, the king of Italy, the king of Spain, the queen of Holland, the king of Bavaria, the king of Saxony.

Austrian Cities.

Fifty years ago Austria had seven cities with more than 20,000 inhabitants; to-day there are 32.

OLD-TIME SWEETNESS GONE.

Molasses Is Now Made Into Rum, and Brown Sugar Can't Be Bought.

"The old-fashioned molasses is rapidly disappearing as an article of commerce," said a prominent grocer, reports the Eastport (Me.) Sentinel, "and in its place have come a number of sirups, which are more costly, and by no means as satisfactory, especially to the little ones, who delight, as we did when we were young, in having 'lasses on their bread. Most of the molasses goes into the distilleries, where it is made into rum, for which, notwithstanding the efforts of our temperance workers, the demand is constantly on the increase, especially in the New England states and for the export trade. The regular drinker of rum will take no other liquors in its place if he can help it. It seems to reach the spot more directly than any other dram. The darker brown sugars have also disappeared, and they are not likely to return, owing to the methods of boiling and the manufacture. Granulated sugar is of the same composition, as far as the saccharine qualities are concerned, as loaf cut, loaf cube and crushed, and differs only from them in that its crystals do not cohere. This is because it is constantly stirred during the process of crystallization. The lighter brown sugars taste sweeter than the white, for the reason that there is some molasses in them. Housekeepers have difficulty in these days in finding coarse, dark sugars, which are always preferred for use in putting up sweet pickles, making cakes, and similar uses. As they cannot get brown sugar any more, it may be well for them to remember that they can simulate brown sugar by adding a teaspoonful of molasses to each quarter of a pound of the white granulated sugar. This combination does as well in all household receipts that call for brown sugar as the article itself, and, besides, it saves them a great deal of hunting for brown sugar, which, as said before, has disappeared from the market."

INCIDENT OF TROLLEY TRAVEL.

A Front Seat Passenger Sees the Conductor Operate a Safety Switch.

A man who was enjoying the air and the scenery from the front seat of a trolley car in the state of New Jersey, says the New York Sun, saw against one of the rails of the track ahead, when the car had come to a dead stop at a railroad crossing, a tongue that looked something like a switch point. He did not at first realize what this tongue was for, but he saw that the point of it was toward the car, and that it was also clear of the rail, so that if it had been attempted to run the car ahead without first closing the point up against the rail the car would have been run off the track.

The conductor got down and went ahead to the railroad track and looked to the right and left to see that everything was clear and that it was safe to cross. The man sitting on the front seat of the trolley car expected the motorman would take this opportunity to get down and close that switch, or that he would bend over and close it with a car hook, or somehow from the car, but he didn't do anything of the sort; he just stood still. But the conductor bent over and put his hand into a ring, set between the tracks. Lifting this ring he drew up a rod that was connected with the tongue in the trolley track and by this means closed it so that the trolley car could pass over. And thus it was discovered by the traveler on the front seat that the tongue was a safety contrivance, which could be operated only by a man actually standing on the track to be crossed.

DOES HE LOVE YOU?

How to Find the State of a Young Man's Affections.

"It is the easiest thing in the world," said a young lady, according to the Chicago Journal, "to tell if a young man is in love with you. Yet scores of girls, just because they do not think enough of themselves, overlook the manifestations of sincere regard which must always precede a definite confession of love.

"Now, a young man in love, or partly in love, always listens to every word she utters. This is so invariably the rule that a girl, when in company with the young man and others, may address some remark of little interest to no one in particular, and address it in such a manner that it is impossible for it to be heard. If the young man is more than ordinarily fond of the girl he will evince special interest in that remark, and will not rest satisfied till he has discovered what it was.

"Then, again, a young man in love can, when in company with several, more readily converse with them than with the object of his affection. For this reason he often appears to be far more interested in some girl he cares little for than the girl he loves. Some young men also develop a habit of contradicting statements made by the girl they are fond of. This seems an absurd thing to do, but it is a fact that many love affairs take rise out of incessant playful quarrelings."

When the Moon Looked Blue.

"Once in a blue moon" is a saying which appears to be founded on fact. A Scandinavian captain named Salveson, in Chinese waters, was fortunate enough to see a blue moon several years ago, about the time the atmosphere was supposed to be impregnated with the dust of the Krakatoa eruption. The color was like that of a hedge sparrow's egg—a pale, rather greenish blue.

The Value of Electrical Plants.

Few persons realize the enormous amount of money which is invested in electric plants of various sorts. Over $100,000,000 are invested in electrical machinery used in mining. Electrical elevators employ about $15,000,000 more. Electric railways represent about $1,000,000,000. This does not include the money being used in the manufacture of electrical machinery.

SENTENCED TO DIE.

The Murderer of Canovas Will Be Garroted in Prison.

The Court-Martial Decides He Must Be Garroted—Written Statement of the Prisoner Is Read to the Court.

Madrid, Aug. 17.—Michel Angiolli, the anarchist assassin of Premier Canovas del Castillo, who was tried by court-martial Sunday at Vergara, was found guilty and was sentenced to death. Upon hearing the sentence Angiolli turned deathly pale and had to be assisted from the courtroom. Angiolli will be garroted within the prison.

About 200 persons were present at the trial. The vicinity of the prison was almost deserted, the public being apparently indifferent in view of the certainty that the death penalty would follow the court-martial. Angiolli, heavily manacled, sat between two gendarmes and immediately in front of the judges. On a table near by lay his revolver and other materials evidence of the crime. The president of the court read the declarations of eyewitnesses, after which the written statement of the prisoner was read by the clerk of the court.

Angiolli, in the course of the statement, said that he left Foggia in October, 1885, and went to Marseilles and Barcelona, where he took the name of Jose Santos. At first he had no thought of becoming an anarchist, but while at Corininia he began to be interested in anarchist doctrines. He then returned to Marseilles and after his expulsion from that city, he went to Belgium and London, where he spent most of his time in the society of anarchists. When the execution took place at Barcelona on May 4, of five of the anarchists convicted of participation in the bomb outrage at the feast of Corpus Christi, he conceived the idea of assassinating Canovas. Without seeking an accomplice he proceeded to Spain and carried out the resolution. Angiolli went on to say that the passion for vengeance led him to commit the crime. As he was unacquainted with the manufacture of explosives he used the revolver.

Lieut. Gorria, whom the court had assigned as counsel to Angiolli, urged that the prisoner was demented at the time of the shooting, and made a strong appeal to the benevolence of the judges. While his counsel was presenting this plea Angiolli listened in silence. Then he asked permission to speak for himself, which was granted. He thanked Lieut. Gorria for all his efforts and denied that he had any accomplices, or that he was an accomplice of those who committed the bomb throwing outrage at Barcelona, or that he had participated in secret gatherings of anarchists.

When he began to discuss anarchist theories, the president of the court interrupted him and threatened to stop him if he pursued that line of remark or touched upon any matter not connected with the trial.

Angiolli began again, but the president declared the trial ended and ordered the courtroom cleared. After the prisoner had been conducted to his cell, the judges deliberated for an hour and then announced the sentence of the court.

A RACE RIOT.

Bloody Battle Between Whites and Negroes in Arkansas.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 16. — The bloodiest race riot that has occurred in Arkansas in months took place at Palarm station, 30 miles from Little Rock, late Saturday evening. Three men are dead, another fatally wounded and two others badly injured. The dead are: Harrison Kerr, a negro, shot all to pieces; Charles Peters, colored, killed outright; Charles Avery, shot through the heart. The seriously injured are: J. T. Clark, Jr., a telegraph operator, shot through the shoulder, probably fatally; R. D. Owens, white, deputy sheriff of Perry county, shot through the groin, seriously wounded.

SNOW IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

Heating Stoves and Overcoats Found Necessary at Wilmot.

Wilmot, S. D., Aug. 18.—Much damage is being done by a snowstorm which started Saturday noon west of the town in the hills. A terrific wind accompanied it and by five p. m. fully two inches of snow stood on the level and all standing grain and garden stuff was more or less blown down. This is the earliest snowstorm here. The Indians say they have never seen snow in August before. The hills are six miles west of town, and as the wind was blowing from the west the temperature fell rapidly, and by sundown heating stoves were in full blast in Wilmot.

Gen. Miles Not Ready to Return.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Gen. Nelson A. Miles, who went to Europe to witness the Graeco-Turkish war, has notified the secretary of war that he will remain in Europe until fall to witness the autumn maneuvers of the German army. Gen. Miles is now in Russia. He has forwarded two preliminary reports of his observations of the Turkish forces to the war department.

Hicksville, O., Aug. 16. — A terrific storm swept over this city, doing $10,000 damage in this place in unroofing and otherwise injuring buildings. The loss to crops in the surrounding country is great.

CONDITION OF CROPS.

Cool Weather in Many States Causes Corn to Mature Slowly.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—The reports as to the condition of the crops throughout the country and the general effect of the weather on the growth, cultivation and harvest of the same were Tuesday made by the directors of the several climate and crop sections. The reports received at Chicago were as follows:

Michigan—Cool nights and cloudy days have matured corn slowly, but it has gained and continues generally promising. Late potatoes improved by rains, but indicate light yield because damaged by bugs. Oats harvest nearly completed and being well secured. Beans, buckwheat and pastures good. Soil in good shape for fall plowing which is well under way.

Indiana—Few local showers Saturday and Sunday in central and northern portions, but rain is much needed everywhere, especially for corn, which begins to suffer much just when earing. Tobacco advances slowly, threshing good crops of wheat and oats still continues, fall plowing interrupted as ground is too dry.

Illinois—Favorable week for work, but too dry for good growth and rain generally needed; corn mostly doing well, but few fields firing aided by chinch bugs; earliest fields ready to cut September 1 to 5. Broom corn cutting to begin this week in early fields, with fair to good yields; second crop and millet cutting begun with good yield clover seed; threshing being rapidly finished.

Iowa—Week cool and generally dry with sunshine above average. Corn progressing slowly and late fields need much more moisture and warmth to pull through. Some corn firing in southern district. Potatoes and pastures greatly need rain.

Wisconsin—Showers latter part of week benefited corn, potatoes and pastures. Nights cool, but corn made good progress and will mature in four to six weeks. Grain nearly all stacked in southern and middle sections. Some threshing done, yield generally good. Some tobacco injured by hail in Vernon county, elsewhere crop fine.

Justice Field Serves Longest Term on the Supreme Bench.

WILL START THE MINES.

Pennsylvania Operators Decide to Resume Business at Once.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 18.—The operators of the Pennsylvania coal mines held a conference in this city Tuesday, at which 24 firms were represented. It was determined that mines in the Pittsburgh district should be started and operated without further delay on the grounds that the miners have taken a high handed position; that nothing but an unreasonable price for mining will satisfy their demand and that they have been unwilling to treat with the operators on any fair grounds. Also that there is no course left open to the operators at this time. It was determined that all coal sold at the 54 cent basis of mining this year must be mined at that price. No change in the price of mining will be considered until the contracts made at the 54 cent basis of mining are filled and the uiformity agreement is completed. At least three-fourths of the tonnage of the Pittsburgh district was represented at the conference and all are unanimous and agreed to, if necessary, forcibly resume operations with the exception of M. A. Hanna & Co.

AMERICAN BANKERS.

They Meet at Detroit to Discuss Important Topics.

The Country's Leading Financiers Listen to Interesting Addresses from Gov. Pingree and Ex-President Lowry.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 18.—The spacious opera house was filled to overflowing Tuesday morning at the opening of the twenty-third annual convention of the American Bankers' association. The retiring president, Robert J. Lowry, president of the Lowry Banking company of Atlanta, Ga., called the gathering to order promptly at ten o'clock. In its representative character the convention is even more influential than last year's gathering at St. Louis, every section of the country being largely represented by the presidents, cashiers or other officers of national and state banks. On the platform were seated many financiers of international reputation.

Prayer having been offered by Rev. Henry A. Shapman, of the Society of Jesuits, president of Detroit college, the roll of delegations was called and welcoming addresses were in order.

President Lowry's Address.

President Lowry combined his response with his annual address. After making eloquent response to the addresses of welcome, he said:

"One year ago this association in annual convention at St. Louis declared most emphatically that gold was the only safe standard of value and that this great country, ranking as one of the foremost commercial nations of the world, could not join with other nations of lower commercial rank in fixing on a baser metal as the basis on which a sound currency should rest. The recent discoveries of rich deposits of gold throughout the world and renewed energy given to the gold mining interest in Arizona, Colorado, Georgia and other states of the union indicates the approval of our action by Providence. It is a matter of congratulation that after a heated canvass and discussion of nearly a year the people of the country, through the ballot box, fully and completely indorsed your position. The results that were reasonably expected to follow this action of the people are being slowly but surely realized; confidence, the foundation of all commercial prosperity, is being restored.

"This assertion needs no argument to establish its truth; it can be seen and felt by all who are not blinded by prejudice and whose sensibilities are not calloused by ignorance. No one will deny that our country for the last several years has been passing through the deep waters of depression. This we all know and fully realize, yet, while we hope and feel that we are now where the bottom can be touched, and while we earnestly wish to reach the shore of prosperity, we want that prosperity to be based on the firm foundation of confidence. We want nothing sporadic, nothing sectional; no prosperity of a class, but general prosperity; prosperity not only for the banker, but for the merchant, the manufacturer, the farmer, the mechanic and the laborer; in a word, we want prosperity which will reach out and touch every section, industry and business in this great country. To this end, gentlemen, we are working, and this end we will most certainly reach by honest, united and continued effort.

Secretary's Report.

The annual report of the secretary, James R. Branch, of New York city, followed.

The paid up membership, August 10, 1897, was 2,513 against 2,196 in 1896. The annual membership dues paid for the year ending September 1, 1896, to August 10, 1897, were $39,287.90, an increase of $22,047.17.

The roll now embraces:

National banks	1,458
State banks	75
Savings banks	247
Trust companies	182
Private bankers	225
Total	2,513
With combined capital and surplus of	$597,697,758
And deposits of	3,176,832,140
Total	$4,173,439,898

This does not include the capital and deposits of 225 private bankers, who make no statements.

Ex-Governor of Alaska Warns Treasure Seekers to Beware.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 16. — James Sheakley, for a decade a resident of Alaska, four years of which he was the chief executive of the territory, having resigned the governorship July 15 last, in order to make way for President McKinley's appointee, Gov. Brady, says it is simply suicidal for men to attempt to reach Dawson City this year by either the White or Chilkat passes, and that the chances are little or no better for them to arrive at their destination by way of the lower Yukon. "There is lots of gold on the Yukon," Gov. Sheakley continued, "but men should not lose their heads in their efforts to get it. I think a mistake is being made by so many rushing to the Klondike. Miller, Birch and the many other creeks around Circle City."

OUR SMALLER COLLEGES.

In Many Respects They Are Doing Better Work Than the Larger.

There are a few striking facts about the small American college, writes Edward W. Bok in Ladies' Home Journal. One striking fact is that 60 per cent. of the brainiest Americans who have risen to prominence and success are graduates of colleges whose names are scarcely known outside of their own states. It is a fact, also, that during the past ten years the majority of the new and best methods of learning have emanated from the smaller colleges, and have been adopted later by the larger ones. Because a college happens to be unknown 200 miles from the place of its location does not always mean that the college is not worthy of wider repute. The fact cannot be disputed that the most direct teaching, and necessarily the teaching most productive of good results, is being done in the smaller American colleges. The names of these colleges may not be familiar to the majority of people, but that makes them none the less worthy places of learning. The larger colleges are unquestionably good. But there are smaller colleges just as good, and, in some respects, better. Some of the finest educators we have are attached to the faculties of the smaller institutions of learning. Young girls or young men who are being educated at one of the smaller colleges need never feel that the fact of the college being a small one places them at a disadvantage in comparison with the friend or companion who has been sent to a larger and better-known college. It is not the college; it is the student.

NEW YORK'S SKYSCRAPERS.

Sky Line of Gotham Rapidly and Continually Changing.

The sky-line of New York is changing so rapidly that the American traveler who goes abroad can recognize with more certainty the profiles of the foreign cities he approaches than that of his own metropolis as he sees it from the deck of the steamer on his return, says Scribner's. It may be his first visit to Europe; he may know London, Rome and Paris only from the views of them in old prints. But if he has an eye for such things his first glimpse of St. Paul's, St. Peter's, or Notre Dame will tell him to what place he is coming, for all the world knows these pinnacles, has known them for centuries. They are as conspicuous and characteristic in the silhouettes of their cities as they were when they were built.

One of the Dutch governors of New Amsterdam, seeking in spirit some familiar earthly habitation, might find old Amsterdam, for it cuts the same figure in the sky to-day that it did when he left it; but the last dead boss of New York, if by any chance he should get away from where he ought to be, would search the horizon in vain for the face of his city. The features his eye would seek for are there; Old Trinity still stands, its steeple, like the spires of the old cathedrals, uplifted high above the earth; but its solitary prominence is gone. The modern office building has risen higher than the head of the cross and the church has lost its distinction. The enterprise of business has surpassed the aspiration of religion.

A WARLIKE MISSIONARY.

He Didn't Believe in Cursing the Enemy.

That the warrior spirit is not confined to soldiers is clearly shown by a story of a missionary chaplain in Natal, Rev. George Smith. Mr. Smith had been temporarily attached to the army for the period of the campaign, and during the whole of the long and fierce Zulu attack right gallantly he played his part in tending the sick, giving aid to the wounded and comforting the dying.

No one had a greater share of danger than he, and no one, says a writer in Blackwood's Magazine, showed a more soldierly example of treating that danger with calm indifference. Not only did he perform the duties of his office, but as every man who could handle a rifle was sorely needed to defend the parapet, Mr. Smith did essential service by going round the various posts and distributing reserve cartridges.

A good story went round the army in South Africa bearing on the spirit of his professional conduct on one occasion.

One of the men, in the heat and excitement of battle, was cursing his enemies and using most profane language. The chaplain, coming behind, heard his words, and said:

"You should not speak like that, my friend. Don't curse them!" Then, shoving a packet of cartridges into his hand: "Shoot them! shoot them!"

Why He Said His Prayers.

Prayer was the topic in a certain Sunday school class in Syracuse on a recent Sunday. One little boy who had felt very smart during the class hour was asked if he prayed every morning. "I do in vacation time," he answered. "How is it you don't do it the rest of the time?" asked the teacher. "Oh, 'cause when there's school we pray in the school in the mornings." "Well," asked the teacher, again, "don't you think there's more need of praying in the morning than at night?" "No," was the reply, "'cause at night you have awful dreams."

Excellent Reply.

One day, shortly before Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee, one of her royal daughters remarked anxiously: "Mamma, it will tire you to bow for all those hours on jubilee day!" "I have bowed to my people for 60 years," was the reply, "and I shall not let that tire me on jubilee day."

Lady Detectives.

An official of the French detective department says that numbers of ladies well known in Parisian society do not hesitate to offer their services as detectives on condition that they are paid. Some of them, in fact, receive pay varying from $150 to 250 a month.

HEIR TO THE THRONE.

How Princess Victoria Was Told of Her Chance of Succession.

Many interesting stories of the "Girlhood Days of England's Queen" are told in an article in St. Nicholas, written by James Cassidy. Mr. Cassity quotes the following from a letter written to the queen by her former governess, Baroness Lehzen:

I ask your majesty leave to cite some remarkable words of your majesty when only 12 years old, while the regency bill was still in progress. I then said to the duchess of Kent that now for the first time your majesty ought to know your place in the succession. Her royal highness agreed with me, and I put the genealogical table into the historical book. When Dr. Darys (the instructor of the princess and afterwards bishop of Peterborough) was gone, the princess again opened the book, as usual, and, noticing the additional paper, said: "I never saw that before."

"It was not thought necessary you should, princess," I answered.

"I see I am nearer the throne than I thought."

"So it is, madam," I said.

After some moments, the princess resumed: "Now, many a child would boast, but they do not know the difficulty. There is much splendor, but much responsibility."

The princess having lifted up the forefinger of her little hand saying: "I will be good, dear Lehzen, I will be good," I then said: "But your Aunt Adelaide is still young, and may have children; and, of course, they will ascend the throne after their father William IV., and not you, princess."

The princess answered: "And, if that were so, I should never feel disappointed, for I know, by the love Aunt Adelaide bears for me, how fond she is of children."

ANCIENT SUICIDES.

A Heinous Crime, and Indignities Were Heaped Upon the Bodies.

Among the early Greeks suicide was uncommon until they became contaminated by Roman influence, says a writer in Lippincott's. Their religious teaching, unlike that of their Asiatic contemporaries, was strongly opposed to self-destruction. While a pure and manly nation, they regarded it as a heinous crime, and laws existed which heaped indignity upon the body of the suicide. By an Athenian law the corpse was not buried until after sunset, and the hand which had done the deed—presumably the right hand—was cut off and buried separately, as having been a traitor to its owner.

The only suicides ever spoken of with respect, or anything approaching commendation, by the early Greeks, were those of a purely patriotic character, like those of Themistocles and King Codrus, both of whom were considered patriots. The latter, when the Heraclidae invaded Attica, went down disguised among the enemy with the intention of getting slain, and, having picked a quarrel with some soldiers, succeeded in his object. The reason for this act was that the oracle had pronounced that the leader of the conquering army must fall; and the king sacrificed his life in order that his troops might be victorious and his country saved. Themistocles is said to have committed suicide rather than lead the Persians against his own people.

The result was I refused all other medicine and my wife procured a bottle of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine which I took faithfully and am fully restored to health. I write this hoping it may help others, for Dr. Miles' Remedies surely cure.

is only one of the danger signals that nature uses to tell us that our kidneys are not acting right, and that we are in danger of Bright's Disease and other kidney troubles. CURED

I have been troubled with kidney complaint for several years. It showed itself principally in the brickdust of my urine and frequent desire to urinate. Also for the last four or five years I have had headache almost daily. I have used a sample box of Hobbs Sparagus Pills and a part of another box. The effect was very prompt, my urine is clear and healthy now and my headache has entirely disappeared. I must attribute this improvement to Hobbs Pills. J. A. A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

TECUMSEH, MICH., AUGUST 20, 1897.

About four weeks since a subscription paper was circulated about Tecumseh and over $100 subscribed to build a bicycle path from Frank Davidson's corner to Tecumseh. Where has it gone? No work is being done and the thing will soon outlaw.

Years ago when Dan Rice was clown in his own circus, it was a favorite joke of his to grab the elephant by the tail and attempt to use the beast as a club with which to knock down the ring master. The attempts of the News Herald its voluminous editorials on national questions, to mould public opinion is certainly very like the attempt of the clown to swing the elephant by the tail and the effect on the public will be the same as that experienced by the ringmaster.

"Times" are improving in Tecumseh and directly from two causes: First, the coming and setting of the D. & L. N. R. R. second, eighty cent wheat. The laborer of our village is encouraged because he is able to get pay for six days' work each week. The landlord is encouraged because he can rent his property for a sum each month equal to a fair rate of interest. The farmer is encouraged because there is a good profit in wheat at 80 cents per bushel and fortunately he has a good crop to sell. The merchant is encouraged because all these people have a little money to spend and being able to get it they will certainly spend it. The work in the factories does not seem to improve. Of course it is the wrong season of the year to expect anything doing in boxes and the machines but furniture should sell and there should be demand for hollow ware if the Dingley Bill is doing its duty.

James K. Webb.

The subject of this sketch was born in Lockport, N. Y., Feb. 8, 1825, and died in Tecumseh, Mich., Aug. 8, 1897, in his seventy-third year. When he was three months old he came to Michigan with his parents who located in Oakland county. Seven years later his parents removed to Raisin, where he grew to manhood and remained the greater part of his life. He was one of ten children, three of whom still live, Ezekiel D. Webb, of Iowa, Edwin L. Webb, of Adrian, and Mrs. George Ketcham, of Tecumseh. In May, 1855, he was married to Mrs. Aurelia L. Boyden. To them were born four children, of whom are living, Mrs. Cross, of Iowa, and Ralph D. Webb, of Minneapolis. His wife died in December, 1879. In September, 1885, he married Miss Ann Vandergrift, of Adrian, who died eight years ago.

Fifty-five years ago he connected himself with the Methodist church and has since lived a consistent Christian life.

His last weeks were spent with his sister, Mrs. Ketcham, here in Tecumseh. During his illness he was attended by his son who with others did all that was possible to relieve his suffering, which was intense but borne without a murmur. His funeral was conducted by Rev. J. P. Varner and his remains buried at Raisin.

Dr. North is now local surgeon for the D. & L. N.

J. B. Townsend, representing the Detroit & Lima Northern Railroad Co., says that, in addition to adding a new line to Toledo, the Detroit & Lima Northern, by its purchase of the Detroit, Toledo & Milwaukee road, has secured a new line to Milwaukee, and that car ferries and other boats are being arranged for, so that it will be possible with the new system to bring Milwaukee and the northwest to Detroit's very doors. "The strong support given this system by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway means a heavy increase of export tonnage to this city, to be here again redistributed," he says. "While the people of Detroit may well be delighted with this acquisition, they should not forget that our line will also provide the first all-rail coal route, under one management, terminating here. In addition to our securing a direct communication with the Jackson coal fields of Ohio, we get, through the Norfolk & Western, with which our road connects, the products of West Virginia and the south without the delays and expense met when coming via the Toledo and Columbus terminals."—Detroit Evening News.

Van Wert, O., Aug. 17.—Sunday afternoon many of the officials and employes of the old C. J. & M. railroad met at the office of Supt. Flanders in this city. The gathering, which was a pleasing one, consisted of agents along the line, dispatchers, clerks, conductors, baggagemen, brakemen and engineers, all, however united in the presentation of mementoes expressive of their love and esteem for Supt. W. I. Backus, so long in charge of the Ohio division of the system. Supt. Flanders, in behalf of Mr. Backus' well-wishers and admirers, addressed him in a happy manner. Before Supt. Flanders had completed his remarks Mr. Backus was informed that a handsome valise full of presents were from his co-workers and employes, as a material expression of their appreciation of his worth. It was a complete surprise to Supt. Backus and he was hardly able to make a reply. However, he managed to gather enough words together to thank his well-wishers.—Blade.

A lengthy dispatch from Chicago states that a new Chicago-Toledo line will be formed by the Grand Trunk and Detroit, Toledo & Milwaukee railroads. The Grand Trunk is to be used from Chicago to Battle Creek and the D., T. & M. from Battle Creek to Toledo. When it is taken into consideration that this route will be from fifty to sixty miles longer than the Lake Shore it would appear that, so far as passenger business is concerned, it is impractical. Railroad officials here laugh at the suggestion. Freight was carried over this route when it was a part of the C., J. & M.—Toledo Blade. Suppose the distance is 50 miles greater than that of the Lake Shore. The Grand Trunk route from Chicago to Detroit is fully this much greater than that of the Michigan Central or the Wabash, yet it has been doing a good passenger business between these two cities for years. Men who know state that such a service is not an impossibility.

For completeness of arrangements, and successful execution, the union Sunday School excursion to Detroit and Belle Isle Tuesday, eclipsed anything of the kind in Tecumseh's history. Notwithstanding the number going, far exceeded the highest expectations, yet every thing that the Detroit & Lima Northern Company could do for their confort was done and to the perfect satisfaction of all. Over 900 persons were on board the train all of whom have only the highest praise for the railway officials and Joseph H. Smith who were unremitting in their attentions. All had a delightful time.

The new time table on the D., T. & M. road will go into effect next Sunday and it is thought to be arranged especially for the convenience of everybody. Trains will leave Tecumseh for Detroit at 9:58 a. m. and 2:43 p. m. For Toledo at 9:58 a.m., 2:43 and 7:00 p. m. Trains will arrive from Detroit at 10:30 a. m. and 6:22 p. m. From Toledo at 8:50 a. m., 2:43 and 6:22 p. m. It will be noticed that passengers from the west over the D., T. & M. and south over the D. & L. N. can go to either Toledo or Detroit without delay, and change in the same manner returning.

In response to the inquiry of last week a number of people who own places for rent have left descriptions of the property at the HERALD office. Any one desiring to rent a house or rooms can learn particulars by calling at this office.

The fast Lake Shore mail from the west, due in Adrian at 1:38 p. m., came over the branch via Hillsdale and Manchester yesterday, arriving in Tecumseh at 2:47. There was a freight wreck between Adrian and Hillsdale.

Co. C at Camp Pingree.

Co. C, 1st Inf., M. N. G., left Tecumseh Tuesday, Aug. 10, via the L. S. & M. S., T. & A. A., and D. G. & W. Rys. and arrived safely at Island Lake about 1:30 p. m. After being mustered in they marched to their quarter and broke ranks. The baggage, which had been sent the day previous in charge of a squad of men under the command of Sergt. Gray, was distributed in the different tents, and the boys proceeded to make themselves at home for the week.

As usual Co. C made a good record for themselves, thanks to the efficiency of her officers. Only two men out of the fifty-two were sent to the hospital. Private Nichols was overcome one day while on battalion drill and Corporal Kennedy was hit by a ball Tuesday afternoon while playing on the Company street. His case proved most serious, he being confined to the hospital for two days. As soon as he was able to walk he returned to his company quarters. Though unable to do any camp duty he remained till they broke camp and returned home with his company, apparently improving.

The camp was so similar to previous ones in a general way that a detailed account of every day's doings perhaps would not be especially interesting to the majority of readers of this paper, so we will only mention a few little incidents to show how the boys amused themselves when released from the arduous duties of the field. Friday night while Co. C was doing guard duty some facetious individual tacked signs on all the tents, many of which were considered very appropriate.

When the boys were relieved from duty next morning they found on tent No. 1, which sheltered Sergts. Hastings and Hughes, the legend, "Health Office."

Tent No. 2, containing the "boy orator," Corp Geo Rubadeau, the sweet tenor, Edgar Coddington, Clarence, alias "Suse" Avery, the hypnotist, "Jock" Riley, and Corp. Kennedy, was labeled "The Helping Hand Society."

Tent No. 3 had the sign, "Park Theatre," on its door. The occupants were Sergt. "Lady" Gray with his little fan, Feeple, the artist, who supplied the mess with fish from the lake, Darius Green with his Klondyke air ship, Musician Jenkins, the female impersonator, G. V. Schneider, comedian, and J. Hoy, stage manager.

Tent No. 4, bearing the sign, "P. H. Club," sheltered P. H. Lowry and Q. M. Jno. Hazlett.

Tent No. 5, billed "Home for the Feeble Minded," had as inmates, Sergt. "Tunk" Heesen, Corporals Bond and Gillen and Privates Doolittle and Keusch.

Tent No. 6 was labeled "Art Palace" and the men who slept there were Corp. Andrus, Privates VanVleet, Pattison, McClure and Titus.

Tent No. 7 was marked "Farmers' Institute and covered Sergt. VanWinkle and Privates Pagel, Smith and Van Winkle.

Tent No. 8 bore the sign, "Woman's Relief Corps" and the men inside were Corporals Stevenson and Winsley and Privates Bachman and McClaughy.

Tent No. 9 had the sign, "Wonderland," swung out in front. Inside you could see as freaks, Blesing, Maynard, Chase and Carson.

Tent No. 10 was honored with the sign, "Y. M. C. A. Rooms." Within could be found Privates Montgomery, Hodges, Lowry and Musician Gray.

Tent No. 11 was marked "Livingston County Asylum" and the inmates were Corp. Hall, Privates Prichard, Nichols and Lowry.

Tent No. 12 had the sign, "House of Correction," and contained Privates Brazee, Winsley, Burleson and Awls.

The mess tent was marked "Del Monico Cafe. Meals at all hours."

BLANK CARTRIDGES.

Gen. F. B. Wood, W. C. Burrridge and Martin Zimmerman were guests of Capt. Hayden.

In tent No. 5 you were welcome to step in and play a friendly game of dominoes or tiddley-winks.

The boys in tent 2 and 3 were the best of neighbors and could often be seen playing in each other's yards and sliding down one another's cellar doors.

Sunday, "Visitors' Day," Co. C. entertained 120 at dinner and Quartermaster Hazlett and his assistants had their hands full.

The company was complimented by the officers of the regiment on being the first company to put up their shelter tents.

Rains were quite frequent during camp but not heavy enough to interfere with routine duty, and the absence of dust was the most pleasant feature of camp.

Monday noon Co. C arrived home, well pleased with Camp Pingree and their week's work.

"I have never had a day's sickness in my life," said a middle-aged man the other day. "What a confort it would be," sighs some poor invalid, "to be in his place for a year or two." - - - GREETING. - - -

To the Citizens of Tecumseh add Vicinity:

It having become the "correct thing" for ladies of all classes to be proficient in the art of dressing becomingly, we come to you with one of the best systems of Tailoring for ladies now in use, known as "Works' Garment Cutter," of St. Louis Mo. This system is now used successfully in New York, Chicago, St. Louis and many other leading cities of this country and Europe. By it, any garment worn by ladies, children and men, may be safely produced. It will enable mothers, wives and daughters to save many times its cost each year. Any lady intending to follow dressmaking as a business, will find it practical, reliable and easy to learn.

It is throughly a "Tailors' System." We use no models, but make by the square, tape and scales. The garment is cut by actual measurements and proven by balance measures. We believe we are justified in asking fathers and mothers if it is not reasonable to teach your daughters a trade that will enable them to dress becomingly at a greatly reduced cost.

This art, thoroughly learned, will prove of great benefit during life. If should adversity take from them their available means of living, this knowledge will prove a great boon. Any bright girl of 15 can learn the art and become as proficient as her elders, and the practice in construction will develop her as she becomes older thus rendering her independent. We invite all ladies of the city and vicinity to call at any time, and, except during school hours, our teachers will be pleased to explain the method in detail. We cordially invite all dress makers to call, trusting they will be the gainer and not the loser thereby.

The lessons will be of two hours duration at each session, beginning at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m. daily, and 7 p. m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Students from a distance may have free use of the school room for practice during their stay. The school will be graded and students graduated with a diploma. There will be a primary, intermediate and senior class, thus enabling students to commence at any time. The length of time required to complete the course will depend upon the aptitude of the student.

This school is located in the Tindall property on the corner of Chicago and Pottawatamie streets, Tecumseh, Mich., under the management of Mrs. E. E. Kinney, of Adrian, Mich.

Having had 28 years' experience in dress making, I am pleased to say to my friends and neighbors that I have examined the system taught in the school at my home, and am willing to acknowledge that it far surpasses any system that I have ever examined. Chief among the many features are its measurements. These are simple, and the measures employed prove unerringly the correctness of the original measures. I believe the statements made in this letter can and will be fully carried out, and that any person availing themselves of this opportunity will have no cause to regret it.

Good Fortune to Good People.

Chicago, Special Telegram, Aug. 16th. Letters of administration were issued in the probate court today in the estate of Allen Gregory of Englewood. The estate is valued at $500,000, of which $3000,000 is personal property. Mr. Gregory left no will and no direct descendants, and the heirs are Mrs. Abbie Jane North, a sister, and the children and grandchildren of five other brothers and sisters, who are dead. Mrs. North is 73 years old and lives at Tecumseh, Mich.—Detroit Tribune.

Dr. North was seen by a HERALD representative and state that in the main this report is true. The amount is exagerated as is usual with all reports that come from Chicago. He also states that the property is in such shape that it may take a long time before any thing is realized. The Doctor did not seem to relish the publicity of the affair, but every one in Tecumseh rejoices in the good fortune of his mother, Mrs. North.

GIRL IN THE CALICO GOWN.

When it's noon on the hills
And we're stretched in the shade;
Where the salt meadows yield
To the cool of the glade,
Where the spring bubbles sweet,
And the thrush whistles lithe,
And there's rest from the heat
And the whirr of the scythe,
She comes with the dinner-pail swinging,
A queen with a sunbonnet crown,
And the thrush takes his note from her singing—
The girl in the calico gown.

No,
Hardly that blows
And the half of her grace,
Is the bud of the rose
And the blue of her face,
Is the blue of her eye
Is the blue of the deep,
When the wind kisses the sky
And the waves are asleep.
Her foot is as light, on the grasses,
As a leaf that the breeze flutters down,
And the blossoms bow low as she passes—
The girl in the calico gown.

And she scarce throws a glance
At the spot where I stand,
For her "pa" looks askance
At the love of a "hand;"
But I know that to-night
She will come where I wait,
Twixt the dark and the light
At the old garden gate.
And there, with the lilacs above her
My sweet, with the tresses of brown,
Will ask me again if I love her—
The girl in the calico gown.

A HAZARDOUS MISSION.

BY CHAS. D. LESLIE.

WHEN Pepworth Tring, the well-known South African millionaire, sent for me, and after inquiring if I was at liberty for a few weeks, said that he was about to commission me to take a small map to his Johannesburg representative, I was rather surprised that he should go to the expense of a special messenger when the postal service was available.

"It seems a very simple affair at first glance. "In I said.

But the post is not to be trusted, an unscrupulous enemy will strain every nerve to defeat my intention."

My present employer, a well-known Kimberley man, who had lately turned his attention to the Witwatersraudt gold mines, was middle-aged, about 50, but looked more, owing to the hard and adventurous life he had led. His tanned, weather-beaten face appeared commonplace enough, but behind the small steady gray eyes lay a quick brain and unerring judgment. Few, indeed, could boast with any degree of truth of ever having got the better of Pepworth Tring. As a judge of diamonds also he had barely an equal. All this I knew from common hearsay.

"You anticipate there will be an attempt to rob me during the journey?"

"I am quite sure of it. The matter on the face of it is simple enough. This map," (he held up a small piece of parchment a few square inches in size—it appeared to represent the course of a river, some red crosses were marked on one portion, and some lines of writing ran along the bottom)—"has to be given to Mr. Howard, of Fox street, Johannesburg. There your mission ends. But whether you will be able to accomplish it is another matter. Gibson, my old partner, is determined to obtain possesion of this map by some means; he is rich, unscrupulous, and can command the services of men even more unscrupulous than himself. This is the reason I do not trust the post. The corruption prevalent among all Boer officials extends to the post office; my letters have been opened. He has creatures there in his employ. You must trust no one, and conceal the paper in such a manner that it cannot be found."

"But while on board ship it would surely be better to entrust it to the captain or purser?"

"That would be risky, and only postpone their attack on you. If you received the map back safely you would without doubt be robbed of it between Capetown and Johannesburg. No; when the boat reaches Capetown, they must be under the impression that you are not the bearer."

"When am I to leave London?"

"The 'Roman' leaves the docks tomorrow and Plymouth on Saturday. Your berth is booked; Gibson is also a passenger, and several of his following. But perhaps I had better explain why this map is so important.

"Gibson, like myself, is an old Kimberley man. We both did very well there, and lately, like me, he has been dealing in Transvaal mining property. We have often gone partners in various undertakings. In the autumn of '94, being then in Johannesburg—about six months ago—and feeling the want of a holiday, I determined to go on a shooting expedition through the Transvaal towards the sea. Accompanied by two Zulus, I carried out my intention, and after some weeks traveling we found ourselves in the low country bordering on Switzerland. Here quite by chance I made a remarkable discovery. In the dried-up channel of what had been a river I came upon traces of diamonds. The find to my eyes was most promising; but before I could pursue my investigations further, one of my Zulus, dispatched to get food from a neighboring kraal, came hot-foot with the news that the Swazis were up in arms. Irritated by some act of Boer oppression, they seemed inclined to wreak their vengeance on me, and so we fled forthwith for our very lives. Before leaving, I drew up a plan of the place, so that it could be found again.

"After various adventures I reached Durban, and took ship for England. Meeting Gibson in London, I acquainted him in general terms with my discovery, stating that in the course of my journeying I had found diamonds. I had intended to take him into partnership in this affair, but the knowledge which I gained immediately afterwards that he had swindled me in the matter of some gold mines changed my purpose, and I broke with him for good.

"Now the value of my find is problematical. Diamonds have not yet been found in paying quantity in the Transvaal. This place may be a second Kimberley, and shake the De Beers monopoly. It is quite possible. Therefore I want the ground pegged out in the usual way, and to register myself as the owner; but if Gibson could get hold of the map he would forestall me. It is not convenient for me to go myself just now, as I have some important business in hand; so not to delay obtaining the claims, I have ordered Howard to peg them out and register in my name, but he can do nothing until he has the particulars contained in this. Now, do you understand?"

"Yes; but how far is Gibson cognizant of your plans?"

"He has found out that I intend sending the map immediately to Johannesburg. This office is watched; you will be shadowed on leaving, and when they find that you are a passenger by the 'Roman,' they will conclude that you are my messenger. It will be your business to nullify that belief."

"I see."

"You had better pretend to be a new submanager sent out by me to represent my interests in Johannesburg. Now, can you, do you think, conceal the map in such a way that these thieves cannot get hold of it?"

I sat silent a few moments thinking over the situation, then my eyes strayed to some books lying on the table between us. I took up one. It was "Lock on Gold," a standard work.

"I will do my best," I said at length.

"Trust no one," concluded my employer, giving me money for my journey and the boat ticket. "Rely on yourself alone. Put the map in your breast-pocket for the present, but find a surer hiding place." I had reduced my baggage to as small a compass as possible. It consisted of two small portmanteaus which would go under my bunk, some wraps, and a few novels, with "Lock on Gold," the latter obtained from my employer to sustain my character as a mining manager, and with its covers encased in gray calico. I had joined the ship at the docks to avoid the crash at Waterloo, and to see the mouth of the Thames. There were two other men in my cabin, for the ship was full, every berth being taken, but they had not yet come on board, so I arranged my belongings at leisure, and then went on deck as we left the dock to smoke and view the river and the miles of wharves and shipping as we slowly and majestically steamed out to sea. The ship was nearly empty, and I passed a quiet 24 hours anticipating the coming duel which was to take place, and wondering if the simple scheme would be successful.

The mailbags and passengers came on board at Plymouth, and a scene of animation and confusion followed; but a rough sea and headwind claimed the exuberance of many of the company, and the dinner tables in the saloon that evening showed an abundance of empty seats. Both my cabin mates succumbed, and I left them white and groaning. Fortunately, I was a good sailor; and, having enjoyed my dinner, later in the evening found myself in the smoking-room simultaneously of Gibson's cigars, and engaged in chat with that worthy, who was most friendly and evinced some curiosity about myself.

I told my tale, which he accepted with perhaps suspicious readiness.

"Employed by Tring, are you? Peppery fellow; I know him well. We used to be friends; now he hates me like poison."

He introduced me to his friends, Spellman, Dunbarton and Vandermit, who severally expressed themselves delighted to make my acquaintance.

The first two or three days my adversaries only skirmished, trying to pump me, and dropped broad hints as to the advantages which would follow if I joined them—hints which I ignored.

As, however, they felt pretty sure that I was the bearer of the coveted map, my portmanteaus and my spare clothes were searched more than once when I was absent from my cabin. It was Spellman who was toled off for this portion of the quest; finding I was not very cordial towards him, he struck up a friendship with one of my cabin mates, which gave him an excuse for entering at all hours. I did not think it advisable to enlighten the latter, as my attitude was to blandly ignore my adversaries' behavior.

Spellman's researches proving of no avail, the great endeavor to discover if I had the paper took place about a week after Madeira was passed. I was playing a whist tournament, and noticed that Dunbarton and Vandermit were playing nap with the two men who shared my cabin. I guessed that Spellman was making a thorough search, and as soon as I was through I hurried there.

It had indeed been thorough. Every article had been taken out of the portmanteaus and examined, and the portmanteaus themselves cut and hacked in search of a secret hiding place. Everything had been scrutinized; even the gray calico cover pulled off "Lock" to make sure that nothing was between it and the binding. Nor was this all, for while I surveyed the wreck, I became conscious of an overpowering feeling of drowsiness, and knowledge came to me that I had been drugged. Too late I remembered having just accepted a drink from Gibson; but I had only sense enough left to tumble into my bunk before falling into a heavy sleep.

They no doubt searched me to the skin that night, for I slept as the dead; but though I woke next morning with a bad headache, I felt well pleased, for no result had awarded their toil. Of course I made a fuss as to the conduct of some mysterious thieves, who had not even spared the lining of my boots, and certain inquiries were instituted which came to nothing. I innocently complained to Gibson as to the bad quality of his whisky, and there apparently the matter ended, for I was molested no more.

I felt that I had won, as I saw by my enemies' manner that they had decided they were mistaken in imagining I had the map; but great cautiousness was still necessary till the journey's end. Never crow before you are out of the wood is an excellent piece of advice. Still, feeling that the worst was over, a sense of calm possessed me as I lounged in my Medeira chair, under the shade of the awning, for the tropical sun was very sultry, and made iced drinks a necessity instead of a luxury.

Gibson continued good friends with me, and often came and chatted as I languidly studied "Lock on Gold" in my deck chair. As a practical mineralogist, he pointed out the best parts to study, and I imbued much information valuable enough had I designed to turn miner. He was an amusing man, and his creed simple enough—"Get money, honestly if you can; but get money." A more efficient auctioneer for selling the numbers of the ship's run in the daily sweeps it would be impossible to find, and I enjoyed the privilege of acting auctioneer's clerk with "Lock" for a desk on my knee.

It was four o'clock on a Tuesday afternoon when we reached Capetown, and Gibson managed to get away by that evening's train, leaving two of his followers to bring his luggage on the next day.

The third morning after landing found me in Fox street, Johannesburg, seeking Howard's office. I had just seen the name on the window—"Gibson." I said, "where are you ascended the said, "where are you but to now?"

The time for caution was passed, victory was mine, and I could safely enjoy my triumph. I surveyed the baffled financier with a smile of infinite satisfaction, and replied:

"I am the bearer of a certain document from Mr. Tring to Mr. Howard."

From the expression on my face and the accent on my words, he read the truth, and knew that I had baffled him, and his face changed. Words failed him, for he was taken quite by surprise, and bewilderment rendered him speechless.

Enjoying his discomfiture a few seconds, I turned and went, leaving him on the pavement below, the most unhappy man in Johannesburg.

Having entered the outer office and given my name to the clerk, I was speedily shown into Mr. Howard's private room. He greeted me warmly, and in the same breath inquired if I had been successful.

I said I had.

"That's good news. I've just got my mail and heard of your coming. Look—you see the envelope has been tampered with! You are sure Gibson hasn't set eyes on the map?"

"Absolutely," I replied, then gave him a short account of the efforts made to secure it.

"Ay, ay, they wouldn't stick at much; you're fortunate to get here with a whole skin. But where is it after all?"

In answer I produced "Lock on Gold," and, taking my penknife, cut off the gray calico cover, which I had put on again after it had been pulled off. Then inserting the point into the cover itself I cut it open. There, snugly concealed, lay the precious map. I had, before leaving London, cut the cover open with a sharp knife, and, placing the map in between, glued up the edges with great care. Being unable to absolutely conceal the fact that the cover had been cut, I had put the calico cover over, and when it had been torn off by the eager searcher he had never noticed that the binding itself had been cut.

Thus, safely and securely, the map had traveled, unseen by any eye, untouched by any hand, and now, having placed it in the possession of Mr. Howard, my mission as a special envoy was over.

With the knowledge gained by the map, Howard took steps which very shortly made the land where Pepworth Tring found diamonds the property of that worthy, and I know no more, as nothing further has been heard of the discovery—no company has been publicly formed to work it. But I have a strong idea that the find turned up trumps, and that the reason of the silence is that it is too good a thing for the public to be admitted.—Paterson's Magazine.

Couldn't Dodge Courting.

About 20 years since the writer knew a young man who fell deeply in love with a red-cheeked lassie, who worked in the same mill. But though she was the subject of his nightly dreams and daily thoughts, he was so bashful he could not, or dared not, show his hand. At last, driven to desperation, he put up the banns of marriage at the village church.

On the following morning the unwooed bride-elect went to the young man and demanded an explanation. Thus cornered, he confessed the truth, adding: "If tha will not ha' me, I con gi' backword."

"Whod did tha pay?" asked the practical girl.

"Four an' sixpence."

"Well, tha corn'd get it back, and it's no use losin' four an' sixpence; bu' tha knows tha'll ha' to come a coartin' all't same."

And he did.—London Telegraph.

—A new penholder forcibly ejects the pen from the holder by pressing with the thumb on a corrugated cam pivoted in the under side of the holder to turn in as the pen is placed in position and clamp it fast, the action of pressing the thumb toward the opposite end forcing the pen out with the cam.

ROGERS STILL LIVES.

Farmer Breaks His Back Seven Weeks Ago, but Cheats Death.

Niles, Aug. 18.—Rutherford Rogers, a wealthy farmer residing near Vermontville, seven weeks ago had his back broken, and he still lives. The cause of the injury was a heavy timber falling upon his shoulders. Shortly after the accident Rogers was taken to Ann Arbor, where an operation was performed, which revealed the fact that the spinal cord was severed. It was then announced that there was no hope of recovery. Nevertheless he stood the journey to his home and after seven weeks he is still alive and full of courage and hope. He has no control of his limbs below his chest. His appetite is good and he eats heartily. Rogers' case is probably the only one of the kind that has come to the attention of physicians. When a man with a broken back has lived seven weeks doctors cannot account for it, and they think it wonderful that he lived an hour after receiving the injury.

SUES FOR MILLIONS.

Alexis M. Lay Plaintiff in a Contest for Fabulous Wealth.

Detroit, Aug. 18.—Alexis M. Lay is a plaintiff in the biggest suit of the century, involving some $30,000,000. The defendants are the Ibex Mining company and a number of mine owners. In 1878 the Uncle Sam mine was located near Leadville. It was sold to Lay and Ballou, who formed a combine. The Uncle Sam looked poor and in 1890 was leased for three years to the Ibex company. It is claimed that there is a pocket fabulously rich, $10,000,000 now being in sight, although several times that many millions [illegible] the mine two and said that over $6,000,000 had been taken out up to that time. Lay charges the Ibex company with fraud and is seeking to regain possession.

DESPERATE PLAN OF ESCAPE.

Bons of Crystal Falls Sets Fire to His Jail Bed—Is Rescued.

Crystal Falls, Aug. 16.—Peter Bons, the man who confessed to the murder of Pearl Morrison, and who is still in jail awaiting the next session of the circuit court, set fire to the mattress and bedclothing in his cell at the jail Sunday night and then shouted for assistance. His cries attracted attention. It was some time before the jail could be opened. The sheriff called on Bons as soon as he entered, but received no reply, and it was thought he was suffocated. A stream of water was turned on soon afterward, when Bons was found to be very much alive. His scheme evidently was to escape when the sheriff opened the steel cage. Bons will sleep henceforth on the steel floor of his cell.

WANTS MONEY BACK.

Her with His Thousands.

Pontiac, Aug. 13.—James Casey and wife, of Birmingham, were arraigned before Judge Safford on the charge of embezzling from John Arthur, of Farmington and released on $5,000 bail. Year ago Arthur proposed to Mrs. Casey a full cousin, but was rejected. Arthur never married. Influenced by Mrs. Casey, Arthur turned over to her custody at different times $13,000 and has drawn back $3,000. When he asked for more, he says, Mrs. Casey refused him, claiming that he had made her an absolute gift of the money.

Her canary bird was the only thing left on the south wall which did not fall, and was rescued alive. No one injured. The loss will probably fall on the owner of the block, instead of the contractors who excavated for the new block.

FARM AND GARDEN.

CIRCULAR DRIVEWAY.

The One Here Pictured Has a Number of Advantages.

It ought to be possible to drive into and out of a farm yard, or a village lot, without turning the wagon. This can only be done by having the driveway in the form of a circle or having a circle or oval in some part of it. The cut gives a plan for a circular drive that has a number of advantages. One can drive in from the highway and make an easy turn back to the street again. The circle within the road affords a fine opportunity for the effective grouping of shrubs and foliage plants. There are also excellent opportunities afforded on the outside of the driveway for effective planting of trees and shrubs. A side drive, curving about the house to the stable, can be added if needed.—Orange Judd Farmer.

THE HUNTING NUISANCE.

Farmers Should Make a United Effort to Stop It.

As soon as harvest is over the farms of the state, especially those near towns, will be overrun by hunters and their dogs, says Wallace's Farmer. These fellows are out for sport and have no hesitation in leaving gates open and shooting wherever the bird flies without reference to the farmer's cattle, horses or sheep, and if prairie chicken and quail are not plenty, have no hesitation in practicing on the birds that are the farmer's friends. They have no business on the farm, no right to set a foot on it without the farmer's permission, and may be prosecuted for trespass or damage to stock if the farmer so elects.

His election, however, does him no good. Many of them are judgment proof, and the expenses of a lawsuit would be more than any damage that could be secured. The right thing to do is to post notices: "Hunting not permitted on this farm," and then if they insisted on doing it, order them off and enforce the order if necessary at the point of a gun. One of the most provoking things on the farm is to have an invasion of hunters, involving as it does loss or damage to the live stock. The game they shoot are the friends of the farmer anyhow, and they are his by right if he wishes to do a little shooting himself.

When the country was a great grain field with little or no stock and game abundant, no damage was done by the hunters. It is different now. In other countries the farmer sells the right to shoot on his place. Real sportsmen in the eastern cities are already buying this right from farmers, or a neighborhood of farmers, going to the expense of importing game birds and stocking the farm for the benefit of enjoying the sport of shooting them in the fall. This is the honorable way of sport, and farmers should insist that it be followed in the west as well as in the east.

Cultivating After Rains.

Much the best time to cultivate is after a rainfall which has packed the surface soil, provided time enough has elapsed for the surface to dry. Heavy soils are rich in mineral plant food, and this as the water evaporates is left on the surface as a crust which effectually excludes light and air. When this crust is turned under it is dissolved by the moisture and makes a rich food for plants. Besides, the cultivation opens the soil to receive air, thus drying the soil and turning the air itself into moisture. This enormously increases available plant food in the soil. Besides, the loose soil on the surface which the cultivator leaves prevents too rapid evaporation, and thus makes the soil both warmer and moister than it would be if uncultivated.

Turnip Flavor in Milk.

When cows accidentally get into a turnip patch, or other vegetables that impart a bad flavor to the milk, it can be made as good as ever for cream and butter making if it is heated to a temperature of 140 degrees. This is best done by placing the vessel in water which is quickly brought to a slightly higher temperature. All the odor passes off at this temperature, as it is very volatile. In cooling, the cream will rise to the surface. It also makes the butter come more quickly than from milk not heated.

Level Culture of Potatoes.

Almost all practical growers now agree that the level culture of potatoes brings the largest crop. This is especially true if the season be dry, as of late years it almost always is. If the ground is cultivated often enough no weeds can appear above the surface. That will make it easy to keep the crop free of weeds without ever needing to cultivate more than an inch below the surface. This is the best way to subdue the perennial weeds, quack grass and Canada thistles, as well as the annual weeds.

GERMS IN THE SOIL.

They Preserve Their Vitality and Often Spread Disease.

A writer in the Journal of the Franklin institute calls attention again to the danger of disease germs in soils. He says:

It has been observed in France that, in localities where animals are interred which have died of charbon, the germs of this infectious malady persist in the soils for many years, and that, especially when cereal crops are cultivated upon such soils, there is great danger of contaminating healthy cattle with the same disease. In one case it was observed that many sheep which were pastured in a field in which, two years before, a single animal which had died of charbon was buried, were infected with the disease and died. In like manner, it is entirely probable that the germs of hog cholera may be preserved in the soil for many years, to finally again be brought into an activity which may prove most disastrous for the owners of swine. Every effort should be made by agronomists to avoid infecting the soil by carcasses which are dead from any zymotic disease. Cremation is the only safe method of disposing of such infected carcasses. The investigations of scientists have shown that there are many diseases of an infectious nature due to these germs, and that these germs may preserve their vitality in the soil. Among others may be mentioned yellow fever and tetanus, and the microbe producing the bubonic plague, which retains its vitality in the soil, and thus escapes entire eradication. For the reasons given above, the agronomist, who also has at heart the health and welfare of man and beast, can hardly look with favor upon any of the plans which have been proposed for the use of sewage from large cities for irrigation purposes. There is scarcely a time in any large city when some infectious disease, due to the activity of germs, does not exist, and the sewage is liable at all times to be contaminated therewith.

HINT FOR BUILDERS.

A Cheap, Light Foundation for Small Farm Buildings.

In constructing poultry and other farm buildings it is often desired to make a tight foundation, for the sake of warmth in winter, but not at the expense of a cemented stone or brick foundation. The cut shows an excellent plan. Cedar posts are set where needed, then boarded up inside and out with matched cedar boards. This gives an air space between the boarding that will keep out the wind very effectually. The building can then be set upon the posts, the whole expense for foundation being small. Other wood that does not readily decay can be used if desired instead of the cedar. A window ought to be put into the foundation on either side, to be kept open in summer, to air out the interior. In this way the inner boarding will be much less likely to decay.—N. Y. Tribune.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

When a horse refuses to eat let him rest.

Most crops exhaust the soil in proportion to their value.

One good advantage in summer plowing is in the destruction of weeds.

Small farms well tilled are what makes the country rich and prosperous.

With hogs, cattle and horses especially feed to maturity as far as possible.

Never sell young growing stock when there are older animals that can be spared.

For building up poor land sheep are a better class of stock to keep than any other.

Too close pasturing at this season of the year is simply robbing the soil of its fertility.

The self-rake reaper is a good implement to use in cutting clover to thresh for seed.

If the pigs are to be fattened early it will be best to commence feeding grain in good season.—Farmers' Union.

Killing Weeds with Mulch.

Small patches of Canada thistle and quack grass can be often best destroyed by, using a mulch of almost anything that will be so compact that the new shoots that come to the surface cannot work their way through it. Care should be taken to suppress quickly all shoots of the obnoxious growth that will appear outside the mulched area. So soon as the roots find they cannot grow through they will increase their growth on every side so as to avoid the mulch. If only a few or barely one or two sprouts reach the surface they will keep life in the underground roots, and the work must all be done over again next year.

Plowing by Electricity.

A system of electric plowing has been worked out on a commercial basis by A. Borsig, of Berlin. Overhead conductors do not extend into all the fields, but are tapped by temporary wires laid on the ground. It is possible with an electric conducto of 500 meters and a plowing rope of 300 meters working length, to plow 22 acres from one center of operation. Mr. Borsig states that with five plows and fixed engines of 250 horse-power 6,000 acres of medium heavy ground can be plowed to a depth of 14 inches at a cost of 95 cents per acre. The use of separate engines increases the cost by 14 cents per acre.

ENERGY SADLY WASTED.

A Calculating Barber's Astonishing Figures of a Bicycle Century Run.

Snyder, the calculating barber, was talking about cycling, and was holding forth upon the energy expended by women in making century runs, says the Philadelphia Record. "I have done a little figuring on the subject," he remarked, "and the result is most surprising.

"Take a woman who weighs 120 pounds and who rides a wheel weighing 20 pounds. In riding 100 miles I have calculated that a power of more than 3,600,000 pounds of energy, or about 100 horse-power, has been brought into play. And to think that all this has been expended in riding a bicycle.

"Had the woman directed this energy in running a sewing machine, where a force of two pounds will run a needle over a piece of cloth for a distance of a foot, she could have hemmed a piece of muslin about 1,500,000 feet, or nearly 300 miles long.

"The same amount of energy used to propel a baby carriage weighing 10 pounds, containing a baby weighing 12 pounds more, would send the youngster 500 miles. The same amount of energy expended in churning would produce 30 tons of butter, or would push a carpet sweeper over an area of 250,000 square feet.

"The woman also could have ironed, without any more fatigue, a strip of muslin one foot wide and 210 miles long. And if she had been shopping, just think of all the bargain counters she could have walked around. I tell you, it's astonishing. Bay rum or witch hazel, sir?"

GAMBLING IN CRIPPLE CREEK.

Layouts in Every Saloon, and Miners Who Have Stacks of Wealth.

Out in Cripple Creek the gambling houses are running in every saloon, says the Nebraska State Journal. They are huge, gilded affairs, where the hard-working miners, after coming from their eight-hour shifts, go to while away their time and money instead of thinking of home and mother and filling their socks with money to pay off the mortgages on the farms back home.

The men stand five and six deep behind the wheels watching the players as they risk their money, the less adventurous hardly having the courage to make the play, till, having seen some man get a winner, they, too, step up and bet on the black or the red. On the tables are stacked piles of silver coin and gold eagles, and the operators of the machines every little while take occasion to show that the game is backed by much more than the thousand or so that is in sight by displaying a stack of bills in a receptacle behind the table where the notes are thrown when paid in, with a kind of reckless abandon that is quite taking.

At other tables a policy wheel will be running, with so many drawings a day. In another corner of the room a crowd of men will be shooting craps, a large and intensely absorbed crowd witnessing the play at each place. Off at one side a stud poker game is running. The old miners seem to favor this game particularly, and their grizzled features show the intensity of their interest as the chips come and go.

CHALLENGED GOD.

A Seedling Forced Open the Walled Tomb of an Infidel Countess.

"In the town of Hanover, in Germany," Evangelist Moody writes in Ladies' Home Journal, "there is buried a German countess who denied the existence of God and ridiculed the idea of the resurrection. To further show her contempt for Christianity she ordered that on her death her grave should be built up of solid masonry and covered by large stones bound together by iron clamps. On this tomb was engraved her defiant challenge that through eternity this tomb should never be disturbed. But one day the seed from some tree, either blown by the wind or carried by a bird, became lodged in a small crevice of the tomb, where soon it sprouted and began to grow. And then, as if nature had seemed to mock the haughty infidel, she quietly extended the delicate root of that seedling under the massive blocks of stone, and slowly raised them from their place. And now, although scarce four generations are passed since that tomb was sealed that insignificant seedling has accomplished what God Himself was challenged to accomplish."

Penurious War Department.

Live heroes, when they serve in the ranks, can always count on shabby treatment from the British authorities. When the transport ship Warren Hastings, with 1,246 souls on board, went ashore on the rocks of the island of Reunion last January, in a pitch dark night, with a heavy sea running, all England rang with the praise of the bravery and discipline of the troops, who stood drawn up in companies on the deck till the women and children were saved and then went ashore as they were told off. Many of the officers were then mentioned in orders and some were promoted. The soldiers and their families lost all their baggage. After six months the war department allows each man six dollars to renew his kit and each family $2.50 as compensation for lost property.

A Wild Deer Blew in His Face.

A gentleman who was fishing on Seventh Lake, N. Y., a few days ago became tired and sleepy. So he anchored his boat near the shore in a shady spot and lay down in the bottom for a nap. After awhile he was awakened by something blowing upon his face, and when he opened his eyes he saw a big buck standing to his belly in the water beside the boat and with his nose close to the fisherman's face. The gentleman lay quite still, rather enjoying the situation. About that time another boat came around the corner into the little cove, and the buck with a bound disappeared in the woods.

A WONDERFUL ESCAPE.

Related by a Keeper of the Michigan State Prison at Jackson.

(From the Jackson Citizen.)

Mr. A. E. Wing resides at 612 N. Jackson Street, Jackson, Mich. He is a keeper in the Michigan State Prison, a man of sterling integrity, and whose word is beyond dispute. He tells the following story of a wonderful escape, and the incidents connected with the dangerous position in which he was placed. He says, some months ago my attention was attracted by a swelling of my groins, which began to increase in size to such an extent that I was alarmed. It spread down my legs to my feet, and I was bloated from my waist down, so badly that I could not pull my pants, over my legs, and I had to open my shoes fully two inches before I could get them on. Even my face became puffed up; and my whole system seemed affected. I could hardly drag myself upstairs to unlock my men. I consulted a physician, one of the best in the city. He said the swelling was caused by an irritation of the kidneys, and I commenced treatment with him. But I seemed to be getting worse. I was strongly urged by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and I finally consented. After the first week I commenced to see a change, and felt much better. This was encouraging, and I continued their use. I took five boxes in all, with the happy result that I was completely cured. I have never heard of any medicine which had such a pronounced and radical effect, and yet not affect the system generally and leave it in such a good condition. I feel better now than I ever did. After the effect was once established the swelling gradually disappeared until it was entirely gone. I regard Doan's Kidney Pills as a most wonderful agent in the curing of any form of kidney disorder.

For sale by all dealers—price, 50 cents per box. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

ANGRY FOR THIRTY YEARS.

Because His Wife Sewed the Wrong Button on His Vest.

Because Mrs. Marion W. Hatton threw a stool at him and sewed a pants button on his vest nearly 30 years ago, Theodore Hatton wants an absolute divorce, says the Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald. The action is brought in the state of Illinois, and evidence is being taken in this city, both for the plaintiff and the defendant. The parties are well advanced down the toboggan of time, the defendant being upward of 50 years old and the plaintiff at least as aged.

There are some interesting things about the case. Until about 1872 the Hattons lived near Amboy, supposedly happy, as all married people are to be considered until they reach the courts. One day the plaintiff, after a quarrel with his wife, which neither claim was regarded more than a trivial matter, left his home and went west. He was heard from at various times, but no contributions to the support of his wife and child were received.

A short time ago Mrs. Hatton heard that her husband had brought suit for divorce, and that judgment was about to be entered by default. The matter looked irregular, as Mrs. Hatton had never, she says, received a service of the papers or an intimation of the litigation until informed by an acquaintance. An answer was put in denying the charges made and alleging the facts as Mrs. Hatton and the people about Amboy remember them. It is said that Hatton, since living in Chicago, his present residence, has accumulated some property.

LINCOLN'S MOTHER'S GRAVE.

A Lonely Tomb on a Wooded Hill in Indiana.

The recent communication between President McKinley and Gov. Mount in which the former called the attention of the latter to the neglected grave of Nancy Hanks, mother of Abraham Lincoln, has attracted attention from all over the country to the grave. It is located on a hill of gradual ascent and is right in the middle of the woods, about a mile from Lincoln City, a little station on the Air Line road in Spencer county, Ind. It is inclosed by an iron fence, which separates it from a number of other graves around it, and has a neat headstone which gives the name, age, etc., of the occupant. An inscription also says: "Erected by a Friend of Her Martyred Son, 1879." It is comparatively isolated, and any improvement made in its surroundings would not prove of any great value.

In order to fittingly honor the dead the people of that vicinity suggest that the remains be taken up by the state and reinterred at Indianapolis, or that the United States reinter them in some national cemetery. A $1,000 shaft could be placed over it where it now stands and ten persons in a year would not see it unless they made a special trip there.

NEW WESTERN IDEA.

Girls Who Give Gold Models of Their Little Fingers.

"Do little girls here give gold models of their little fingers to their fiances?" asked the western girl of the Gothamite, reports the New York Sun.

"Heaven, no!" answered the Gothamite. "It seems to me that that is a rather grewsome souvenir."

"Not at all," answered the western girl. "It is decidedly dainty, and I'm a little surprised that New York is so far behind the times. The fad started in this way: When the daughter of one of our big western politicians was six months old he had a model of her little finger cast in gold. Around the little dimpled digit is a ring of turquoise, which is her birthstone, and it makes a lovely charm for her betrothed's watch-chain. He valued it so much that it set other men to thinking, and the result is that as soon as a girl wraps one of these chaps around her little finger sufficiently for a proposal to follow, he immediately insists upon a gold facsimile of the flesh and blood original. It is a pretty conceit, and is being followed by every westerner who is in subjection to somebody's little finger."

Concerning "Purfessors."

The misuse of the title "professor" as often vulgarly applied to musicians in general finds a laughable example in the following story credited to Bandmaster Sousa. It seems that some years ago, before the existence of the organization which bears his name, and before "The Washington Post," "Liberty Bell," "Cotton King" and "El Capitan" had made the American march king famous, he was leading a band in the government service, at some small country festival. The advent of the band had been awaited with intense interest by the local population, and, as a consequence, the bandsmen were soon surrounded by a surging crowd which hemmed them in so that it became well-nigh an impossibility for them to keep on playing. Sousa pointed out the fact to a local official, adding that unless the crowd fell back his band would have to stop. That personage shook his head warmly, and turning to the assembled multitude, bawled out: "Gentlemen, step back and give the purfessor's purfessors a chance to play!"

A Clever Ruse.

It was an ingenious ruse that a prisoner who escaped from a South Carolina prison recently hit upon to throw bloodhounds off his track. The convict was tracked by the dog to a farmhouse, where he had begged breakfast. He stole a pepperbox, and after leaving the house peppered his tracks. The dog almost died from the effects of the pepper and had to be called off.

New Wire Gun.

A projectile from the new wire gun in a recent trial completely penetrated an 18-inch steel-faced compound armor plate backed by a six-inch wrought iron plate, by eight feet of solid oak and three inches of iron and was found imbedded in a clay bank 35 yards behind the target.

IMPERIAL PAWNSHOP.

Austria Conducts the Pawnbroking Business for Her Poor.

Austria has an imperial pawn shop. It was established in Vienna in 1707, when there was great distress among the poor in the southern part of the empire. It was designed as a way to secure to the starving some means of immediate relief, and by putting the rate of interest as low as possible, and embodying in the system every advantage that could be given to those who sought to make loans, it was found to be so effective that it soon gained the imperial sanction, and it was not long until its managers were made public officials under the direction of the minister of the interior. This is substantially the status of the institution at this time. The rates are so low that the business done on the cheap goods and chattels of the poor could not possibly make the establishment self-sustaining; but people who have been suddenly reduced in circumstances or who are temporarily embarrassed, keep the margins on the right side and enable the institution to keep open without the aid of a subsidy. In the year 1893 a total of 866,015 articles were pledged, and of these 848,562 were redeemed, a remarkable redemption as compared with the proportions of the average pawnshop. The unredeemed pledges were sold by public auction and whenever they brought more than the face of the pledge the balance was set to the account of the pledger, to be refunded any time within three years.

COMFORT FOR MAN AND BEAST.

The Picture Presented on a Big Canal Boat Tied Up Over Sunday.

Tied alongside a bulkhead in the Harlem river was a big canal boat. In the stable at one end stood three horses munching hay out of their manger, says the New York Sun. The deck over the horses, forming the roof of their stable, was a foot or two, or maybe more than that, higher than the surrounding deck, and it was open all around, so that the breeze blew through freely. It was a hot day, but the horses were in the shade, in place where they could get the air if they could get it anywhere; then they had plenty to eat, and they were apparently as comfortable as horses could be.

Down at the other end of the boat another scene presented itself. There an awning had been stretched over the deck from side to side, aft of the cabin. It was a Sunday. Under this awning, in a comfortable rocking-chair, sat the canal boat's captain, reading a newspaper. Here, too, sat the captain's wife, reading a book. Under the awning, stretching from the cabin door, they sat as on a veranda in front of a house on shore, and quite as much at home. It would have been difficult to find a more comfortable spot, and, indeed, the boat was a picture of comfort for man and beast.

HE KNEW WHO WORE SOCKS.

Clever Trick Played on a German General by a Subaltern Officer.

Under orders existing some time ago, men in the German army wore at will either socks or fuszlappen (a species of bandage) on their feet. During an inspection, relates the San Francisco Argonaut, a certain general asked a subaltern officer what his men wore on their feet. He replied that some wore socks and some lappen—about 70 per cent. socks. The general further asked him if he knew what each individual wore. He was answered promptly in the affirmative. "What," said the general, pointing to a man in the ranks, "does this man wear?" "Socks" was the response; and on the man taking off a boot on the general's order, a sock was found to incase the foot. The same test applied in several cases produced the same result. The general was highly impressed with the intimate knowledge of detail displayed by the subaltern, but the lad disclosed subsequently to his brother officers the simple device which procured him such kudos. His men, by his order, had all a sock on one foot and a fuszlappen on the other. They were instructed to note carefully the answer given by their officer, and to remove the boot which would disclose a verification of his assertion.

Balloon Accidents.

"The cause of so many balloon accidents," says Aeronaut William Kendall, of Philadelphia, "lies in the fact that the beginner doesn't realize what a delicate piece of mechanism a balloon is, and after having been employed about a balloon outfit for one season he imagines he knows it all. These people manage to get a balloon, usually an old, weather-beaten affair, and then secure an engagement at some amusement park. Statistics show that nine out of every ten such aeronauts meet with accidents. In one week seven parachute leapers were injured, some fatally, and during the season of 1896 no less than 47 aeronauts were killed. And in nine cases out of ten it is all because they haven't mastered the intricacies of their profession."

A House Like a Woman's Head.

Of the many ideas put forward for the Paris exposition of 1900, none is more original than the proposal to build a house (to be devoted to the world of women) in the shape of a beautiful woman's head. The suggested entrance will be at the base of the neck, and the eyes are to be illumined by electric arc lights. The chance for some mechanical genius to invent mechanism to work the jaw up and down is obvious.

A Lucky Strike.

Houghton, Aug. 11.—The Atlantic Mining company found the Six-mile hill copper vein on its property Tuesday morning. If it proves rich it will be a big thing for the Atlantic, as it now works the poorest vein in this section.

Intoxicating Tree Saps.

Intoxicating liquors have been made from the sap of the birch, the willow, the poplar and the sycamore.

PARSONS EXPECTS A PARDON.

Man Who Stole Half a Million Makes Complete Restitution.

Saginaw, Aug. 18.—Newell B. Parsons, now serving a term in Jackson for the larceny of $463,000 worth of Cincinnati, Saginaw & Mackinaw railway bonds from the Wells-Stone company, will probably soon be a free man. Some time ago his Saginaw friends interested themselves with Gov. Pingree in his behalf for a pardon. Investigation showed that this would be impossible, because two charges were still pending in the circuit court against him—one for larceny of several thousand dollars' worth of valuable jewelry and one charging him with forgery of a $3,000 check. Recently Parsons made a complete restitution of the stolen property and Tuesday Prosecuting Attorney Eaton entered an order in the circuit court asking that the pending cases against Parsons be nolle prossed. The bill stated that the prisoner had returned all the stolen property except certain account books belonging to the Wells-Stone company. They had been destroyed. After reading the bill Judge Wilbur ordered the cases dismissed.

Parsons' friends at this place will now make a big effort to secure his pardon.

FLAMES IN ELK RAPIDS.

The Chemical Works Burn and Two Men Are Injured.

Traverse City, Aug. 18.—Elk Rapids suffered fire loss Tuesday afternoon to the amount of $15,000. The fire originated in the engine-room of the chemical works of the Elk Rapids Iron company, and that department was a total loss without insurance. The entire plant was consumed with the exception of the storehouse, containing 500 tons of acetate. It is not yet known whether the plant will be rebuilt. Alva Parks was riding to the fire when he was thrown out and a hosecart passed over him, producing internal injuries which will probably prove fatal. He is paralyzed from the neck down. John Herman was also seriously injured by jumping from the roof of the burning building.

FIRE AT BENTON HARBOR.

French House, Two Factories and Several Residences Burned.

Benton Harbor, Aug. 16.—Fire Sunday evening destroyed the French house, owned by A. Jerue, the residences of John Holmes and John Fonger, the Colby-Hinkley company's stave mill, Perry's cooper shop and two barns, entailing a loss of several thousand dollars. A hard wind was blowing toward the town and for a time it was thought the entire city was doomed. The St. Joseph fire department was called. The guests of the French house lost all their belongings and some escaped in their night robes. The fire was set by tramps in one of the barns.

Death of Judge Palmer.

Big Rapids, Aug. 14.—Judge John H. Palmer died at his home here Friday morning of Bright's disease after a short illness. Judge Palmer was judge of the Twenty-seventh judicial circuit, comprising the counties of Mecosta and Newaygo, and was one of the ablest judges on the Michigan bench. He was born in 1844, and the most of his life he has been a resident of this state. He has held many positions of trust. He was a soldier and was also a prominent Knight Templar.

Mines Resume.

Bessemer, Aug. 14.—The Brotherton mine at Wakefield resumed operations and will employ 200 men when all the places are filled. The mine has been closed for the past four months, there being a lack of ore rates. The Sunday Lake mine, which works in conjunction with the Brotherton, on account of the water communicating from one to the other, will probably resume in a few days with about the same force of men.

Belgium's Forests.

Little Belgium has several first-class fortresses; Antwerp, and the fortified towns of Dendermonde and Diest, on the Meuse, Liege, Huy and Namur, and on the French frontier, Mons, Tournay and Ypres.

A Woman's Feat.

San Francisco, Aug. 2.—Mrs. Margaret Lelong arrived at her home in this city from Chicago on a bicycle, being the first woman to ride a wheel from Chicago to the Pacific ocean.

VETERANS IN CAMP.

Annual Meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The City of Buffalo Welcomes the Boys in Blue—President McKinley Arrives and Speaks at a Banquet.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Grand army week opened with fair weather. All indications point to a colossal encampment beyond the expectations of the most sanguine citizen. Train loads of veterans and their friends are constantly arriving and a person might think there was a great parade in progress as the posts march up the main street to their quarters.

Camp Jewett Formally Opened.

Camp Jewett, the picturesque tent city erected for the accommodation of visiting veterans, on a bluff overlooking Lake Erie and the mouth of the Niagara river, was officially opened by Commander in Chief Clarkson Monday afternoon.

Stepping to the front of the piazza, Mayor Jewett, on behalf of the citizens' committee, presented the camp to the commander in chief, who accepted it in a graceful speech.

President McKinley Arrives.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 25.—Another beautiful day greeted the veterans of the G. A. R. yesterday. The features of the day were the arrival of President McKinley at three o'clock in the afternoon, the parade of naval veterans and ex-prisoners of war and the banquet tendered the president at five o'clock. When President McKinley entered the banquet hall it seemed for fully five minutes as though the roof would have to fall or the side-walls bulge with the roars of applause and greeting. Then the president said, very slowly and distinctly:

"Mr. Toastmaster and Comrades, and My Fellow Citizens: I wish I might frame fitting words to make suitable response to the more than gracious welcome which you have accorded me here to-night. I come with no set form of speech; I come with no studied phrases to present to you, but I come in the spirit of comradeship; to talk with you as we have often talked in the past, around the camp fires in war as well as at camp fires in peace. (Applause.) To me, I see by the programme, has been assigned the toast "The Country and Its Defenders." My fellow citizens, blessed is that country whose defenders are patriots. Blessed is that country whose soldiers fight for it and are willing to give the best they have, the best that any man has, their own lives, to preserve it because they love it. Such an army the United States has always commanded in every crisis of her history. (Applause).

"From the war of the revolution to the late civil war the men followed that flag because they loved that flag and believed in what it represented. (Applause.) That was the stuff of which the volunteer army of 1861 was made. Every one of them not only fought, but they thought. (Applause.) And many of them did their own thinking, and did not always agree with their commander. (Laughter and applause.) That young soldier who in the late war, upon the battle line, ahead with the color guard, bearing the stars and stripes, way in front of the line, but the enemy still in front of him, when the general called out to the color bearer: "Bring those colors back to the line," quicker than any bullet that young soldier answered back: 'Bring the line up to the colors.' (Prolonged applause.) It was the voice of command; there was a man behind it, and there was patriotism in his heart.

"'So nigh to grandeur is our dust;
So near to God is man. When duty whispers:
Lo, thou must! the youth replies,
'I can.'"

"And so more than 2,000,000 brave men responded and made up an army grander than any army that ever shook the earth with its tread. (Applause.) And engaged in holier cause than ever soldiers did before. What defenders, my countrymen, have we now? We have the remnant of this old, magnificent, matchless army of which I have been speaking, and then as allies in any future war, we have the brave men who fought against us on southern battle fields. (Great applause.) The army of Grant and the army of Lee are together. (Applause.) They are one now in faith, in hope, in fraternity, in purpose and in an invincible patriotism, and therefore the country is in no danger. (Applause.) In justice strong, in policy secure, and in devotion to the flag all one. (Great applause.) My fellow countrymen, I thank you and bid you good-night." (Prolonged applause.)

The Naval Veterans.

Rear Admiral Sears called the twelfth annual convention of the National Association of Naval Veterans to order Tuesday afternoon. About 300 delegates were in attendance. Daniel F. Kelly, of Philadelphia, was elected rear admiral for the ensuing year over Will H. Atkins by a vote of 94 to 13.

Ex-Prisoners of War.

The National Association of Ex-prisoners of War met in national convention with Commander Charles F. Sheriff, of Pittsburgh, in the chair. The attendance was the largest since the organization of the association. The report of the adjutant general showed 63 local associations with a membership of 1,932 and 702 individual members, a total membership of 2,204. There was a substantial cash balance in the treasury. Several speakers advocated the passage of the ex-prisoners' relief bill to be presented to congress. Commander Sheriff was reelected.

FRUITLESS CONFERENCE.

Miners and Operators Fail to Come Together on Terms.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 24.—The miners' officials and operators held a conference here yesterday but nothing was accomplished, and another attempt will be made to-day to come to terms pending an arbitration. During the conference President Ratchford, of the Miners' union, said that if the strike was not settled by the operators, the labor conference to be held in St. Louis on the 30th would cause a strike of all trades all over the country that would appall the world. Col. Rend, an extensive operator, in reply said:

"You are keeping up this strike for the benefit of certain operators. With thousands of women and children starving you talk of another strike of greater magnitude, which, if successful from your standpoint, would bring the business of this country to a standstill. Such a strike would be nothing more or less than an insurrection. It would lead to another civil war. Why, out in Chicago we hanged seven better anarchists than you. Any person that takes my property and tells me I shall not operate it, as you are doing, is worse than an anarchist. The people of this country put their foot down on anarchy, but have not stamped it out. They are ready with more ropes to hang any others, and I am ready to take hold of a rope and help them. You are a Judas to the cause of labor as well as being an anarchist."

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 25.—The final effort to arrange a plan for ending the big coal strike has proved a failure and the strike goes on. At noon the conference between a committee of coal miners and operators, national and district officials, closed and the conference adjourned without date. The miners' representatives did not recede from their original proposition to settle the strike by arbitration and start the mines at the 69 cent rate.

FLOODS IN NEW YORK.

Streets Inundated and Basements Filled to a Depth of Seven Feet.

New York, Aug. 25.—After 40 days, during which rain fell with provoking regularity, New York and vicinity was on Tuesday morning treated to a cloudburst. The city was flooded in many sections. Along the river front particularly the tremendous rainfall played great havoc. Streets were inundated and basements were filled with water to a depth of seven feet. City streets were transformed into rivers, swift currents carrying debris of all kinds down to the business sections, breaking down fences, sweeping away trees and filling cellars and first floors of dwelling houses and factories. Scores of families were held prisoners in their homes until the waters receded. Factories and business places were inundated, and the loss to business concerns will amount to more than $100,000.

The greater part of New Jersey, to a distance of many miles from the coast, was deluged. Large farms became swamps, with buildings here and there dotting the surface of the water like islands. As in the storm of three weeks ago, Elizabeth was the greatest sufferer. The damage there is estimated at from $30,000 to $50,000. The storm in Newark broke all previous records for a single hour's rainfall. Streets were transformed into rivers in many sections of the city and there was not a cellar in the southern and eastern parts of the city that was not flooded. The water in Pennsylvania avenue rose above the mail boxes on the lamp posts.

GOV. TANNER'S ADVICE.

Urges Laboring Men and Employers to Get Together.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 25.—Gov. Tanner has issued his labor day proclamation. It is the longest one ever issued by any governor of Illinois and the most unique in many respects. He urges upon labor and capital the necessity of devoting the day to patriotic discussion of their differences and the cultivation of closer social relations. He also chooses the opportunity to announce that he will not interfere with the marching miners so long as they do not resort to violence, and warns both sides that they are equally amenable to the laws of the state.

Unconstitutional.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 25.—The law enacted by the last legislature requiring the labeling of convict-made goods brought into Wisconsin from other states was on Tuesday declared unconstitutional by Judge Seaman, of the United States court, who held that it was void because it interfered with interstate commerce. The decision is the result of a test case brought by the arrest of Vint Connelly, agent for a firm manufacturing shoes in the Minnesota state prison at Stillwater. Connelly was arrested at Hudson a short time ago charged with violation of the law.

Five Children Drowned.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 23.—Five children were drowned in the harbor yesterday afternoon by the capsizing of a float. The dead are: Albert Driscoll, aged eight; Gertie Harvey, aged 11; Jack Bethel, aged ten, and two others, names unknown. The bodies of the three former were recovered.

—The tomb of Mohammed is covered with diamonds, sapphires and rubies valued at $10,000,000.

BACK FROM ALASKA.

Three Men Reach Seattle from the Klondike Gold Fields.

They Were Forced to Leave Because of Scarcity of Food—Many Will Starve—Gold on Peace River.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 23.—The first party of Klondikers to brave the dangers of a trip overland to civilization arrived in Seattle Saturday on the steamer Starr, with 90 pounds of gold taken from five claims. Four are on Bonanza and one on Eldorado creek. The lucky miners are Edward Thorpe, of Seattle, who was supposed to be dead, George Stewart, of Tacoma, and Joseph Winterholen, of Juneau. They carried their gold in two large black satchels, and owing to their citified appearance did not attract much attention when they hastened from the steamer to the car that took them to the home of Thorpe's father. They were not anxious to attract attention, and changed their dress at Juneau. They are not talkative, but what they do say is conservative and worthy of consideration. They say they came out because food was scarce.

They do not say much about the perilous journey they had after leaving the head of Pelly river, 175 miles from Dawson City. Their pack horse fell over a precipice, with nearly all of their provisions. They nearly starved before reaching salt water August 13.

Many Must Starve.

San Francisco, Aug. 23.—A special to the Bulletin from Dyea, Alaska, August 14, tells of the pitiful condition of many of the searchers for gold, who are now stopping at Dyea, unable to proceed farther on their journey, owing to lack of funds for provisions. Many of those now in Dyea are physically unable to make the trying trip and there are many who will suffer great hardships before the winter is over. Many of those who arrived on the steamer Williamette are absolutely without shelter, seemingly having gone to that cold region depending on the open-heartedness of others to keep them living. Many of the people who are unable to reach Dawson this winter have two tons of provisions and no possible means of transportation.

Grew Rich in a Year.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—One year ago Fred Phiscator was a poor man engaged in the lumber business at Barodo, Mich. Saturday night he arrived in Chicago on his way home from Alaska. In a big red pocketbook which he carried in the inside pocket of his vest there reposed a certificate of deposit for $120,000, beside which Mr. Phiscator remarked that he had refused $200,000 for the claim he left behind, and thought it was worth $1,000,000. It is his intention to spend the winter with his family and friends and in the spring he will lead a party of friends to the scene of his fortune making.

Gold on Peace River.

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 23.—The next mining excitement will be on Peace river, in Northwest territory. Mining has been carried on there in a slow way for years, but discoveries made this summer leave no room to doubt that an immense amount of gold will be taken out of that river and its tributaries during the next two years. A. D. Kitchen, a prominent mining broker of this city, has just returned from British Columbia. At Vancouver he met a young man named Johnson, who had just come down from Peace river with his partner, bringing $18,000. The $18,000 brought out had been cleaned up by the three men in three months. They went to Peace river early in the spring, and Johnson started out in July. Johnson said that all the miners on Peace river were making a great deal of money with the crudest of appliances. Johnson told Mr. Kitchen that if he wanted gold all he had to do was to go to Peace river.

Star Pointer Wins.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—In three heats—time 2:02, 2:04¼, 2:04—Star Pointer on Saturday again and decisively lowered the colors of the great black beauty, Joe Patchen. Fully 16,000 persons witnessed the race. In the first heat of the big match Star Pointer and Joe Patchen crossed the finishing line so nearly on even terms that many of those who saw the race never will be able to satisfy themselves that a mistake might not have been made by the judges in passing out Star Pointer as a winner. Moreover, the time, 2:02 flat, was the fastest heat in harness ever paced.

Want War Renewed.

Athens, Aug. 23.—A meeting of over 3,000 people held here Sunday adopted an address to King George, urging him and the government to reject the proposed peace treaty between Greece and Turkey, and to resume the hostilities which were interrupted by the truce. The entire press, however, and a great majority of the public of Athens condemn the agitation for a resumption of the war.

Assisted Slaves to Escape.

Lamoille, Ill., Aug. 23.—A. G. Porter died here at the age of 83. He came to Illinois in 1837 and during slavery times was a conductor on the underground railway, working in unison with Owen Lovejoy. He was friendly with the Indian chief Shabona.

Liquid Air in Commerce.

New methods of liquifying air at a reduced cost have been invented in Germany, and Mr. de Kay, United States consul at Berlin, mentions in his official report some of the uses to which liquid air may be put. One of these is for illuminating purposes. An illuminant can be formed from liquid air by mixing it with ordinary air, in certain proportions, while it is passing back to its normal condition. Liquid air may also serve as an explosive agent for various purposes. As a portable liquid, rich in oxygen, it is suggested that it should serve many purposes in manufactures. The price in Germany has heretofore been $2.25 for five cubic meters (about 176½ cubic feet) of air reduced to the liquid condition, but Prof. Linde, of Munich, has invented a process whereby the cost has been brought down to about 2¼ cents per five cubic meters.

Any person cured of Kidney weakness will tell you that when the back ceased to ache, all troubles ended. Neither liniments, nor plasters, nor electricity can cure it. The seat of the trouble is not in the skin, flesh or muscles. It's in the Kidneys.

MRS. KATE ETTER wrote from Neosho, Mo., in March last. "Two years ago I was severely troubled with my stomach and kidneys, and a great affliction so unnerved me that my condition became alarming. The telegraph brought a prominent physician in a consultation which resulted in no benefit. I went to Wyoming for change of climate without benefit, was brought back to Atchison where nurses worked with me night and day to keep me alive to reach my friends here. My heart became so bad that my friends gave up all hope. I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine alternately and was restored to health. It is now months since and I am perfectly well."

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 21st, 1897.

On April 20th we suffered a loss by fire. We were fortunate enough to have insurance in the Grand Rapids Fire Insurance Co. and upon notifying Secretary McBain he immediately took up the adjustment, and the same afternoon handed us a check for the full amount of loss. This Company's promptness is a matter that cannot be overlooked in these times.

Wegner Bros.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 11th, 1897.

I take pleasure in testifying to the promptness and fairness of the Grand Rapids Fire Insurance Co. in the settlement of its losses. The loss on my furniture June 1st, 1897, was adjusted immediately after notice was given, in a fair and impartial manner.

H. Sprague.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 22d, 1897.

Last evening we had a very narrow escape from total destruction by fire of our "Children's Home," but fortunately the promptness of the firemen saved the building, and the fire was soon subdued. And just as prompt was the Grand Rapids Fire Insurance Company in adjusting the loss. To-day I was handed a check for the full payment which will enable us to repair damages with very little inconvenience to ourselves or the little ones.

Mrs. M. P. Bissell, Pres. Children's Home Society.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 9th, 1897.

Wednesday evening last my house was damaged by fire. The Grand Rapids Insurance Company immediately took up the adjustment of the loss, and Thursday I was handed a check in full payment. This prompt settlement of a Home Company saved me several days of annoyance resulting from the confusion of a fire, and I cheerfully recommend it for its prompt and honorable dealing.

FINANCIAL LETTER.

Chicago, Aug. 24, 1897.

September wheat sold in this market for a dollar a bushel last Saturday. One week previous the closing price of September wheat was 84c so that the appreciation in price for the week was 16 cents.

This is indeed a remarkable showing, but it is not more than those who have followed closely the trend of events in the commercial world have looked for, although the realization came more quickly than many expected. And yet there seems absolutely nothing to prevent a still further notable increase of grain prices. The situation warrants such action. There is no longer any doubt about the European shortage. It is growing larger every day, and this morning the first Liverpool cables to Schwartz, Dupee & Co. reported a rise of over 5 centsper bushel since the close there Saturday, thus showing that our tremendous gain of seven cents Saturday was not unnatural. This also is the opinion of men who are interested in the wheat trade in every capacity, as millers, exporters, etc. They find that in the purchase of cash wheat they are in no case able to buy cheap at higher figures than for the next option quoted on the Pearl of Trade. Cash wheat, for example, sold at 97 1-2 on Chicago Saturday when the September option was at 99 1-2 cents.

It is this daily evidence that the market is in no sense a manipulated one, but that prices are based on actual supply and demand which makes the largest grain dealers in the world confident that prices have not by any means reached their limit. There will necessarily be reactions, but thus far in the great upward movement they have been few and far between. But after such reaction a still greater advance is looked for until the present demand from Europe shall have been satisfied. The deficiency there, which not long ago was estimated by Beerbohm at 224,000,000 bu., is now put by the same authority at 384,000,000 bu., or nearly twice the original figures. If this be fully true, and if the crop damage already apparent is followed by still further loss in that direction there is no reasen why American wheat may not sell for $1.25 per bushel. These figures may seem improbable to those who have been accustomed to wheat below a dollar for the last few years, but sensible, experienced men do not so regard them.

Just now the situation is accentuated by the fact that receipts at primary points are very light. This means that the farmers are holding their wheat, and thus far they have made money every day by so doing. At what point to sell is of course a matter to be determined only by individual judgment, but no grain raiser can justly complain if he fails to take advantage of the present market.

The fluctuations last week and closing prices today, of wheat as dealt in on the Chicago Board of Trade were as follows:

	Range last week.	Today's close.
Sept.	83 1-2 a $1.00	96
Dec.	82 1-4 a 99 1-4	95 3-4

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations of the Railroads.

Detroit, Aug. 23.—C. W. Taylor, of this city, assistant to General Manager McGrue, says that within a few months the Detroit & Lima Northern will begin the construction of immense docks in Detroit for the purpose of handling iron and coal with the greatest facility and the least expense to vessel owners. Negotiations are now pending for the purchase of a site on the river front. As soon as the deal is closed, contract will be let for the construction of the docks and work will be begun as soon thereafter as possible. "No expense will be spared", said Mr. Taylor, "to make our docks in this city thoroughly modern in every respect. In their construction especial attention will be paid to the iron and coal trades, as we expect to do a large business with the lake vessels. To that end the docks will be equipped with the latest machinery for handling coal and iron ore. Southbound ships laden with iron ore will be unloaded as quickly and as cheaply here as they could be at Cleveland or any other port, and they will be given a return load of coal, or other freight with equal facility."—Blade.

Tuesday night as the freight drawn by engine 38 on the D. T. & M. was pulling out, the train ran into some cars at the edge of the trestle. These cars were in the yard with brakes set. Some one must have loosened them, and it being down grade, they moved down to the trestle. It being very dark the engineers did not see them in time to stop his train. He and the brakeman jumped, but the fireman did not for by that time the train was on the bridge and the danger was fully as great to do so. Had it not been there was a car for Tecumseh that night, the train would have gone through at full speed and a terrible wreck and loss of life might have happened. Although the engine and several cars were injured, the damage was small to what it might have been.

Injunction papers were issued from the circuit court late Saturday night, against Mr. Langdon, of the City Roller Mill, and the Detroit & Lima Northern road, restraining them for the time being from building a side track on what is alleged to be Lake Shore railroad land on the north side of the mill property, on Logan street. There is some dispute between Mr. Langdon and the Lake Shore company, as stated the other day, over the ownership of a strip of land, and the matter will have to be adjusted in the courts. It was feared by the railroad company that the road would be put in there Sunday, hence the injunction. Mr. Langdon states that he has not thought of building on the ground mentioned. The papers were served on him about 11:50 Saturday night.—Adrian Telegram.

The D. T. & M. carried 1357 passengers to Devil's lake yesterday, 1057 from this way and 300 from the west. It is the disposition of the management to furnish plenty of cars for patrons of the road under all circumstances, but at this particular time, on account of the G. A. R. encampment at Buffalo, it is impossible to beg, borrow or steal passenger coaches.

The Detroit and Lima Northern company has placed temporary flagmen at the Maumee street and "red mill" crossings. They will be kept there until electric gongs are introduced, which will be in a short time, it is promised. Gongs will be put in at several other crossings also.—Adrian Times.

It is reported that the D. T. & M. management has purchased the Birdsall hotel at Devil's lake, which will be the commencement of a great summer resort. The deal was to have been consumated yesterday.

The D. & L. N. station is slowly but surely going west to its new location. Meantime the old Mosher house is being used as a ticket and telegraph office.

About 180 people from Tecumseh took in the farmers' picnic at Devil's lake yesterday, judging from the number of railroad tickets sold.

A Bunch of Keys.

Hoyt's "Bunch of Keys" will be the opening attraction at the New Croswell, Adrian, Tuesday, Aug. 31st. This greatest of all farce comedies was written by Chas. Hoyt. It was his first effort and laid the foundation of the eminent Senator's fortune. Each year Mr. Hoyt turns out one or more of his admirable skits. All have been more or less successful but without doubt the "Bunch of Keys" is so far his master piece. Manager Bothner always presents it with a clever company and is continually brushing it up and introducing up-to-date features. Ada Bothner will play Teddy. We all know her and love her for her cleverness.

Special Excursion to Niagara Falls via Wabash Railroad.

'ROUND ABOUT US.

Ed. J. Morden has won a signal honor in Chicago, having been awarded a partial scholarship under Bernard Listman for being the most proficient of thirty-one students of the violin who entered the contest at the Chicago college of music. He was the last of the number to undergo examination, and had played but a few moments when the president gave him the prize.—Adrian Times.

Two gentlemen who live on East Side are so lonesome that they sit up nights and mourn in their wretchedness. The trouble is that their wives are spending a few days at the lake, and before their departure failed to provide housekeepers to look after matters at home. The gentlemen are now looking for ladies to take those positions. None but handsome ones wanted. All applications addressed to A. H. Bump, Jr. or Chas. Eastman will receive prompt replies.—Hudson Post.

Geo. E. Gunn, of Charlotte, deputy factory inspector, says the improvement in business throughout his territory is remarkable, and that the number of idle men is decreasing rapidly. He states that the factories are increasing their forces, nearly all of them working on full time and many running over time. The furniture, implement, and wagon factories are rich with orders, and in many of the manufacturing institutions the wages of the employes have been increased.—Adrian Times.

The new state law requiring horseshoers to undergo an examination as to their fitness and capability as a prerequisite to continuing the business has gone into effect. The examinations are to be conducted by a state board of horseshoers, who will issue certificates to those passing the required tests. It will exercise a general control and regulation of horseshoers all over the state. All apprentices will hereafter be required to attend a special course of lectures on the anatomy of horses' feet before presenting themselves for examination.

Those of our citizens who are subject to hay fever are singularly free from the disease this year. Heretofore, at this time of the year, there are a number in this village and vicinity who would be coughing, sneezing and making laborious efforts to breathe comfortably, but in spite of all they could do, the epidemic made life a burden for several weeks. They have not been troubled so far this year and are shaking hands with themselves about it, but know not what to lay their good fortune to, unless it is the absence of rag weed, which usually infests the yards and highways. This year there is a scarcity of the weed, for some reason or other, and consequently no pollen to irritate the mucous membranes.—Manchester Enterprize.

L. A. Wilcox, of Dundee, has a telescope nearly completed and it is all his own work. It is a refracting telescope, objective lens three inches in diamater, 48 inch focus and four and a half feet long. He has been at work on the telescope nearly a year and a half but there is work yet to do as it is yet unfinished. Mr. Wilcox has a locomotive and tender on a railroad which is all together about four feet long, and every part of the locomotive is perfect and all made of wood except the boiler and that is sheet iron. The locomotive is the work of a jack knife and was made many years ago when he was a young boy 17 years old. Even the coal in the tender is whittled out of wood. The most remarkable thing about it is that the parts that should look like iron do look like iron, although it is all of wood, track and all, and the part that should looks like wood. Adrian Messenger.

With this issue of the Citizen, the present management transfirs the editorial reins to the hands of one who is, undoubtedly, more competent to hold them. Mr. W. S. Kellogg, of Rea, but formerly of Washington state, and a man of extensive newspaper experience, will hereafter have charge of the Citizen, and who will put forth every effort to fill its columns with sparkling reading matter of local interest. As for ourselves, we have enjoyed our labors in your midst, and wish to thank our readers for their past support, and the interest taken in the welfare of the Citizen—the pioneer paper of Britton, and ask that this same interest, many times compounded, be continued in the future. Encourage your local paper by sending in news items, your job work, your subscriptions—and paying for in advance. This done, the paper will flourish and be a respectable sheet to represent an enlightened, intelligent people. May success attend the Citizen.

In McClure's Magazine for September William Allen White, whose story of "The King of Boyville" has been read with delight the country over, will relate "An Episode of the Swimming-hole at Boyville," wherein "Piggy" Pennington and his devoted subjects further reveal themselves.

The following took the train here Monday for Buffalo N. Y. on the G. A. R. excursion: A. J. Bank, Tipton, Geo. Swartz, wife and son, Thos. Hanley and wife, Charles Berry, Miles Baldwin, S. M. Smith, Matthew Boyd, D. D. Cole, and Henry McLean, wife and mother, Raisin.

Sectretary H. H. Furgeson, of the Lenawee county, Agricultural Society, would inform the farmers of Tecumseh and vicinity and all others interested, that the premium lists for the coming county fair, Sept. 20 to 24 inclusive, can be obtained at Seaton W. Anderson's dry goods store.

Will Hazlett now wears the fisherman's belt and no doubt it will be some time before he will have to give it up. Tuesday he caught with hook and line a pickerel in the Red Mill pond, weighing 11 1-2 lbs. This undoubtedly is the one Jim Eccles has come so near landing at different times.

Avery & Co's. delivery team made things lively for a time Wednesday noon in front of the store. The tangs were standing quietly and all at once the nigh one lay back her ears and began kicking and backing, the wagon being lifted on to the walk. She would no doubt be kicking and backing yet, had it not been for the brick block, and she getting her legs fast. As it was little or no damage was done.

Rev. C. M. Brown has tendered his resignation as pastor of the Tecumseh Presbyterian church to the Presbytery, and will accept a call at Jacksonville, Ill. Mr. Brown has many friends here who much regret his going, yet rejoice with him as he goes to a larger field. Jacksonville is a place of eighteen hundred people and geographically located so that he will be near the homes of both Mr. and Mrs. Brown's parents.

The funeral of Corporal Charles Kennedy at the Armory Sunday afternoon was one of the largest held here. It was a military funeral and the entire services were very impressive. Rev. E. C. Andrus, a member of Company C, was the minister, officiating. The music was furnished by Miss Hayden and a male quartette. The floral offerings were fine and of great variety. The circumstances surrounding his death were of such a character as to make the occasion one of extreme sadness.

A company of young people from here are occupying the Hayden cottage at Sand lake this week with Mrs. D. A. Hodges as chaperon. The young ladies are Helen and Hattie Conklin, Margaret Haire, Mary Mills, Bessie Spayde and Anna Williamson. The gentlemen are of a migratory nature, coming and going. Among their guests have been Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Beardsley, of Fremont; Mr. and Mrs. Jess. H. Smith, of Detroit; Mr. Wedemeyer, of Grand Rapids; Bertha Smeltzer, Lillian Keyes and Agnes Stevens.

RACING MATINEE.

Saturday's matinee called out the largest crowd ever seen on the grounds at any similar event and the meeting was a grand success in all respects. Every one was satisfied. Secretary Kyle acted as starter with John Gibson, of Deerfield, and L. C. Bidwell timers.

The 3:00 trot, best 3 in 5, had seven starters and was won by Veto Jr. in straight heats.

The 2:40 trot or pace was a hot race between Frank B. and Laura Keene which the gamey little side-wheeler finally won. Frank B. did not appear to possess his usual mettle or the result might have been different. Altaloid in the first heat broke a shoe and was drawn.

The half mile running race, 2 in 3, had five starters and they were all good ones though Wasippi seemed to have the speed of the party. In the first heat Black Bess, after leaving the first turn, stumbled and would have gone to the ground but her rider caught her up in a manner that called out great applause. Billy H. in the second heat on entering the stretch lost his feet in a similar manner and was nicely taken up by his young rider, Jackson. It was Jackson's first race and he received many compliments for his riding.

The 2-mile bicycle dash with limit of 5 minutes came next with three starters: J. B. Hulet, Detroit, H. J. Pattison and H. J. Richards, Tecumseh. Hulet was taken sick and dropped out after the first mile. Richards came in first, Pattison second. Time 5.40. Not coming within the limit and not repeating the trial, the race was delared off.

Leon Clark, of Clinton, and H. J. Richards gave an exhibition half mile on a tandem in 1.02 2-5, the lowest time ever made on the track even when fitted for bicycle riding. They also made a half paced by Stofflet in 1.02 1-5. Considering the condition of the track both exhibitions were fine for all participating.

While the free-for-all was in progress a foot race, 100 yard dash, was announced with five contestants which resulted as follows: Prichard 1, John Smith 2, Osborn 3, Kingery 4, DeSerma 5. Time 11 3-4 seconds.

Owing to the county fairs and fall races coming on, this in all probability, will be the last matinee of the season. Manager Kyle is entitled to great credit for furnishing this community with three afternoons of rare sport.

THE SONG OF THE HOE.

Hear ye the song of the hoe,
And hear ye without scorn;
The ring of my blade on the hill or the glade
Is music to the corn.
And the old heart of the hill,
It pulses with the thrill,
And sends its sap aflow;
And it flows into the corn,
And a gladder life is born
When it hears the song of the hoe.

Hear ye the song of the hoe.
And what is the song I sing?
'Tis a sweeter rune if your ear is a-tune
Than the harper's song to the king;
'Tis a song of joy, not of tears,
How the earth for a million years
Will bud and blossom and grow,
And still be glad and young
Whenever my song is sung,
When it hears the song of the hoe.

Hear ye the song of the hoe,
I sing of the things I hear;
The thoughts down deep in the old earth's keep
Are whispering in my ear.
And the corn can understand
And it tells the smiling land
(For doth the message go),
The thoughts that have their birth
From the old young heart of the earth,
That are sung in the song of the hoe.

Hear ye the song of the hoe.
'Tis an honest song and true,
And good for men again and again,
And good for you and you.
It sings of the deep-down things,
Of the world's first lore it sings,
The world heart's overflow;
And it tells your sallow brood
The heart of the world is good—
Then hear ye the song of the hoe.

Hear ye the song of the hoe
That floats with the smell of the soil,
That tells of the wealth of the old earth's health,
Of the meter and music of toil.
And this is the core of its song,
That the earth is made for the strong,
Nor yields up its wealth to the slow;
And that labor is love and delight
To those who are fain for the fight—
Then hear ye the song of the hoe.

The Price of Fame.

ZENF was a German farmer, but did no farm work. He was so prosperous that he was able to sit out under the shade of the apple trees which grew close to the porch of his house and talk to Griest, his neighbor, who was a retired brewer, about Bismarck. This was over 15 years ago, and Bismarck was a most important personage to an Illinois farmer who was a German and who did not have to work very hard for his living.

Zenf's house was a quarter of a mile back from the road, which was the last-named street of the neighboring city. It was a city of some 15,000 souls, which made it small enough and compact enough for Zenf to be on neighborly terms with the post office and the national bank. The house was a quaint, old, low-ceiled, roomy edifice, half hidden beneath the climbing grapevines, and entirely concealed from view of passers-by on the street because of the intervening shrubbery. A noble orchard of great apple trees lay alongside the farm, and sometimes Zenf and Griest would go over under the apple trees and talk about Bismarck, for a change of location rather than a change of subject. Zenf loved the farm and the orchard, and of his family he made much, for the two girls were very pretty and very sweet, and Anton, the boy, was growing up to be a credit to him. He thought he would die in the house under the grapevines, and Mrs. Zenf thought so, too.

One day a man came to the city and talked very much. He opened an office, too, and hired other men from abroad to come and help him talk. Then they got out a lot of maps, and Zenf was amazed when he learned that Griest had bought the center of Hobbins' pond.

"What for?" inquired the easy farmer. "You will raise some ducks, nicht whar?"

Griest said no. That the center of Hobbins' pond was now lot 4, block 117, Angelica terrace. Some day it would be the site of very fine mansions, and street cars would run there.

"If they do," Zenf answered, "they will swim already."

Zenf was very slow in understanding the new order of things which the talking man and his talking assistants and their maps and plans and big red signs of "For Sale" had brought about. Sometimes he would go into the city in his carriage, and he would return amazed at the follies of the townspeople who could speak of nothing but real estate. There were agencies in feed stores and harness shops and bakeries and coal offices, and one man ran from an undertaker's headquarters, jostling an approaching company of pall-bearers as he did so, to offer Zenf an option on some excellent trackage property.

It was two months before Zenf fell. He learned to his surprise that Seligman, whose farm was two miles farther out than his own, had lately platted and sold it at an enormous profit, the old Seligman place now being "a manufacturing suburb." He also learned that the land which lay alongside his orchard was Catalpa View, where the swell residents were going to build, and that for a quarter of a mile his trees shook apple blossoms upon the new thoroughfare, Montmorency boulevard, which was all jimson weed and nettles, as a matter of fact. Zenf got to thinking, and when the talking man came to visit him one day he struck a sharp bargain. The farm had been bought by him years before—in the old days before Emsie was born—for $7,000. He sold for $46,000, and this included the little tract where the first baby was buried; but, then, as the agent said, he could easily remove the crumbled little coffin to the cemetery and be glad of heart that there were no more of his dead to transfer.

It was considerable of a shock to Mrs. Zenf, but Emsie and Anton and the little girl, Lucy, were so overjoyed at the comparison of $46,000 to $7,000 that really there was hardly any objection from any quarter.

One day the Zenfs moved down the winding lane under the trees, and that was the last time they ever saw the house under the grapevines, for the very next day the agent's men came and cleared it off and drove stakes where the surveyors had already marked the new streets and cut trees for the thoroughfare, and shortly after there was an auction sale of the beautiful lot in Spring Hill addition, and common report had it that the agent sold $121,000 worth of sightly lots before the setting of the sun.

Zenf had almost lost Griest, and even with his $46,000 wondered what he should do with himself. A man has not lived all his life when he is only 41 years old, and Zenf had no inclination for going farther away and buying another farm. One day an inspiration came to him. He would open a saloon.

Griest thought this was an excellent idea. Ten thousand dollars was therefore paid for a 50-foot lot in the city, which was now becoming a metropolis, and for a similar amount a fine brick building was constructed.

Zenf's saloon was prosperous from the start, but it was much less placid than had been the house under the grapevines. There were new friends and new business associates and many calls upon the ex-farmer for his time. He had two barkeepers, and prosperity seemed to be raining upon him. He went down to the city hall one night to appear with a committee of citizens who wanted something done or something undone, and his little speech made so favorable an impression that the leaders of the political party with which he voted called upon him to go forth and work in the vineyard, talking. Politics had never before tempted him because he had been so idly busy arguing with Griest about Bismarck, but somehow he showed a remarkable aptitude, and his family saw him less and less as he penetrated further and further into the jungle of statesmanship. In the end he was nominated for county treasurer as a compromise candidate, and when he went home to tell his family about the honor which had come to him his wife, in hysteria, interrupted him to say that Emsie had "run away" with one of the barkeepers. It was a bitter blow, for Emsie was the apple of his eye, and the barkeeper was a worthless sort of fellow. But times were too busy for grieving, and politics called for him. The greatest feeling of sorrow came to him when he was elected and Emsie was not there to be glad of it.

He had been raised to the farm. He knew all its taskmastering, and as a young man he had studied in its severe school. Of accounts, although a man of acceptable education, he was ignorant—or, at most, he was not an expert. So he yielded to the suggestion of the orator who had presented his name and chose that man's son as his deputy. It pleased him to go down to the office in the county building and to look about him and think that he, Otto Zenf, farmer, was the highest-salaried man on the pay roll.

Anton, however, took to drinking.

Griest came to him one day and told him that Anton had forged his name to a check for $2,000, and it would take that much to balance up the Griest account. Zenf paid it and whipped the boy, who broke from home that night.

Zenf was such a good fellow. All those who had helped him in the election told him so and asked him to lend them money. He lent his $26,000 in pieces to various people, and when he told the other good friends that he had no more they suggested that he might lend the county funds and not only accommodate them, but earn interest. He thought it was in some way wrong, but they said assuredly no, that all treasurers had done so. Persuaded then, he yielded, and piled his drawer with papers of promise. But he made enemies as well as friends, as every public officer must, and when the next election came around he was defeated in his aspiration for reelection. The night after the luckless election his deputy disappeared. There was a paralysis in the office until in the passage of time Zenf's successor took charge. Then it was found that in the drawers were many papers, but very little money. The jury declared some months afterward that the dazed Zenf had embezzled $200,000. He could not understand it, for he had squandered nothing and had lost his own funds. Nevertheless they sentenced him to 15 years' imprisonment, and some of the people wanted to lynch him.

Zenf sews shoes all day. Sometimes he thinks of a grapevine-covered house and the great apple trees under which he used to talk with Griest about Bismarck and he wishes he could get out to just see them once again. But it is very foolish in him. Even if he were to be released to-morrow his wish could not be gratified. A big stone schoolhouse spreads far out over the place where the first baby was buried and streets paved with vitrified brick run down where the orchard was, and children ride their bicycles where the jimson grew on Montmorency boulevard.—Chicago Record.

Camel as a Scapegoat.

A very curious use to which the camel is sometimes put among the desert tribes is related by a distinguished traveler. He tells us that he once saw one employed to appease a quarrel between two parties, much as the "scapegoat" was used in the religious rites of the Jewish people. The camel was brought out and accused by both parties to the controversy of all the injuries, real and imaginary, which they had suffered. All the mischief that had been done they laid upon the camel. They upbraided it with being the cause of the feud which had separated friends, reviled it with every opprobrious epithet and finally killed it, declaring themselves reconciled over its body.

FIGHTS FOR LIFE.

Bay City Man, Caught in Machinery, Clings to a Post.

Bay City, Aug. 22.—A shocking scene was enacted at Handy Brothers' sawmill near here, Saturday, when Joseph Drowin had his right leg torn off by being caught in a sprocket chain. When he found himself caught Drowin caught hold of a post with both hands, and pulled frantically in an endeavor to release himself. The strain was fearful, but Drowin retained his hold and allowed the leg to be drawn further and further into the machinery until a large portion of it was torn off. The mutilated man was cared for and will probably live.

Activity in Michigan Lumber Camp.

Cameron Bros. will put in three camps and employ about 125 men; Scott & Howe, three or four camps, about 150 men; Davis & Gurnett, one camp, 75 men; Desona & Co., of Wakefield, one camp, 50 men; the Payne Lumber company, two camps, 100 men. There will be three more camps at Gogebic, employing at least 150 men. Wages in the lumber woods will be from 20 to 30 per cent. higher than last season. Men are very scarce.

Fire at Elk Rapids.

Elk Rapids, Aug. 19. — The plant of the Elk Rapids Iron company was destroyed by fire, causing a loss of $15,000. A storehouse containing 500 tons of acetate was saved. There was no insurance on the plant, which was owned by N. K. Fairbanks, of Chicago, and the Dexter estate. Alva Parks was run over by a hose cart and was probably fatally injured internally. John Herman jumped from the roof of the burning building and was seriously injured. It is not known whether the plant will be rebuilt.

Big Field of Corn.

Holly, Aug. 25.—What is probably the largest field of corn in Michigan is that of Henry Ward, near Pontiac. It contains 150 acres ranging in height from 12 to 15 feet, and will yield about 150 bushels to the acre. The ground was fertilized several inches deep by the 25,000 sheep that Mr. Ward wintered there last season. The corn is planted three feet apart, and is of the yellow dent variety. The field resembles a veritable forest.

Will Run Night and Day.

Muskegon, Aug. 22.—The Consolidated Rail Joint company, which recently began operations here, has closed a contract with a Chicago concern for 1,000 tons of bar iron to be shipped to them as fast as manufactured. These mills were idle for years until they resumed a few days ago. They are now turning out 75 tons of bar iron and soft steel a day and will run night and day.

VICTIM OF ROBBERS.

Thieves Fatally Wound Cashier Struble of Farmers' Bank at Shepherd.

Shepherd, Aug. 23.—While defending the funds of the Farmers' bank Elmer E. Struble, its cashier and the president of this village, was shot and fatally wounded by robbers early Saturday morning. He died seven hours later, but recovered consciousness sufficiently to give the authorities the names of his assailants, three in number. There is considerable mystery concerning the murder. Mr. Struble was found in the banking office at six o'clock with two fatal wounds near the heart and life almost extinct. He had been shot two hours earlier, according to his ante-mortem statement. The office gave evidence of a desperate struggle.

Mr. Struble left his house at four o'clock and went to the bank for some papers to take to Mount Pleasant, intending to return before business hours. The bank is located in a hardware store in the north end of the building, and the living rooms overhead are occupied by E. A. Wisdom and F. M. Taylor and their families. At six o'clock Mr. Wisdom came down to open the store and found the front door open. He went to his desk at the south end of the store, and a moment later heard something drop. Investigation showed the door to the bank office was open and Mr. Struble was lying on the floor, alive but unconscious. The vault door and the steel money chest were both open, most of the books were taken, and all the money was missing, except ten dollars in silver, which was found under the counter.

It is supposed Mr. Struble was in the vault when he was approached from behind, and the robbers, seeing the money chest open, demanded the contents. Mr. Struble, it is believed, refused and started out to escape or shut the safe door. He was then shot in the wrist and side, and while trying to shut the vault door was shot in the back. This did not apparently render him easy prey, as he evidently turned to fight them, and then received the two fatal shots near the heart.

Mr. Struble died at 11 o'clock, but a few moments before death he rallied and made a statement that he recognized the robbers and he gave the names to the prosecuting attorney and the sheriff. He said he forced the shooting, as he refused to give up the money, and in the fight recognized his assailants, who killed him to save themselves from being known.

It was reported that the robbery was committed by several depositors, who, fearing the bank was about to fail, followed Struble to the bank, demanded their money, and, upon being refused shot the cashier and looted the bank.

Sheriff Mogg, deputy sheriff Estee, Prosecuting Attorney McNamara, with several other county officers, held a meeting Sunday at Mt. Pleasant to consult and make further plans for the capture of Cashier Struble's murderers. It was decided that everything is being done that will eventually lead to the arrest of the guilty men. It is thought that three prominent men in this vicinity are the murderers, but officers will not divulge names. They are watched every moment, day and night, and cannot escape. Arrests are likely to take place at any moment.

There is great excitement among the people here and at Mt. Pleasant and lynching is freely talked by many. It is thought officers would not dare to make arrests at this hour, as they could not protect murderers against the summary vengeance of the people. Prominent detectives are expected to assist. While the suspected men cannot escape, Sheriff Mogg hesitates, fearing mob violence. The prosecuting attorney claims that Cashier Struble, a few minutes before his death, gave him the names of three men whom he positively identified as among his assailants. They are all well-known residents of Isabella county, and are depositors at the Shepherd bank. Two of the three men accused in Struble's ante-mortem statement will be able to produce impregnable alibis. The fact that the cashier was under the influence of morphine seems to detract somewhat from the weight of his dying statement.

At first it was given out that the robbers succeeded in getting only $2,000. Now, however, the citizens of Shepherd say that at least $6,000 was secured and probably as much as $12,000. Some place the figure as high as $15,000.

Lansing, Aug. 25.—In speaking of the Shepherd tragedy Banking Commissioner Just expressed the opinion that the crime was committed by depositors of the defunct People's bank of Mount Pleasant, who shared the belief that President Ryan, of the Shepherd bank, had secured a large sum of money from the Mount Pleasant institution. These depositors, according to the commissioner's theory, argued that there was money in the Shepherd bank which belonged to them, and they sought to get it by force. He does not think the killing of Struble was premeditated, but was the outcome of the struggle for the possession of the cash.

Savings Bank Closed.

Mount Pleasant, Aug. 21.—The People's saving bank of this city closed its doors Friday morning and is now in the hands of the commissioner of banking. No statement has been given out. According to the last statement, made in January, the capital stock of the bank was $100,000, with $90,000 in deposits. George E. Newall is president and C. A. Carnahon cashier.

GOOD LAND MEASURE.

This Handy Contrivance May Be Used by One Person.

When measuring land it is sometimes necessary or desirable to do the work more accurately than it can be done by pacing. The accompanying cut, from the Farm and Fireside; shows a land measure which can be used by one person to better advantage than a chain or rope by two. The wheel measures just 8¼ feet, or half a rod in circumference, and is made of one-inch band iron or of barrel-hoops. The spokes are a cross of light wood an inch square, halved together with a piece of half-inch siding nailed on each side over the joints. These act as washers and make the wheel run more smoothly. To keep the spokes in place nails are driven into the ends through punched holes in the hoop. A quarter-inch hole in the center to receive the bolt completes the wheel.

The fork is also made of sticks like the spokes, with a short piece for a handle nailed between. This latter should be a little wider than the hoop and rounded off at the end.

As the revolutions of the wheel have to be counted, it is handy to have one of the spokes plainly marked. Paint or a string tied around it will do this. If smaller divisions than half rods are desired, the spokes indicate eighths of a rod.

MILLIONS IN PRUNES.

Magnitude of One of California's Newest Industries.

The magnitude of the prune industry of California, writes a Los Angeles correspondent of the Chicago Record, is little realized by the people of the eastern states. In a decade the growing of prunes has gone forward in California by leaps and bounds, and to-day $20,000,000 is invested in it—that is, in lands, trees, irrigation systems, agricultural tools and packing houses. Notwithstanding damaging frosts last spring throughout the lower part of the San Joaquin valley, and all over the horticultural valleys of Pomona, San Gabriel and Santa Ana, the total product of green prunes now on the trees in this state is estimated at 83,000 tons. Of this quantity about one-fifth will be shipped east as green fruit, for sale at fruit stands and for canning purposes; the remaining four-fifths will be dried for market, making about 24,000 tons of dried prunes.

Ten years ago the total area of bearing prune orchards in California was less than 7,000 acres. In 1888 there were 11,000 acres of bearing prune trees and about 6,000 acres more of young prune orchards. There was an import duty of 2½ cents a pound on dried prunes in those days, and the growers sold their crops on the trees for sums varying from $35 to $50 a ton. In 1890 the total area of bearing prune orchards was 13,000 acres, and there was an enormous planting of prune trees that year in all of the fruit growing valleys of California, because of the large profit in the industry. Twelve thousand acres of prune orchards were set out in the winter of 1890-91, and 24,000 acres more were planted in the next two years. These orchards have now come into bearing, and the state board of horticulture finds that there are 53,000 acres of bearing prune orchards in California to-day and about 8,000 acres more to come into bearing. Conservative estimates put the total crop of California prunes in a favorable year at not less than 90,000 tons. In a few years more a full yield of the fruit in California will be more than 110,000 tons of green fruit.

KEEPING CABBAGE.

The Old Plan of Burying in Trenches No Longer in Use.

The old plan of burying, or putting cabbage in trenches during winter, or for winter use, has become obsolete, and a more simple and easy plan has been adopted. Where cabbage is grown on a large scale for shipping purposes, the best plan is to lift the cabbage and stack them two tiers deep and as closely as they can be placed in an orchard, or wood if convenient, and cover with leaves to the depth of two or three inches, the leaves to be kept in place by a slight covering of earth. In this way the heads will keep perfectly sound all winter, and they can be easily taken up as wanted for shipping.

For family use cabbages can be kept in the same way, only it will not be necessary to make the second layer. It is quite important to keep them a little below the freezing point. It has been suggested to keep them in some convenient building, but this plan has always resulted in failure, as the dry atmosphere is fatal; cabbage must be kept moist and cool, the slightest wilting renders it unfit for the table.—American Gardening.

Trees for planting can never be bought cheaper than they can this fall.

POULTRY IN ORCHARDS.

Fowls Do Good Service in Two Very Distinct Ways.

Mr. Tegetmeier, the famous English authority on poultry, in commenting on a report of the Rhode Island experiment station regarding the value of fowls to orchards, says: For many years I have advocated the introduction of poultry into apple orchards, maintaining that they do good service, in two very distinct modes—first, by manuring the ground, and, secondly, by the destruction of insects and grubs that hibernate in the soil.

The apple maggot appears to be extending in America, attacking the favorite Baldwin, which is so well known as being imported largely into this country, and rendering it entirely unfit for use, but the spraying the trees with Bordeaux mixture and Paris green has appeared to prevent all serious attacks of this insect.

In the mature state this insect is a fly, which deposits its eggs in the pulp of the apple beneath the skin. The young maggots grow within the fruit, which they render worthless, and when mature emerge from the apple and go into the ground, lying in the pupa state beneath the surface soil among the grass roots. Samples of the earth, six inches square, were taken, and the number of maggots under the trees varied, according to the size, from 1,600 to more than 12,000 under each tree; the pupae somewhat resembling kernels of wheat. Now comes the point which was particularly interesting to me. The experiment was tried as to whether poultry, if confined to a small range and encouraged to scratch, would destroy these pupae. A large movable wire fence was placed about a tree, whose fruit had been destroyed by insects. One side of the fence was raised and 50 hens were called into the inclosure. The fence was let down and they were confined to the space around the tree. As soon as they had eaten the corn they naturally began to scratch for pupae, and in the course of three or four days it was found that the latter had disappeared. As these insects remain in the pupae state from the fall of the apple to the following spring, when they appear, it may be expected that next year the number of flies breeding from the apple maggot will be greatly diminished in the localities where this plan is followed.

From personal experience, extending over many years, I can speak positively of the advantages of allowing fowls and chickens a free range in apple orchards. They not only manure the soil and destroy all insects harboring in it, but they find, for some weeks, a considerable proportion of their own food—the windfalls, which they devour greedily, with any grubs they may contain.

FARM TOOL HOUSE.

Every Vegetable and Fruit Farmer Should Have One.

The plan of a farm tool house, as submitted herewith, is planned for 14 or 15 by 30 feet, but the proportions can be made to suit the convenience of any farm or yard. Sometimes 14 or even 16 foot timber can be secured easier than 15 foot and such will do equally as well. In many places such a building can be built on a side hill, and a second story added, the rear opening level with the ground. It may also be built on posts, but should have sills at the ends to keep from spreading. In this plan the length is nearly twice the width, 14 by 30 feet. Stalls for mowers, rakes, hoes, etc., are shown at a and b, each being about 7 by 10 feet. In another corner is a harness and oiling room c, 4 by 7½ feet. The work bench, d, has shelves above and at side of one end is a tool chest e. If the building is two story, stairs may be placed at f, or shelves and racks for tools and seeds. Room for a fanning mill is in the center, as at g. Partition between the stall, j, may be used as shelves as needed and i i i are corner cupboards or drawers. Storage for plows, cultivators and other tools is shown at h h. A second story would be handy as a lumber room, seed room, granary, wool room, etc. Four windows are shown.—H. E. Partridge, in Farm and Home.

PLAN FOR A TOOL HOUSE.

Origin of Potato Bugs.

The Colorado potato beetle receives its common name from the fact that its native home was at the eastern base of the Rocky mountains, where it fed upon a species of wild potatoes quite common to this region, known as the Sandbur (Solanum rostratum). It was collected there and described by Thomas Say in 1824. It was first mentioned as an injurious insect in 1859 when some of the early settlers of western Nebraska reported it feeding in large numbers upon the Irish potato. We thus see that the species changed its food from a wild to a cultivated plant, as has been the case with many of our injurious insects.—Farmers' Review.

Money in Medicinal Plants.

Many medicinal plants can be grown with profit, as the demand for some kinds is increasing. Absinthe (wormwood) can be raised as far north as New England, and this country imports it from Europe. Saffron, which sells for eight dollars per pound, may be grown in nearly all sections. Peppermint and spearmint find ready sale, and sage, which is well known to every farmer, is imported, frequently selling at $150 per ton. Then there are hoarhound, boneset, mandrake, blood root, pennyroyal, etc., which are regarded as weeds in some localities, all of which are largely used and have a value in market.

Evergreens make good windbreaks, and they can be planted in the fall.

A WONDERFUL ESCAPE.

Related by a Keeper of the Michigan State Prison at Jackson.

(From the Jackson Citizen.)

Mr. A. E. Wing resides at 613 N. Jackson Street, Jackson, Mich. He is a keeper in the Michigan State Prison, a man of sterling integrity, and whose word is beyond dispute. He tells the following story of a wonderful escape, and the incidents connected with the dangerous position in which he was placed. He says, some months ago my attention was attracted by a swelling of my groins, which began to increase in size to such an extent that I was alarmed. It spread down my legs to my feet, and I was bloated from my waist down, so badly that I could not pull my pants, over my legs, and I had to open my shoes fully two inches before I could get them on. Even my face became puffed up; and my whole system seemed affected. I could hardly drag myself upstairs to unlock my men. I consulted a physician, one of the best in the city. He said the swelling was caused by an irritation of the kidneys, and I commenced treatment with him. But I seemed to be getting worse. I was strongly urged by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and I finally consented. After the first week I commenced to see a change, and felt much better. This was encouraging, and I continued their use. I took five boxes in all, with the happy result that I was completely cured. I have never heard of any medicine which had such a pronounced and radical effect, and yet not affect the system generally and leave it in such a good condition. I feel better now than I ever did. After the effect was once established the swelling gradually disappeared until it was entirely gone. I regard Doan's Kidney Pills as a most wonderful agent in the curing of any form of kidney disorder.

For sale by all dealers—price, 50 cents per box. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture. like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

KISSING THE BOOK.

English People Just Learning the Scotch Form of Oath Is Admissible.

With reference to the question asked in parliament as to "kissing the book," a legal correspondent writes in the London Telegraph that of late it has been particularly noticeable that many witnesses prefer the Scotch form of taking the oath—by holding up the right hand and repeating after the judge or clerk the solemn words. It is only now that people are becoming cognizant of the fact that they need not "kiss the book." The clause in the oaths act of 1888, by which the Scotch form is admissible, was not inserted to meet a religious difficulty, but on medical grounds. Many persons have properly an objection to touching with their lips a volume which has been thumbed by scores of unknown persons and may contain the germs of disease. "Kissing the book" is really no essential part of the old-fashioned oath, and the Scottish method, if universally adopted, would defeat the cunning schemes of those who think their conscience is quit of perjury when they contrive to kiss their thumb instead of the book, which is generally a soiled and evil-smelling thing. A story is told of a Glasgow bailie on the occasion of a witness being sworn before him. "Hold up your right arm," commanded the lineal descendant of Bailie Nicol Jarvie. "I canna dae't," said the witness. "Why not?" "Got shot in that airm." "Then hold up your left." "Canna dae that either—got shot in the ither airm, too." "Then hold up your leg," responded the irate magistrate; "no man can be sworn in this court without holding up something."

TELL A WOMAN BY HER PURSE.

Things That Nearly Always Indicate Owner's Character and Condition.

It has been stated, perhaps by detectives, that the age and a great knowledge of the whole character of a woman can be gained from the contents of her pocketbook, says the Chicago Times-Herald.

The business woman always has a number of receipted bills and a quantity of cash in her pocketbook, while the mother of a family usually has many unreceipted bills, little cash, and the sides bursting with samples and bargain advertisements. The average young lady has a favorite poem stowed away in a corner and invariably a souvenir of something bordering on the superstitious. For instance, while the writer was in a State street jeweler's store the other morning a tortoise shell portmonnaie was found on the floor. It contained 85 cents, and, far back in a secret pocket, a poem entitled "Soul for Soul." It began:

Oh, eyes that pierce me through and through
And draw my very soul away,
Your sunshine may not fill my life
Nor turn my darkness into day.

Next to that piece of sentiment was a small card with the young lady's name and weight printed upon it. On the reverse side of the card was a date with the words: "If the sun shines three days after this, you will have good luck for nine days." About noontime, a beautiful little brunette, all anxiety and blushes, hurried in to claim the purse.

LONG HAIR A DISGRACE.

In Corea It Is Indicative of Social Ostracism or Mental Humility.

The wearing of long hair in Corea is indicative of social disgrace or mental humility, and marks either the penitent or the outcast. The custom of wearing the hair long by these classes has aroused the commercial spirit in certain speculative natives, and they have set about the labor of supplying the world with hair shaved from the heads of their fellow-countrymen.

When the Mongolian faker desires to punish himself for a sin—real or fancied, it makes no difference—he allows his hair and nails to grow. In the same countries the criminal is obliged to let his hair grow, because the true, oriental despises long hair, and the wearing of it is a certain sign of penitence or a punishment.

Now, of recent years the Coreans have learned to put these extraordinary growths of hair—that is, after they are cut off—to some commercial use. They have established factories for the manufacture of mats, horse blankets, saddle blankets, halters and even whole sets of harness, all from human hair.

A carpet factory, in which carpet is made from human hair, is also located at Seoul. In this connection it may be apropos to mention the famous "prayer rug" of the shah of Persia. It was made in Corea more than a century ago. It is three feet square and bordered with diamonds and pearls, and is considered of almost fabulous value.

Embarrasses No One.

For all her incomparable dignity of deportment there is something homely and gentle about the queen of England. "I don't know how it is," remarked one of her great officers not long ago, "I'm such a shy man, and really to chat with some princess embarrasses me. But as soon as I see the queen all shyness vanishes. Why, she's as easy to talk with as your own or anybody's mother! No one can feel shy of the queen, and, what is more, it would vex her if they did."

The Boaster Taken Down.

A silly youth was bragging of his great friends in a mixed company in which Douglas Jerrold was present, and said he had dined three times at Devonshire house and never saw any fish at table. "I can't account for it," he added. "I can," said Jerrold; "they ate it all upstairs."

What an Earthquake Is.

In the course of a sermon a negro preacher in Georgia, touching on the subject of earthquakes, said: "Oh, my sinful hearers, a yearthquake is nothin' mo' ner less den dis: Hell done got tired waitin' fer you, an gone ter sleep, an wake up yawnin'!"

HER SECRET.

Actions Speak for Themselves—He Was Willing to Read Her Mind.

For many years the young woman had called upon Ulysses. She had brought him numberless packages of choice cigarettes, as well as divers specimens of the most expensive genus cigar, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. She had repeatedly purchased tickets for various celebrated prize fights and after escorting him thither would see to it that he had plenty of lemon cream puffs to munch upon during the intervals of slugging. Many and many an evening had she assisted him in increasing the numerals upon his poor hard-working mamma's coal and gas bills, and she had seen four several sets of new springs added to the parlor sofa. But hitherto she had not stood up like a—er—woman and boldly declared her love for him and requested to be allowed to pay all his expenses in the future in consideration of his donning her last name.

But upon this special evening in question Ulysses had her dead to rights. It may have been the witching golf costume in old gold and baby blue that he wore or the shy grace with which he placed his tiny palm in hers. However, be this as it may, she could no longer restrain herself, but impulsively threw her arms about his frail, shrinking figure and drew him tenderly toward her.

As her lips rose from his she lovingly murmured: "This kiss tells you my secret."

And Ulysses, as he furtively removed some cut plug from his mouth, found an opportunity to observe: "Would you — you—mind—saying—it—over—again?"

HOLD A NET FOR A BEAR.

Brain Makes It Lively for a Couple of Up-to-Date Hunters.

The following is vouched for by a reliable citizen of the locality where the event occurred, near Disco, 12 miles from Black River Falls, Wis., says the Chicago Chronicle. The farmers had been annoyed by wolves and one of them found a den that he thought would hold a dozen or more. Four of them went there with a large fish net, a long tin tube and a double-barreled gun. They had heard of scaring animals from their den by putting a tube in the hole and then shouting through the tube. Two of them held the net over the mouth of the den and another stood ready with the gun, while the fourth one managed the tube. He gave a fearful screech into a funnel fixed in the end of the tube and after an effort or two there was a rush and growl and out came a black bear as though possessed of nine demons.

He plunged into the net and the two men and the bear had a merry time. The man with the gun didn't dare shoot, for he could not tell where there was the most bear and the least of the men. The net broke and let his bearship through and he made for tall timber at a marvelous rate, but the net men looked very discouraged and it will be a cold day when they try it over again.

The informant was very reticent about telling who the men were, but as he had a double limp, his face scratched and was in the city for a new suit of everyday clothes it looked as though he knew who helped hold the net.

PRIVATE STREET CARS.

One of the Recent Developments of the Trolley Idea.

One development of the trolley-car idea is likely to be shown ere long in the somewhat general fashion of owning private cars. At present a few, though an increasing number, of rich men own private railway cars. The expense is enormous, all things considered. But a moderate expenditure will suffice in the case of the trolley, says the Boston Advertiser.

Only, in a little while, street cars will no longer be propelled by means of trolley attachments, but their motive power will be applied from an inside third rail, or by means of a storage battery, or, possibly, there will be some method invented of which as yet the public has not even a hint.

Anyhow, the rapid extension of the electrically propelled street car system, not only throughout all cities and considerable villages, but into the suburbs and far away into the country, so that in a long time, where population is even moderately dense, there will be an electrical car line close to every man's front door, will supply the conditions necessary for a vast multiplication of the number of private cars.

Underground City.

In Gallicia, in Austrian Poland, there is a remarkable underground city which bears out this description, as it has a population of over 1,000 men, women and children, scores of whom have never seen the light of day. It is known as the City of the Salt Mines, and is situated several hundred feet below the earth's surface. It has its town hall, theater and asembly room, as well as a beautiful church, decorated with statues, all being fashioned from the pure crystallized salt rock. It has well-graded streets and spacious squares, lighted with electricity. There are numerous instances in this underground city where not a single individual in three or four successive generations has ever seen the sun, or has any idea of how people live in the light of day.

Rebuilding the Tuileries.

Another attempt to have the Tuileries palace rebuilt is being made in France. This time the movement is led by the Society for the Preservation of Public Monuments.

The Only Royal Balloonist.

Only one sovereign in the world has even been up in a balloon. This event occurred some five years ago, when Queen Regent Christina of Spain happened to drive near a field where some experiments in aerial navigation were being made and immediately stopped her carriage and asked to be permitted to make an ascent.

LITERARY NOTES.

In "Around London by Bicycle," the opening article of the September Harper's, Elizabeth Robins Pennell details a series of rides, radiating from the metropolis, which brings the traveller to a great variety of places of literary interest. The article is richly illustrated by Joseph Pennell.

The September Chautauquan contains some interesting facts concerning the "Origin of the Republican Party," by Charles M. Harvey, with a portrait of Maj. Alvan E. Bovay, the acknowledged founder of the party, and pictures of church and schoolhouse in which the first and second Republican meetings were held.

"The Meaning of Greater New York" is the title of an article in Demorest's Magazine for September which is its own explanation. It is intended to answer all those questions about the consolidation of New York and Brooklyn which people with intelligent curiosity are always asking their friends and which their friends are rarely able to answer.

The fiction of the September Atlantic is exceptionally good.—After the Storm, by Ella W. Peattie; A Second Marriage, by Alice Brown, and the conclusion of Frances Courteray Baylor's two-part story, Butterfield & Co. A sketch by Guy H. Scull, entitled A Man and the Sea, and poems by Martha Gilbert Dickinson and Lucy S. Conant, add a distinctly literary flavor to this issue.

A beautiful reproduction of the statue of Athena, which was recently remade from scattered parts and is now recognized as a copy of Pheidias' statue on the Acropolis at Athens, is a striking feature of the cover design of The Outlook's Educational Number (the Magazine Number for August). The curious story of the reconstruction of the statue is told in a brief article. ($3 a year. The Outlook Company, 13 Astor Place, New York.)

The September Scribner's has a number of outing articles suited to the dog days. William Henry Bishop describes picturesquely the famous watering-places in northern Spain, San Sebastian, selected several years ago as the summer home of the Queen Regent of Spain and the boy King. The fashion and gaiety of the place lead him to call it "The Spanish Newport". Marchetti, the famous artist, visited San Sebastian about the same time as the author and made the brilliant illustrations that have been wood-engraved by French engravers.

Now that five or six of the railroads that bring folks to New York have established, or about to establish, systems of cheap cabs for the use of their patrons, it is conceivable that the infection of their altruistic spirit may be caught by other concerns in other lines of business. Frugal persons who cling to dollars don't hire a cab unless it is particularly inconvenient to go without one. It is inconvenient to go out to dinner in a street car when one's wife has on her best clothes. Private individuals who give dinner parties cannot be expected to throw in cheap cabs, but the great hotels and restaurants might do it and profit in it.—Harper's Weekly.

"People living in cities are prone to believe that the increasing number of telephone, telegraph and trolley wires increase the danger from electric storms," writes Edward W. Bok in September Ladies' Home Journal.

"On the contrary, the maze of wires is a protection, and lessens the danger, since it is shown that where the wires attract the electricity they hold it, and discharge it only at the end of the wires in central station. The fact is that of the two hundred lightning accidents every year only an average of forty occur in the cities. The trees in the country are a far greater danger; they account for the proportion of four cases in the country to four in the city."

Marvelous Cures!

—BY—

Dr. W. C. Walker

The Eminent Physician and Surgeon, of Detroit, Mich. formerly of N. Y., will renew his regular monthly visits beginning at

Tecumseh, Lilley House,

Tuesday, Sept. 7th.

The most Successful Method of Treatment of all Diseases and Deformities known to the Latest Medical and Surgical Experience.

Consulations and Examinations Free to all.

Dr. Walker will not treat any unless there is a possibility of a cure, and will so inform you.

Examination by Reflection.

By the latest scientific researches, both by improved instruments and methods, the doctor is enabled to discover the true nature of the disease and locate the organ or parts affected, and many diseases and complications which have heretofore proven most obstinate to the medical profession, yield like magic under his skill and systemic treatment. The doctor is endowed with the wonderful gift of being able to diagnose without questioning and will discribe with the greatest accuracy your aches and pains wherever located, tells better how a person feels than they can tell it themselves.

There is no need to live in constant misery. It costs nothing to see him. The fullest examinations are free and his prices for treatment are within the reach of all. He is a friend to the afflicted and will turn none away unaided. The merchant mingles with the artisan while seeking relief at his hands and hundreds are cured every year.

READ WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY.

One of the most respected ladies in this vicinity, after being treated by all the best physicians, and pronounced incurable, was advised by a former patient of Dr. Walker's to call and consult him. She says: For the past fifteen years I have been a great sufferer with heart trouble and nervous prostration. The least exertion would cause my heart to flutter and become very irregular and so weak, causing complete exhaustion. I felt as though each day would be my last, and were it not for leaving my little ones, death would have been a relief. After three months' treatment with the Doctor I feel as well as I ever did. My heart beats regular and strong, and that tired feeling has entirely left me. What joy and sunshine health restored.

MRS. E. J. B.

Miss Addie Smith says: "I was sick for many years. My case was known for miles around. Was helped to Dr. Walker's office, now I am able to walk there. I have been under the Doctor's treatment two months and have gained twenty pounds. I feel well. May Heaven's choicest blessings rest upon the Doctor for what he has done for me. I had female trouble, weak lungs and nervous prostration."

REMEMBER DATE OF VISIT.

Wm. Redman says also, that he has been afflicted for ten years with Asthma and Hay Fever, the result of catarrh; has doctored with only temporary relief. He is now a well man, not a vistage of the dread disease remains. He feels grateful to Dr. Walker.

Mrs. W. S. Rogers cured of cancer of the breast She was a great sufferer.

Charles J. Preston cured of catarrh of the stomach and blood poisoning, says he would not be in his former condition again for $5,000.

Mrs. W. M.——, after being barren for ten years, says, "He cured me. We now have two little children. Suffice to say our home is a happy one.

Epilepsy (or fits) positively cured by a recent scientific discovery.

One of the most respected young men of Grand Rapids, Mr. C. H. Banks, has doctored with all the best physicians he could hear of and was finally given two weeks to live. Consulted Dr. Walker, took his treatment and is now a well man. He had chronic stomach trouble, weak lungs and constant cough, rheumatism and Bright's disease. He has gained 35 pounds and works every day. He advises all who are sick to see Dr. Walker.

Mrs. C. M. Stutzman cured of blood and skin disease of twelve years standing.

Mrs. L. E. Lambert cured of varicose ulcers on limb.

Miss Ella Crane cured of bronchial trouble and lung disease.

Miss B. H. cured of female weakness after being treated by many noted physicians.

Mrs. W. W. Bennett says also that she had lost her sense of smell and became partially deaf by catarrh in the head and could not sleep for constant coughing and pain through the lungs, also had female trouble. She says she will testify to anyone that Dr. Walker saved her life. She has gained thirty pounds and is well.

Miss Elizabeth Ball writes, after being a great sufferer for a number of years with neuralgia in the head and stomach: I am cured. I feel as though I have got into a new world. I cannot praise the doctor enough for his skill in my case.

Dr. Walker's specialties are diseases of Eye, Ear, Throat, Lungs and all chronic, private and nervous diseases and deformities, as Granulated Lids, Cross Eyes, Deafness, Discharge of the Ears, Bronchitis, Chronic Cough, Goitre (big neck) Fever Sores and Ulcers, Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, all diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Heart, Stomach and Nervous Diseases; Chorea (St. Vitus Dance), Epilepsy (fits), General Debility, Scrofula, Skin Diseases and all diseases due to bad blood; also rectal diseases.

I will give special attention to difficult cases and to cases other physicians have failed to cure.

Persons applying for treatment will please bring from two to three ounces of urine, first passed in the morning preferred, for analysis.

And Many Others Were Injured in a Natural Gas Explosion.

Broad Ripple, Ind., the Scene of the Terrible Disaster—Boiler Explosion in Illinois Kills Two Girls.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 6.—Broad Ripple, a suburb of Indianapolis, ten miles from the city proper, was Saturday morning the scene of one of the most terrible disasters that has ever visited the state. Six persons were burned to death and many people are lying in the homes of neighbors burned, scarred and racked with pain from broken bones. Four buildings occupying a block of the town are in ruins. Of the six dead nothing but charred and blackened bones with hanging strips of foul-smelling flesh remain.

TWO GIRLS KILLED.

Awful Result of a Boiler Explosion at Morton, Ill.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 6.—Morton, Tazewell county, ten miles from Peoria, was the scene of a terrible explosion Sunday afternoon. Tillie and Emma Beyer were killed outright, and Albert Beyer, Frank Beyer, Cassie White and Mrs. Louis Moschel were badly injured. The Beyer boys will probably die. The boilers in a brick building used as a mill, electric light power house and pumping station exploded, demolishing the building and damaging the water tower, 150 feet distant. Houses for blocks were also damaged. Fireman George Grimm entered the bulling a few minutes before five o'clock, started the fires in the boiler and then went home for supper. He says there was 25 pounds of steam and cannot explain what caused the explosion. The Beyer children were playing in the yard next to the mill and were unable to get away. The boiler caught one of the little girls and carried her 150 feet, she landing on the top of a barn. She was crushed to pieces. Flying iron crushed the skull of her sister, killing her outright.

CROP SHORTAGE ABROAD.

France and Russia Will Need Much American Grain.

Washington, Sept. 8.—W. P. Atwell, commercial agent of the United States at Robaix, France, sends to the state department a report on the short wheat crop in France. He says the crop in France, and in fact in all Europe, has fallen much below the average, and that it is estimated that the United States and Canada will be called upon to export from 120,000,000 to 130,000,000 bushels more than they exported to Europe last year. France will require about 60,000,000 to meet the deficiency in that country.

Dives from a Bridge.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—George W. Clarke broke the world's high-dive record Monday afternoon by jumping off the railing of the Halsted street lift bridge when the structure was raised to an elevation of 165 feet. The diver was taken out of the river uninjured and placed under arrest by the policeman whom Clarke had evaded when preparing for his perilous leap.

Long Nap Ended by Death.

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—Lawrence Ledwiett, a Philadelphia teamster, who was picked up intoxicated at Glöucester and who went to sleep in the Camden county jail last Thursday night, died in the Cooper hospital Tuesday. He had slept 108 hours continuously when life became extinct.

A Jealous Man's Deed.

Toledo, O., Sept. 7.—Monday afternoon, in a fit of jealous rage, S. R. Ashwell shot and killed his wife, then turned the weapon upon himself and inflicted injuries that will cause his death. He has been insanely jealous of her, and has repeatedly threatened her life.

Two Children Killed.

Toledo, O., Sept. 8.—Fenton Waite, aged seven, and Lily Boldan, aged three, were killed by street cars.

THE LUETGERT TRIAL.

Summary of Testimony Given by Witnesses for the Prosecution.

Chicago, Sept. 4. — Yesterday was the fifth day in the trial of Adolph Luetgert, the sausage maker, charged with murdering his wife and destroying her remains in a vat in his factory. Thus far witnesses for the prosecution have sworn that Luetgert hated his wife, that his actions on the night of May 1 were suspicious, that stuff found in the vat contained flesh and bones, efforts of the police to find the missing woman have been futile, and rings found in the vat have been identified by a friend of Mrs. Luetgert as belonging to the supposed murdered woman.

ADOLPH L. LUETGERT.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—The strongest blow of the week was given the defense in the Luetgert trial Saturday. Mrs. Christine Feldt, in whom the state presents the motive for the alleged crime, took the stand for the prosecution and furnished the most sensational episode of the hearing. She related declarations made by the defendant which tended strongly to show that he purposed doing violence to his wife as soon as his business troubles were over and settled. She produced letters which he had written to her while in jail. They contained expressions of love, devotion and vows of fidelity. They informed the woman that if she would stand by Luetgert he would go away with her when the trouble was over and they would ever after be happy in each other's company.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—In the Luetgert trial yesterday Nicholas Faber, an ex-employe of Luetgert, testified to having seen Luetgert and his wife enter the factory on the night of May 1. Under cross-examination Faber was forced to admit that he did not know anything that happened on any other particular date near May 1. Fritz Figel, who worked for Luetgert May 4, told how he had emptied a barrel of ashes in the alley, and Officer James Smith testified as to having found particles of bones and two corset steels in a pile of debris where the ashes were emptied.

KILLED THREE.

Train Strikes a Wagon at a Grade Crossing.

Reading, Pa., Sept. 8.—A Philadelphia & Reading wrecking engine crashed into a wagon at a grade crossing at Frush Valley, a few miles above Reading, Tuesday night, and three lives were lost. The dead are: Evan Hiester, aged 45 years; Warren Faust, aged 10; Leon Faust, aged 7. All were instantly killed. The boys were the sons of Allen Faust, a miller of Berkley, this county, and Hiester, who was in his employ, was driving them in a covered wagon, with a load of flour. The presumption is that he did not hear the approach of the engine.

Fatal Railway Wreck.

Waterville, Me., Sept. 6.—An excursion train on the Maine Central railroad was wrecked Sunday morning two miles west of Etna station. One person was killed and 32 wounded. The train was carrying excursionists from Dover and Foxcraft to the Etna camp meeting. The breaking of a flange derailed and overturned a car containing 63 passengers.

Gave Up Their Offices.

Washington, Sept. 8.—The post office department is informed that Postmaster Stull, at Mount Pleasant, Ia., and Postmaster Hamilton, at Warren, Ind., who declined to surrender their offices when removed, on the ground that the recent civil service order covered the case, have both surrendered their offices to the inspectors.

YELLOW FEVER.

It Is Said to Be Epidemic at Ocean Springs, Miss.

Quarantine Measures Are Adopted at Several Points—One Death in New Orleans—Little Danger of the Plague Spreading.

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 7.—Gov. McLaurin has just received the following telegram from two members of the state board of health, who went to Ocean Springs, Miss., Sunday to investigate the yellow fever scare:

"After a most thorough investigation in every conceivable light, it is the unanimous opinion of representatives of Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi state boards of health and the marine hospital service that the fever now prevailing in Ocean Springs is yellow fever.

(Signed) "H. H. HARRANSON,
"J. F. HUNTER."

Flee from the Fever.

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 7.—Despite the quarantine proclamation against yellow fever sufferers at Ocean Springs and vicinity, about 100 persons from Scranton, Biloxi, etc., tried to get into Mobile on the midnight train, but the police surrounded the cars and but four passengers were let off, they being through from New Orleans and being subject to examination by the physicians here. The others were taken on to a point above Mobile, where they will be transferred to the west-bound train and taken back where they came from. It is said the excitement down the road is very great and that crowds went into New Orleans on the late trains. They did not wait for their baggage, and some did not even fully clothe themselves, such was their hurry to leave.

New Orleans Excited Over News.

New Orleans, Sept. 7.—President Olliphant, of the Louisiana board of health, sent a telegram to that board here at ten o'clock confirming the report that the physicians at Ocean Springs had declared the prevailing sickness undoubtedly yellow fever. The doctors of three states came to this conclusion after holding an autopsy on the body of a person who died Sunday.

The fever has been prevalent at Ocean Springs for some time. Two weeks ago, after a careful investigation, the Louisiana authorities declared the disease to be dengue, which it probably was at that time, the disease being mild and the death rate trifling. During the past week, however, the disease has become more virulent and has probably developed into yellow jack.

Decides Upon Quarantine.

The state board of health has decided to enforce a rigid quarantine against Biloxi and Ocean Springs. Quarantine will also be enforced against the other watering places on the gulf coast until President Olliphant returns and more light is obtained on the situation. Guards are to be put on the trains and at the stations, all baggage is to be fumigated and every precaution is to be taken to keep the disease out of the city. The Louisville & Nashville trains have been ordered not to stop at either Biloxi or Ocean Springs. The houses of all people who have returned to New Orleans in the past two days are to be thoroughly fumigated.

Uncle Sam Will Aid.

Washington, Sept. 8.—The general government will render all assistance in its power to check the spread of yellow fever. This will be done mainly through the agency of the Marine hospital service. Dr. Walter Wyman, the head of the bureau, returned to this city Tuesday afternoon and assumed active charge in directing the work in assisting the state officials of Mississippi in their efforts to confine the disease to the locality where it appears to have started. Dr. Wyman says that as yet he has no opinion to express whether the disease is really yellow fever, although he admits it looks very auspicious. The precautionary measures he has taken are based entirely on the declarations of the state board of health of Louisiana in the Gelpi case, which was that the disease from which the person died was yellow fever.

A Proclamation.

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 8.—The state board of health has issued a proclamation excluding from the state all persons and baggage from the yellow fever infected points in Louisiana and Mississippi unless accompanied by a certificate that he has not been exposed to the disease within 15 days from the time of departure.

Accept Hawaii's Offer.

Washington, Sept. 8.—The full text of the formal acceptance by the Japanese government of the proposal to arbitrate its differences with Hawaii has been received in this city, and a copy was on Tuesday delivered to Secretary Sherman by the secretary of the Japanese legation, Mr. Mataui. It is from Count Okuma, minister of foreign affairs, to H. Shimamura, Japanese minister to Hawaii. Japan proposes the king of the Belgians as the sole arbitrator.

Wasted Lives.

Some people use their energies in a way that wastes the greater part of them. Hurry, worry, irritation, vexation, determination, and foolish anxiety keeps them constantly wasting precious vitality. This is foolishness People do not want irritation or stimulation. When anyone is tired he wants rest, not stimulants. When any one's energies begin to flag recuperation, not irritation, is wanted. "All tired out," some people say, "I need a stimulant." A very mistaken idea. No doubt such a one is in need of invigoration, recuperation, but not stimulants. Stimulants draw upon the vigor which one already possesses; they produce no vigor. When one is tired out, nervous, weak and despondent, Pe-ru-na is what is needed in the system. Pe-ru-na invigorates, recuperates, builds up, vitalizes, enriches, reinforces. Unlike so many other remedies, it does not simply irritate and stimulate. Pe-ru-na is an invigorator to nerve and blood. Partly Unconstitutional.

Lansing, Sept. 6.—Attorney-General Maynard has filed an opinion relative to the validity of the act of the last legislature relative to hawkers' and peddlers' licenses. He declares that while the act clearly applies to agents who take orders from house to house to be sent to another state and there filled, such a provision is clearly unconstitutional, being an attempt to regulate interstate commerce. The balance of the act is not, however, invalidated because of this unconstitutional provision.

PURE GOLD FOUND.

Startling Reports Are Received from the Michipicoten Country.

Detroit, Sept. 7. — A dispatch was received here yesterday from Wawa City, the newly laid out town in the Michipicoten gold country on Lake Wawa, Ontario. The embryo town is located in the one narrow pass which leads to Lake Wawa from the landing place on the shore of Lake Superior, which is but six miles from the gold discoveries. The dispatch says:

"As to the gold discoveries developing anything like the indications, it can be said that quartz has been found that assays over $300 a ton. It is found not in one section, but in different places, extending over several thousand acres. Quartz has been found here containing free gold in chunks as big as kernels of wheat—gold in its pure form, which does not have to be subjected to a chemical process to free it from the rock. Prospectors every day are finding specimens that assay $50 a ton. Probably 100 prospectors are to-day working in the hills. Another party of 65 reached here yesterday afternoon. Several thousand acres have already been claimed, but there are all kinds of disputes about priority of claims and nobody can tell who will get a patent from the government. The country where the discoveries were made has never been opened for settlement. The only inhabitants about are Indians and Hudson bay traders, and they are few."

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., Sept. 7.—The party of gold seekers on the yacht Mary Bell have returned from Michipicoten after having been in the new gold fields but three days. They say the newly discovered Eldorado is fully as rich as has been reported. There were 14 in the party, and all responsible business men of this city. Each of them secured claims upon which the gold quartz promised big returns. In all the party will make application for 4,000 acres which was prospected and staked out while they were there. Many samples of quartz in which free gold as large as a pin head can be seen were brought back by them. The specimens were secured from different places on their claims, which are scattered.

On Saturday afternoon a game of ball was played on our grounds between Britton's second nine and a picked nine from here. Our boys wresting victory from seeming defeat, at the end of the third inning, the score stood 10 to 1 in Clinton's favor, yet at at the end of the ninth, it was 18 to 16 in our favor. The game was characterized by heavy batting on both sides, and also in brilliant plays, mingled with many rotten errors. Cotton as umpire, did not give the best satisfaction, but then he deserved the treatment he received from a certain few spectators, who made themselves very obnoxious by their abusive language and childish behavior. It is hoped that in the future they will not make such an exhibition of themselves.

On Friday the last of the week, Dr. Shot went up to the farm in May-nard a cow, taking his wife with him to drive the horse, thinking if the cow got all right, he could ride. They took Doc just as he reached home, nearly exhausted from the unaccustomed exercise, she having misunderstood him. He thought he had done a big thing and was the hero of the hour. But Jambast was jealous, and something must be done to wrest the crown from him, so Sunday instead of keeping his appointment, he hied himself away to Blissfield and at even, jogging in at a small pace, leaning back and in a faint, but sepulchral voice exclaimed, "I have beaten Doc

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. TECUMSEH, MICH., SEPT. 10, 1897.

At the meeting of the village council last Monday evening three petitions were presented, two from the D., T. & M. and one from the property owners on Cummins street. The HERALD prints the communications in full.

The village of Tecumseh ordains that The Detroit, Toledo & Milwaukee Railway Company and its successors and assigns be hereby granted the right to occupy with its passenger depot and platform for the accommodation of passengers and baggage, that portion of Cummins street described as follows, viz: A rectangle sixteen feet in width north and south by one hundred feet in length east and west, having for its north line the north line of said Cummins street and for its east line the west line of Evans street and that said company be hereby granted the right to maintain a sidewalk or platform not to exceed ten feet in width at present sidewalk grade along the west line of Evans street adjoining the east end of its passenger depot, provided said railway company shall provide and maintain in tile, pipe or other suitable method, ample means for the suitable drainage of said streets through and under said depot, platform or sidewalk.

The village of Tecumseh ordains, that The Detroit Toledo and Milwaukee Railway Company and its successors and assignes be hereby granted the right to build and maintain a side track across Cummins street in said village, leading from its present established main track northeasterly to its freight depot, the frog of said side track to be located about one hundred feet east from the east line of Pearl street and the center of said side track to intersect the center of the present traveled carriage way on Cummins street aforesaid at a point two hundred feet east from said east line Pearl street on the present grade of said Cummins street, said Railway Company, however, to continuously maintain a good and safe plank crossing at the intersection of said side track and said traveled way of said street.

Tecumseh, Mich., Sept. 6, 1897.

To the Honorable, the Common Council of the Village of Tecumseh:

We, the undersigned property owners who own property on Cummins street in said village, most repectfully protest against the granting of a right to build a track across said street, to either the Detroit, Toledo & Milwaukee Railroad Company or to the Detroit & Lima Northern Railway Company, and also against any extension of the franchise now or heretofore held by said companies or by the former owners thereof and your petitioners will ever pray, etc.

JOHN LOWRY,	T. D. MARK,

GEO. B. MIZE.

The first ordinance relative to the depot platform was passed, the second together with the one from the property owners was laid over for two weeks that the members of the council might find out the wishes of the people of Tecumseh. The changing of location of the D. & L. N. and D., T. & M. station from the lower end of town to a more central location is of mutual advantage to the people of Tecumseh and to the railroad. Certainly the railroad company has gone to much expense to move their freight and passenger buildings from the old location where all was in good shape to do business and they had plenty of room to a nearer location where they must always be congested for room, simply that the people of Tecumseh who desired to ride on their roads might be able to reach the station easily. It would have made no difference in their passenger or freight business whether the station was located three or six blocks from the business center. Now the people of Tecumseh should be, and indeed are, willing to give all the concession possible to the railroad company. As a matter of fact the old town was all dried up and about ready to blow away when the D. & L. N. road came in line. Today there is hardly a house in town to be rented at all and rent has increased from 10 to 25 per cent. This very man Chiverall has been for months at work in Elkhart because there was no labor for him to do in Tecumseh. Such a state of affairs can only help the town in every way, new houses will be built and new factories will come. The very property on Cummins street owned by the signers of this petition is worth 25 per cent more today than before the railroad came, beside most of them were paid by the C., J. & M. company when the road was built years ago. Mr. Hodges received $100.00 and Mr. Chiverall $200.00. The people of Tecumseh join with the HERALD in advising the council not only to allow the side track to be put in on Cummins street, but to aid the railroad company in every way possible to make it pleasant and profitable for them to get their stations and tracks properly located. As before stated the benefit is mutual and so far the railroad company has done more than it agreed by Tecumseh in every instance.

FINANCIAL LETTER.

Chicago, Sept. 7, 1897.

The prediction for higher market for wheat made in the last letter of this correspondence has been more than verified by the events of the last two days. December wheat, which closed Saturday night at 93 5 8, opened today fully two cents higher, and there is nothing in the present outlook to indicate materially lower prices in the immediate future. On the contrary reports to Schwartz, Dupee & Co. from all parts of the wheat consuming world are that there is a marked scarcity, with indications that a worse condition of affairs is imminent. The Mark Lane Express, which is an authority in matters pertaining to food supply and demand in Europe, says that present wheat prices are nothing like as high as they will be when the outcome of the present shortage in all parts of the world is presented to the buyer. From Russia comes word that not only is the present crop a poor one, but the drouth is so severe that farmers experience great difficulty in preparing the ground for seeding. This phase of the situation will appeal to many American agriculturalists who find themselves in the same plight, and the continued lack of rain in our wheat states when it is imperatively needed for the planting of winter wheat is likely to become a serious factor in the situation here.

The English visible supply of wheat decreased 351,000 bu. in the last week and our own decrease was 656,000 bu. These figures should command attention from those who have learned to depend upon the United States for all the wheat the world may need, irrespective of the conditions elsewhere. The demands of Europe have evidently not been overestimated, and it was these demands, when there was promise of an abundant harvest in this country that put wheat to a dollar a short time ago. If the planting of winter wheat is to be seriously impeded by lack of rain, it does not take a prophet to foresee the future of that cereal. Primary receipts are averaging only about half what they were a year ago. The report this morning for two days was 2,400,000 bu. as against 2,443,000 bu. for one day a year ago. It is natural to suppose that with September wheat selling at 96 6 better in Chicago and December at 95 there is a good movement of the stocks at hand, and therefore the low primary receipts mean much to those who look below the surface.

Corn has held its own well, but its situation is radically different from that of wheat, because of a good crop this year and a heavy accumulation from the crops of 1895 and 1896. At present prices the American farmer must receive a vast amount of money for the corn in sight even though the weather conditions remain favorable. In the event of killing frosts prices would, of course, go much higher, and these are within the range of possibilities.

The following table shows the close Saturday night and today of wheat and corn as dealt in on the Chicago Board of Trade.

	Close Sept. 4.	Close today.
Sept. wheat	94 1-2	96 1-4
Dec. wheat	93 5-8	96 1-9
Sept. corn	30 3-4	31 3-4
Dec. corn	32 5-8	33 1-2

Young Man and Woman.

Permit us to ask you a few direct questions: they are so pertinent that you may regard them as impertinent. We do not so intend them, but want to direct your attention to a subject of vital importance to you.

Are you satisfied with what you are doing? Have you acquired an occupation that will support you in independence and give you a chance to save money? Are you leading a useful life?

If you cannot answer these questions affirmatively, write to the Business University, 11-19 Wilcox avenue, Detroit, Mich., for a catalogue. That institution educates young men and women to maintain themselves in profitable independence.

E. J. Smith (Philander Perkins) returned to the city this morning. He was in Tecumseh yesterday where it is reported he tried to pass himself off as a bicycle expert but had on a hat with a railway conductor's check, which gave the whole snap away. It is also known that he returned home by train. The long distance bicycle riders are on to his racket, and don't want it to happen again.—Telegram.

The Petersburgh Sun and the Blissfield Advance have declared a war of words, or some other kind of a wrangle about the markets of their towns. That "shining light" of the Advance boast about his town paying more than any town in the county for wheat, etc., does that to fill up space as he is to tired to "hustle" for copy. We believe that they are both working under a halucination of some kind, as we have noticed the markets in their papers prior to this wrangle and believe that neither one corrected them once in a month.—Deerfield Times.

Chas. H. Metcalf, of Detroit, who has been in the Klondike since 1894, is back among his old friends in the City of the Straits. He has come back with some money, not made in gold mining, however, but in trading with the Indians. Mr. Metcalf advises all to stay away until next spring, when the season will be opened better. He confirms much that has been said about the wonderful gold finds in that regions, but says all the best claims are taken. As the country opens up, however, he predicts mammoth gold bearing discoveries. Men are in demand for work at Dawson City, at $15 per day and higher, with meals at $1 each when provisions are plenty (beans and pork principally) and much higher when scarce.—Adrian Telegram.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

"A good claim agent" is the title under which an exchange tells how settlement was made with an old Swede farmer whose valuable colt jumped out of the pasture, ran upon the track of the Baltimore & Ohio and was killed by an express train:

"We are very sorry that this affair happened," said the claim agent, "and I hope it will not be necessary for us to go into court."

The old man looked at him suspiciously and shifted about uneasily, but said nothing.

"You must remember," continued the claim agent, "that your colt was a trespasser on our property when the accident occurred. We don't want any litigation, however, if we can help it, and we'd like to arrange a settlement with you on a friendly basis."

"Vell," slowly said the Swede, "Ay tal you. Ay bin sorry das fool colt runned on the railroad track, but ay been a poor man. Ay shall give you two dollar!"

Passenger train No. 44, on the D. & L. N., due here from the south at 8:47 p. m., ran into a peculiar obstruction near Hamler, fifty-three miles south of this city, about 6:50 last evening. A man was driving over a crossing with a load of stone when the team either became paralyzed with fear, or else was unequal to the feat of pulling the heavy load over the rails, and stood stock still on the track in front of the oncoming train. The driver jumped from his seat, unhooked the team, and got them off the track, just as the engine struck the wagon. The engineer had slackened speed, and fortunately nothing worse than a wrecked pilot resulted.—Adrian Times.

Judge Lane this morning dissolved the injunction obtained by the Lake Shore company, enjoining A. F. Langdon from disturbing the wire fence erected by the railway company, and preventing him from building a side track on the north side of the mill. Mr. Langdon states, however, that he will not touch the fence, nor build another at present. He has a Lima Northern sidetrack running to the north side of the elevator, which will answer all present purposes at least.—Adrian Times.

District Freight Agent W. O. Hunt states there was no foundation to the report that the Detroit & Lima Northern would locate its shops either at Tecumseh or Detroit. Mr. Hunt says he does not believe the company is ready to put up shops anywhere just at present, and that when it is different cities along the line will probably be given a chance to bid for the prize. He considers Adrian a feasible and convenient point for the location of shops.—Adrian Times.

There are now employed on the Wabash lines twenty-five collectors, and the conductor has only to look after his train. In this connection it is stated that there has been no perceptible increase in cash returns collected from passengers on these trains. The same result followed when General Manager Greene placed collectors on the Big Four trains, says the Free Press.

Lake Shore freight No. 92 met with an accident at Lenawee Junction which resulted in the injury of Conductor Anderson and Brakeman Reeper. The former will not be able to work for some time, and the latter was badly shaken up. The train was broken in two, and the conductor and brakeman were thrown off the train.

The D. & L. N. is hauling 80 cars of Virginia coal a day, making nearly 400 cars already this week. They could handle more so far as the desire of the shipper is concerned, but a rush of other freight, some of which is perishable, makes it impossible to do more with the present equipment.

Dundee Special: The Toledo and Milwaukee railroad, formerly the Cincinnati, Jackson and Mackinaw, is extending its line through Dundee to Detroit. The work of surveying has already begun and the track will be laid as soon as the ground can be prepared.—Adrian Times.

That the D. & L. N. road is doing a rushing freight business can be fully appreciated from 2 to 6 a. m. every day, by those who live along the line of the road in the city.—Adrian Messenger.

A tramp, who was catching a ride on the D., T. & M. train yesterday near Tipton, fell under the wheels and had his leg cut off. Dr. Rice, of Tipton, attended him.

About fifty married people are going to Tecumseh Friday via the D. & L. N., to have a picnic dinner on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. George Tiffany.—Adrian Times.

A trunk belonging to Julia Dean Grant, a grand-daughter of U. S. Grant, was transferred at Tecumseh en route for Chicago Monday.

Auditor and Mrs. Richmond were in Lima, Ohio, over Sunday. Mr. Richmond's mother returned with them for a visit.

The hall both down and up stairs, is papered in old gold and brown. The library a rich floral pattern of terracotta, sewing room a beautiful pattern, and bed rooms in green and chrisanthemum figures. The dining room is a beauty in empire red. Not the least part of this job is the excellent workmanship. Not a seam can be seen, and everything about the work is neat and tasty. Mr. Howard is an excellent workman, has come to Tecumseh with a fine stock and if doing the best work at lowest prices will win, purposes to stay.

Resolutions of Respect.

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. church of Tecumseh is called to mourn the loss of one of its members in the death of Mrs. Hulda M. Russell who passed away from a life of usefulness to that of eternal rest on the morning of June 5, 1897. As a society we miss her cheerful presence and ever ready help, and while we as a society feel and mourn our loss, we bow in submission to him who doeth all things well.

RESOLVED that the sympathies of the society be extended to the bereaved family and friends. Though dead she yet speaketh through the memory of her happy christian life, the memory of the just is blessed.

MRS. WM. IDE.
MISS ADA HENDERSON.

Drawn at the first meeting of the society September 1, 1897.

The Annual School Meeting

Was held at the Central school building last Monday evening and the reports made by the director and superintendent showed the schools in fine condition. The enrollment of pupils from outside the district is larger than at commencement of school for many years. The terms of office as members of the board of trustees of P. S. McKinnon and Dr. Howell expired and they were both elected to succeed themselves. The taxpayers seem much pleased with the manner in which the schools are conducted.

The following is the list of teachers for the coming school year:

Superintendent—L. M. Kellogg.

High School—L. M. Kellogg, Flora H. Hartbeck, Phebe J. Bullock, Jennie B. Gallatin.

Grammar department, Central Building—Alice S. Wimple, Nannie Kyle, Bertha Monagin.

East Branch—Lena M. Swick, Anna L. Gamble, Kittie M. Dryden, Lillian E. Avery.

West Branch—Maude M. Howell, Florence E. Secor.

North Branch—Ella A. Norris.

Teacher of Vocal Music—Florence G. Taylor.

Farewell.

Monday evening the members of the M. E. church and congregation met in the church parlors, the occasion being a reception given Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Varner in view of their approaching departure for their new home in Wyoming.

The two small parlors were furnished as dining rooms, one decorated in red and the waiters there were dressed in white and red, and the other decorated in green with the waiters costumed in white and green. Doughnuts and coffee were served. The lecture room was nicely decorated with palms, flowers and bunting.

The rooms were crowded with a company happy to be able to once more associate and enjoy the society of their beloved pastor and his good wife, still sorry to think that soon they would meet no more.

In the midst of all the laughter and hum of conversation Walter Burnett called the company to order and presented with a few apt remarks a beautiful silver tea set to Rev. and Mrs. Varner as a token of the regard felt for them by the church people. The recipients both expressed their thanks in a feeling manner and will ever remember the thoughtfulness and kindnesses of their Tecumseh friends. But the other members of the family were not forgotten, Carl and Orrien being the recipients of nice remembrances presented by Glen Lanning in behalf of the Junior League.

This closes a pastorate of five years for Mr. and Mrs. Varner which might be called successful. Both have endeared themselves to the church members and people of Tecumseh in a way so that they will never be forgotten. The good wishes and good will of all our people go with them to their new home in the west.

PARTING MOMENTS.

Three minutes! Aye, the fateful clock,
With measured movement seems to mock
My hopes and prayers,
And what I hope I do not know;
I feel my spirits sinking low
With weight of fears.

Three minutes! Will no power restrain
The hand that counts them, and again
My peace restore?
I plead in vain; they will not stay;
They pass, alas! away, away,
Forevermore!

Three minutes, and the end will be!
I'll vainly look that face to see
I now behold.
Yet I these moments' memories will,
Deep in my heart, though cold or ill,
Fore'er enfold.

Good-by! What future time may bring
Of pain, or joy, or anything,
We cannot tell.
We know that truth, at last, shall reign,
And God shall make His purpose plain,
And all be well.

—Baltimore American.

A Clever Little Woman.

The rain was dashing against the hospital window one afternoon in March when I made my rounds. I left Marta to the last, as I felt that on a dreary day like this she would be more than ever glad of a chat.

I had not sat beside her for five minutes before I found that she was in a highly-strung condition, her eyes were so bright, her skin dry, and her pulses quivering with their rapid beats. After a few commonplaces, I said:

"What is it, Marta? What is the matter to-day? You have no new pain—no fresh trouble?"

"No monsieur," she answered, "it is that I cannot still my thoughts—to-day is the anniversary—" and she stopped.

Her beautiful gray eyes were full of tears, and she was trying hard to exercise self control.

"Tell me," I said, "all about the anniversary."

"It was 12 years ago to-day since I met my husband, Jean Louvain," she began eagerly, "and our meeting was a strange one indeed! I was in search of a clever forger—whom the police believed to be a woman—and I had to go to Riviera in search of her. I had been in the Hospital of St. Jacques to see a man whom I thought could give me information, and it occurred to me suddenly that the dress of a Sister of Mercy would be a good disguise. I left Paris in time to reach Marseilles [illegible] lovely morning [illegible] of a [illegible] scarcely [illegible] in the [illegible]. No [illegible] soon, and the [illegible] collar and [illegible] me quite a different appearance. I had brought a small [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] carry [illegible], and I had my [illegible] [illegible] more. I was [illegible] that [illegible] the [illegible] tired [illegible] [illegible] which [illegible] [illegible] pairs in [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] troubles I carried always a bottle of ether and a [illegible] pad of chloroform, both wrapped for safety in a square of jewelers' cotton."

"Ah, I see!" interrupted I. "Your forger found them, and used them to stupefy you!"

"Pardon, monsieur," she returned, "my tale is better than that! At Marseilles I got into a compartment whence several people descended, and a man, who was its sole occupant, tried to prevent my entrance, as if unconsciously; but I looked sharply at him and got in. He then placed his arms on the doorway and blocked the window until the train left the station; then he threw himself on the seat in the corner farthest from me on the opposite side, and flung off the large cloak he was wearing.

"To my surprise and horror, I saw he was partly dressed as a woman, and he took from beneath the seat a bag like those in which workmen carry their tools and quietly continued his toilet. Naturally I watched him. He was small and slight, and very fair, and when he took off his coat and waistcoat, collar and tie, I saw a great scar beneath the left ear going right under his chin.

"I knew him instantly; he was Durette, the man whom I believed safely in prison at Toulon, who was the most ingenious and cruel of a gang of thieves who had infested Paris for three years, and who had been cleverly captured three months before. The captor had received 5,000 francs, and now he was at large again, and here before me in this narrow compartment. He stopped his toilet, and said to me, in the quiet, clear voice which I knew to be one of his characteristics:

"My sister, I am running for my life. My life is dear to me, and nothing shall stand in the way of my freedom—do you understand? Nothing!"

"As he said this he took from his bag a large, sharp knife, such as shoemakers use, and laid it on the seat beside him. Judge, monsieur, how I felt. Thought is quick, and my brain had traveled far in the few minutes of the journey. Here was Durette; if only I could capture him—the reward would make my dear invalid mother rich for the rest of her life! I would try, I would think; I would not quail. But first I must act! I shrank into my corner at his words and trembled, and let the tears fill my eyes as I looked up appealingly at him.

"'Fear not, dear sister,' he said mockingly; 'if you do as I say, you have nothing to dread. I shall quit the train at Toulon, and you must talk to me as if I were coming home to my family, and you had made acquaintance with me at Lyons.'

"Of course I promised, and he went on arranging himself. His hair was short, and he put on a black woman's wig and earrings in his ears; he had a skirt twisted around at his waist, and this he let down, then he made me fasten a white chemisette, and he put on a bodice, which I laced. Judge how I was thinking, monsieur! My hands trembled with excitement, for the train was rushing on, and it is barely one hour between Marseilles and Toulon. He talked—I suppose he was glad to speak again after his solitary imprisonment—he reassured me kindly, and said he would not harm me if I obeyed him, and he made me vow on the cross I wore that I would say no word till he was out of sight.

"'And I shall watch your train away, my sister,' he added.

"After I had finished dressing him, I went back to my seat, and then I laughed. He looked furious, and asked me why I was such a fool. I said his face was a fair woman's, and his hair a dark one's, and he would be noticed directly. He scowled at me, and said 'Idiot!' but at the same time he brought from his bag a bottle of dye and a brush, and began to color his hands. The stuff would not run, and he shook the bottle violently, but it came in lumps. 'I want some spirit,' he said, viciously, and he swore—oh, monsieur, so awfully.

"I trembled really this time, for it was so fearful to be shut up with such a wretch! Then an inspiration came to me, and I said: 'See, I have no cognac, but I take a medicine sometimes which is a spirit,' and I poured some of the ether into his bottle and shook it. It ran beautifully, became a clear, brown liquid; he scarcely looked a 'thank you,' but rapidly painted his hands, using his left as cleverly as his right; then he tried his face — and then I laughed again, this time with joy, for I had regained my courage, and I felt I should capture him.

"'Why do you laugh now?' he said, fiercely.

"'Because you are making your cheeks too dark, your eyelids are white, and you have left a rim around your lips,' I said, in as steady a voice as I could command.

"'Good heavens!' he exclaimed, and then he said to me: 'Take this brush and paint me!'

"I took it, and pretended to tremble, as I touched his face.

"'Fool!' he shrieked, 'I will not hurt you—see how the train rushes—lose no time!'

"'Then, in return,' I replied, 'you must dress [illegible]' I caught up his [illegible] and [illegible] around him, as a barber puts his cloth, and, taking [illegible] I began to paint [illegible] most I [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THE VINE HOPPER.

How This Destructive Pest Is Fought in California.

Bulletin No. 116 of the California station (Berkeley) describes the "California Vine Hopper," which is counted as one of the four things doing the greatest injury to the vineyards of California. The bulletin gives an interesting account of the life history of this injurious insect and goes on to suggest remedies, some of which may be of interest to our readers. It is stated that some growers believe that the hopper may be kept in subjection by "sheeping" the vineyard. Sheep are turned into the vineyards after the fruit is picked and permitted to eat down the leaves. This method is considered ineffective, as are also the methods of burying the leaves and spraying in winter.

Summer spraying is said to be an effectual process, but is costly and difficult. The insect is very active, and in order to kill it a very strong and penetrating wash like kerosene emulsion must be used. Jarring is considered one of the best remedies when tried in the spring and under certain conditions. Fig. 1 shows certain contrivances that are used in jarring. The scoop or shovel is held up against the vine to hold the hoppers which are driven down by striking with a stick. Another way to fight the pest consists in using a plain palm leaf fan dipped in a sticky mixture like thick molasses and water. The fan is held under the vine with one hand while with the other the operator strikes the leaves so as to knock the hoppers down upon the fan. An insect net shown at Fig. 2 is also used. With this the vine is jarred and as the insects fly a few skillful strokes with the net will catch most of them, and they may be crushed or emptied into kerosene.

Prof. Woodworth says that the net and the fan methods are the only ones which are at all practical for summer use. He observed that nearly 90 per cent. of the hoppers were killed by the net method while working with a gang large enough to cover about five acres a day. About half of the gang of men were green hands, part white and part Chinese, and at the rate of wages the cost per acre would be between 15 and 20 cents. This is an illustration of the value of scientific agricultural work. Such pests are sure to come. The average farmer cannot afford time and study needed to understand how to fight such insects or diseases. There must be scientific men somewhere with nothing to do but to study these matters and give their results freely to the world.—Rural New Yorker.

DIET OF THE TOAD.

Wasps, Beetles and Yellow Jackets Compose Its Menu.

Bulletin 46 of Hatch (Mass.) station says the toad lives ten to forty years, does not begin to produce young till the fourth year, but then lays over 1,000 eggs a year. It has lived two years without food, but cannot live long under water. It never takes dead or motionless food. It takes its food by means of its tongue alone, and it operates this so rapidly that the eye cannot follow its motions. It captures and devours bees, wasps, yellow jackets, ants, beetles, worms, spiders, snails, bugs, grasshoppers, crickets, weevils, caterpillars, moths, etc.

The station examined with a microscope the contents of the stomachs of seven toads in April, 30 in May, 66 in June, 26 in July, ten in August and seven in September—149 in all. On an average it was found that 80 per cent. of the toad's food consists of harmful insects, and 11 per cent. was of such beneficial insects as bees, spiders, lady bugs, etc.

The stomach that doesn't flinch at yellow jackets, wasps, blister beetles and click beetles or pinch-bugs would seem to be prepared for anything in the insect line, and it doubtless is.

The quantity of food that a toad's stomach can accommodate is remarkable. In one were found 77 myriapods, in another 55 army worms, in another 65 gypsy moth caterpillars, in another nine ants, six cut worms, five myriapods, six sow bugs, one weevil and one wire worm beetle.

In 24 hours the toad consumes enough food to fill its stomach four times. Feeding at the rate above mentioned a single toad will in three months devour over 10,000 insects. If every ten of these would have done one cent damage the toad has saved ten dollars.

Evidently the toad is a valuable friend to the farmer, gardener and fruit grower, and can be made especially useful in greenhouse, garden and berry patch.

COOPERATION PAYS.

Some Reasons Why Fruit Growers Should Work Together.

One of the difficulties in modern American farming is that spirit of independence which is so largely developed in all classes of American citizens. It is most common of all among farmers, whose policy too often reminds us of the celebrated ox team, in which each animal wanted to be on the "off side." This is often seen in farmers' organizations, especially where farmers are remote from each other, and only come together infrequently. Undoubtedly the cooperative and other features of the grange have done much to dispel this feeling. But it still exists to far too great an extent. Each farmer dislikes partnerships, and prefers to work what land he can buy or rent without aid from others except as he can hire and pay for it.

Yet in all other vocations the greatest successes are made by combinations of capital. Why should there not be, to a limited extent at least, such cooperation among farmers. There was when the country was new, and the scarcity of capital made it possible for one man to put up the houses and barns that each farm required. Cooperation in such work seemed to be a necessity. Yet just so soon as each farmer could, he set himself to work to become independent of all his neighbors. It is in fruit growing that this need for cooperation is greatest. Insects and fungous diseases of fruits and leaves require combined effort to be successful. It is of no use for one man in any locality to destroy these on his own farm, while the whole neighborhood is left for the enemy to increase in until it cannot be suppressed. It has been by voluntary cooperation that the fruit growers of western Michigan have for many years kept their orchards free from the pests that prove so troublesome east. The black knot in the plum and the curculio and codling moth among insects were thus fought against. It has proven far easier to keep these enemies out than to suppress them after they had gained a foothold.

In one way all the fruit growers in any locality help each other, whether they wish to do so or not. Altogether their united production creates a market, and attracts buyers who would not come were a single fruit grower to offer his products for their inspection. So far from being an injury to his business, the rivals that most fruit growers have are a help to them. Neither are fruit growers injured by the dissemination of the knowledge needed to secure greater perfection of fruit. If all fruit were brought to the highest degree of perfection, much more would be eaten and the price of all fruit would be higher. There is far too much poor fruit offered for sale. It is this which most keeps down the price of good fruit. The general spread of intelligence as to the means for growing the best fruit is therefore the interest of all fruit growers.—American Cultivator.

FOR TOBACCO GROWERS.

Description of a Horse That Is Easily Made at Home.

For the construction of a home-made tobacco horse, as illustrated herewith, for the sides (a) take two pieces one by three inches and three feet ten inches long. The two cross pieces (b) are one by three inches and four feet ten inches long, nailed securely to sides (a) with eight penny nails. For cross piece (c) take one piece one by two inches and four feet four inches long and nail to sides (a). The feet (ee) are one by three inches and 12 inches long and nailed to sides (a) as a foot rest. Stick (d) is to hang tobacco on. Each hand takes two rows. After one strip is filled, one removes it and the other man moves the house and drops sticks, before beginning to cut, at every three hills in each third row if 12 plants are to be put on the stick. Put two rows together and if in danger of sunburn, put eight to twelve sticks in a heap and only the top stick will be in danger of sunburn. In hauling, have three hands, one on the wagon and one on each side to pass tobacco from the heap to the wagon. Regulate the tobacco on the stick when cut and after it wilts there will be no more to do.—T. A. Harpending, in American Agriculturist.

Extent of Truck Farming.

The agricultural department says that in truck farming, as distinct from market gardening at the time of the last census, there were 534,440 acres of land and more than 240,000 persons employed. The produots had a value of $76,517,155 after paying freights and commissions, and more than $100,000,000 were invested. Since that time the business has grown rapidly, and it now probably yields more money to the southern states than any other single industry.

Protection for Berries.

Currants, gooseberries and other berries can easily be kept free from weeds during the late summer and fall, when the rush of farm work calls for all the help in the fields, by covering the ground around the plants with a thick coat of straw. This will settle down by winter and protect the plants and furnish plant food for next season. Currant worms very rarely do much damage to bushes that have been cultivated. They have no chance to hide in the grass.

VICTIMS OF A MOB.

Masked Men Maltreat a Couple at West Harrisville.

Harrisville, Sept. 3.—This vicinity is excited over an outrage perpetrated by a masked mob upon Hiram McKinna and Mrs. Frank Haws. McKinna was recently shot and slightly injured by Mrs. Haws' husband on account of McKinna's alleged familiarity with Mrs. Haws. During Wednesday night two parties of masked men took the woman and McKinna from the latter's house, stripped them of most of their clothing and marched them to West Harrisville, three miles distant, flogging them both with whips en route. The hair was cut from Mrs. Haws' head, and finally the couple were left tied to a telegraph pole. Later McKinna cut the ropes which bound them with a penknife, which he had managed to conceal, and returned home with the woman, who was in a pitiable condition from the blows she received. There have been no arrests yet.

DYNAMITE IN THE STACKS.

Michigan Threshers Blown Up by Malicious Persons.

Niles, Sept. 6.—Farmers throughout southern Michigan are looking for persons who have secreted sticks of dynamite in sheaves of wheat. Near Galesburg, while Louis Lefevre was threshing, an explosion took place, which wrecked the separator, stacker and attachment, and the flames destroyed every bushel of wheat and the farm buildings. Several men at work on the thresher were blown many feet away and severely injured. Saturday afternoon while Harmon Delong was threshing wheat on George Townsend's farm, near Vandalia, a terrific explosion took place, blowing the separator to fragments. At least half a dozen of these explosions have occurred in different parts of the country, and the losses have been large. Farmers have hired detectives to investigate.

IN A BURNING BLANKET.

Demented Woman's Method of Ending Her Existence.

Owosso, Sept. 6.—Miss Millie Comstock preferred death to spending the rest of her life in an insane asylum. She adopted a sure method of ending her existence. Saturating a blanket with kerosene oil she wrapped herself in it. Then she placed a match to the blanket and drew her head into its folds, completely enveloping herself in flame. She died in great agony. Miss Comstock was a music teacher. She had been in poor health for some time and preparations were being made to remove her to the Pontiac asylum.

Pingree's Employes at Work.

Detroit, Sept. 3.—The strike of the 600 employes in Gov. Pingree's shoe factory was brought to an end and the machinery was started at one o'clock Thursday afternoon. By agreement every one is pledged to silence as to the terms, but it is rumored that although the firm made some minor concessions, yet there will be no increase in the scale until the present poor condition of the shoe business changes for the better. Employes in the finishing room are to get a minimum rate of $1.25 a day hereafter, it is said, and the firm will pay the full rate to men who succeed others on a new job, provided the new men are proficient.

Dying Man Confesses Crimes.

Bancroft, Sept. 8.—Harry F. Leadley, of Rochester, N. Y., died here Monday. Before his demise he stated that he had been guilty of killing a Miss Emerson in Rochester and of embezzlement from a Rochester fire insurance firm. Charles T. Leadley, father of the deceased, was interviewed in Rochester. He acknowledged the man was his son, but said nothing about the crimes mentioned.

McMillan Has Retired.

Detroit, Sept. 3.—The fact that Senator McMillan has practically retired from the Michigan Peninsular Car company is demonstrated by the resignations of James and James C. McGregor, general manager and superintendent respectively of the works here. For over 30 years James McGregor has been recognized as Senator McMillan's right-hand man.

Killed by a Train.

Petoskey, Sept. 6.—Mrs. Benjamin Hankins, aged 50, wife of a veteran of the civil war, was struck by a southbound train on the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad, near Pellston, and almost instantly killed. She was quite deaf and was walking on the track at the time. The uncle of her husband was killed the same way a year ago.

Bears Devour a Child.

Standish, Sept. 2.—The 12-year-old daughter of a Deep River farmer went berrying Monday and has not been seen since. Bears abound in the vicinity, and it is reported that particles of the child's clothing have been found in a patch. The inference is that the little one has been devoured by bears.

Lived to a Ripe Age.

St. Joseph, Sept. 4.—Mrs. Helen Ward Lewis, who was born in Delaware 107 years ago this month, is dead from extreme old age. She was a slave and was sold several times. She has always enjoyed good health. She joined the Roman Catholic church on her hundredth birthday.

Michigan Teachers.

Lansing, Sept. 5.—The executive committee of the State Teachers' association met here and decided to hold this year's meeting in this city beginning December 28. The principal address of the week will be delivered by either Bishop Vincent, Rabbi Hirsch or Nicholas Murray Butler, of New York.

Pastor Resigns.

Saginaw, Sept. 6.—Rev. William Knight, pastor of the First Congregational church, has resigned on account of ill health.

WE WANT TO TELL YOU

Why Your Back is Lame—Why it Aches and Pains, and How to Cure It.

Do you know what it is to have a back that is never free from aches and constant pain, a lame back, a sore back, an aching back, in fact, a back that makes your life a burden? What have you done for it? And does it still keep you from the happiness that perfect health brings to all? We know full well if such is your condition a cure for it will be a blessing you no doubt desire. Plasters won't do it, but may assist in bringing strength. Liniment won't do it; for, while it may give temporary relief, it does not reach the cause. The cause, there's the point; there's where to make the attack. Most backaches come from disordered kidneys, therefore you must correct their action if you would be cured. Read the following from D. D. Cook, whose address is No. 18 Michigan Street, Grand Rapids. He says:—

"I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and wish to say it is a truly great medicine. Thirty years ago I had nervous prostration while in the army, where I served for over four years. I think it was during this service that the seeds were sown which have caused all my trouble. Severe bilious attacks bothered me, and at such times my kidneys were worse. It is almost impossible to describe the pain which so often lamed me. I have been so lame that to stand up after I had been sitting down required a great exertion. Walking was at times an impossibility, even at night I did not rest, being forced to get up during the night. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and wondered if they could make an almost lame man well. I got some, and soon after taking them began to feel their good effects. I used them for some time, my lameness all left me and I have not felt it since. Doan's Kidney Pills have done me an inestimable amount of good."

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture. like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

A LIFE HISTORY.

BY JENNY WREN.

I CAN say without vanity, looking back over this long stretch of years, that I was not unjustly called the belle of our town. It was a quiet place during eight long months of the year and I found it dull enough, and wondered why it was appointed that I must drag out my life within its limits, but the remaining four months saw it emerge as the butterfly from its chrysalis, and waken into such fullness of action that it almost compensated. It was during those periods that I learned my beauty entitled me to a wider sphere, or so I thought in my narrowness of judgment; but when, at ball or reception, I saw men leave the richly attired women whom they met the year round to seek an introduction to me, simply dressed and the daughter of a retired officer, it was little wonder that a blush of conscious pride rose to my cheek, or my eye burned with a satisfied vanity.

I was but 18 when I met Vance Wilmour, He was double my age, and when he bent over me with the wonderful grace of manner he so fully possessed, or let his eyes dwell on mine with an impassioned glance, my heart would throb as a voice within would say: "This is love." It seemed as though an emperor had stooped from his throne to ask the peasant girl to share his high estate when he at last told me of his devotion and asked me to become his wife. My father shook his head when I, joyously exultant, asked him to receive my lover.

"He is not the man to make my bright, uncaged bird happy," he answered. "Take care, Madge. No matter how brightly gilded the bars may be, the mountain songster will beat out his life against them in the struggle to be free."

But to all that he might say my ears were deaf. He could bring forward no real obstacle, however, and so I won at last reluctant consent, and six months from the day I met Vance Wilmour I became his wife. At last I was to see and mingle with the world. It was of this I thought, rather than the solemn vows I had just uttered, as side by side we had bade farewell to the old home, and were journeying to the new. Still, all my heart was his, and had he cared to mold me he might have cast it in any form.

I was not long in finding the emptiness of that I had so desired. The home to which my husband had brought me was perfect in its every appointment. The suite of rooms he had had prepared for me to my unaccustomed eye presented a vista of fairyland, and for a time I was happy. But then, as my father had predicted, my wings began to beat themselves against the bars. I learned to recognize that underneath the velvet touch was the iron hold, that I must stand ever ready with a smile, faultlessly dressed, to receive him and those whom he summoned to admire his captive. No weariness, no fatigue gave excuse. I learned then why he had married me. Wealth, station, all were his, but his pride demanded more. My beauty he knew would reflect credit upon his taste. I was too young, too ignorant to interfere with his pleasures or assert my rights as a wife. So he reasoned, and his judgment served him well.

For a year there was little to mar the scene, then my health failed. Excitement and constant gayety did their work. Nature demanded rest, and even he was obliged to recognize the necessity. Then followed months in which I scarcely saw him, when he hardly found time to come to the couch on which I constantly lay to inquire if I were better or worse; and when in my impatience I would greet him with words of reproach or anger he would silence me by some cutting words of scorn, which would leave their sting for days behind. I was utterly unable to cope with him, and when in the spring three years from the date of our marriage he was induced to join a hunting excursion on the western plains I bade him good-by with scarce a feeling of regret.

Six weeks later I was one day summoned to the presence of a gentleman who told me with trembling voice and pallid lips that I was widowed. Their party while hunting had been attacked by a party of Indians and Vance had fallen in the field, while they, to save their own lives, had been unable even to rescue his body. The shock proved more than I could bear, and for months they thought I would not live; but as health and strength crept slowly back a wonderful softness had taken possession of my heart, and I mourned him with a tender pity, burying his faults in his far-off grave.

As soon as I was able to bear the journey I closed my house and turned my face to the old home with a great content nestling in my spirit, that the quiet I had once despised again was to be mine. My dear old father met me with open arms, and I felt when pressed to his breast as though I had gained a haven indeed after my long and stormy voyaging on the sea of life. Two peaceful years passed away and my father's hair grew white and his form bent. I began to think of the time when I should be left alone in the world—alone and desolate.

I had kissed him good night one evening as I passed out and wended my way to the little village church. Sad thoughts had brooded in my memory all day, and I thought thus to drive them away, and, entering the sacred spot whose altar I had stood before as a bride, I fell upon my knees and uttered a prayer for all that sinful, foolish past.

An earnest, musical voice roused me, and, glancing up, I saw that a stranger occupied the pulpit.

I shall never forget the impression Edward Fearing made on me that night. I had listened heretofore to sermons from a sense of duty, but of his every word fell straight upon my soul and planted there a seed. It was as though he were talking to me, and I listened spellbound. He was not in the strict sense a handsome man, but when carried away by his eloquence his eyes would light up with a wonderful brightness and his face almost grow radiant; he seemed possessed of a beauty scarcely earthlike.

The noise of the people rising from their seats as his voice died away recalled me to the present, but it was with an effort I roused myself. I reached home feeling that while such living words could reach my ear life could not be barren.

I entered my father's study, treading softly lest I should disturb the slumber into which he seemed to have fallen. Drawing near, I softly laid my hand on his. It was icy cold. I stooped to kiss his brow, but its marble whiteness revealed to me the awful truth. The desolation which had hovered o'er my spirit all day had been no idle precursor of ill. Death had entered my home and snatched from me the one being left me to love. An awful calm fell upon me. No tears came to relieve my burning lids—not even when I heard the dull thud which gave back to mother earth its own.

It was then that Edward Fearing came to comfort me. It was long ere even his words penetrated the outer crust of rebellious discontent; but he probed his way so skillfully, so tenderly, that ere I knew it the healing waters of comfort rushed in, and found their vent in outward tears.

I do not know when I learned to love my teacher. Does one ever measure the hour, the moment, when love enters their lives? I could see by this passion which awakened in me the meaning of true love and false. No worldly glitter, no fickle allurements were here. The life we must lead together would be one devoted to the Master's service, but I felt nothing could be sacrifice I shared with him. I had told him all my past one afternoon, when he had just left me, and the echo of his words still was ringing in my ear, when an impatient tread across the hall, a shadow darkened the door of the room in which I sat.

I looked up, wondering if Edward had returned, with some forgotten word of fondness on his lips, when, standing with pale face I saw what in that first agonized moment I believed my husband's ghost.

I started with a wild cry, and would have fallen but that his arms caught and held me, and then I knew that it was no spirit, but living flesh which bound me.

Oh, the agony of that awakening, the torture of the thought which slowly burned itself upon my brain, that my love for Edward now was sin, that I who had so lightly talked of sacrifice shared with him must meet a greater sacrifice than any he had pictured, and meet it alone!

All this I endured while I lay seemingly in outward calm, and listened to my husband's story, how he had been left, as his friends supposed, dead upon the field; but how the Indians, strangely moved to pity, bound up the wounds they themselves had caused, and held him for six months captive. Then, procuring his release, and learning I thought him dead, he determined to leave me in that belief, but how his life had grown purposeless, and he grew to feel a vain yearning for home and wife.

"Had I found you married, Madge," he ended, "I would have gone away and made no sign, but instead you still wear the outward badge of widowhood, and though I little dreamed, my darling, that you should have mourned my loss, may I not by that sign plead for pardon? Will you not give me the hope of casting some sunshine on the life I have so cruelly darkened?"

That night Edward and I parted forever. I sent for him and told him all, and watched his face blench while I sat outwardly calm and unmoved.

"God's ways are not our ways," he said at last. "He has shown us how purposeless were the sacrifices we had planned, and He had greater ends in view. May He give us strength to bear."

The months which followed passed as in a dream, but my hands found plenty to fill them. My husband had come home to me a broken man, and I saw day by day that his strength was failing. Oh, how glad I was in those long vigils by his bedside that I had not faltered. A love as of a mother for her child grew in my breast as I watched his remorseful care, his earnest solicitude in my behalf, as his life ebbed away. It was inner as well as outer mourning I now wore, and for a year I lived on alone in my home, with no particular event to note the fleeting time.

One day a letter was put in my hand. I opened it and out dropped two inclosures, one in a hand which even then caused my heart to beat, and one a few lines in a strange writing. Edward's—for it was from him—ran thus: "When I learned that you were free, Madge, the wild, sweet hope rose in my breast that when I could I should come to claim my wife, but it was not to be. I have been stricken with a contagious fever, and my life is rapidly ebbing away. The verdict has gone forth, and I must die. It is but for a little while. I wait you in a better world. God bless you forever and forever." The other was penned after his death, but told what he had withheld, that no life lost on the battlefield showed greater heroism or truer glory. It is little wonder that I recall that bright joyous girl who once bore my name, as another being, as with folded hands I sit and wait. Sometimes my watch grows heavy, but my courage fails not. I wait on with at least contentment to the end.—N. Y. Ledger.

'ROUND ABOUT US.

Clippings and Condensations From our County Contemporaries.

A "bum" Uncle Tom's Cabin troupe did big business at Hudson the other night, and this is the way the Gazette roasts its own people for patronizing the fake performance: Many were seen in the audience who would have considered it an insult if asked to patronize a legitimate, high-class entertainment, and would have fallen dead if asked to devote 25c to charity. But let a company of homely darkies, a brass band and a pack of cheap actors (pardon the expression) come to our city and everybody turns out en masse, and the gay manager leaves the town next morning with a veritable Klondyke in his pocket and a mighty poor opinion of the height of Hudsonians' taste for entertainment.—Hudson Observer.

The rag weed and hay fever patients are squaring off at each other in dead earnest. It is when this detestable weed is in full bloom and begins to fly that hay fever patients begin to sneeze. The more the weed flies the more they sneeze. Gil Seewald, who speaks from experience, says, "The more they sneeze the more gaily the weed dances around under their noses." However, the "hay fever brigade" has so far this year very good cause to rejoice. The weed is a month or six weeks behind time in going to seed and as a consequence very little of the influenza is so far reported. But in another week or so it will be on deck and the wailing and gnashing of teeth will begin. The siege will be comparatively short, however, as frosts are predicted by Sept. 15. —Hudson Gazette.

"Four or five fresh young dudes from Adrian have been coming down here Sundays of late and making themselves generally previous. Last Sunday, they were here as usual, and standing on the river bridge, proceeded to make insulting remarks to every young lady who came along. Marshal Wood heard of their actions and hastened to the scene. Hod has a way of taking the law into his own hands that is very commendable in a case like this, and after serving up his famous left upper cut on the physiognomy of one dude giving another a slap along side of the jaw that caused him to see stars in daylight, and administering an 180 lb. force kick on the anatomy of a third youth where it would do the most good, he told them to 'git.' And the way the dudes 'got' would have done your eyes good. It is more than probable they will not come down here again, at least right away." —Blissfield Advance.

Lenawee county can have its own little Klondike if it wants to, and a rush of prospectors may be expected to start immediately. Considerable excitement prevails at Manitou Beach, a pleasure resort on the shores of Devil's lake, north of Hudson. Coal in quantities was discovered on the land of Mr. Weston while excavating Friday and everybody is dreaming of wealth.—Adrian Telegram.

A company of Adrian amateurs made their debut at Fairfield last night in a temperance play entitled "A Social Glass." The combination is composed as follows: Will Champenois, manager and leading man, Jas. Carlton, Ernest and Rutherford Sands, Jno. Hunter, Will Boucher, Mrs. Malinda Carlton and Miss Love. "Andy" Jackson furnishes the music incidental to the performance, using a mandolin and gramophone for the purpose. The several members of the troupe have all assumed stage names. Their next date is at Hudson on the 9th and they will play various other towns in the county.—Adrian Times.

SAFE IN PORT.

Treasure-Laden Alaskan Steamer Arrives at Seattle.

Brings with Her Only $575,000 in Gold Dust and Nuggets—Her Passengers Tell Interesting Stories of the Gold Fields.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 30.—The steamer Portland arrived here at three o'clock Sunday morning. It was 14 hours after the Portland was sighted off Cape Flattery before she arrived here. The Portland carried 13 miners, each of whom brought only a small part of his stake. The total amount of dust on the vessel is perhaps $575,000. The Portland was delayed by the failure of the P. B. Weare to arrive at St. Michaels and by a storm on the North Pacific ocean.

What the Passengers Say.

There are two facts about the Klondike brought out clearly by interviews with passengers on the Portland. They are, first, that Alaska's fields are rich with gold; second, that awful perils threaten those who seek it. The Yukon miners who came back on the Portland without exception estimate that not less than $10,000,000 will be taken out of the Klondike district next winter. Many of them think the amount will reach fully $15,000,000. Following are extracts of interviews with some of the passengers:

"You can believe almost any statement about the richness of the Klondike diggings that you hear. They are rich beyond description."

"It's hardly fair to judge the Klondike by the returns of this year, sensational as they may seem. The work that has been done is little more than 'gophering.' It was impossible to do systematic and thorough prospecting of claims. Next winter they will get down to solid work. Then look out for results."

"These two creeks (Bonanza and Eldorado) are richer than anything that has ever been found in the world so far. Larger nuggets and richer pockets have been found in many places, but history has no record where the pay streak has been so wide and the gold so evenly divided as on these two creeks. They will be enormous producers for the next ten years at least."

"There are big chances for capital on the Yukon. There are many miles of good ground which will yield handsomely when worked on a large scale, which the average miner cannot afford to work. A year's outfit costs from $750 to $1,000, and a prospector must find it pretty good in order to make his board bill. Consequently he looks for the rich spots only, whereas capital could work ground that the miner has rejected and make it pay big."

"It is just as good and even better than the Canadian side," says a firm believer in the American part of the Yukon. "There is lots of rich gravel on our side. Outside of the Klondike strike nearly all the gold diggings have been found on American territory. There are good chances there for prospectors and for capital."

"Warn people to stay out of the Yukon this winter. Tell them it means starvation there. Telegraph to every paper in the country that miners will starve there if more people go in."

"In warning people to wait until spring I simply act for the miners, who speak in the name of humanity. There is gold in the Yukon country, plenty of it, but to seek it this season under these circumstances is sheer madness. It is even worse, it is criminal to those who already are in the country."

"It is almost impossible to take in enough supplies, and to go without supplies means starvation, as there is not near enough food in there now for the people already in the district."

"Buildings cannot possibly be put up to accommodate everybody, and wintering in tents is out of the question."

"Anyone who has a good situation would be foolish to throw it up and go into the Yukon until more is known about the country. So far only glowing accounts have come out. There are plenty of hard-luck stories which are yet to be told. No one will lose anything by not going to the Yukon this fall."

"The Yukon is the last place on earth for a man to look for a soft snap. The very best will be hard living there."

Practically Agreed to Resume at 64 Cents Pending Arbitration.

Columbus, O., Sept. 1.—The coal strike is considered settled here.

The plan is to resume at 64 cents and work, pending arbitration.

The direct parties in this conference of adjustment are President Ratchford, of the United Mine Workers, and the executive committee of the operators. A number of the latter were in the city Tuesday and the result is that a decision may be looked for almost at any moment. The direct effect of this decision will be the opening of the mines and the resumption of work by all the striking miners the beginning of the coming week.

THE BOYS IN BLUE.

Proceedings of the Grand Army Encampment in Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Commander in Chief Thaddeus S. Clarkson proceeded to deliver his annual address. After the usual compliments and felicitations he proceeded to touch upon a variety of subjects. In relation to the story of the war as taught to children in the books of the public schools, and which has recently come in for a large share of public attention, he said:

"No subject in which the Grand Army is interested is more important than that the truth of history should be taught to our children. The committee of eminent comrades appointed by me to consider and report upon this subject have given much time and thoughtful consideration to it, and I do not hesitate to say you will be surprised at their findings, and I feel sure you will approve their report and recommendations. It is certainly not the object of the Grand Army of the Republic to keep open the wounds of the war, but of this we are determined—that one side of that great struggle was right and the other side was wrong—and we were not the wrong side, and we don't intend that our children shall be taught that we were. I hope the report of this committee will receive the careful consideration of this encampment, and this or a similar committee shall be kept at work until school histories in use in our public schools tell the truth."

Nominations for commander in chief were then declared in order, and Isaac F. Mack, of Sandusky, O.; J. P. S. Gobin, of Lebanon, Pa.; George H. Innis, of Boston, Mass., and John G. Linehan, of New Hampshire, were placed in nomination, Mr. Gobin being chosen on the second ballot. Cincinnati was selected as the place of meeting in 1898. The report of Adjt. Gen. Burmeister showed a membership on June 30 last of 319,456, against 327,442 on December 31, 1896. The relief fund was $516,020.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 28.—The Grand Army encampment came to an end yesterday after the election of the following officers: Senior vice commander, Alfred Lyth, of Buffalo; junior vice commander, Francis B. Allen, of Hartford, Conn.; chaplain, Frank C. Bruner, of Chicago; surgeon general, Dr. David McKay, of Dallas, Tex. Mrs. S. J. Martin, of Missouri, was elected national president of the Woman's Relief corps.

Commander in Chief Shaw, of the department of New York, offered a resolution providing that the last Sunday in May be observed as Memorial day and spoke at length in support of it. The resolution was defeated. The new officers were installed and the encampment adjourned at 3:45 p. m. to meet at Cincinnati next year.

A DEADLY VOLLEY.

Moonshiners Fire on Deputy Marshals in Pope County, Ark.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 31.—Six men were probably massacred in the wilds of the mountains of Pope county Sunday afternoon. Two were killed outright, two were fatally wounded and left for dead and two have mysteriously disappeared, and are either dead or being held captive by the bloodthirsty bandits who committed the awful crime. The killed are: Capt. B. F. Taylor, of Searcy county, a deputy United States marshal; Joe Dodson, of Stone county, a deputy marshal. The fatally wounded are two brothers named Renfrew, of Searcy county. The names of the missing men are not known, but they are supposed to be deputy sheriffs from an adjoining county. The victims were all officers, deputy United States marshals and deputy sheriffs, and the men who did the awful work of carnage are moonshiners of the boldest and most desperate class.

Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 30.—Congressman D. B. Henderson's left leg was removed at the knee joint Saturday. The amputation was made to arrest the decay of the bone and was completely successful. The operation also proved that it had not been delayed too long, for the bone above the knee joint was perfectly sound. He was shot in the foot at the battle of Corinth. The foot was amputated the following February and the leg has troubled him at irregular intervals since.

THE COURTS SCORED.

Labor Leaders Bitterly Denounce Government by Injunction.

Another Convention to Be Held in Chicago on the 27th Inst.—Platform Adopted at the Meeting in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Sept. 1.—The conference of labor leaders of the country, which has been in session here two days, finished its work Tuesday evening. The meeting was productive of several sensational speeches and many resolutions, yet no decisive action was taken in the principal matter for which the gathering was summoned—the abolishment of government by injunction. The convention, which had been announced as the last one of its kind to be held, while adjourning sine die, has merely postponed action on the matter before it for three weeks as a call for a similar conference to be held in Chicago, Monday, September 27, was issued.

The Platform.

The platform as presented is as follows:

"The fear of the more watchful fathers of the republic has been justified. The judiciary has become supreme. We witness a political phenomenon absolutely new in the history of the world; a republic prostrate at the feet of judges appointed to administer its laws.

Federal Judges Arraigned.

"Having drawn to themselves all the powers of the federal government, until congress and presidents may act only by judicial permission, the federal judges have begun the subjugation of sovereign states, so that, unless a check is soon put upon the progress of usurpation, in a short time no government but the absolute despotism of federal courts will exist anywhere over any portion of American soil. The pending strike of coal miners, starved to feebleness by their scant wages, by arduous and dangerous toil, the pending strike for the right to be fed enough to make labor possible, has been prolific of judicial usurpation, showing the willingness of judicial despots to resort to the most shameless defiance of decency, as well as of law and humanity, in order to enable heartless avarice to drive its hungry serfs back to the mines to faint and die at their drudgery, and there remains to-day not one guaranteed right of American citizens, the exercise of which an injunction has not somewhere made a crime, started by these subversions of constitutional liberty. We have met to counsel together, and have come to the following elusions that:

Liberty Which Is Not Freedom.

"Whereas, the present strike of the coal miners has again demonstrated the fact that our so-called liberty is not freedom, but is a stupendous sham, under which millions are degenerated, while hundreds of thousands of men, women and children are starving in hovels on the public highways.

"Whereas, our capitalistic class, as it again shows in the present strike, is armed, not only by policemen, marshals, sheriffs and deputies, but also by a regular army and militia, in order to enforce government by injunction, suppressing lawful assemblage, free speech, and the right to the public highway, while on the other hand, the laboring men of the country are unarmed and defenseless, contrary to the word and spirit of the constitution of the United States. Therefore, be it

The Plans Proposed.

"Resolved, No. 1.—That we hereby set apart Monday, the third day of September, 1897, as 'Good Friday,' for the cause of suffering labor in America, and contribute the earnings of that day to the support of our struggling brothers, the miners, and appeal to every union man and every friend of labor throughout the country to do likewise.

"Resolved, No. 2.—That if the strike of the miners is not settled by the 20th day of September, 1897, and announcement made to that effect by the president of the United Mine Workers, a general convention be held at Chicago, on Monday, September 27, by the representatives of all unions, sections, branches, lodges and kindred organizations of laboring men and friends of their cause, for the purpose of considering further measures in the interests of the striking miners and labor in general.

"Resolved, No. 3.—That we consider the use of the ballot as the best and safest means for the amelioration of the hardships under which the laboring class suffers.

"Resolved, No. 4.—That the public ownership of railroads and telegraphs is one of the most necessary reforms for our body politic.

"Resolved, No. 5.—That we most emphatically protest against government by injunction, which plays havoc with even such political liberties as workingmen have saved from the steady encroachments of capitalism, and be it finally

"Resolved, No. 6.—That no nation in which the people are totally disarmed can long remain a free nation, and therefore, we urge upon all liberty-loving citizens to remember and obey article two of the constitution of the United States, which reads as follows:

"'The right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.'"

TO MOVE THE CROPS.

Fully $5,000,000 Shipped from New York for That Purpose.

New York, Sept. 1.—A canvass of the leading banks in this city shows that large sums of money are being shipped south daily to help move the crops. One of the most prominent financial institutions here has sent about $700,000 since the middle of last week and orders still coming in. The subtreasury at this city has not had so many currency orders as usual, but this is ascribed to the lateness of the crops in the southwest. Altogether it is estimated that fully $5,000,000 of "crop money" has been shipped from this city the past fortnight. The southern credits are in better shape just now than they have been in several years and the general outlook in that section and the southwest as viewed from here is equally bright.

Awful Result of Storms in Germany.

Berlin, Aug. —The cloudbursts and inundations which have devastated the eastern parts of Germany were the worst which have occurred since 1870. According to local statistics 106 persons were killed in Silesia alone, and in Saxony the casualties will not fall short of 160. The financial losses foot up over 150,000 marks.

Catarrh Poisons.

Catarrh is capable of changing all the life-giving secretions of the body into scalding fluids, which destroy and inflame every part they come in contact with. Applications to the places affected by catarrh can do little good save to soothe or quiet disagreeable symtoms. Hence it is that gargles, sprays, atomizers and inhalants only serve as temporary relief. Any medicine to effect a cure must be taken into the system. So long as the irritating secretions of catarrh continue to be formed so long will the membranes continue to be inflamed, no matter what treatment is used. There is but one remedy that has this most desirable effect, and that remedy is Peruna. This remedy strikes at once to the root of the catarrh by restoring to the capillary vessels their healthy elasticity. Peruna is not temporary palliative, but a radical cure. Send for Dr Hartman's latest book, sent free for a short time. Address The Peruna Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, Ohio.

There has been running in the Adrian Times for some time past an advertisement of what was called "A Business Men's Excursion to Detroit"; following the description of the plan are advertisements of a number of wholesale houses. It has been reported that this was intended to induce retail buyers to come to Detroit. This is not so but simply a "skeme" of the Detroit jobbers to induce retail dealers into the Detroit market. As the round trip has only been reduced to one and one-third fare it amounts to nothing anyway.

Under the new law enacted by the last Legislature for the immediate registration of deaths, township, village, and city clerks will act as local registrars after August 29, receiving certificates of death and issuing burial or removal permits. Cities having such registration at present, conducted by the local boards of health, retain the health officer as registrar in place of the city clerk. Thus Michigan has come into line with other progressive states of the Union in establishing a modern system of mortality registration. The old law obtained very imperfect results, it being estimated that nearly a third of all the deaths that occurred failed to be recorded. Prompt and accurate mortality data are of great sanitary value, besides which the individual records are often of personal interest and legal importance. The blanks for use under the new law are being sent out by the Secretary of State to the township, village, and city officers who act as registrars of deaths.

Years ago when Dan Rice was clown in his own circus, it was a favorite joke of his to grab the elephant by the tail and attempt to use the beast as a club with which to knock down the ringmaster. The attempts of the News with its voluminous editorials on national questions to mould public opinion is certainly very like the attempt of the clown to swing the elephant by the tail and the effect on the public will be the same as that experienced by the ringmaster.—Tecumseh Herald.

The News expects and invites criticism of anything it may publish. Such doggeral as the above is, merely a sample of ill-natured vindictiveness that we can well affor to pass by unnoticed. We reprint it to show how hare-brained the Herald edito may be.—Tecumseh News.

This is the sec n time within the past few months th Bro. Samsen has intimated that the editor of the HERALD is a fool, hence the conclusion that either the intimation is a fact or that this is the News editor's favorite method of argument. Such an argument on the part of the News is perfectly safe for the man who writes full well knows who he is calling fool, but should the HERALD call the News editor a fool the Lord only knows where the accusation would strike, he might have to fight a duel with half the local republican party and a dozen eastern newspapers. As self preservation is the first law of nature the writer will not say "fool" but simply allow the readers to read it all and come to their own conclusion.

FINANCIAL LETTER.

Chicago, Aug. 31, 1897.

The reaction in wheat during the last week was to be expected after the phenomenally rapid rise from 65c to a dollar. The market is now in a natural condition and henceforth may be expected to be governed by crop conditions and demand and supply as they exist and change from day to day. But, even should wheat not rise permanently above the 90c range where the December option now is, the farmers of this country are in a position to reap almost incalculable benefits from the great enhancement already secured. With corn at 30c or more per bushel the immense supplies of that cereal have a value not known for many a day, and the moving to market of so vast an amount means large increase of freight earnings both ways by the railroads, as much of the money obtained by the farmer for his wheat and corn crops will be again put out for manufactured products, necessities and luxuries, which must go to him by rail.

This prosperity of the grain belt railroads has already set in, every available car on such lines being now in use. Their securities have risen greatly in the last two months, in some cases as much as 50 per cent, and yet their top price is not thought to have been reached. It is the same with securities in all forms of incorporated business enterprise. Schwartz, Dupee & Co., whose business embraces stocks and bonds as well as grain, report that not only in this country but in Europe as well there is no doubt in the mind of financiers that the United States is entering upon an era of good times. There is no longer the feeling of uncertainty as to the financial policy of the government that obtained control last fall when the question of the presidency was unsettled, and this has worked wonders in the way of attracting foreign capital to this country. Money was never cheaper in Europe than now, and it is being attracted here by the good earnings and comparatively low prices of our western railroads. The reaction from an unnaturally low and torpid market has come, and our securities in which capitalists of other nations invest are again on a natural basis although not a high one.

The grain market was steady today. Official predictions of dry weather in the corn belt for the next 36 hours indicated that no immediate improvement in that grain was to be expected. All reports are that for the last week the drouth has seriously injured corn. There were practically no acceptances of bids sent out Saturday night by prominent corn houses. This indicates that the farmer has found his corn in a precarious condition, dependent upon immediate rains to make a good crop, and he doesn't care to sell at present prices, although they are well above those of a month ago. With such an outlook it seems certain that present prices will be maintained and very likely improved upon.

The following table shows the range of prices last week and the close today of wheat and corn as dealt in on the Chicago Board of Trade:

	Range last week.	Today's close.
Sept. wheat	91 a 108 1-2	89
Dec. wheat	88 1-1 a 1.00	89 3-8
Sept. corn	28 1-4 a 33	29 7-8
Dec. corn	30 a 35 1-2	32 1-8

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations of the Railroads.

An F. & P. M. official, in speaking about the rumor to the effect that the officials of the company, backed by the Wabash people, are to engineer a scheme to block the Detroit & Lima Northern railroad out of Detroit by constructing a belt line around that city, said this morning that so far as the F. & P. M. is concerned there is no foundation whatever for the story. "The F. & P. M.," he continued, "has had nothing to do with any of the proposed belt line scheme. The fact that the D., L. & N. is already occupying and using the F. & P. M. passenger and freight terminals at Detroit is a sufficient answer to the report that the F. & P. M. is endeavoring to prevent the D. & L. N. from obtaining an entrance there.—Free Press. It would seem as if the D. & L. N. was determined to gain an entrance into Detroit. In spite of this report there is no doubt that Mr. Crapo has no relish for the D. & L. N. and, although the trains are now using the F. & P. M. terminal tracks, it is through the traffic arrangement of the Wabash that the privilege is granted. The D. & L. N. cannot be shut out of the union station if they can reach it.

The work of removing the Cincinnati Northern general offices from Toledo to Van Wert was completed to-day. The change removes from Toledo one of the finest body of railway officials in the country. None have been looked upon as more competent, or none more popular. Most of them are Toledo boys, and have been with the property ever since the headquarters were located in this city. The following are the list of officials who will leave Toledo on account of the change.

General Manager Drake, Purchasing Agent W. D. Stevens, and Dave Hanley, Auditor and Cashier Walter Booth and his assistants in the accounting departments, H. A. Kellar, W. R. Mozier, L. G. Thrall, D. J. Redding, Ross DeMuth and Rolla Simonton; Gen'l Freight and Passenger Agent C. W. Cook and his assistants in the traffic department, J. G. Heck, F. E. Franks, C. W. Cook, jr. and Glenn Simonton.

This forenoon an incident occurred at the Lima Northern depot which is not usually on the program in railroading. An old engine came in wheezing on a freight and actually "died" on the track, from a ruptured bloodvessel (water from the flues putting out the fire). The critter was patched up, the fire rekindled and once more life seemed to return with renewed vigor. It started off like a steer through the corn and when last seen water and steam were flying in every direction. This will probably not occur again, as the Lima people are fast putting their equipment in first-class shape.—Adrian Telegram.

The excursion train over the Lima Northern to Jackson left Adrian an hour late this morning and consisted of 11 cars. About 425 people bought tickets from here. The First Regiment band went over on the same train and no doubt will come back with a good share of the honors. Twelve members of the Adrian City band will play with the Tipton band. The regular train over the Lake Shore, leaving at 8:47 a. m., carried 130 people from the city.—Adrian Telegram.

Columbus Grove, O., Aug. 30.—There is a lively rate war on between the C. H. & D. and D. & L. N. roads for the Toledo and Detroit passenger business. Between Lima and Leipsic the two roads parallel each other, and the D. & L. N. has been making 75 cents and $1 round trip rates between Lima and Detroit, good for two days. The C. H. & D. is out with a poster making a $1 rate for Sept. 2 good returning until the 30th. The public is hoping the fight will continue.—Toledo Blade.

The "setters" have had the D. & L. N. station located on every inch of ground this side the track from the bridge to the "y". It is to be hoped their minds are now easy since the thing is at last anchored.

The D. & L. N. work train has been called off for a couple of days, it being necessary to use the engine for freight work.

The D. & L. N. hauled 650 people to the band reunion Tuesday.

The great cry now is for cars. Not only is the passenger business congested for want of coaches but every road in the country is short of freight cars, Wabash short 600, Pennsylvania 400 and other roads in proportion at Toledo. G. C. Schiffer, car accountant of the D. & L. N., spends his time in praying for cars and cussing the printer for delay of blanks with which to call them in.

The D. T. & M. makes changes in the time of two of its Sunday trains, commencing next Sunday. Train for Toledo is changed from 6:39 to 7:30 p. m. Train from Toledo from 8:42 to 11:10 A. M. These changes are made to form connections with the D. & L. N. at Tecumseh.

With the last change of time two new passenger and two new freight trains were added to the D. T. & M. service. This requires four new crews and a number of supply men are given regular runs.

It is now thought that the coal strike will be over this week and the D. & L. N. people are preparing for a great coal business to commence Monday.

T. C. M. Schindler, G. P. A., and O. A. Wilson, cashier of the Cincinnati Northern, have resigned their positions and will seek other fields of labor.

The D. & L. N. passenger station is now in place and in use, having stood the journey nicely. They say it has no return ticket.

Train No. 41, D. & L. N., was held in Detroit last evening from 4:50 till 7:00 on account of a Sunday-school excursion from Lima, O.

Timothy Sullivan, fireman on the D. & L. N. steam shovel, will be married the 22nd of next month to Miss May Day, of Lima.

It is said that Station Agent Slater has the choice of windows in the old building temporarily used as the D. & L. N. station.

About 50 Tecumseh people took in the excursion to Lima Sunday and seven went to Detroit for the day.

J. E. Baldwin arrived this morning from Cleveland. He is the new general ticket accountant.

A gang of workmen is busy raising the L. S. & M. S. track from the target north to the station.

The D. T. & M. sold 35 round trip tickets to Jackson Tuesday on account of the band reunion.

Auditor Richmond is moving to Mrs. Wood's residence, corner Logan and Union streets.

The D. T. & M. now runs daily a special fast freight out of Toledo.

C. H. Roser, C. E., will return from a trip to New York next Tuesday.

Wednesday the D. & L. N. carried 80 car loads of freight into Detroit.

Roy Hughes is doing stenographer's work in the auditor's office.

It is reported that Art. Lee has been indulging in an ink bath.

Fred Bauer is a new man in the car accountant's department.

Excursion to Niagara Falls Sept. 10, via D. & L. N., $4 75.

Train Dispatcher Allen is at work again.

Return Luncheon.

Mrs. B. J. Garlinghouse, assisted by Mesdames C. F. Patterson, L. P. Tribou, P. W. A. Fitzsimmons, A. W. James and Hettie Brewer and Misses May De Wolf and Katherine Anderson, gave a return luncheon last evening to Mrs Bittman at the residence of the first named lady last evening. Those present were Messrs. and Mesdames J. H. Bittman, Ben Garlinghouse, C. F. Patterson, L. P. Tribou, P. W. A. Fitzsimmons, A. W. James, Mrs. Brewer, Misses Kate Anderson and May De Wolf, Messrs. Newberry Satterthwaite, Chas. Bidwell and Bert Garlinghouse.

Farewell to Rev. and Mrs. C. M. Brown.

In view of the approaching departure of Rev. C. M. Brown for his new field of duty, the young people of the C. E. society conceived the happy plan of tendering to their late pastor and his estimable wife a farewell reception and with the cooperation of their many friends in the church and congregation, it was sucessfully executed last evening. The church parlors were crowded with a large company of friends to bid farewell to the retiring pastor and his wife and to wish them God speed. The parlors were handsomely decorated with plants and there was a program of vocal and instrumental music. But the most interesting feature of the evening was the presentation of a set of china, a complete surprise to the recipients. Mr. McKinnon, in making the presentation, made one of his characteristic speeches in which the witty and the grave were skilfully intermingled. Congratulating the reverend gentleman upon his past success and the prospects for still greater success to come and invoking the divine blessing upon him and his. For once in his life, at least, the usually self-possessed and ready clergyman found himself in a tight place. His emotions got the mastery of him for the time being and after a desperate attemp to express thanks, he rushed from the room.

The balance of the evening was passed in words of farewell and goodwill between the departing pastor and the people among whom and for whom he has ministered for the past few years.

The misery of years has been cured in a single night by the use of Doan's Ointment, a positive, never-failing remedy for Itching Piles and all similar diseases. Your dealer keeps it, or can get it for you.

For some time past the best of feeling has not existed between Will Bennett and a Mr. Reed who has been buying logs in this vicinity and Will thought the only thing that would satisfy him was to give Reed a sound threshing and made threats to that effect. Matters culminated Tuesday afternoon when as Reed drove into Garlinghouse Bros.' barn, he found Bennett awaiting him. It did not take long for them to come together but the result was far different from Bennett's expections. Instead of threshing Reed, he himself was the one that got it. Jealously was at the bottom of the whole affair.

HOME FROM THE FIELD.

The white clover spread as if wings of a storm
Had dropped down of snow on the field;
The cherries gleamed red at the edge of the farm—
A shower of red wine congealed;
As a fairy balloon sailed the light thistle-down,
And a mocking bird twittered anon—
As homeward we trudged up the lane growing brown,
When the time to cease working came on.

The whippoorwill dreamed in the thicket sedate,
And the cricket chirped out in the wheat;
The cattle stood lowing beside the farm gate,
And a milking song rose faint and sweet;
The summer breath told of the roses that grew
By the farmhouse whose gable loomed wan;
And mother would meet us in welcome, we knew,
When the time to cease working came on.

We are toiling on still, though on different ways
From the ones where we labored when young,
And not with the carelessness known in the days
When Hope her sweet melodies sung.
The hours are longer, it seemeth, than then—
But the tolling will some time be done;
Then peace will again smile upon us as when
The time to cease working came on.

ABEL, [illegible] AND THE RAM.

The S[illegible] Backwoods Landlord Help Telling.

"ONCE I was passing through the little town of Greenville, in the Pennsylvania hemlock belt," said John Gilbert, the traveling groceryman, "and stopped at the tavern there. The only man I saw at first was a jolly-looking, red-faced little old man, on whom care or sorrow seemed to have never laid a finger.

"'Fine day,' I said, getting off my buckboard.

"'P'tic'lar fine an' cheerful,' the little old man said. 'I hain't seen a cheerfuller day in 40 year an' better.'

"The [illegible] went down [illegible] ling. I was gazing after him [illegible] when some one said:

"'It's a leetle queer that Uncle Abel went away without waitin' to see whether you wa'n't goin' to buy sumpin' an' ast him in; but he's feelin' overpowerin' glib to-day, an' mebbe thought nothin' could make him feel any better.'

"This speaker, as I saw when I turned to look, was tall and slim and lanky, and was whittling a stick. He had come from the barn, and, as I found, was the landlord. I walked in.

"'Yes,' said the lanky man, 'Uncle Abel is feelin' overpowerin' glib to-day. You wouldn't take him to be a lone an' lorn widderer, which the partner of his bosom was only laid away yiste'day, now, would you?'

"I had to admit that the old gentleman was a trifle chipper and cheerful for one so recently bereaved.

"'Yes,' the landlord went on, 'Aunt Huldy's left Uncle Abel at last. It was sort of an accident like, though. I don't think she ever would a-thought o' doin' of it, 'cause Uncle Abel was four that Aunt Huldy had handled, an' she had wore black bombazine fer three on 'em, an' it was jest as good as ever, that black bombazine was, an' there ain't no kind o' doubt that she had a stiff idee o' wearin' it fer Uncle Abel, an' mebbe fer somebody that had the courage to be No. 5. You see, Uncle Abel is the harmlessest man that ever sot round, an' Aunt Huldy's disposition was sot sumpin' like a cross-cut saw, an' when she got to movin' she was a ripper. How would some fresh tansy scrunched in a glass and moistened with about three fingers o' J'maky rum strike you?'

"I was willing to risk it, and the lanky but garrulous landlord scrunched the tansy and moistened it per recipe.

"'Yes, sir,' he went on, having scrunched and moistened for himself also, and taken pay for both. 'Aunt Huldy was a ripper when she got to movin', and the trouble was she was movin' most o' the time. I've knowed Uncle Abel to roost in an apple tree on his clearin' all night, waitin' for Aunt Huldy to quiet down, an' I've heerd him say, more'n wunst, that it was a good thing he'd been kicked in the head by a mule wunst and got over it, or he'd be afeared o' the consekences if Aunt Huldy got to movin'.

"'Aunt Huldy she was tremendous sot ag'in Uncle Abel goin' fishin', an' Uncle Abel he'd ruther go fishin' than to the circus. Last week he couldn't hold out no longer, and he went over to Ben Runnels' pond to troll for pickerel. The fact is, though, that the pond ain't Ben Runnels, 'cause there ain't no setch person as Ben Runnels, nor hain't ben this 20 year an' better, an' when there was a Ben Runnels he didn't own the pond. The last day there ever was a Ben Runnels he went fishin' on that pond. If the fishin' hadn't ben so uncommon good that day Ben mowt be with us yit. Ben had half a pint o' fish worms with him in an old tomattus can, an' half a gallon o' worm o' the still in a jug. This was for exhilaratin' purposes. Ben alluz exhilarated arter katchin' a fish, but the fish bit so fast that day that they kep' Ben busier than usual exhilaratin', so that when folks went to see what was the reason Ben didn't git home that day, an' found the boat upsot an' Ben an' the jug floatin' in the pond, there was less than two little jiggers of exhilaration left in the jug, but there was more than five gallon o' water in Ben. It wasn't drowndin' that killed Ben, some folks thought. They said it was the sudden washin' of all the exhilaration outen him by so much water gittin' inter him that done it, Ben not bein' used to setch overpowerin' disapp'intment. An' that's the way Ben got the title to that pond, an' it's ben called Ben Runnels' pond ever sence.

"'Well, there's where Uncle Abel went fishin', spite o' Aunt Huldy's warnin's, an' when he got back I don't s'pose that Aunt Huldy ever moved so rippin' in her life. All that Uncle Abel has ever said about it is that she jest swatted him over, an' then sot on him till she peeled what Uncle Abel says must a ben more'n a bushel o' taters. Aunt Huldy weighed in the vicinity o' 200 pound, an' every time Uncle Abel wiggled she'd scrunch down on him. An' speakin' o' scrunchin', there's a lot more tanzy; shell I—'

"I interrupted the landlord to say that I didn't care for any more, and he seemed so much disappointed and remained silent so long that I began to think that I wasn't going to hear the end of his story, but by and by he started in again.

"'Yes, sir, she scrunched down on him hard, Aunt Hulda did. She scrunched down so fur arter awhile that Uncle Abel says he got his eyes on the shinin' shore, an' was hopin' that Aunt Huldy would give him another twist so's he could get his feet on it; but she wan't through with him yit, an' didn't let him pass over. There's where Aunt Huldy made her mistake. She ought to scrunched Uncle Abel all the way over, an' then she could a took out that black bombazine ag'in an' hooked it on fer her fourth, an' ben a-lookin' out fer her fifth now. But she didn't do it, an' there's where she made her mistake.'

"This here last lively motion of Aunt Huldy's must a kind o' sot Uncle Abel to thinkin'. Joe Bevan, up yonder apiece, had an ol' churnin' ram that somehow or other was dead sot agin women folks, an' goshe on 'em cared to go nigh him, 'cause he'd pitch at 'em, an' Joe kep' the ugly ol' chap tied up. But the ram was mild enough to men folks. T'other day Aunt Huldy says that it beat all how it was that she couldn't have a piece o' rope to make a pull-to for the gate, and that if she had a man with a pinch o' salt that she'd a had the rope long 'fore that. This was the fust that Uncle Abel knowed that Aunt Huldy wanted a piece o' rope, an' that very day he was goin' by Joe Bevan's place, an' he see a piece o' rope at the side o' the road. He picked it up and went home with it. Wrapped it round a post, he went in the house.

"'Huldy,' says he, 'I've brung home a piece o' rope.'

"'You have, hay?' Aunt Huldy snapped out. 'It's a good thing, an' it'll come in handy fer you to hang yourself with!'

"So Aunt Huldy goes to see the rope.

"'Ding your pictur!' she hollers back to Uncle Abel. 'An' you've got that rantankerous ram o' Joe Bevan's tied to the end of it, too!'

"'Why, so he is!' says Uncle Abel.

"Aunt Huldy grabbed the ax and moved on the ram. The ram seen Aunt Huldy comin', an' went to meet her. He met her so suddint that she curled up like a ship-knee, kicked a little, an' never got up from where she landed. Uncle Abel says that Aunt Huldy passed away a good deal peacefuller than he thought it was in her natur' to, an' he's a lone, lorn widderer, an' has the bombazine dress to sell. I wish he'd a staid here awhile. Then I'd a had some one to jine me in a scrunch. If you don't keer to jine, you mowt leave one for Uncle Abel.'

"I paid for a 'scrunch' for Uncle Abel to enjoy when he came in, and drove on my way, and who should I meet but Uncle Abel again.

"'Hullo!' he shouted, and I stopped.

"'He told ye 'bout me an' Aunt Huldy, an' the rantankerous ram, o' course?' said Uncle Abel, grinning.

"'Yes,' I said.

"'He's been licked like tarnation three times in less'n a year fer tellin' that,' said Uncle Abel, 'but seems like he can't help it. He didn't mean no harm by it. He'll tell it to you ag'in if you come along this way to-mórrow. I wa'n't never married in my life, an' there ain't no Aunt Huldy nor no ram, nor never was!'

"I couldn't help but grin with Uncle Abel, and said:

"'Well, I paid for a rum and tansy up there for you, anyhow.'

"'Course you did!' said Uncle Abel. 'That's part of it. I hain't took a drink in more'n 40 year! Think you'll go back an' lick him? He'll sort o' 'spect it.'

"But I said I'd let it go, and drove on, leaving Uncle Abel in the road grinning after me."—N. Y. Sun.

The Sin of Fretting.

There is one sin, which it seems to me is everywhere and by everybody underestimated, and quite too much overlooked in valuation of character. It is the sin of fretting. It is common as air, as speech, so common that unless it rises above its usual monotone, we do not even observe it. Watch any ordinary coming together of people, and see how many minutes it will take before somebody frets; that is, makes more or less complaining statement of something or other which probably everyone in the room, or in the car, or on the street, it may be, knew before, and probably nobody can help. Why say anything about it? It is cold, it is hot, it is wet, it is dry; somebody has broken an appointment, ill-cooked a meal; stupidity or bad faith somewhere has resulted in discomfort. There are plenty of things to fret about. It is simply astonishing how much annoyance can be found in the course of every day's living, even of the simplest, if one keeps a sharp eye out on that side of things. Even Holy Writ says we are prone to "trouble as sparks fly upward." But even to the sparks flying upward, in the blackest of smoke, there is a blue sky above; and the less time they waste on the road the sooner they will reach it. Fretting is all time wasted on the road.—Helen Hunt.

BARBARA DARE AND THE FRIGATE.

A Story of the Revolution.

BY HENRY E. HAYDOCK.

BARBARA DARE sat alone on the beach, looking out at the ocean as it stretched away into the blue of the horizon.

She had stepped out of the old rambling farmhouse behind her for a few minutes' rest, leaving her young brother to watch by the bedside of her little sister, who was very ill. Everyone was away. Her father and elder brother were in the continental army. Her uncle, an old man, who had stayed at home since the war began, had gone to the mill that afternoon.

It was a dark hour for the American cause; battle after battle had been fought, and the troops, weary and for the time discouraged, were slowly retreating.

Barbara was thinking of this, and wished that she were a man, to go into the thickest of the fight, or even a boy, to take a drum and lead on the troops. She sighed as she glanced at her skirts, then, resting her chin upon her hand, again looked out to sea. To be sure her life had not been devoid of excitement, for even now there were munitions of war buried under the woodpile in the extension of the house, but they had never been touched since they had been placed there, together with the family valuables. It was, indeed, a good place to hide the muskets, for the house was in a retired situation, and it was very seldom anyone came near it.

As Barbara thought of this she turned her head, then started to her feet, for there in the offing was a frigate slowly working its way in shore. Her back having been partially turned in that direction, she had not noticed it until now, and was very much surprised to see how near it was. She rose at once and started toward the house to get the spyglass.

As she ran she remembered all the instances she had heard of English ships landing men who ransacked farmhouses, sometimes leaving them in flames when they returned to their boats.

She wouldn't worry, at any rate, for the frigate might only be passing along the coast, or it might be an American man-of-war. She was soon out on the beach again. The ship was much nearer. As she looked at it through the glass she saw flying from the masthead the English flag.

As she watched and listened she heard the shrill sound of the boatswain's whistle. The frigate came about, and she saw they were preparing to lower a boat.

Her worst fears were now realized. What should she do? The first thought was to take the children and run, leaving the house to its fate. Then she noticed how cold and chilly the air was as it swept in from the sea, and she realized that it would never do to take her sick sister from her room into the open air, for it would probably mean death to her.

She reentered the house hastily, went to the room and beckoned her brother. "You must run over to the village and tell the people the British are about to land. I will stay here until you can get uncle and return."

The boy's eyes grew black with excitement.

"You stay here alone and face them!" he said.

"Yes," she answered; "there is no other way."

Nor did she look afraid, as she stood there with an air of dauntless bravery about her.

"You're fine!" her brother exclaimed. Then he rushed through the door with a parting shout: "I won't be gone long."

Now that she was left entirely alone, Barbara's courage for the moment gave way, but only for a moment, and then she was thinking how to act. She was not so sure she could protect the place, because she was a girl, and if they found the buried muskets they would surely burn the house, and then her sister would have to be taken out into the chill sea air.

There was one way to prevent this—keep them from entering the extension. Her sister's room was in the extension, and underneath the room were the buried muskets. She must do this by strategy if possible. She descended the stairs as she thought, and went through the long passageway which connected the extension and the main portion of the house.

As she entered the main room her eyes fell upon a huge fireplace, in which there had not been a fire for some time. The fireplace was directly beside the door leading into the passage, the door that she must guard. How should she guard it? As she thought she noticed the brick oven in the fireplace, the door of which was ajar; then an expression of triumph came over her face.

She acted at once upon the thought, went to the back of the house, and returned with a small keg of powder. It was a very small keg, but it held enough for the purpose for which she wished to use it. It took her only a minute to open the oven door and put it inside. She closed the door almost tight, then stooped, and in the opposite corner of the fireplace arranged some fagots and kindling wood. Underneath this she fixed a huge pair of bellows. The bellows were blacksmith's bellows, her uncle having been a blacksmith. He had rigged them up by the fireplace, and laughingly said they reminded him of old times.

Lighting the fire would in no way endanger exploding the powder, the fireplace being too large and the fire too small; but should she pull down on the lever of the bellows, a line of fire would shoot up alongside the oven, and, entering the crack left by the partly-opened door, would ignite the powder.

"If the worst comes to the worst," she said, aloud, as if to give herself courage. "Men have shown what they could do in this war; I will show what a girl can do."

Already her quick ears caught the sound of the grating of a boat upon the beach. She ran to the window and looked out. Sailors and marines, headed by a coarse-looking man clad in the uniform of an officer, came trooping up the beach.

She stepped back hastily and lighted the fagots upon the hearth. As the small flame licked the wood and the fire started, there came a loud rap upon the door.

The fire, though small, was burning briskly. Placing herself with her back against the door leading to the extension, with one hand upon the handle of the bellows, she said: "Come in." But they had not waited for her to answer, and, treading close upon one another's heels, the officer and three men entered the room, the rest of the company remaining outside. The officer was a coarse-featured, cruel-looking man.

"Where's the old man?" he shouted. "We want to see him, and quickly, too."

"I am the only one at home," she answered.

"That's a pretty lie," he said, "but it won't do. We're going to search this house, anyway. If we find the man we think you've hidden, or rebel goods, we'll burn the house."

"I have a little sister who is very sick," she said; "you can search everywhere you wish, but in her room."

"Not search there! Why, that is the very place we'll search. That dodge has been played upon us too often. Hasn't it, my boys?" he said, turning to his men as if, even cruel as he was, he would have their support.

The flame on the fireplace was growing larger; the ashes of the burning wood fell with a white glow upon the bricks. Barbara saw that with this man entreaties would be of no avail.

"You can search everywhere but there," she said. "Give me your word that the room will not be entered, and you may go over the whole house, but I will not allow you to enter that room!"

"[illegible]!" The British officer repeated her words, as if he could not believe his ears. "Will not allow it! Well, that is the most preposterous thing I have ever heard. You know what that remark has cost you?—a kiss! I am going to give you a kiss—a remark that deserves a kiss."

Suddenly from back in the direction of the hills came the sharp crack of a rifle; a moment more and from another direction came the dull report of a musket.

The officer pricked up his ears. The people were rising. Those reports meant that they knew the British had landed, and that they were flocking together and would soon be hovering about him.

"Come on, men!" he said; "we will search the house quickly, but I will have my kiss first." And he stepped forward.

"Stand back!" Barbara said.

Without knowing why he did so, he obeyed her. Something about that lithe, graceful, resolute figure looked dangerous, even though it were only a girl. He hesitated but for a moment, and then took a rapid step forward. At the same moment he saw a line of fire suddenly spring from the embers on the hearth; then the huge chimney, as if it would itself protect its own hearthstone and the girl beside it, leaned over; there was the deafening crash of an explosion, and the chimney hurled itself forward.

The British officer and his men went down as if they had suddenly met the fire of a masked battery.

Barbara, protected in a great measure by the huge wall of the chimney, found to her surprise that she was still living, and had only been hurled against the doorway. Even in her dazed condition, she saw there was only one of the men who was crawling toward the doorway. The officer did not stir, as he lay before the demolished fireplace.

Just then the door was pushed open by the rest of the boat's crew, but they halted on the threshold. Through the blue haze of the explosion they saw their comrades lying upon the floor, wounded or unconscious. Barbara's straight, girlish figure was outlined through the smoke against the background of the door she guarded. Her face, pale and wan, yet firm with courage and resolve, confronted them through the haze. Even as they looked, a piece of the chimney, which had been loosened by the explosion, but which had not as yet given way, fell with a crash at their feet.

The peculiar character of the explosion, the condition of their comrades, the loss of their officer, and, last of all, the mysterious look of a girl alone facing them, caused a strange dread to creep over the superstitious sailors, and, as if to heighten it, there came the sharp crack of rifles now close at hand. A panic seized them, and their cry was "Back to the boats!" Lifting their fallen comrades, they rushed out of the door, and the house was again free from intrusion.

Barbara ran to the window and looked out. She saw them retreating hastily toward the boat, while, even now and then, from behind some bush or bowlder, came the report of a gun as the farmers, who had come to help her, fired.

She saw them at last reach the boat. She saw the boat return to the frigate. She saw the frigate weigh anchor.

Then, with a wild sob, she ran to her sister's room and fell fainting across the bed.

There her uncle found her, beside the sister she had protected.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. MOVABLE CORN CRIB.

Rats and Small Vermin Cannot Attack Its Contents.

One of the handiest things for the corn grower is a convenient place for the storage of corn for curing, when it is not to be sold and hauled directly from the field. For several years the Massachusetts agricultural college at Amherst has used small corn cribs as illustrated herewith. They are set up in any part of the field or together in rows. If corn is rotated on various fields the cribs are carried on teams from the old to the new corn field when empty. The crib (a to b) is 12 feet long and (a to d) 7 2-3 feet high, 5½ feet wide (g to h) and 3½ feet at the bottom (e to f). From a to i it is 5½ feet, a to c 20 inches, c to d 6 feet and h to i 14 inches. The three floor frame lengthwise joists are of 4 by 4 inch material 12 feet long, while the front, center and rear end cross pieces are of 4 by 6 inch stuff. Each house stands on posts, is strongly made and well shingled. The door occupies the entire front end, being square; slats are placed across the door inside as the crib is filled and removed as corn is taken out. It is best to invert a pan on top of each post before building or setting the crib on the posts. Rats and small vermin will then be unable to get from the ground into the crib, provided snow in winter is kept clear.—Albert Rising, in Farm and Home.

MOVABLE CORN CRIB.

HINTS FOR FARMERS.

Sell direct to the consumer every time you can.

The young man can never buy a farm cheaper than now.

The crop of winter apples will be much less than last year.

Corn stalks that grow unreasonably big are all stalk and no corn.

Sorghum should never be planted until the soil is perfectly warm.

Subsoiling means more rapid drainage and better storage for rain.

The farmer who plants more corn than he has teams to stir the soil is unwise.

The red kaffir corn combines a large yield of fodder with the largest yield of grain.

Heavy rains compact the soil and cultivation separates it so that it can absorb air.

We see it stated that wood ashes and common salt mixed with water make a good cement.

The most fertile soil on earth cannot grow crops without moisture to dissolve the food elements.

The only way to tell if plaster will do land good is to try it. Plaster is very uncertain in its action.

The tomato worm has resumed business. Cut him in two with a pair of sheep sheers or scissors.

If you have a soil that is so gravelly that you think it will grow nothing, try grapes on it. They will grow.

The meadows ought not to be too early pastured in the spring or too closely pastured in the fall.

If wheat and oats ground are harrowed immediately after harvest, the loss of moisture will be prevented until the ground can be plowed.

Five pails of water are absorbed by one stalk of corn, if the roots can find the water, and they will penetrate far and near to get it, if they can penetrate the soil.—Western Plowman.

Painstaking Work Wins.

Did you ever see a cabinetmaker finish a fine piece of furniture? When the material comes from the saw it is simply rough lumber. When planed it is reasonably smooth, but far from being finished; much sandpapering, rubbing and polishing must follow before the job is complete. The more work he puts on the better price he will receive for the article. So with the wheat field; the plow leaves the ground rough, and there must follow much planing, rubbing and polishing. The better finish we put on the more profit in the crop.—Agricultural Epitomist.

Preventing Egg Eating.

If an egg is broken the hens will eat it, and it is by eggs being broken that the hens learn the vice, as they never eat eggs unless they first find one broken. The only way to prevent the hens from eating eggs after they once begin is to make a nest with a top, compelling the hen to walk in to reach the nest, and have the box raised ten inches from the floor, so that the hen cannot stand near the box to eat the eggs. When she goes on the nest she cannot do any harm, as she must come off and stand up to eat the eggs.—Farm and Fireside.

Winter Grain After Potatoes.

Wherever the potato crop can be got off in time for seeding with fall grain it makes the very best seed bed. No plowing is needed if the weeds have been kept down. It is only necessary to pile the potato vines in heaps and burn them, starting the fire in a brush heap if the potato tops are too green to burn readily. A great deal of plant food is developed after growing a crop of potatoes. It is largely nitrogenous, as the potato crop is chiefly water and carbon, with some potash, which is mostly found in the potato tops.

STICK TO THE FARM.

Agriculture Pays Bigger Profit Than Country Storekeeping.

A friend of our owned a good farm a few years ago, about two miles from a thriving city. He and his sons lived on it and had a fine home and were prospering slowly. But they got it into their heads that they could live easier and do better by moving to town and going into some business. And they went, renting the farm. They borrowed money on it, and put that with what they had and started a grocery store. He is a man of more than average ability. They all worked early and late for success. Last year, however, was too much for them. They had to trust out too much, and the laboring people had so little money, and there was so much competition among the dealers to get that, that the weakest had to go down. The sheriff has sold the farm, and everything else is gone. They have nothing. As they are particular friends of ours, we feel doubly sorry for them.

Now, my good friends, don't you often think that farming is a poor business, and wish you were out of it and at something else? And you don't know that the usual result would be about as described above? You cannot sell your farm and put your money into any business to-day that is honorable and legitimate and safe that will pay you as well. Let us look this matter squarely in the face, then, and take courage and go ahead and make the best of our business. There is no chance to do any better, as a rule, nor as well, all things considered, with the capital invested. I was talking the other day with a shrewd old gentleman, who has considerable property. He remarked: "I keep enough money in farm land to support myself and family well if everything else went to the dogs. I risk the rest in business." There is nothing safer than a good farm land. We have got enough, too, to support us well, no matter what comes. People must eat, and farmers can always live, on the average. A family out of debt, owning a good farm, reasonably improved, are well-fixed in this world's goods.—T. B. Terry, in Practical Farmer.

FARM WATER SUPPLY.

How to Construct a Reservoir at a Moderate Cost.

On every farm where a windmill is used the additional cost of storing water other than that required for stock is little, and the expense of two or more windmills is less than the loss from drought. Where there is moderate rainfall the supply of moisture necessary to assist through a dry period is but little, and excellent results have been obtained by the use of large tanks, but a small reservoir can be constructed at a moderate cost. A tank ten feet high and ten feet in diameter holds 5,875 gallons of water; but as a reservoir can be provided to hold ten times that much at but little more expense the storage supply could be made ample. This does not imply that one is practicing irrigation, for to do so large storage reservoirs are necessary, but at a small cost the farmer can protect himself to a certain extent against drought. On fields of corn that have been grown by listing the centers between the rows were opened with a one-horse plow and water conducted so as to flow down the drains. Before the ends of the rows are reached the ground becomes well saturated, and a small piece may be irrigated each day. It must not be overlooked that the capacity of the tank does not limit the supply, as the pumps can furnish more water than the farmer may wish to use, and as a tank or reservoir may be drawn off and filled several times during the season the amount of water used will be considerable. Attention is called to this matter, as the cost is but little, and farmers will find it an advantage to experiment in that direction where it can conveniently be done.—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

LABOR-SAVING DEVICE.

It Lifts Large Rocks Out of the Ground with Perfect Ease.

Field bowlders are usually buried either wholly or in part in the surface of the ground. To pull such a bowlder out of the ground requires an enormous amount of power, unless much hand digging is given beforehand. The sketch herewith shows a way to lift the stone as it is dragged out by a team of horses or oxen. The inclined stick can be placed as near to the bowlder as is practicable and as it rises to the perpendicular it of course lifts the stone. The height of the prop will depend upon the size and depth of the stone. The knack of "knowing how" to do such things often saves a vast amount of work.—Orange Judd Farmer.

HOW TO MOVE BOWLDERS.

Use of Liquid Manure.

It does not generally pay to use liquid manure on a large scale. It is a costly method of manuring, as the water adds greatly to the bulk, and nature in the course of the year usually supplies water enough to liquefy all the plant food the crops require. But there are special cases where liquid manuring will pay if used properly. The most common mistakes are, first, making the liquid manure too strong, in which case it will rot the roots instead of feeding them. The other is allowing any liquid manure, however weak, to get on the leaves of plants. They are benefited by being washed by rains, but by nothing stronger.

STRUBLE MISTAKEN.

New Accused of His Murder Prove Complete Alibi.

Shepherd, Aug. 29. — Ever since Cashier Elmer E. Struble was murdered at the Farmers' bank at this place, the chief topic of conversation has been the murdered man's mysterious ante-mortem statement, in which the names of the men who committed the crime were given. The officers kept these names a secret, hoping to gain some other clew, but, finding this impracticable, have made them public. As a result people of the county are bitterly disappointed: Two of the men named could not possibly have been guilty and the third has proven a fair alibi.

The men accused by Mr. Struble are Judge Elijah E. Wheaton, of Mount Pleasant, Dennis Ryan, father of John F. Ryan, and William N. Brown, of Ann Arbor, one of the principal stockholders in the defunct People's bank of Mount Pleasant. Judge Wheaton was in Manistee county fishing in company with William Doughty and George A. Lebatter, two well-known Mount Pleasant business men, the day the murder was committed and for several days before. Mr. Doughty slept with the judge every night and the party fished every day. There is consequently not the slightest suspicion attaching to the judge. His alibi is complete.

Dennis Ryan, the second man named, has secured affidavits from residents of his household proving that he was sawing wood at the family home in Mount Pleasant at 6:30 on Saturday morning. As the crime was committed some time between three and four, and it is less than an hour's drive between Shepherd and Mount Pleasant, Mr. Ryan's affidavit is not quite so ironclad as Judge Wheaton's.

The third of the trio, William N. Brown, of Ann Arbor, is sick in bed, and has been for a long time. Furthermore, he is hundreds of miles from here and has not been in Mount Pleasant for several months.

HELD BACK.

Fall Crops Retarded by Recent Cold Weather.

Lansing, Aug. 28.—The state crop report says:

"The cool weather which has prevailed during the entire week has greatly retarded the growth of all crops, and they have made very slow progress toward maturity. Several light frosts have occurred in nearly every county of the state, but the damage resulting was exceedingly light and confined to low ground. The reports regarding corn, beans and buckwheat are, however, very encouraging, and show that those crops remain in a promising condition. Corn is beginning to glaze, and although it has matured slowly the cool weather has helped toward a more perfect development of the ears, and will probably add to the weight of the crop. Beans and buckwheat are in good shape and buckwheat is filling well. The oats harvest is nearly finished in all sections of the state, but showery weather in the northern counties has delayed securing it. Fall plowing is being pushed in all sections of the lower peninsula, but farmers are beginning to complain that rain is needed to soften the soil. Reports regarding orchard fruits indicate poor yields of nearly all kinds, particularly apples which continue to drop very badly. Clover is seeding fairly well, but needs more rain, as also do pastures. Late potatoes that have been well tended are now looking fairly good, but this condition is not general; most reports say that potatoes promise very poorly."

Librarians to Meet.

Broke Jail.

Frankfort, Aug. 28. — William Jones and Michael Anderson, arrested for burglary at Thompsonville, two months ago, escaped from the county jail about ten o'clock Thursday night. A ten-inch square hole in the top of one of their cells, a bottle of muriatic acid on the floor and a handsaw tell how the work was done. Jones and Anderson claimed Detroit as their home.

Who Wants the Place?

Lansing, Aug. 30.—Gov. Pingree has been asked to appoint three delegates at large to the national irrigation congress to be held in Lincoln, Neb., September 29 and 30. Not many people in Michigan are interested in the subject of irrigation, and the governor would be glad to hear from any person who may desire to be appointed a delegate to the congress.

Deed of a Demented Woman.

Flint, Mich., Aug. 30.—Saturday afternoon while in a demented condition Mrs. William Z. Hutchin, of this city, chloroformed her five-year-old daughter and shot Iva May, her 15-year-old daughter. The younger died four hours later. The older girl, who was shot in the mouth, the breast and the hip, will probably recover.

Will Start December 1.

Houghton, Aug. 29.—The Centennial mine will probably start its mill about December 1, as the developments on Osceola lode assure a permanent mine. The local management still hopes to soon strike something of value on the Calumet conglomerate.

Fatally Burned.

Hartford, Aug. 26. — The little four-year-old daughter of Mr. McNiece, of Watervliet, was fatally burned while playing with kerosene and matches. She lived just four hours and was conscious to the last.

Ready for Distribution.

Lansing, Aug. 30.—Secretary of State Gardner has received the first installment of volumes of the public acts of the legislature from the state printer, and at once commenced shipping them.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

Look after the Back: A Fall, a Strain, a Constant Sitting or Stooping Position Brings Backache—Do You Know This Means the Kidneys are Affected?

How few people realize when their back begins to ache that it is a warning provided by nature to tell you that the kidneys are not working properly. You have a severe fall, you strain yourself lifting or perhaps you are compelled to maintain a sitting or stooping position for long intervals at a time, your back begins to ache, then your head, you become listless, tired and weary, but do you understand the real cause? We think not, else you would not use plasters and liniment on the back, which only relieve but do not reach the cause. If you would rid yourself of the pain and cure the root of the trouble, at the same time save many years of suffering and perhaps life itself, you will take a kidney remedy that has been tried and proven that it will cure.

Mr. John Robsoin of 661 Russell Street, Detroit, says: "As a result of exposure during the war I have suffered ever since with rheumatism and kidney trouble. Pains would start in my hip and go around to my back. Highly colored urine denoted kidney disorder. The pain in my back was often so bad I had to give up work until the severity of the attack passed away. I have used many liniments and other things, but received very little relief. Some time ago I started using Doan's Kidney Pills and they have worked a wonderful change in me. My back is all right now and I owe it all to the almost magical influence of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Mr. Robsoin was a member of the Fifty-first Illinois Regiment, which served through the war with honor and distinction. Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers—price, 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

It relieves and prevents "morning sickness," relaxes the overstrained muscles, relieves the distended feeling, shortens labor, makes recovery rapid and certain without any dangerous after-effects.

Mother's Friend is good for only one purpose, viz.: to relieve motherhood of danger and pain.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

Mr. Robert S. Moreland leaves this afternoon for Denver, Col., Omaha, Neb., and other points in the west. Mr. Moreland, the past spring and summer, has been quite indisposed, and takes this trip in search of health. His large circle of friends joins with The Times in hoping that he will fully recover before he returns.—Adrian Times.

Willard Stearns met with a severe accident about 10 o'clock Sunday morning. He was adjusting a conductor pipe to an eavestrough, when the round of the ladder on which he was standing broke beneath his weight and he fell backward to the ground, a distance of some seven feet. He struck on his head, but his back, which was badly wrenched sustained the principal injury. He is resting fairly well today. It is expected he will be confined to his home for about a week.—Adrian Times.

Chas. Blackmer, of Milan, through whose home runs the Monroe and Washtenaw county line, and who votes in Washtenaw, because his washing is done on the Washtenaw side of the house, is outdone by Mr. Headly, of Fairfield, whose house is situated in two states, two counties and three townships. He eats in one town, says prayers in another, and in a third flings his shoes at disturbing nocturnal cats. The state line passes through his bedroom, Mrs. Headley sleeping in Ohio, while Headley, by a narrow margin, snores in Michigan.—Blissfield Advance

The funeral of the late J. K. Johnson, held Saturday afternoon, was largely attended. Services were conducted by Rev. C. L. Adams, of the M. E. church. The pall-bearers were J. W. Page, George D. Austin, Henry J. Williams, Walter Reeve, R. W. Boyd, O. R. Pierce, of Hudson. The remains were interred at Oakwood. Among those in attendance at the obsequies from out the city were Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Pierce, of Hudson; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. R. Wilson and son Henry, of Ridgeway; Mrs. Tallman and sisters, of Tecumseh; Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Carter, of Morenci.—Adrian Times.

If a stranger had happened through the eastern part of Pittsford township Friday night, he would have thought he had struck Pingree's camp, by the number of men that were out with rifles and shotguns to watch one lone tramp, who had expressed his determination to use forcible means to obtain something to eat and a place to sleep. Interpreting his words (that he was in want of food) he must have come from Hudson. If the people of that vicinity could only have seen that discarded man the next night, they would, no doubt, have heard, "I'll never go there any more," which would be good advice for all men of his class to follow.—Hillsdale Leader.

The editor of the Defiance Cresent says: "After leaving Michigan and coming down into Ohio one sees the vast difference in the material condition of the two states. The comparison is not at all favorable to Michigan. The farms do not look nearly as good, the buildings are small and cheaply constructed and lack paint. In upper Michigan the soil is principally sand."

Well, brother editor, we know not what part of Michigan you visited, but it certainly was not Lenawee county or the southern part of the state. If you will only come up and see us we will show you some of the finest farms and more handsome farm houses than you ever dreamed of in Ohio.—Adrian Times.

It is a comparatively easy matter to kill the burdock, and now is the time to do it, though it may be hard to exterminate it, as it seeds abundantly and the seeds will remain in the ground for years until they have a favorable chance to grow. As the burdock is biennial it dies out after it has seeded the second year, but that is only after it has provided thousands and tens of thousands of seeds to perpetuate its kind. All that is needed to kill the plant is to take a dull axe and chop off the roots below the surface and throw on a handful of salt. The burdock root being moist and soft dissolves the salt, which quickly rots it so that further sprouting of a new top is impossible. No amount of cutting without the salt will do the work.—Clinton Local.

If our people noticed any unusual demonstrations in the sky to the east of us to-day they can lay it to the reflections of Ira Waterman learning to ride a bicycle on the fair ground track. A. M. Keeney was lord high instructor, Ira was high, low, jack and the game. He is quietly practicing to come out and astonish E. J. Smith. He expects to come down town some day, borrow E. J.'s wheel, just for a spin, you know, tell E. J. he never got on a wheel before in his life, and then sail off down the street just as if it came perfectly natural, thereby shaming Mr. Smith unmercifully. We promised not to say anything about this, and if our readers will be kind enough not to mention it to Ira they will confer a great kindness and help Ira in the troubles that are to come in connection with wheels.—Adrian Messenger.

If Col. Fenn had just returned from Klondike with a pocket full of golden nuggets he could not have looked happier than he did when he drove into town yesterday morning. He rushed up to us, his face wreathed in smiles, and grasping the editoral didget exclaimed, "Congratulate me old boy, I'm grandpa," and we did that same the best we knew how. Tuesday evening the wife of Lieut. Harry Kies presented him with a bouncing baby boy, and they named him for the delighted Colonel. The lad is a captain and outranks his father, at least he has full command of the household. We expect that Col. and Mrs. Fenn are no less pleased than Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fellows, of Saline township, who are grandpa and grandma now. The ENTERPRISE congratulates all hands over the joyful event. —Manchester Enterprise.

HER SECRET.

Actions Speak for Themselves—He Was Willing to Read Her Mind.

For many years the young woman had called upon Ulysses. She had brought him numberless packages of choice cigarettes, as well as divers specimens of the most expensive genus cigar, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. She had repeatedly purchased tickets for various celebrated prize fights and after escorting him thither would see to it that he had plenty of lemon cream puffs to munch upon during the intervals of slugging. Many and many an evening had she assisted him in increasing the numerals upon his poor hard-working mamma's coal and gas bills, and she had seen four several sets of new springs added to the parlor sofa. But hitherto she had not stood up like a—er—woman and boldly declared her love for him and requested to be allowed to pay all his expenses in the future in consideration of his donning her last name.

But upon this special evening in question Ulysses had her dead to rights. It may have been the witching golf costume in old gold and baby blue that he wore or the shy grace with which he placed his tiny palm in hers. However, be this as it may, she could no longer restrain herself, but impulsively threw her arms about his frail, shrinking figure and drew him tenderly toward her.

As her lips rose from his she lovingly murmured: "This kiss tells you my secret."

And Ulysses, as he furtively removed some cut plug from his mouth, found an opportunity to observe: "Would you — you—mind—saying—it—over—again?"

HOLD A NET FOR A BEAR.

Bruin Makes It Lively for a Couple of Up-to-Date Hunters.

The following is vouched for by a reliable citizen of the locality where the event occurred, near Disco, 12 miles from Black River Falls, Wis., says the Chicago Chronicle. The farmers had been annoyed by wolves and one of them found a den that he thought would hold a dozen or more. Four of them went there with a large fish net, a long tin tube and a double-barreled gun. They had heard of scaring animals from their den by putting a tube in the hole and then shouting through the tube. Two of them held the net over the mouth of the den and another stood ready with the gun, while the fourth one managed the tube. He gave a fearful screech into a funnel fixed in the end of the tube and after an effort or two there was a rush and growl and out came a black bear as though possessed of nine demons.

He plunged into the net and the two men and the bear had a merry time. The man with the gun didn't dare shoot, for he could not tell where there was the most bear and the least of the men. The net broke and let his bearship through and he made for tall timber at a marvelous rate, but the net men looked very discouraged and it will be a cold day when they try it over again.

The informant was very reticent about telling who the men were, but as he had a double limp, his face scratched and was in the city for a new suit of everyday clothes it looked as though he knew who helped hold the net.

PRIVATE STREET CARS.

One of the Recent Developments of the Trolley Idea.

One development of the trolley-car idea is likely to be shown ere long in the somewhat general fashion of owning private cars. At present a few, though an increasing number, of rich men own private railway cars. The expense is enormous, all things considered. But a moderate expenditure will suffice in the case of the trolley, says the Boston Advertiser.

Only, in a little while, street cars will no longer be propelled by means of trolley attachments, but their motive power will be applied from an inside third rail, or by means of a storage battery, or, possibly, there will be some method invented of which as yet the public has not even a hint.

Anyhow, the rapid extension of the electrically propelled street car system, not only throughout all cities and considerable villages, but into the suburbs and far away into the country, so that in a long time, where population is even moderately dense, there will be an electrical car line close to every man's front door, will supply the conditions necessary for a vast multiplication of the number of private cars.

LITERARY NOTES.

The American Journal of Photography for August is an unusually interesting number. "Optical Effects of Intensification," the leading article, is indeed a grand production.

With the cooler weather come again thoughts of photography. The description of the new hand camera and how it is made in the September Photographic Times will make the average amateur crazy. Buy a copy and find out all about it.

A most appalling state of affair is disclosed in Charles Frederick Holder's graphic article on "Chinese Slavery in America," in the September North American Review. Slavery has existed among the Chinese in California for years, and continues almost unrestricted. An examination of the records of the Chinese-American missions shows that slavery of the most horrible and debased nature is being carried on wherever the Chinese have a foothold.

Every true American citizen should read Dr. John Clark Ridpath's splendid paper, "The Cry of the Poor," and his "Open Letter" to President E. B. Andrews, which appear in the September number of The Arena. In them the Doctor has drawn a picture that appeals to every man and woman in our land who has God-given rights and privileges which, owing to the intervention of plutocratic influences, they are not allowed to enjoy.

The complete novel in the September issue of Lippincott's is "Weeping Ferry," by Margaret L. Woods. It is a sincere, simple, and effective tale of English country life, recording her honorable but passing love of a squire's son for an ex-servant's daughter, and the sad result thereof. Mrs. Woods (who is better known at home than in America) wields a firm, graceful, and entirely competent pen; every line of her work is true to nature.

The September number of the Forum is the first of a new volume—the twenty-fourth—and evidences the vitality of the magazine. Such articles as "Alaska and the New Gold-Field," "Hawaii and the Changing Front of the World," "Strikes and the Coal-Miners," "Is the Cuban Capable of Self-Government?" can hardly fail to satisfy all readers who wish to keep abreast of the times. The leading article, "A Plea for the Navy," by the Hon. H. A. Herbert, Ex-Secretary of the Navy," follows very appropriately the "Plea for the Army" in the August issue.

"The natural American has a healthy pioneer enjoyment in the utter discomfiture of blatant folly, even when the punishment is beyond deserts." This is one of the many "good things" in a charming essay upon American Humor, by Margaret Sutton Briscoe, in Harper's Bazar for August 28th. Another excellent article in the same number is from the pen of Miss Clare Bunce. In a thoroughly practical way she treats of "Silver Articles in Daily Use"; the dainty utensils of the dressing-table, trinkets for the person, and silverware for the dining-table, giving many capital suggestions as to the difficult problem of graceful gift-giving.

The American Monthly Review of Reviews for September has a good deal to say about the Andrews incident and Brown University—not so much, as the editor remarks, on account of the personal interests involved in the case as because of the far-reaching principles affecting academic life and liberty which have become matters at issue. A fair-minded and judicious estimate of President Andrews' services to Brown is given by a writer fully conversant with the facts, and the protest of the faculty is printed in full. The editorial comments on the awkwardness and needlessness of the situation are piquant and to the point.

Marvelous Cures!

—BY—

Dr. W. C. Walker

The Eminent Physician and Surgeon, of Detroit, Mich. formerly of N. Y., will renew his regular monthly visits beginning at

Tecumseh, Lilley House,

Tuesday, Sept. 7th.

The most Successful Method of Treatment of all Diseases and Deformities known to the Latest Medical and Surgical Experience.

Consulations and Examinations Free to all.

Dr. Walker will not treat any unless there is a possibility of a cure, and will so inform you.

Examination by Reflection.

By the latest scientific researches, both by improved instruments and methods, the doctor is enabled to discover the true nature of the disease and locate the organ or parts affected, and many diseases and complications which have heretofore proven most obstinate to the medical profession, yield like magic under his skill and systemic treatment. The doctor is endowed with the wonderful gift of being able to diagnose without questioning and will discribe with the greatest accuracy your aches and pains wherever located, tells better how a person feels than they can tell it themselves.

There is no need to live in constant misery. It costs nothing to see him. The fullest examinations are free and his prices for treatment are within the reach of all. He is a friend to the afflicted and will turn none away unaided. The merchant mingles with the artisan while seeking relief at his hands and hundreds are cured every year.

READ WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY.

One of the most respected ladies in this vicinity, after being treated by all the best physicians, and, pronounced incurable, was advised by a former patient of Dr. Walker's to call and consult him. She says: For the past fifteen years I have been a great sufferer with heart trouble and nervous prostration. The least exertion would cause my heart to flutter and become very irregular and so weak, causing complete exhaustion. I felt as though each day would be my last, and were it not for leaving my little ones, death would have been a relief. After three months' treatment with the Doctor I feel as well as I ever did. My heart beats regular and strong, and that tired feeling has entirely left me. What joy and sunshine health restored.

MRS. E. J. B.

Miss Addie Smith says: "I was sick for many years. My case was known for miles around. Was helped to Dr. Walker's office, now I am able to walk there. I have been under the Doctor's treatment two months and have gained twenty pounds. I feel well. May Heaven's choicest blessings rest upon the Doctor for what he has done for me. I had female trouble, weak lungs and nervous prostration."

REMEMBER DATE OF VISIT.

Wm. Redman says also, that he has been afflicted for ten years with asthma and hay fever, the result of catarrh; has doctored with only temporary relief. He is now a well man, not a vestige of the dread disease remains. He feels grateful to Dr. Walker.

Mrs. W. S. Rogers cured of cancer of the breast She was a great sufferer.

Charles J. Preston cured of catarrh of the stomach and blood poisoning, says he would not be in his former condition again for $5,000.

Mrs. W. M.——, after being barren for ten years, says, "He cured me. We now have two little children. Suffice to say our home is a happy one.

Epilepsy (or fits) positively cured by a recent scientific discovery.

One of the most respected young men of Grand Rapids, Mr. C. H. Hanks, has doctored with a l the best physicians he could hear of and was finally given two weeks to live. Consulted Dr. Walker, took his treatment and is now a well man. He had chronic stomach trouble, weak lungs and constant cough, rheumatism and Bright's disease. He has gained 35 pounds and works every day. He advises all who are sick to see Dr. Walker.

Mrs. C. M. Stutzman cured of blood and skin disease of twelve years standing.

Mrs. L. E. Lambert cured of varicose ulcers on limb.

Miss Ella Crane cured of bronchial trouble and lung disease.

Miss B. H. cured of female weakness after being treated by many noted physicians.

Mrs. W. W. Bennett says also that she had lost her sense of smell and became partially deaf by catarrh in the head and could not sleep for constant coughing and pain through the lungs, also had female trouble. She says she will testify to anyone that Dr. Walker saved her life. She has gained thirty pounds and is well.

Miss Elizabeth Ball writes, after being a great sufferer for a number of years with neuralgia in the head and stomach: I am cured. I feel as though I have got into a new world. I cannot praise the doctor enough for his skill in my case.

Dr. Walker's specialties are diseases of Eye Ear, Throat, Lungs and all chronic, private and nervous diseases and deformities, as Granulated Lids, Cross Eyes, Deafness, Discharge of the Ears, Bronchitis, Chronic Cough, Goitre (big neck) Fever Sores and Ulcers, Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, all diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Heart, Stomach and Nervous Diseases; Chorea (St. Vitus Dance), Epilepsy (fits), General Debility, Scrofula, Skin Diseases and all diseases due to bad blood; also rectal diseases.

I will give special attention to difficult cases and to cases other physicians have failed to cure.

Persons applying for treatment will please bring from two to three ounces of urine, first passed in the morning preferred, for analysis.

THE STRIKE ENDED.

The Miners' Convention at Columbus Takes Final Action.

The Vote on the Proposition to This Effect Is 495 to 317 — The Resolutions Adopted—Pittsburgh Operators Angry.

Columbus, O., Sept. 13.—The great miners' strike, which was declared on July 4, was brought to an end Saturday evening, so far at least as Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia are concerned, by the action of the interstate convention of miners, which has been in session here since Wednesday.

After a day of voting and wrangling the convention adopted a resolution accepting the proposition of the Pittsburgh operators. The vote was 495 for and 317 against accepting the terms of settlement, 11 votes not being cast. The delegates from Illinois, who had 250 votes, were unanimously against a settlement. Indiana and West Virginia voted solidly to accept the operators' proposition, but there were scattering votes among the Ohio and Pittsburgh delegates against it. The resolutions adopted are as follows:

The Resolutions.

"Resolved, That we, the miners of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, in convention assembled, do hereby agree to accept the proposition recommended by our national executive committee, viz., 65 cents in the Pittsburgh district, all places in above-named states where a relative price can be obtained, to resume work and contribute liberally to the miners who do not receive the advance, where the fight must be continued to a bitter finish.

"Resolved, That the national officers, executive board and district presidents act as an advisory board for the purpose of providing ways and means for the carrying on of the strike where necessary, provided, however, that no district resume work for ten days, for the purpose of giving miners in other districts time to confer with their operators and get the price if possible."

Given Ten Days.

While ten days is provided for the miners to resume work, it is probable many of the Ohio and Pittsburgh mines will be reopened at once. The convention adopted resolutions indorsing the action of the national executive board in recommending a settlement on the terms proposed.

A resolution was adopted denouncing the action of the deputies in firing into the crowd of striking miners at Hazleton, Pa.

Ratchford Is Pleased.

President Ratchford said that he was well pleased with the result of the convention and continued:

"It is as complete a national settlement of the miners' wage question as we have ever had. We will have to fight De Armit in Pennsylvania, of course, will have the northern operators to whip into line and we will have some fighting to do in West Virginia. The Indiana operators, however, have already offered to pay the scale. It has been several years since there was a well-defined wage scale for West Virginia. Since then the mining conditions have changed there so much that we will probably have to call a conference of miners and operators to fix a new scale.

"The best thing about it is that it is an agreement. Nobody has been whipped. There is to be a conference in December to fix the wages for 1898, and the present wages are to be paid the rest of the year.

"I don't recall when there was a better prospect for undisturbed wage conditions in the mining industry than now."

Pittsburgh Operators Angry.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 13.—The operators of the Pittsburgh district may repudiate their agreement with the miners' officials in regard to the 65-cent rate. When they agreed to pay it they did not figure on a ten days' delay, but supposed the miners would go to work at once. They claim treachery on the part of the miners' officials, and it is now a matter of surmise whether the mines will resume at the price agreed on.

LAST OF THE KIND.

Delegates from the Columbus Convention Tell Stories.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 14.—The national bituminous coal miners' strike of 1897 will probably be the last of the kind for the present generation and hereafter the difficulties arising through wage disputes will likely be settled by states and districts, and a revolution may be expected in differentials favoring other states, as the Pittsburgh miners have had their eyes opened.

M. D. Ratchford, national president, and Patrick Dolan, district president, both expressed themselves privately that they were thoroughly disgusted at the action of the delegates from Illinois and West Virginia and the cupidity of some Ohio delegates who wished to continue the strike for political reasons.

Received by the Queen.

San Sebastian, Sept. 14. — The retiring United States minister to Spain, Hannis O. Taylor, was received in audience by the queen regent Monday and presented his letters of recall. Soon afterwards the new United States minister to Spain, Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, was received by her majesty and presented his credentials.

Terms of Peace.

Constantinople, Sept. 15.—The ambassadors of the powers have arrived at an understanding in regard to the terms of peace between Turkey and Greece. An international commission is to control the Greek revenues in order to meet the indemnity and the Turkish troops are to evacuate Thessaly.

Seven Killed.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 13.—In a freight-train wreck at Vanburen, Ark., seven persons were killed.

A HOT WEEK.

Gives Corn a Big Boost to Maturity in Most States.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—The reports as to the condition of the crops throughout the country, and the general effect of the weather on the growth, cultivation and harvest of the same, were Tuesday made by the directors of the several climate and crop sections. The reports received at Chicago were as follows:

Michigan—Hot weather ripened corn, buckwheat and potatoes very fast. Corn cutting begun and much of the crop is now safe from frost. Buckwheat in fine shape and cutting begun. Potatoes improved. Dry soil has delayed rye and wheat seeding and rain is also needed to germinate grain already sown. Pastures generally poor.

Indiana—No rain; hot sunny days, cool nights during the week. Most corn is safe from frost. Much of the early planted is cut and in shock. Much tobacco is housed, some was fired. Clover hulling continued yielding good seed. Pasturage is dry and stock is being fed. Water is scarce.

Illinois—Hot dry week forced corn to maturity and materially shortened late crop; cutting general, with fair to good yield, lightest on high thin soils, with much light chaffy corn anticipated. Too dry for plowing and seeding only attempted with drills in corn fields, hence little done; broom corn cutting nearly completed in east central counties; pastures brown; gardens dead; potatoes a failure; stock water very scarce; ponds, wells and streams dry or failing.

Iowa—Continued high temperature and drought have swiftly ripened early corn with some deteriment to quality. Some favorably located fields of late corn still growing and will make fair yield with two weeks normal weather. Plowing and fall seeding retarded by drought.

Wisconsin—Corn much benefited by unusually hot weather, except in southeastern counties where moisture was insufficient. Early plantings being cut and bulk of crop will be matured in a week or ten days. Pastures very short. Cranberries being picked, crop good. Buckwheat being harvested; crop generally good. Rain needed for fall plowing.

FEVER SPREADING.

Six New Cases of Yellow Jack Reported in New Orleans.

New Orleans, Sept. 15.—The yellow fever here is spreading. Six new cases were announced Tuesday. They were scattered all over the city, so that now no section of New Orleans save that district known as Algiers can be said to be free from the scourge. Two unpleasant features are connected with the new cases Tuesday. In the first place, it has broken out in the slums. The work of cleaning and purifying the city is being pushed rapidly ahead. The streets and gutters are sprinkled with lime where it is thought that such course will be beneficial and the premises are being cleaned up.

The city is so tightly tied up now and so many hands are lifted against her that there is no longer any commotion created when this, that or other town institutes quarantine. Within a radius of 1,000 miles every town and hamlet has emphatically refused to have any intercourse with the city. Drummers who are on the road are tied up in small towns and no orders are coming in and the country people are at present paying no bills.

RICH IN GOLD.

Sulphur Creek Promises to Eclipse Finds on the Klondike.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 14.—Sulphur creek, a branch of Dominion creek, which is a tributary of the Indian river, is the scene of the latest gold excitement in the Klondike. From accounts of the new district brought down on the schooner Southcoast it seems that the new diggings will rival even the famous Bonanza and Eldorado. Gold was found just below the surface running $34 to the pan. Two men took out $300 in a day by simply prospecting their claims. A stampede followed the reports of the new finds, which reached Dawson City August 15. In a week 500 men had crossed the mountains between Eldorado creek and Dominion creek. They traveled day and night, and in two weeks the whole stream was staked out.

SPAIN IN A BAD WAY.

Sagasta Says the Cuban Insurrection Is Spreading.

Madrid, Sept. 15.—Senor Sagasta, the liberal leader, in an interview on the subject of the Cuban insurrection, says that the uprising, instead of dying out, is spreading considerably. In addition, Senor Sagasta says, the situation in the Philippine islands is serious. He also asserts that the Carlist propaganda in Spain cannot be viewed with indifference, and expresses the belief that a reconciliation between the political parties in Spain is impossible so long as the conservatives are in power.

STAR POINTER AGAIN WINS.

Beats Joe Patchen in Two Heats by Narrow Margin.

Medford, Mass., Sept. 13. — In the great match race between Star Pointer and Joe Patchen, for a purse of $4,000, Star Pointer won the first heat in 2:03¾. The time by quarters was: First quarter, 30½; half, 1:01¼; third, 1:33¾. Star Pointer won second heat race by 2:04¼. By quarters: First, 30¼; half, 1.01¼; third, 1:33. Both heats were close and exciting, the first being won by only a nose and the second by a length.

A Long Swim.

New York Sept. 13.—James Hooper, champion long-distance swimmer of the west of England, completed his task of swimming from Troy to the Battery, having made the trip of 156 miles in 12 days.

DEATH AND RUIN.

A Terrible Calamity Visits Two Sister Cities in Texas.

Port Arthur and Sabine Pass Wrecked by a Tornado—Several Lives Are Lost and the Property Loss Is Enormous.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 15.—A special to the Star from Port Arthur Tuesday says: Here six bodies have been recovered, the result of Sunday night's storm, while at Sabine Pass the recovered death list numbers ten and many are missing. Many were injured, but not seriously. Telegraph and train communication was cut off until Tuesday.

In all of the streets Tuesday wrecked buildings, fences, household goods and debris filled the sidewalks and roadways and on every side were other evidences of the havoc of the storm, while the houses left standing all showed signs of the action of the wind. Many of the Kansas City, Pittsburgh & Gulf railroad buildings were either totally wrecked or twisted from their foundations, and business houses suffered considerable damage. The loss of property will reach $50,000.

Dead at Port Arthur.

The dead at Port Arthur:

Frank Albright, Kansas City, employed by electric light company.
Fritz Michelet, carpenter.
George Martin, brick layer.
Mrs. Weeks.
Mary Unsworth.
Infant son of W. H. Johnson.
Injured: Roy Stafford, wife and daughter; will recover.

Ten Drowned at Sabine City.

The following was received over the Pittsburgh & Gulf wires at 11:30 Tuesday from Shreveport, La., from George M. Craig, general townsite agent of the road, who had just returned from Sabine City:

"At Sabine City about ten people, including Betts and Moore, tug and lighter owners, were drowned. Three tugs, one schooner and nearly all the small boats anchored at the town were either sunk or stranded. All of the substantial buildings in the old and new town escaped. The water in new town rose to six feet and that in old town to four. No names obtainable.

"It is difficult to get detailed losses. Three-fourths of the export pier, a temporary [illegible] pier was damaged to the extent of $100,000. $50 damage was wrought to the principal hotel and the Taylor bayou bridge, situated three miles from town, was demolished. Among the steamers which went down was Lindsley's steam pile driver."

The Victims Buried.

Houston, Tex., Sept. 15.—The funeral train bearing the bodies of the victims of the Port Arthur hurricane were taken to Beaumont, where they were interred. Every business house in that city was closed, and nearly the entire population turned out and joined the cavalcade to the cemetery. None of the injured have died, nor are likely to. The damage to shipping at Sabine Pass is greater than was at first thought. Two schooners laden with lumber are practically wrecks, and it will be nearly impossible to save the ship Ceres. Nothing has as yet been heard of the pile driver with six men aboard, which evidently careened out at sea.

Damage in the Country.

The damage in the country to buildings and crops is severe. The losses to the farmers in Jefferson county alone will approximate $150,000, which they would have had in hand within 30 days had the storm been delayed that long, but now the crops are completely ruined. The Texas & Sabine Pass Railway company is at work building their line to Sabine Pass and rebuilding and repairing is in progress at the new town of Sabine, and as soon as the people of Port Arthur recover from their fright rebuilding will be resumed there.

PARTY OF FOUR DROWNED.

Sad Ending of Pleasure Trip Near Waverly, Ia.

Waterloo, Ia., Sept. 14.—Rev. Scott Hyatt and wife, Royal McQueen and Miss Mae Tibbetts were drowned in the Cedar river near Waverly. Hyatt was an adventist. The party went on an excursion and not returning at night search was made. Their uneaten lunch, hammocks and wearing apparel were found on the river banks. Early in the morning the bodies of Hyatt, McQueen and Miss Tibbetts were found in a deep pool clasped together. About ten o'clock Mrs. Hyatt was found 300 yards below caught in a barb wire fence. The theory it that Miss Tibbetts and Mrs. Hyatt got beyond their depth, and when the men tried to save them they all drowned. The parties were highly connected in Waverly.

Will Change the Color.

Washington, Sept. 15.—The secretary of the treasury and the postmaster-general, after consultation with the president, have decided to change the color of the current two-cent postage stamp from carmine to green of the shade now used on government notes. The ten-cent postage stamp, which is now printed in green, will be changed to some other color, possibly carmine.

Highest Since the War.

St. Louis, Sept. 11.—December wheat Friday broke all former records, dating back to war times, by soaring up to $1.01⅛ a bushel during the call on the floor of the Merchants' exchange.

Burned by Molten Iron.

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 13.—While pouring molten iron at the Pioneer stove works at Leeds, a Sioux City suburb, five men were frightfully burned.

Bryan, Ohio, Jan. 15, 1897.

Gentlemen:—For years I had been suffering from indigestion. Had a poor appetite and could not eat anything containing grease and had constantly a worn out feeling. To Benefit Others.

The Editor of The Bloomfield Iowa Farmer Writes of the Good Done by DR. MILES' NEW HEART CURE.

THERE ARE a great many unselfish men and women who wish others to know what has restored them to health and happiness. Mr. C. F. Davis, publisher of one of the best newspapers in Iowa, writes from Bloomfield, Ia., Aug 18 1896. "My desire to benefit others prompts me to write this. We have used Dr. Miles' Remedies in my family for nearly two years with most gratifying results. We would'nt now do without them. My wife had been weakly and down nearly every summer for the past fifteen years. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is exactly what its name implies; a sure cure for a weak, fluttering, palpitating heart, and Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills are most excellent."

PRETTY TABLE LAMP.

How to Obtain a Useful and Ornamental Piece of Art.

The illustration shows the design for a table lamp that can be made by most any woman who is handy with tools.

The materials which will be required to make it are seemingly the least worthy, and an old box, some burlaps or bagging such as furniture comes packed in, a few thin sheets of stovepipe iron and some nails and paint.

In the first place, obtain a box at a grocery store such as canned goods are packed in, carefully break it apart, taking care not to split any of the thin boards. Of these boards make a box eight inches square and twelve inches high; the wood used for the top and bottom should be thicker than that of which the sides are made, and in the top cut a round hole, large enough to admit a metal lamp fount. A rim around the top edge of the fount will, if the hole is made the right size, prevent it from falling into the box.

All over the top and sides of the box fasten ordinary burlaps with liquid glue, and when it is thoroughly dry give the bagging a few successive coats of light olive green paint. Sandpaper the burlaps before applying the last coat, so an even and smooth surface may be obtained.

Bind the edges of the box with strips of sheet iron, allowing about three-quarters of an inch of metal to show on a side. Fasten the iron on with large oval-headed brass upholsterers' tacks, driven at equal distances apart.

On a sheet of paper draw the pattern shown on one side of the box and cut pieces from the thin iron to work out the pattern on each side. Tack these pieces on with good-sized oval-headed iron carpet tacks and then give all the metal work a coat or two of ivory black paint, thinned with japan drefer.

At a hardware store purchase four clawfeet and screw one fast under each corner. They will probably be of brass, but when painted black will appear as of iron.

A good central-draft lamp fount and burner can be purchased at a lamp store, with them a canopy shade frame can be purchased, over which a pretty shade can be made of silk paper or other light material that will shed a pleasant light, and if arranged as shown in the illustration a satisfactory result will be obtained.

If a central-draft burner and fount is used it will be necessary to have a few holes through the bottom of the box to allow a vent for the air, otherwise it would cause the light to be dim or the wick to smoke.—C. Harry Adams, in Chicago Record.

HINTS ON CANNING.

Mrs. Rorer Gives Timely Directions for Putting Up Fruit.

In the Ladies' Home Journal Mrs. S. T. Rorer writes on "Canning and Preserving." At the outset of her lesson she emphasizes the value of securing perfectly sound and fresh fruits, and the necessity of getting the cans and canning appurtenances in readiness in advance. "To prevent breaking when filling the jars," Mrs. Rorer advises that they be slipped "sidewise into a kettle of hot water, rolling them so that every part may be quickly and uniformly heated. Fold a damp towel, place it in the bottom of a pudding pan, then near the preserving kettle; stand a jar on the towel, and if the fruit is small adjust the funnel; fill quickly to overflowing. Run a heated silver knife around the inside of the jar, to break any air bubbles that may have been caught with the fruit, and adjust the rubber, then lift the lid from the hot water and place it at once. If large fruit fill with a wooden spoon, arranging the fruit so that the weight of one piece will not destroy the shape of another. Fill to overflowing with the liquid, water or sirup, and fasten tightly. After sealing stand the jars out of a draft over night. The glass by that time will have contracted, and the lids will, in consequence, be loose. Wipe each jar carefully and give the top an extra turn. Put away in a cool, not cold, dark closet. At the end of a week examine each jar carefully, without shaking or disturbing more than necessary. If you find the lids slightly indented, the contents free from air bubbles or froth, and the liquid settled, you may rest assured 'they will keep.' If you do not find it so, open the jars to prevent bursting. Reheat the fruit, being careful to bring it to a boiling point, and re-can."

Polish for the Furniture.

A little turpentine and oil applied to furniture with a flannel cloth, the furniture then thoroughly rubbed, will give it a bright, clean appearance. If your rosewood refuses to polish have your furniture man repolish it for you. He will rub it down with sandpaper, and varnish it, so it will last for six years.—Ladies' Home Journal.

NEAT FOLDING BASKET.

How to Put Together a Dainty Piece of Fancy Work.

No doubt some one will exclaim: "Why, that's old; my grandmother made them just like that!" Ah! did she? Was it not of fine leather, lined with silk, neatly bound with ribbon, infinitesimal stitches, showing hours and hours of painstaking labor, skill and neatness of execution? You who have the time and patience for such work may copy your grandmother's basket, but for those who, even in leisure hours, want to get the best results with least time and labor, as well as expense, may follow these directions and gain much in so doing.

Cut a stiff pasteboard octagon-shaped bottom about four inches in diameter;

PRETTY FOLDING BASKET.

then a thinner duplicate; also cut eight pieces of the shape indicated in the design, measuring about 1½ inches at the base, three inches at the top and four inches along the side; also duplicate these in the thinner pasteboard. Cover all the heavy pieces with any coarse material desired, such as cretonne, denim, velvet or linen, neatly turning over and pasting down the edges. In like manner cover the thin pieces with silk, silkolline or any suitable lining for the basket, making it figured in effect if the outer covering be plain, and vice versa, or of contrasting colors. On the outer pieces attach the hinges, which may be of narrow ribbon or strips of the same material, a trifle over one inch wide, pasted into position; then on each inner piece place some necessary convenience—a thimble case of covered cardboard sewed to the correct position, a tiny bag or two, with elastic run in the top, to hold spools of thread, a double case for papers of needles, a little sheath for buttonhole scissors, a neatly-finished needle book of two or three leaves of flannel, pinked or buttonholed on the edges, a small case with overlapping top for pearl buttons, some narrow cases for bodkins, darners, etc., and an emery bag completing the equipment of the one in the illustration. At each upper corner of the eight sides should be sewed a small brass ring, buttonholed in silk to match, while the bottom should be finished with a pincushion corresponding with the needle book.

The basket is now ready to put together. Each pair of outer and inner pieces being carefully glued or overhanded neatly into place, the whole is overhanded firmly to the octagon bottom and a narrow ribbon is run through the ring and tied, holding the sides upright. These are very convenient baskets for traveling, as opening flat renders it easy to pack them. They can be bought for less than one dollar, and to make one costs very much less; while by fitting it up with necessary implements and furnishings it may be quite an expensive gift, as well as one showing neatness and dexterity in its execution.—American Queen.

COFFEE DESSERTS.

They Are Not Only Delicious, But Very Easily Prepared.

Coffee is the most delicious flavoring for summer desserts. The essence of coffee, which is used, is easily prepared, but should always be fresh. The secret of flavoring with coffee lies in having this essence so fresh and pure that it has the delicious aroma of a cup of good coffee. Take a tablespoonful of the best coffee, freshly ground, and put it in a small saucepan with a cup of cold water. Let the fluid boil until it is reduced to about two tablespoonfuls. Strain it through a cloth, pressing it well; let it cool, and it is ready for use.

A "coffee mousse" is a most delicious iced dessert, and is prepared without the trouble in freezing which an ice-cream involves. This mousse is made as follows: Put two cupfuls of sweet, rich cream in a bowl. Fill a pan with chopped ice, place the bowl in the pan, and begin to beat the cream with a fine wire whip. Beat slowly at first, then faster, until it is a fine, firm froth. When it is all frothed, add two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and three tablespoonfuls of coffee essence, and beat them together well. Put the mousse in a long, slender mold, and cover it tightly, sealing the edge of the cover with mutton tallow, and pack it away in a pail covered with cracked ice and rock salt. Three quarts of salt are sufficient for a pailful of ice. The mousse should be packed away for about six hours. If the mold is large in diameter, it may be opened once and the frozen parts removed from the sides with a knife. If the mold is slender, it should be left undisturbed. A coffee mousse makes a most attractive desert if served with a clear red cherry ice heaped around it.

For a coffee custard, boil a quart of milk and add two tablespoonfuls of coffee essence. Add five yolks of eggs and two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Stir the mixture well, and strain it; pour it into custard cups, and set them in a pan with boiling water to half the height of the cups. Place the pan over a slow fire, and let the water boil gently for 20 minutes. When the custards are set, remove them from the fire and set them in the water. Serve them in the cups.—N. Y. Tribune.

MOTHER! There is no word so full of meaning and about which such tender holy recollections cluster as that of "MOTHER"—she who watched over our helpless infancy and guided our first tottering steps. Yet the life of every Expectant Mother is beset with danger and all should be made to avoid. Mother's Friend so assists nature in the change taking place that the Expectant Mother is enabled to look forward without dread, suffering or gloomy forebodings, to the hour when she experiences the joy of Motherhood. Its use insures safety to the life of both Mother and Child, and she is found stronger after than before confinement—in short, it "makes Childbirth natural and easy," so many have said. Don't be persuaded to use anything else.
MOTHER'S FRIEND

"My wife suffered more in ten minutes with either of her other two children than she did altogether with the last, having previously used four bottles of 'Mother's Friend.' It is a blessing to any one expecting to become a MOTHER," says a customer.

SOOTHING SILENCE.

It Is Here Shown That Absolute Quiet Brings Healing Rest.

A doctor, writing on the subject of the suppression of useless noises in cities, which he claims will hasten toward convalescence many a patient whose nerves are now too racked by perpetual racket to give the system a chance of recuperating, says he remembers one delightful ward in his training school, wherein the "sister" used to insist on a "silent hour," from 2:30 to 3:30 daily. It was the only ward in the hospital which enforced this golden rule, alike beneficial to the nurses fortunate enough to be drafted there and the patients therein, who flourished and blossomed forth into amazing convalescence under the silence system and the good nursing which accompanied it. For the "sister" was a born nurse, and she had the real sympathy and womanliness which caused her to appreciate the balm and healing of that one quiet hour in the day, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

It was a male surgical ward, and the patients, on first admission, used to chafe somewhat at "sister's" dictum—against which there was no appeal—of "no conversation or newspaper reading during the hour." But gradually each patient came to appreciate the soothing lull in the busy hum of the ward, and "sister" and her staff used to watch with satisfaction how patient after patient fell gradually under the soporific quiet of the time, and went off into comfortable sleep, which frequently lasted long after the prescribed limit. The good humor of the ward was most exceptional.

The senior surgeon of the hospital was never tired of saying: "The patients here, sister, get on as if by magic. What spells of witchcraft do you weave to heal them so quickly?"

Exiles at St. Helena.

Mr. Chamberlain, in his capacity as British secretary of state for the colonies, has just caused it to be known that the English government has resolved to release the son and two brothers of the famous Zulu king, Cetewayo, from their captivity at St. Helena, and to restore them to their own country. Years ago they were exiled to that dismal island, where Napoleon died a prisoner, on the mere suspicion of being engaged in organizing a revolt against British rule in Zululand. They have always protested their innocence, and, inasmuch as their guilt has never been proved, and they have never been convicted by any court of law, their liberation is but a tardy act of justice.

GANG OF HORSE THIEVES.

They Are Said to Be Operating Through Southern Michigan.

La Porte, Ind., Sept. 14. — The authorities at South Bend claim to have evidence of the existence of an organized gang of horse thieves operating through southern Michigan and northern Indiana. A large number of horses have been stolen within the last few days, and the thieves have all been traced across the state line. A number of horses have been traced to Edwardsburg, where all trace seemingly was lost. Farmers in southern Michigan counties have also suffered from the depredations, and a determined effort will be made to apprehend the gang. Livérymen have suffered at the hands of the thief, who adopted the clever subterfuge that he was pursuing a horse thief, securing horses by this plan of operation, and then disappearing.

GOOD VEIN OF COAL.

The Contract Let for Its Mining to Cleveland Firm.

Bay City, Sept. 13.—A contract has been entered into by J. H. Somers & Co., of Cleveland, and the Isaac Marston estate by which the former acquires the right to mine coal on the the extensive Marston farm on the Kawkawlin road. A well was recently sunk for water and a vein of four feet four inches was passed through, which leads to the belief that coal can be successfully mined there, the same as in Monitor township. By the terms of the contract Somers & Co. are obliged to begin operations within six months. The firm has secured coal-mining rights from adjacent property, and it is reported will operate extensively. The Michigan Central runs through the property.

IN MICHIGAN WATERS.

The Government Ship Yantic Assigned to the Naval Reserves.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—The good ship Yantic, which has been given to the Michigan naval reserves, will not only serve the purpose of a floating armory, but will also act as a tolerably efficient cruiser for the navy department. It has been decided to leave the engines and boilers in the old vessel, and orders were given to start her for Detroit on October 1 under her own steam. This means that she will steam up to the mouth of the St. Lawrence river with her own engines, and will there be delivered over to the representatives of the state of Michigan, who will pontoon her through the lakes.

To Develop Mineral Springs.

Benton Harbor, Sept. 13.—A company has been formed to be known as the "Eastman Springs company," that will develop the valuable mineral springs near town where thousands have visited annually for several years. A sanitarium will be built and the Eastman Springs electric railway now under construction will reach there this fall. One hundred thousand dollars capital stock has been placed at the company's disposal.

Cooperative Foundry.

Jackson, Sept. 13.—A cooperative foundry has commenced operations in this city under the name of the Central City Cooperative Foundry company. The principal stockholders are A. C. Smith, who will be general manager; George J. Buchfink and George Schatt. Each workman employed will, however, have a personal interest in the business.

The Brave Girl Died.

Detroit, Sept. 14.—Maggie Mack, the 17-year-old girl who was terribly burned while trying to save her two young brothers from flames caused by the explosion of a gasoline stove, died of her injuries. She suffered the most excruciating pain until her death. The other two children were badly burned, but will recover.

Confession Was False.

Bancroft, Sept. 10.—The confession of a murder in Rochester, N. Y., by Harry F. Leadley, the bicyclist who died here, has been shown to be a pure fabrication. Leadley was a cigarette fiend, and his strange statements before his death were doubtless the ravings of a mind diseased by that habit.

Hog Cholera in Ionia.

Ionia, Sept. 11.—Hog cholera has broken out in Ionia township, this county. W. D. Place has lost 35 or 40 porkers, W. F. Scammell and A. J. Webber quite a number each and cases are scattered throughout the town. The officials will take every precaution to prevent the spread of the disease.

Loss Nearly $3,000.

Petoskey, Sept. 11.—Fire catching from burning stubble destroyed the house, barns and grain in stacks on the farm of Albert Auble, who came here from Grand Rapids three years ago and located four and a half miles west of this city. The loss is estimated at $2,000 to $3,000.

Lengthy School Term.

Metamora, Sept. 11.—This village is to have the longest school term in its history. Several scholars were prevented from graduating last year on account of illness and the school board has decided to hold a ten months' term in order to accommodate the unfortunate ones.

Found Dead in a Field.

Lexington, Sept. 11.—Francis Meyers, aged 74, was found dead in a field on the farm of his brother-in-law, Robert Wagner, this township. It is supposed that he was overcome by the heat. The thermometer has registered 100 in the shade for two days.

Pardons Eight Convicts.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 13.—Gov. Pingree broke the pardon record by releasing eight convicts, all of whom were serving long terms for serious offenses, and paroling two short-term convicts.

Fatally Scalded.

Battle Creek, Sept. 10. — The five-months-old child of Mrs. Frank Darling, a widow, was fatally scalded by upturning from a gasoline stove a kettle

SUSTAINS MURRAY.

An Opinion Handed Down by Attorney-General Maynard.

Lansing, Sept. 11.—Replying to an inquiry from Superintendent A. J. Murray, of the state public school, Attorney-General Maynard gave an opinion in which he holds that the attendant from the state public school has no legal authority to approve of homes for children sent out by the school, that duty being vested by law exclusively in the agent of the state public school and the county agent of the state board of corrections and charities. The board of control of the school, it is held, has no power to delegate the performance of this duty to any other person.

It is understood that Superintendent Murray has disagreed with the board upon the question and the opinion of the attorney-general sustains the views taken by the former.

AFTER MONTHS IN JAIL.

A Young Man Acquitted of Perjury Upon His Trial.

Lapeer, Sept. 11.—Charles Schnoor, of Almont, who was arrested last April upon the charge of perjury, alleged to have been committed at the trial of Edwin R. Gould for violation of the liquor law, has been acquitted. Schnoor has laid in jail since his arrest, being unable to procure bail.

William Kreiner, a young man residing at Burnside, who was arrested at the instigation of a detective named Green, hailing from St. Johns, upon the charge of violating the liquor law, was found not guilty, the information being fatally defective.

OIL OF GOOD QUALITY.

It Is Secured at the Well at the Sanborn Elevator.

Port Huron, Sept. 13.—The work of pumping the oil well at the Sanborn elevator has commenced under the supervision of Alex Morrison, of this city, a man of considerable experience in that kind of work. In one hour 1½ barrels of oil was obtained, after which it was found necessary to shut down to put in a larger pump. The oil secured was of excellent quality. Those who have interested themselves in this matter believe that this city has a future as an oil producer.

Surprise for Members.

Grand Rapids, Sept. 10.—An unpleasant surprise awaits the 3,000 members of the Michigan Masonic Life association, which went into the hands of a receiver at its own request last winter. Circuit Judge Grove will, in a few days, issue a decree assessing each member $60 to clear up the liabilities. It is admitted that the assessments cannot be collected from more than one-third of the members owing to their financial condition.

Charged with Murder.

Menominee, Sept. 11.—Mrs. Labounty is under arrest at Wilson, Spalding township, charged with the murder of her three-year-old daughter, whose dead body was found in a cradle Monday. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of death from violence and neglect. The child's body and head were found to be a mass of bruises and sores. The woman has been held for examination.

Heavy Criminal Docket.

Bay City, Sept. 14. — The criminal docket of the circuit court for the September term is the largest in history, containing 58 cases. Of these two are for murder, two for manslaughter and two for burglary. The jail is filled with prisoners, and Judge Maxwell says he will begin with the criminal cases on the 27th and keep on grinding until the jail is empty again.

Died Suddenly.

Jackson, Sept. 10.—John O. Gunnison, aged 70, one of the best-known citizens of Jackson county, where he had resided for many years, died suddenly in this city. He was a large property owner. He was at one time proprietor of the Hibbard house and had retired from business.

A Michipicoten Company.

Bay City, Sept. 11.—Twenty young men of this city have formed a company to send four of their number to the Michipicoten gold fields on a prospecting tour. They will leave at once and if their report is favorable, the company will begin mining.

Saved by the Doctors.

Owosso, Sept. 14. — Mrs. White, wife of Alderman V. M. White, took a dose of morphine large enough to kill ten people. When the doctor was called she was already in a comatose condition, but after several hours' work she was brought back to life.

Will Employ Extra Teachers.

Saginaw, Sept. 11.—At a special meeting of the school board of the east side it was decided to employ three extra teachers and also to purchase what is known as the Christian church building to provide for the overflow of pupils of several schools.

Joined the Methodists.

Highland Station, Sept. 14.— Rev. Wallace R. Struble has resigned as pastor of the Congregational church here after two months' services and has united with the Michigan conference of the Methodist church.

Little Boy Killed.

Blew Off His Head.

Niles, Sept. 11.—Jasper Kline, of Wakelee, while in a fit of despondency, blew his head off with a shotgun.

A Fatal Fall.

Niles, Sept. 10. — John Watson, a Colon contractor, fell from a scaffold and was killed.

LIQUID FUEL.

Oil Better Than Coal for Many Purposes.

Liquid fuel is coming into general use among engineers, and there can be little doubt that if road carriages are to be propelled by steam, the only fuel admissible will be some form of petroleum, says the National Recorder. At a late meeting of the Northeast Coast Institution in South Shields, Mr. R. R. Wallis read a paper giving the results of many experiments to ascertain the calorific and evaporative value of various oils as fuel for steam raising. In comparing coal and oil he shows that the value of each varies greatly with the quality and circumstances under which burned, oil doing from one and a half to two and a half times the work of an equal weight of coal. This is accounted for, first, by the complete combustion of oil without loss of heat in soot or smoke; second, because there are no fires to clean with the accompanying loss of heat and fall of steam pressure, the pressure and revolution of the engines being maintained; third, because the boiler tubes are always clean and in the best condition for the heat from gases passing through them to the boiler, and fourth, because the temperature of the escaping gases may be lower than is necessary to create the draught necessary for coal firing. There are no bars nor thick fire for the air to force its way through; the required amount of air can be drawn through the furnace by a lower uptake temperature, and the admission of air being under complete control and the fuel burned in fine particles in close contact with the oxygen of the air, only a very small excess of air is required. It occupies, moreover, only half the space needed for coal.

MET FIRST IN YOKOHAMA.

Though In New York They Had Lived for Years in the Same House.

"It is a familiar saying," said a New Yorker, as reported by the Sun, "that people may live next door to each other in New York and never know each other at all, and it's quite true; and the same is true also of people living in even closer proximity in flats. I have lived for years in a flat and have never known even by sight the people living above or below me. In the case of a flathouse, however, you are pretty sure to learn the names of the tenants. You hear them spoken in the elevator shaft by the grocer and the butcher, or you may see them yourself on the letter boxes in the vestibule of the building; but that in most cases would be as far as your acquaintance would proceed. I did once become acquainted with my neighbor in the floor below, but it was by chance, and in Yokohama.

[illegible] him.

"'And yours to me,' said he; and when we came to compare notes we found that they had become so through the names on the letter boxes in the flathouse at eleven hundred and 'leventy-'leven West 'Leventy-'leventh street, New York, where we both lived.

"For years we had lived only 15 feet apart, but we became acquainted 10,000 miles away."

NATURE'S OWN PROTECTION.

Explanation of Why a Swelling Follows from a Blow.

The swelling which follows from a blow is nature's effort to protect the part from further injury and to keep it at rest while repair is going on, says the Philadelphia Times. What actually takes place at the seat of injury is not even now quite understood. The injury to the smaller blood vessels interferes with the flow of blood through them and the white corpuscles, with part of the serum, the watering part of the blood, escape into the surrounding tissues. At the same time the blood vessels in the neighborhood dilate and the increased flow of blood with the thoroughfare obstructed increases the swelling.

It is probable that the white corpuscles of the blood pass into the tissues to assist in the repair, as bees or ants assemble at an injury to their storehouse, but with this difference, that the substance of the corpuscles is probably converted into the tissue of repair. From one point of view the human body is only one gigantic colony of individuals, and the swelling that follows injury but the rush of these to repair the breach.

Once Had Earthquakes.

Southern Scotland and northern England are visited by multitudes of strangers each year, and many get as far as the Western Isles. Few of them, however, are reminded of volcanic phenomena, though columnar basalts, such as those of Fingal's cave, may sometimes suggest the thought of lava. Yet for long periods of time in the far past this region has been covered with volcanoes like Hecla, and lava sheets like those of the Snake river. Japan is not more plagued with earthquakes than England has been, and the quiet little island has had its Krakotoas. It may have them again, but there is no immediate danger.

Queen Victoria's Voice.

Queen Victoria's voice is exceedingly winning when she chooses to be gracious, although it can be sharp and imperious in reproof. It entirely lacks that species of harsh guttural tone and accent which is so remarkable in the voice of the prince of Wales and of his brothers and sisters.

Irish Guards.

It is quite possible that her majesty's jubilee year will be still further marked by the creation of a regiment of Irish guards, consisting of two battalions, one of them to be always on duty in London, with Dublin for its headquarters.

Filthy Alaskans.

The natives of Alaska seldom change their clothes unless worn out. They are considered the filthiest race of beings on the earth.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss. Probate Court for the County of Lenawee.

A WONDERFUL ESCAPE.

Related by a Keeper of the Michigan State Prison at Jackson.

(From the Jackson Citizen.)

Mr. A. E. Wing resides at 612 N. Jackson Street, Jackson, Mich. He is a keeper in the Michigan State Prison, a man of sterling integrity, and whose word is beyond dispute. He tells the following story of a wonderful escape, and the incidents connected with the dangerous position in which he was placed. He says, some months ago my attention was attracted by a swelling of my groins, which began to increase in size to such an extent that I was alarmed. It spread down my legs to my feet, and I was bloated from my waist down, so badly that I could not pull my pants, over my legs, and I had to open my shoes fully two inches before I could get them on. Even my face became puffed up, and my whole system seemed affected. I could hardly drag myself upstairs to unlock my men. I consulted a physician, one of the best in the city. He said the swelling was caused by an irritation of the kidneys, and I commenced treatment with him. But I seemed to be getting worse. I was strongly urged by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and I finally consented. After the first week I commenced to see a change, and felt much better. This was encouraging, and I continued their use. I took five boxes in all, with the happy result that I was completely cured. I have never heard of any medicine which had such a pronounced and radical effect, and yet not affect the system generally and leave it in such a good condition. I feel better now than I ever did. After the effect was once established the swelling gradually disappeared until it was entirely gone. I regard Doan's Kidney Pills as a most wonderful agent in the curing of any form of kidney disorder.

For sale by all dealers—price, 50 cents per box. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a fire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

A CROSBYVILLE FIRE.

BY GEORGE ADE.

ON THE evening of the alarm of fire at the florist's place, three doors from the Alfalfa European hotel, "Doc" Horne told of his singular experience at a fire in the town of Crosbyville.

"Let's see—I spent two or three years in Crosbyville, off and on," he began, "and this must have happened in the fall of '51 or in the spring of '52. I remember that I left Crosbyville just about the time of the presidential campaign, and that was—well, it must have been about June, '52. No matter; the date doesn't make any difference.

"In order that you may understand this story better I'll have to go back a little. The first time I ever visited in Crosbyville I was invited out to a shooting match. We didn't shoot at glass balls or live pigeons in those days. We usually put a white square of paper up against a tree and blazed away at it with rifles, and, although our fire-arms were of defective bore, I can assure you that some of the best shooting I ever saw was at those old-time matches out in the woods. However, that has nothing to do with the story.

"One of my friends invited me to go to the shooting match, and after I got out there I was asked to enter the contest. Well, I went in and I happened to get a rifle that sighted just right for me, and I won. A man who had been introduced to me as Capt. Jaynes made the next highest score. It seemed to me that the other contestants took their defeat good-naturedly, but on the way home my friend told me to look out for this Capt. Jaynes. He was a hot-headed Kentuckian, and it seems that this was the first time he had been defeated in a year or so, and it worried him a good deal. My friend told me that he had taken a dislike to me and would probably try to pick a quarrel with me at the first opportunity.

"Well, that same afternoon I invited all the men who had been at the shooting match to come over to the tavern. It was customary for the winner of the match to stand treat to the others. Capt. Jaynes came in rather late, while we were all sitting around and talking. I arose and asked him to join the party. He bowed very coldly, and said that he was not in the habit of drinking with strangers. Well, I was pretty hot-blooded in my younger days. I said: 'Very well, captain; I withdraw the invitation. I made the mistake of supposing that you would feel at home in a company of gentlemen.' I knew what to expect when I said that. He started to draw a knife, but before he could lift it I had hold of him. They pulled me apart and tried to quiet him, but he went away raving mad. They all said he would kill me the first time we met, but he must have cooled down when he had time to think it over. I saw him often after that—passed him on the street. He never made a move, but I knew that he hated me and would be glad of a chance to do me an injury.

"The captain's house was right on the bank of the Green river, and stood near his mill. It was an old-fashioned two-story house, very broad and well built, and thickly surrounded by trees. It was considered the best house in Crosbyville. The captain was the wealthiest and one of the most prominent citizens of the town. He was a widower and had two children—a boy of 14 or so, and a young lady named Elizabeth. She was a very beautiful girl—very charming. I had met her several times, but, of course, I had never become well acquainted with her on account of my standing feud with her father.

"Well, to make a long story short, the whole town was aroused by an alarm of fire one night, and when we turned out the Jaynes' mill was one mass of flames. It was an old-style structure, with a framework of heavy logs, and it made a fearful blaze. The wind was blowing the flames toward the house. Everyone saw that it was of no use to try to save the mill, so we turned in to save the house—got up on the roof and passed buckets, and put out wet blankets to catch the sparks, but it was no use. The men were driven off the roof, and the water dried as fast as it was thrown on. All at once one whole side of the house seemed to spring into a flame. There was a general shout, and everybody retreated to a safe distance. The members of the family and the neighbors had been removing the household goods. Just as the house caught fire and all the men were getting out of it as fast as they could I heard Elizabeth Jaynes cry out: 'The canary!' Then she ran back into the house, with everyone calling to her to stop. I didn't hesitate a moment, but ran after her. She ran through the terrific heat and dense smoke right up the stairway, and I followed. I caught her by the arm at the top of the stairs and told her to come back. She was hysterical and excited. She said she wouldn't leave until she got the bird. In spite of all I could do she pulled away from me and ran into the front room—her bedroom, I believe—and felt her way to where the bird cage was hanging. Gentlemen, it was never any hotter in any bake oven than it was in that room. As soon as she got the bird cage I dragged her back through the hall. The smoke was not so thick now because the fire had got a free draught through the house and was making a fearful roar and was spreading rapidly. When we reached the stairway the whole lower end of it was ablaze. I dragged the girl away to the front window, but by that time the whole veranda was on fire. The crowd outside saw us, and shouted something—I couldn't tell what. I saw that there was no escape over that burning veranda. When the people outside began to shout the girl fainted. I threw her across my shoulder and started for the rear of the house, because I knew that was my only salvation. The whole stairway was ablaze by that time, and flames were creeping up through the floor. I closed my lips tightly, and in about four leaps I reached the back window. Outside there was a big tree almost brushing the window. I kicked out the window sash and simply jumped into the tree. It was the only thing to be done. Luckily I got my arm over a limb, which sagged with us and dropped us to the ground. I clambered to my feet and ran, with the girl still hanging absolutely limp and helpless over my shoulder. I went straight for the river with the intention of jumping in. The heat was something deadly. It had driven away the men who had been filling their buckets at the river.

"Just as I staggered down the river bank I saw a skiff. Some one had probably rowed across the river to the fire, for the boat was not fastened. I dropped the girl into the boat and gave it a strong push out into the current, and in a few seconds we were floating down stream and were safe."

"She had the canary, I suppose," said the lightning dentist.

"Oh, yes. She was in a dead faint, but she hadn't let go of the cage. As soon as I recovered my breath and wet my clothes in two or three places where they were on fire I splashed water in the girl's face and she recovered consciousness, but she was so flustered and excited that she didn't know where she was or remember what had happened.

"We could look up the river and see the burning house. It made a huge blaze and threw a bright glare across the river. I remember the peculiar effect of this glare on the windows of the houses across the river. It caused them to glow as if the houses were filled with live flames. The girl was so frightened that she thought all the houses were afire.

"When I got ready to row back I discovered that I hadn't any oars. The current was swift and we were drifting rapidly, so I pulled out a seat board and used it as a rudder, and in a few minutes I made a landing near a house occupied by a Mr. Wesley. Miss Jaynes was still so weak and nervous that she could hardly walk, but I assisted her to this house and aroused the inmates. They would hardly believe my story at first, but they could see the burning house up the river, and they recognized Miss Jaynes as soon as the lights were brought.

"The woman of the house was very kind. She cared for the young lady tenderly for about two hours and had one of the boys drive us back to Crosbyville. Now, in the general excitement we had forgotten that the people in Crosbyville had no reason to believe that we had escaped from the burning house. Miss Jaynes said several times: 'I suppose father is wondering where I am,' but she had no idea that he and all the others were convinced that we had perished in the flames. However, you couldn't blame them for thinking so. The window from which I had leaped was well hidden by trees, and there was no one at the river bank when we leaped into the boat. We learned afterward that the men had pulled down the burning veranda and had planted a ladder at the front window where we had been seen. The blaze was so fierce that they had been driven back.

"Every one supposed, of course, that we were lost; so you can imagine what happened when we drove up in front of the ruins about seven o'clock in the morning. They were already searching for our bodies. Yes, sir; they thought we were ghosts. As soon as I explained to them how we got away you never heard such cheering in your life. They lifted Miss Jaynes out of the wagon and took her over to a neighboring house, to which the captain had been taken. He had been almost wild with grief. Those who went over to the house say it was one of the most affecting meetings that could be imagined. First he wept like a baby and then he jumped up and laughed like a boy and said he didn't care for the loss of his buildings so long as his daughter was safe. I suppose his daughter must have given him a very favorable account of my efforts in her behalf, for presently he came out of the house and walked up to where I was standing and said: 'Mr. Horne, you have done me the greatest service that one man can do another. All that I have is at your command now and forever. I once did you an injustice. You have repaid me. Will you take the hand of a man who honestly admits himself beaten and humiliated?' I said to him: 'Captain, you are a brave and gallant man, but you were mistaken for once. Let us say no more about the misunderstandings of the past.' We shook hands, and from that day forward we were friends. He was a man of passions and prejudices, but if he came to know you and like you he was the truest friend a man ever had."

"There's only one thing needed to make that a good story," suggested the dentist. "You ought to say that you married the captain's daughter."

"I am not going to sacrifice truth in order to make a fancy romance," replied "Doc."—Chicago Record.

Faith in Dreams.

An English general and his wife resident in Ireland were constantly pestered by a beggar woman to whom they had been very charitable. One morning at the usual hour when the lady was getting into her carriage the old woman appeared and began:

"Agh, my lady, success to yer ladyship, and success to your honor's honor this morning, of all the days of the year; for, sure, didn't I drame last night that yer ladyship gave me a pound of tay and yer honor gave me a pound of tobacco!"

"But, my good woman," said the general, "do you not know that dreams always go by the rule of contrary?"

"Do they so, plase yer honor?" rejoined the old woman. "Then it must be yer honor that will give me the tay and her ladyship that will give me the tobacco."—Tit-Bits.

MICHIGAN'S IRON PRODUCT.

Her Output Over a Third of That of All Other States.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 10. — Michigan stands at the top of the list of great iron ore producing states, according to the annual report of the United States geological survey, which has just been completed. The output of the state for the past year was equal to more than one-third of the entire product of the United States, exceeding 5,700,000 tons. "The entire product of Michigan, of Minnesota and of Wisconsin (except some of the ores mined in the eastern and central portions of the state)," says the report, "were obtained from what is generally considered the Lake Superior district, all the ores being marketed as Lake Superior ores, and designated by various characteristics, such as specular, magnetic, hematite, hard or soft, or by the names of specific mines, etc. At a number of mines several grades of ore are mined, to each of which a special trade name is given. The quantity of Lake Superior ores produced in 1896 reached a total of 10,566,359 long tons, valued at the mines at an average of $1.57 per long ton."

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

A Clarendon Man and His Two Sons Under Arrest.

Clarendon, Sept. 11.—Mr. Alvin Rarick, of Clarendon, and his two sons, Fred and Alvin, boys 16 to 18 years of age, were arrested for attempt to commit murder. The crime alleged is the shooting of Ray Haikes, of Clarendon, who, with three other boys, were raiding Rarick's melon patch. The shooting was done by Fred Rarick, instigated by his father and brother. Haikes' back was filled with 72 No. 4 shot, fired from a distance of about three rods. After being shot he dragged himself home, a distance of a mile and a half. He lies in a critical condition, but will likely recover. The Raricks are ignorant, but well disposed people, and the sympathy of the people is largely in their favor.

PANIC AT A THEATER.

Many Are Injured at Niles, Mich., and Lynching Is Threatened.

Niles, Mich., Sept. 13.—During a performance of the Manhattan Amusement syndicate here 1,500 people became panic-stricken, caused by actors fighting and the cry of fire. Women fainted, children screamed and the fire department turned out. Stanley Walls and Charles Wells are in charge of the police. Wells, it is said, was threatening to shoot Miss Vesta, and he struck her twice in the face. The company had received no money in four months. Hundreds wanted to lynch Wells, who is blamed for the panic. Many were slightly injured.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 11. — For the Michigan crop report for September correspondents secured from threshers the results of 3,757 jobs, aggregating more than 65,000 acres of wheat thrashed, the yield from which was 1,891,483 bushels, an average of 16.73 bushels to the acre. In the southern counties more than 52,000 acres threshed averaged 17.34 bushels an acre. In the central counties the average is 14.02 bushels and in the northern counties 15.3 bushels. The area in wheat in the state last May as compiled from the returns of supervisors was 1,513,942 acres. This is the probable acreage that was harvested this year. The crop this year is the largest produced since 1892, when the yield exceeded 25,000,000 bushels. Threshers' returns indicate that oats will yield about 25 bushels and barley about 19 bushels an acre. The figures for oats are five bushels below and for barley two bushels below the estimate one year ago.

Corn made slow growth in August, but it has not been damaged by frost and there is good reason to expect a good and well-matured crop. The dry weather has undoubtedly injured potatoes, but the extent of damage cannot now be estimated. Beans are estimated to yield 87 per cent. of an average crop. Apples and peaches are very light crops; neither will yield more than one-fifth to one-fourth of an average crop.

Jefferson Francis Dead.

Sturgis, Sept. 10.—Jefferson Francis, one of the most prominent citizens of Sturgis, died here after a year's illness, aged 75 years and 8 months. He came to Sturgis 23 years ago, and has been identified with the town's interests ever since. Forty-nine years ago he was married to Helen M. Fillmore, a niece of ex-President Fillmore, and the couple inherited considerable wealth from him.

Want a Flat Two-Cent Fare.

Grand Rapids, Sept. 10.—The traveling men of the state are taking a lively interest in the possible extra session of the legislature and are bringing influence to bear on Gov. Pingree to call it. They are greatly dissatisfied with the new interchangeable mileage book, and want Gov. Pingree to call a special session to make a flat two-cent a mile fare on all roads.

Old Comrades to Meet.

Lansing, Sept. 10.—There will be a grand reunion of the "Wilcox Division," Ninth army corps, at the state capitol here on September 21 and 22. Among the regiments comprising the division were the following from this state: First sharpshooters, Second infantry, Eighth infantry, Seventeenth infantry, Twentieth infantry and Twenty-seventh infantry.

Whole Block Burned.

Oscoda, Sept. 10. — Nearly a block of business buildings and several dwellings, the village hall, the jail, and the hose tower burned Thursday morning. The town's records are all destroyed. The total loss is estimated at $25,000; insurance small. The origin is believed to be incendiary.

'ROUND ABOUT US.

Clippings and Condensations From our County Contemporaries.

The athletic club mentioned last week was formally organized Monday night by the election of these officers: President, M. E. Keyes, vice president, Chas Hause; secretary, Earl Baldwin; treasurer, Jno. Rorick; sergeant-at-arms, Winfield Scott. The room over Butler & Gates' store is used as a gymnasium, and considerable amusement is afforded by novices who put on "de gloves." The club has some 40 members.—Morenci Observer.

A sad accident occurred in the Michigan Central freight house Tuesday which cost the life of Jno. Schlicht, a brakeman who lives in Ypsilanti. As his train pulled in from the east Schlicht jumped off and, running into the freight house, began a friendly struggle with Jno. Feleh. Releasing his friend, Schlicht ran out to the engine, climbed into the tender, and asked for a chew of tobacco. His friends noticing that he could not put the tobacco into his mouth and that he had a wild stare in his eyes, went to him, just as he sank down helpless. Upon examination it was found that, during the scuffle his head had struck the sharp corner of a crate, making a serious wound. His right side is completely paralyzed, and he was taken to the university hospital unable to speak or give any signs of recognition to those around him. He died about three o'clock. He leaves a wife and child. The friend with whom he was playfully scuffling is heart broken.—Ann Arbor Register.

The friends of Mr. Walker who is a nephew of Mrs. C. A. Stacy and at one time attended school here will be interested in his prosperity. The Brooklyn Exponent has the following:

Prof. Ellis W. Walker, son of J. D. Walker, formally of this place has been elected superintendent of the public school at Bluffton, Ind. The Banner of that city speaks of him as follows;

"Mr. Walker was selected from about a hundred applicants many of them presenting the very highest and most satisfactory evidence of fitness and ability as school superintendents. The board made a most careful examination of the whole field, and not until they had sifted and examined the whole lot of applications, and weighed the strongest and most promising, did they decide upon Mr. Walker. The selection is certainly very complimentary to that gentleman as well as a matter of congratulation to the members of the board. Mr. Walker is 34 years of age, graduating from the Michigan State Normal at Ypsilanti in 1886, and from the State University at Ann Arbor in 1893. His wife is also a graduate of the Michigan State Normal and with her husband pursued a post-graduate work at the famous university. tion was compelled by circumstances to work his way through school. By alternate years of work as a student with work as a teacher he has acquired a rich experience in school matters. He has served a number of terms in the district schools of Michigan, and during his student life in Ann Arbor University he occupied the following positions: Teacher of mathematics in the Ann Arbor High School; teacher of political economy in the Decatur, Ill. High School; principal of the Birmingham, Michigan, schools and superintendent of the schools at Dexter, Mich. After graduation from Ann Arbor in 1893, he officiated as principal of the High School of Kankakee, Ill., and Dubuque, Iowa. The latter high school through his efforts was affiliated with Chicago University, an honor enjoyed in Iowa by only one other city, and that is Des Moines. The Kankakee high school was also a diploma school with Ann Arbor during Prof. Walker's connection with it. During this time Superintendent Walker was president of the county teache s association of Kankakee county, and did institute work during the summers. Last year he pursued post-graduate work in Ann Arbor in pedagogy, psychology, ethics and sociology.

The HERALD of last week stated that Fred Chiverall received $200 from the old C., J. & M. company when the road was built here years ago. The informant was a reliable person and was no doubt sincere in making the statement, but the HERALD is pleased to hasten to correct the statement, also to note Mr. Chiverall's spirit in regard to the railroad as will be seen by the following letter:

Elkhart, Sept. 15, '97.

EDITOR OF TECUMSEH HERALD:

I notice in your issue of the 10th inst. an article which stated that I received $200 from the D., T. & M. R. R. for allowing them the privilege of laying the track by my place. Now, Mr. Editor, you are wrong. I never received but one dollar from the company, nor did I sign the petition against them. If I had been home I would have signed one in their favor. In your next issue of the TECUMSEH HERALD please rectify mistake and oblige.

Yours respectfully,
F. CHIVERALL.

No sir. I stand by the railroad company.

Financial Letter.

Chicago, Sept. 14, 1897.

There has been everything to encourage the grain raiser in the action of wheat during the last week. After a sensationally rapid advance from 65c to $1.00 a bushel, there came a natural reaction of about 12c, but since then the [illegible] has been buoyant, and since the 90c mark was passed on the upward turn last week there has been a rise to 99 1-2, the average price at which wheat could have been sold in this market last week for either the December or September options being fully 92 cents. Corn, in view of the immense stocks in sight, has been remarkably strong.

The decline which began last Friday was continued today, more on sentiment and absence of buying orders than by reason of any change in the intrinsic value of grain. The foreign demand has somewhat abated, but this was inevitable, since Europe does not buy her grain supplies for long periods in advance, and her purchases while wheat was going from 80c to $1.00 were on an enormous scale. But letters to Schwartz, Dupee & Co. from their correspondents abroad do not in any way indicate that the situation there is better than it was when prices here were advancing every day, and the statement is freely made by those who should be perfectly familiar with the facts that the best buying by Europe in this market is still to come. If this be the case it is evident that wheat values must advance, since the visible supply, according to today's report, is only 15,766,000 bushels, or about one-third what was in sight a year ago. The increase last week was 949,000 bushels, not a large amount when one considers that wheat is being pushed to market as fast as possible to take advantage of the high price.

It is possible that if Cuban complications and other matters which today sentimentally affected the New York stock market increase in importance the grain market may be sympathetically affected, but if this were the reason for any decline the effect would of course be only temporary. The yellow fever excitement in the South has of course been used by the pessimists to depress such stocks as would reflect in their earnings and serious spread of the disease, and provisions, of which the South is a heavy purchaser, have also been under a depression but are now firm.

The following table shows the high, low and closing prices of wheat as dealt in on the Chicago Board of trade:

	High.	Low.	Close.
Sept.	96 1-2	94 1-2	94 1-2
Dec.	95 3-4	93 1-2	94 1-4

Howell Family Reunion

A pleasant reunion of the Howell family and its descendants was held at the residence of Dr. Chas. Howell on Geddes ave., Ann Arbor, Wednesday, Sept. 1st. There were present Dr. Geo. Howell, of Tecumseh; Rev. David Howell, of Lansing, Edwin Howell, of Macon; Judge Andrew Howell, of Detroit; Dr. Chas. Howell, of Ann Arbor; Mrs. Frank Odell, Mrs. Wm. Richard, of Macon, together with their children and grandchildren to the number in all of 25 persons. It is a noticeable fact in relation to this reunion that of the five Howell brothers who were present four are professional men, two doctors, a lawyer and a minister. Dinner was served at 1 o'clock and was an exceedingly pleasant meal to all present. A history of the Howell family, tracing back to 1639, when the originator of the family in this country came from England, was read by Mrs. L. Mae Nichols, daughter of Dr. Chas. Howell. Each of the children of the Howell brothers and sisters were presented with a photograph of the old coat of arms of the English family as a souvenir of the occasion.—Ann Arbor Courier.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

Mayor Maybury returned from New York yesterday forenoon. Although his object in going east was to make his customary quarterly visit to the main office of the Standard Life Insurance company, he made a social call upon the eastern representatives of the Detroit & Lima Northern railroad. He received assurances from C. N. Haskell, one of the prominent representatives of the road, that no serious opposition to the securing of terminal facilities for its operation in Detroit was expected and that no obstacles would be allowed to stand in the way. Mr. Haskell also intimated to the mayor that the name of the road might be changed to the Detroit, Toledo, Columbus & Milwaukee railroad, which will be indicative of the general route of the road. Both Mr. Haskell and Mr. Townsend, of the New York office, will be in Detroit this week to confer with the mayor and others on the subject of local terminals.—Detroit Free Press.

Since the advent of the D. & L. N. railroad, Raisin Valley is putting on metropolitan airs. Many passengers get on and off at this point, and it is now the intention of the company to put in a side track and establish a station there. A big effort is being made to establish a regular mail service, and the people of Raisin Valley are entitled to recognition. This prosperous and thickly settled farming district is going to have what is needed or know the reason why.—Adrian Messenger.

J. S. Brailey is responsible for the story that No. 42 was stopped five times yesterday coming from Lima on account of trees which were blown over the track in the small cyclone, and the most remarkable thing was the fact that one tree two feet in diameter when falling broke in two places just so that a piece could be rolled out and allow the train to pass through. It might be incidentally stated that this particular tree grew on right-of-way secured by Mr. Brailey.

The brick are on the ground for the general office building of the D. & L. N. and D., T. & N. roads. The building will be 80 x 60 feet in size and two stories high, constructed of stone, brick and wood, and fitted inside in a commodious and suitable manner to accommodate the various departments. Work is to be commenced at once.

Mr. Graham, of the D. & L. N. road, gives us the welcome intelligence today that ground will be broken inside of [illegible] days for the new depot house for the road in this city. It will be situated about 125 feet south of the present building. Of what material it will be built Mr. Graham was not prepared to state.—Adrian Telegram.

"The wave of prosperity" has struck the Lake Shore yard at Toledo with such force that three extra switch engines are now in use. This makes fourteen day crews and eleven night crews at work at this point.—Toledo Blade.

D. Woodward trimmed all the limbs off his peach trees last spring, and last Sunday we drove up to see the orchard. New tops have sprung up and we found many limbs (this years growth) that we were unable to reach around with the hand. It is a phenomenal growth and the foliage looks healthy and thrifty. He expects to pick peaches off these new trees next year. The experiment is being watched with considerable interest by other fruit growers.—Clinton Local.

From one of our exchanges we clip the following: The talented editor of the Texarkanian is said by an exchange to have attended church services a few days ago and when called upon to lead in prayer, responded in this fashion: Almighty and kind Father, who from thy throne looks down on the government of men and delinquent subscribers, most humbly do we beseech thee to draw near unto them and whisper a few things in their ears that the statutes forbid us to print. Thou knowest our wants but the subscribers knowest them not and seldom steps in to inquire. Let it be known to them that there are large patches on the homestead of our pants, and there is an aching void in the front of our backs, and that we hunger and thirst and he asketh us not to sup with him. Thou knoweth, Lord, that our print, paper and ink cost money but the subscriber knoweth it not and careth a darned sight less. Thou knowest that we are cold and the subscriber bringeth not the wood he promised, and we are shivering and shaking while he roasteth his shins before the red-hot stove of his mother-in-law. Tell him all these things, Lord, and if he then bringeth no succor, banish him to the lower regions to dwell among the popolite calamity howlers, and Thine shall be the praise through our newspaper career. Amen.

It may also be said that homeliness is only skin deep.

Crop Report.

Lansing, Mich. Sept. 15, 1897.

For this report correspondents have secured from threshers the results of 3,757 jobs, aggregating more than 65,000 acres of wheat threshed in the State, the yield from which was 1,091,483 bushels, an average of 16.73 bushels per acre. In the southern counties more than 52,000 acres threshed average 17.34 bushels per acre. In the central counties the average is 14.02 bushels, and in the northern counties, 15.31 bushel.

The area in wheat in the State last May as compiled from the returns of supervisors was 1,513,919 acres. This is the probable acreage that was harvested this year. Multiplying the acres in each county by the average yield per acre in that county, as now shown by the result of threshings, gives a probable yield in the State of 24,831,987 bushels.

The final estimate for wheat will be made in October. If it shall substantiate the foregoing, the crop this year is the largest produced since 1892 when the crop exceeded 25,000,000 bushels.

The number of bushels of wheat reported marketed by farmers since the August report was published is 1,187,750. Of this amount 400,177 bushels were marketed before Aug. 1, but not reported until late in Augnst, and 787,573 bushels in August. The amount of wheat reported marketed since the August report was published is 302,562 bushels more than reported for the same time in 1896, and the amount reported marketed in the twelve months ending with July, which is the wheat year for Michigan, is 10,531,033 bushels or 847,880 bushels more than marketed in the same months of the previous year.

The amount of wheat actually marketed in Aug. this year, 787,573 bushels, is 335,444 bushels more than marketed in August last year.

Threshers returns indicate that oats will yield in the State about 25 bushels, and barley about 19 bushels per acre. The figures for oats are five bushels below, and for barley two bushels below, the estimate one year ago.

Corn made slow growth in August, but it has not been damaged by frost and there is good reason to expect a good and well matured crop.

The dry weather has undoubtedly hurt potatoes, but the extent of damage cannot now be estimated. Beans are estimated to yield 87 per cent of an average crop.

Apples and peaches are very light crops, neither will yield more than one-fifth to one-fourth of an average crop.

August was a cool, dry month. The mean temperature of the State was 64.7 degrees; of the southern counties 66 9; of the central 64.9, and of the northern [illegible] degrees. There was a deficiency in the State and southern counties of 2 degrees, in the central counties of 2.1 degrees, and in the northern of 1.5 degrees. Light frosts occurred quite generally throughout the State just after the middle of the month but did no material damage.

The average precipitation in the State was 2.04 inches, a deficiency of 0.39 inches. There was deficiency in each section as follow: southern counties, 0.09 inches; central, 1.19 inches; northern, 0.56 inches, and upper peninsula, 0.96 inches.

The farm statistics of the State returned by the supervisors last spring furnished the following statistics of the wheat, corn and oat crop of 1896: Acres of wheat harvested, 1,431,203; bushels, 17,858,259; average per acre, 12.48 bushels. Acres of corn harvested, 1,198,009; bushels, 81,733,087. Acres of oats harvested, 923,228; bushels, 29,110,433.

The farm statistics also furnish the following statistics of land in farms in 1897: Acres of improved land in farms, 9,020,220; unimproved, 4,302,093; total area, 13,322,313; number of farms, 149,534; average size of farms, 89.01 acres.

Since melons have been plentiful in market, it has been the practice of the young men from the rural districts especially, Saturday evenings to lay in a supply, repair to the Opera house steps and devour them, leaving seeds, rinds and refuse melons all over the steps and walk in front. Last Saturday evening they made a worse litter than usual, extending their work in front the Bidwell residence. The patience of Marshal Bidwell and constible Thompson having become exhausted, endeavored by moral suasion to have the party of 10 or 12 young fellows desist. In return they received jeers, but when one of the party fell into Thompson's clutches their manner changed from jeering, they fell to pleading, promising better things for the future and he was released. The officers while not wishing to be dictatorial or deny them any reasonable amusement or freedom, say this practice must stop, and now hereafter anyone found thus engaged will be complained of and made to suffer for the misdemeanor. In this the officers will be upheld by all good citizens.

Oliver Sanford.

The familiar face and form of Oliver Sanford which for over 30 years was dailey seen on our streets, is now at rest, he having passed away Monday morning at the ripe old age of 83 years. The older residents remember him as one of the most extensive produce dealers in southern Michigan and a bright and honorable business man. The death of a daughter and later his wife, seemed to change the man and late years he has led almost a hermits life. His funeral was held at his late residence Tuesday at 4 p. m., attended by Rev. David Lewis, undertaker Tansley having charge.

His brother Charles and wife, of Manchester, their daughter, Mrs. Drake, of Philadelphia, James Halladay, of Clinton, Mr. W. B. Rutmond and wife, of Macon, and Mrs. H. and Mr. R. a niece and nephew attended the funeral.

Mobbs-Aylesworth.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season occurred at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Aylesworth, Wednesday evening, when about seventy-five guests were assembled to witness the marriage of their daughter May to Mr. Wm. Mobbs, of this city.

The rooms were beautifully decorated with festoons of vines, cut flowers and palms; and at eight o'clock the bridal pair, accompanied by Miss Jennie E. Saley and Dr. G. A. Servis, of Manchester, took their place under the bridal arch. The bride was dressed in a beautiful gown of cream nunsveiling with garniture of cream lace and ribbon, and carried a bouquet of white roses, while her bridesmaid wore cream wool challie with green ribbon and lace, and carried a similar cluster of pink roses. They were followed by Lula, the little sister of the bride, bearing the tray upon which lay the token of their vows. Rev. B. S. Hudson, of the First Baptist church, of this city, officiated in the impressive ceremony which united the lives of two of Tecumseh's best loved young people. Friends and relatives from Detroit, Adrian, Brooklyn, Clinton, Evan's lake, Hanover, Manchester and Tecumseh were present, and after partaking of the bountiful supper with the guests, Mr. and Mrs. Mobbs left for Columbus, Ohio, and other points, carrying with them the best wishes of hosts of friends who gave evidence of their regard by many beautiful and costly gifts.

Burglary.

Charles Smith, who is building a house at Sand Lake and whose family have been visiting Mrs. Smith's parents near by, came down Saturday evening and on going to the house was surprised to find it in a state of great disorder. At once he knew the house had been burglarized. It must have been done by some one who knew they need be in no hurry and it is very evident they were not for every room was visited. Every drawer, trunk, box, or basket containing any thing, was emptied on the floor, every bed torn to pieces, and every closet rifled, while it is impossible to say just what was taken until the house is put to rights by Mrs. Smith. The following is known to be gone. A suit of Charlie's clothes nearly new, a hat, silver watch, some jewelry and the children's banks with contents. The supposition is that it was done by home talent and occurred last week Tuesday night. Entrance was made through a window and exit was made by a door.

A Day of Pleasure.

Last Friday the pleasant home and spacious grounds of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Tiffany presented a pretty picture, the occasion being a visit of a merry company from Adrian, old friends of the host and hostess in the role of picnicers. Every moment of the time was fully occupied. Dinner was served in the house and tea on the lawn. That every one had a delightful time was strongly emphasized when they unanimously voted to meet at the same time and place next year.

Those participating were Joe R. and Miss Bennett, Dr. and Mrs. Morden, Gen. and Mrs. Wm. Humphrey, Messrs. and Mesdames R. H. Baker, H. Chittenden, H. A. Angell, Channing Whitney, Wm. Weaver and son, S. E. Graves, J. H. Fee, Howard Taylor and E. J. Shepard and Mesdames Judge Howell, Dr. Jewett, F. R. Stebbins, A. L. Bliss, M. L. Colvin, A. W. Carey, E. E. Marble, Geo. Well Pleased.

There is now working on the farm of Mr. Ed. Smith on the school section a McCormick corn binder and it's wonderful work it does. Mr. Kotts has the following to say about it:

Tecumseh, Mich., Sept. 15, '97.

Mr. W. F. Cowham, Jackson, Mich.

DEAR SIR:

I want to say to you I am more than pleased with the McCormick corn binder with bundle carrier bought of your agent, C. A. Slayton, and started today. It does the work complete and the bundle carrier will save labor of one man. I had just witnessed a new Deering working and if this had not done better work than it I would not have bought it. Yours truly, A. KOTTS.

THE CAMPHOR TREE.

It Can Be Planted Successfully in Some Southern States.

Camphor trees may be grown either from seed or from cuttings. They are usually grown from seed, as the trees fruit abundantly, and seedlings can be grown more easily than cuttings. The seeds are collected at maturity in October and November, and after drying are packed in sharp white sand or some similar material to keep them fresh until the time of planting in spring. About the last of March they are sown in drills in the seed bed.

The soil of the seed bed should be a good sandy loam mixed with about one-third leaf mold. The seed bed should be kept moist, but not too wet, and should be shaded from the direct rays of the sun if the weather is warm. The best soil temperature for germinating camphor seeds is from 70 to 75 degrees Fahrenheit. The temperature of the atmosphere may be ten degrees higher. The seedlings will grow well at higher temperature, but are likely to lack vigor and hardiness.

The seedlings may be grown in pots, which will facilitate transplanting at any time, or they may be transplanted in nursery rows early in April when one year old. Plants two years old are generally regarded as best for final planting. At this age they vary from 20 to 40 inches in height.

When set out for ornamental purposes, the camphor tree may be expected [illegible] about as rapidly as a Le Conte pear, and to require about as much room. In Japan, where the law requires that a new tree shall be set out for every one cut, they are not generally set in straight orchard rows, but cultivation there is performed almost exclusively by hand labor. There are no records showing results of regular orchard planting, hence the distances at which trees should be planted must be determined by the size and form of the trees and the method of cultivation and of procuring the gum. They may be set closely in rows about ten feet apart, and alternate rows cut and reset every five years, thus producing bush-like plants of ten years' growth. They may be planted in checks ten feet square, and alternate trees cut every ten or twelve years, or they may be planted in larger checks, and all of the trees be cut at the age of 15 or 20 years.

There are not sufficient data obtainable upon which to base definite statements as to the best methods of planting or the age at which the trees may be cut with greatest profit for the production of gum. A recent English consular report from Japan states that "although hitherto the youngest wood from which camphor was extracted was about 70 to 80 years old, it is expected that under the present scientific management the trees will give equally good results after 25 or 30 years." Camphor of good quality has been produced in Florida from the leaves and twigs of trees less than 20 years old, one pound of crude gum being obtained from 77 pounds of leaves and twigs.

The trees will endure severe pruning with little apparent injury. One-third of the leaves and young shoots may be removed at one time without materially checking the growth of the tree. The largest proportion of camphor is contained in the older, larger roots; the trunk, limbs, twigs and leaves containing successively a decreasing proportion. When the camphor tree is killed nearly to the ground by frost it sends up vigorous shoots from the base. It may be expected to do the same when cut, especially if cut late in the fall. Experiments are needed to determine whether this growth may be depended upon, or whether it will be more profitable to dig out the large roots and set out new seedlings.—Lyster H. Dewey, Assistant in Division of Botany, Department of Agriculture.

LASTING PROSPERITY.

What Farmers Must Do to Enjoy Its Coveted Blessings.

The press of the country is full of talk about the prosperity of the farmer this year, and many figures are given to show what an increased harvest of dollars our farmers will reap. While there is much exaggeration in many of these statements, there is much truth also. Farming is a better business than it has been. Good crops and fair prices for them at the elevator or through the feed lot have put our farmers in better position than since 1891. Still there is room for improvement—not merely in the markets, but in the conditions that surround farming and farmers, and which directly affect their profits. There is room for improvement in production of many farms, looking to a less costly and better product. There is great need of improvement in live stock, both in numbers and quality. Such things as these come within the jurisdiction of every farmer. But other equally important essentials to greater prosperity lie beyond the farm and beyond the farmer as an individual. The greatest prosperity cannot prevail when many of the things the people must have are controlled by commercial monopolies or trusts. Some classes may receive incidental benefits from these organizations, but farmers do not. They must sell in the open market usually, and can ill afford to buy in a market that is not open. Allowing the other fellow to fix the price of so many things is not productive of the greatest prosperity. The same thing is, to a large extent, true of taxation. Too often farmers have allowed other classes to impose the burdens which call for high taxes on farms, while the other fellow reaped most of the benefits therefrom. There must be more caution about this, if farmers are to realize the greatest prosperity. And there are other matters that enter into this problem. Better education of producers, resulting in a better product and a broader market; opening of new foreign markets; uniformity of production by the individual, and, consequently, the mass of farmers—all these things are essential to true and lasting prosperity. They will not all be attempted, but in whatever degree they are approached so far is farming improved.—National Stockman.

EARLY FALL PLOWING.

Its Advantages Considered from a Scientific Viewpoint.

The advantages of fall plowing over the same operation in the spring are dwelt upon by Prof. H. Snyder, of the College of Agriculture of the University of Minnesota.

Fall plowing keeps the humus and nitrogen of the soil in better condition than late spring plowing. Nitrification goes on in the soil until quite late in the fall, and in the south the process goes on the entire year. The change is most rapid near the surface, where there is plenty of oxygen from the air. In early fall plowing the available nitrogen formed from the humus is near the surface, where it does the sprouting seeds and the young crops the most good. With late spring plowing, this available nitrogen is plowed under, and inert organic nitrogen is brought to the surface.

In old soils the process of nitrification does not go on rapidly enough to furnish available nitrogen to the crop. In a new soil the process of nitrification is liable to go on too rapidly. Deep plowing and thorough cultivation aid in nitrification. Hence, the longer the soil is cultivated, the deeper and more thorough must be its preparation. Plowing must be done at the right time, preferably in the fall so as not to interfere with the next year's water supply. The application of lime and wood ashes aids in the reduction of nitrogen of humus to available forms, and prevents the formation of sour mold. Good drainage is also necessary to nitrification in the soil. In water-logged soils the humus does not decompose normally, but peat is produced on account of the absence of oxygen. We thus see that nitrification, although sometimes a serious source of loss, may be largely controlled by careful management of the soil.

HANDY CONTRIVANCE.

How to Make Ditching in Insecure Soil Perfectly Safe.

It is occasionally necessary to cut a trench through soil that will not "stand up" in the wall of the ditch. Sandy soil is of this nature. To keep the ditch open until a pipe can be laid,

HOW TO KEEP A DITCH OPEN.

the plan shown in the accompanying diagram can be used to advantage. A stake is driven at one side of the proposed trench, and anchored from its upper end as is shown in the sketch. In the trench is deepened a board is tipped down behind the stake, another stake secured in the same way, holding the other end the board. As the trench is deepened the board is pressed down and another added above it, the stakes also being driven down and so on till the required depth is reached. The same plan will probably have to be used on bottles.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Hint Worth Remembering.

An excellent method estimating the number of bushels shelled corn and grain in the wagon box, bin or other receptacle is given, one who claims that it is as near correct as may be desired, which is the same space will hold one and one-fifths as much grain as it will ear corn, for instance, will hold 400 bushels of ear corn, [illegible]

"STRANGE FISH."

BY J. FREDERIC THORNE.

"Hello, Frank, you're just the fellow I want to see! Will you come for a sail?"

"Yes; certainly."

"All right. I will go down and get the Seagull ready."

Frank Haughton and his chum Walter Laurence were skillful sailors, and had spent many an hour in Walter's little sloop Seagull, sailing around the bay, even, at times, going as far as "the Hook." It was a bright, beautiful morning, in the summer of 1775, that these two boys of Elizabethport, N. J., started upon their sail.

Walter hoisted the jib and fastened the halyard just as Frank pulled the anchor inboard; then, as the head of the boat swung around into the wind, both boys grasped the mainsail halyards and soon had the sail spread to the wind.

The sails bellied out, and, with Walter at the helm and Frank tending the sheets, the Seagull heeled over under the strong breeze and went skimming along, speedily emerging from Raritan bay and rounding the upper end of Staten Island. The boys then came about and pointed for the Narrows.

"Let's run down to the Hook."

"All right; we've got plenty of time, and this is a splendid breeze; 'twon't take us more than about two hours going at this rate."

"We may see some British ships."

"We may; but I hardly think it is likely — none have been reported. George Trevers, whose father, you know, is one of the committee of safety, told me that his father said at dinner last night that nothing had been seen or heard of any British ships for some time."

"I'd like to see one, wouldn't you?"

"Oh, yes; unless they capture us!"

"Why should they do that?"

"They might try to find out something about the continentals from us."

"Well, they wouldn't learn anything from me. I'd let 'em cut off my head first."

"They would have a hard time making me tell anything."

The boys continued discussing what they would and would not do in the event of their being taken prisoners by the British. Meanwhile the Seagull, which the boys declared was the fastest boat in New York harbor, was making good use of her wings, and showing that she deserved their boast. They had passed through the Narrows, and were rapidly nearing Sandy Hook.

"I hear that George has got a new—Look there! A British ship!"

"Where?"

"Over there."

"Sure enough!"

"I wonder if she's a man-of-war?"

"I don't think so; she doesn't look like one to me."

"She's taking in sail."

"There goes her anchor."

"Let's run down close enough to see what she is."

"All right."

A turn of the tiller, and the nose of the Seagull was pointed in toward the Jersey shore, where a large, square-rigged ship, flying the easily recognizable "Union Jack" of England, was anchoring.

The boys ran up quite close, and soon saw that she was not a man-of-war. As they came near they were hailed by a sailor:

"Boat ahoy!"

"Ahoy!"

"Come up alongside."

"What do you think, Frank—shall we?"

"Yes, we might as well. I don't think they will touch us."

The boys accordingly sailed up near the ship, and dropped their mainsail.

This time an officer leaned over the side and asked:

"Where are you from?"

"Elizabethport, sir."

"Where is that?"

"In New Jersey."

"Near New York?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are those rebels whipped yet?"

"Not yet, sir."

"Gov. Sir Henry Clinton is in New York, is he not?"

"Yes, sir."

"Will you deliver a letter to him for me?"

There was a moment's hesitation upon the part of Walter, who was acting as spokesman, and then he answered:

"Yes, sir; I'll take it."

"Thank you, my boys. He will be very glad to get it, as he's fond of a good dinner. Here it is—catch it!"

The officer threw down a sealed letter, which Walter deftly caught.

"Now, don't lose it."

"We'll be very careful, sir."

The boys hoisted their sail again and put about, returning the officer's wave of the hand.

Neither spoke until they were quite some distance from the ship. Then Walter, taking the letter from his pocket, where he had placed it, turned it over and reread the superscription:

"To Gen. Sir Henry Clinton,
"Governor, etc., of New York
"In the American Colonies."

"Frank, I'll wager you anything that that is a provision ship for the British troops!"

"What makes you think so?"

"Didn't you hear that officer say that Gov. Clinton would be glad to get this, as he liked a good dinner?"

"Yes."

"Well, he wouldn't be likely to accept an invitation to dine on an ordinary ship, way down at the Hook, at that, would he?"

"No; I shouldn't think so."

"Of course not; and I tell you it is a provision ship."

"I shouldn't wonder but that you are right."

"Well, Gov. Clinton will have to wait some time before he eats anything from that ship! I'm going to give this letter to the committee of safety!"

"That's right! We're not tories, to be doing anything to help our country's enemies!"

"No, indeed, we're not!"

"Maybe the committee will send some men to capture the ship."

"My! but that would be great! They could do it. I didn't see any cannon, did you?"

"No."

"We want to get back home just as fast as we can and tell the committee!"

"Well, the Seagull can get there quicker than anything else I know of."

"Right you are! Pull in that mainsail-sheet; we can go several points closer to the wind."

Frank did as directed, and the little boat buried her scuppers in the water, and fairly flew along.

The boys were almost too excited to talk, and as soon as they dropped anchor again at their mooring place they hurried ashore and started on a run for the town to inform the committee of safety of their discovery and the letter.

Almost the first man they met was Mr. Trevers.

"Oh, Mr. Trevers! there's a British provision ship down at the Hook!"

"What's that?"

"A British ship down by the Hook, and we think she's loaded with provisions for the British. The officer gave us a letter for Gov. Clinton, and asked us to take it to him. We took it, and here it is!"

"Slowly, slowly, boys. I can't understand you when you talk at such a pace. Did you say you had a letter that is addressed to Gov. Clinton, of New York?"

"Yes, sir—here it is!"

"How did you come to get it?"

"Frank and I took a sail down the Hook this morning, and saw the ship; and the officer gave it to us—the letter, I mean; and we think it's a provision ship, because he said Gov. Clinton would be glad to get it, as he liked a good dinner."

"It's not a war ship, anyway."

Mr. Trevers finally managed to get the boys to give a lucid account of their adventure, which they wound up with:

"And then we came for home as fast as the Seagull could go!"

"That's right, my boys. You are bright lads, and have done just right. This may be of importance to us. Go up to the hall and wait for me; I will notify the rest of the committee. I want them to hear your story."

Within the hour the committee of safety had assembled. The boys repeated their story, and then the letter which had been given them by the officer was read. It ran as follows:

"On Board of His Majesty's Transport [illegible]
"Sandy Hook, July —, 1775.

"To Gen. Sir Henry Clinton, Commander of His Majesty's Troops in America, and Governor of New York:

"Sir—I have the honor to inform you that I have arrived in the harbor with a cargo of provisions for the troops under your command, and also some choice delicacies and wine for your own table.

"I am at anchor near Sandy Hook, and respectfully await your commands.

"I am, sir, most respectfully, your obedient and humble servant,

"GEOFFREY HENDERSON,
"Commander of the Deerhound."

The boys gained proudly at each other to see their suspicions verified.

"Did she carry any cannon?"

"Not that we could see."

"Were there many men on board?"

"We only saw the sailors who were furling the sails, and the man and the officer who spoke to us. We think, sir, if you will pardon our boldness, that she could easily be captured."

"The boy is right."

"We will do it."

The boys were questioned closely upon all they had seen, and then the committee held a long consultation as to the plan to be pursued to capture the ship, thus adding to their own stores and crippling the enemy.

The British had found it necessary to send provisions across the sea to their troops in America, as, not only were supplies scarce in the colonies, but the patriots destroyed whatever they could not use themselves that was likely to fall into the enemy's hands. At this time food was at a premium with both the Americans and the British, and the provisions aboard the Deerhound would be as grateful an addition to the patriots' store, as it would be a severe loss to the British. So these patriots of Elizabethport were more than willing to take the risk in order to capture the supplies. To fight, men must eat, and, as they ate that they might fight, so they often fought that they might eat.

That afternoon four large boats put out from Elizabethport, each manned by two rowers, who, apparently, were fishermen. But a search under the benches would have shown each boat to be loaded with men—patriots, who were all heavily armed with muskets, swords and pistols. Among them, in the leading boat, crouched Frank and Walter. They had been taken along upon their earnest solicitation, representing that they were needed to show where the British ship lay. But they determined earlier in the day to do more than act as pilots.

"I'm not going to be left out of the fighting if I can help it, are you?" said Walter.

"Not much; but I'm afraid they won't let us have any arms."

"We'll get some for ourselves, and not let them know it until we get there."

"Where can we get any?"

"I saw a lot of them when we were at the hall. They won't all be used. We can get some without their seeing us, I think."

"Come on."

The two boys were favored by chance, as no one was at the hall when they reached there, nearly everyone in the town being down at the beach watching the preparations for the expedition. They secured a cutlass and pistol apiece, with ammunition. Then came the question how to conceal the weapons.

AN AFRICAN POISON STORY.

Strange Phenomenon Witnessed in the Northeast of the Dark Continent.

Charles M. Stern, of Chicago, who lately returned from a journey through Northeast Africa, told of a curious obteorological phenomenon which Fallah, served in the district called and Ex- reports the New York Mail that region press. "The vegetation is," said "and the is very luxuriant," plant life must give large quantity of carbonic acid gas. At conclusion I reached least, that was the natives die and four after seeing the or five dogs. "The moment the animals put their noses close to the ground they would fall over and gasp. and die in about five minutes. The natives who died slept on the ground instead of in hammocks, as others did. My theory is that a stratum of the deadly gas covered the ground to a depth of three or four inches, and any living thing breathing in that area was asphyxiated.

"I could not understand, however, how the gas was not distributed in a thinner layer, and what kept it in one place for a whole day. Nothing like it had ever been known there before. The deaths of the men and the dogs all occurred within 24 hours. Then the gas, if it was really gas, seemed to be dissipated. It was a very strange occurrence and I might have been induced to make a more exhaustive investigation if my presence had not excited distrust. I got away as quickly as possible rather than be accused of being the cause of the sudden deaths. The natives are superstitious and attribute most of their misfortunes to witchcraft, so I thought it the part of wisdom to get away."

SUBSTITUTE FOR COAL.

A Smokeless Fuel That Seems to Be Gaining in Popularity.

In the future we may be exporting masut instead of exporting coal, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. Masut is a by-product in the distillation of raw petroleum. It is also manufactured from a cheap brown coal found in Saxony. There has been, until recently, great trouble in finding a furnace suitable for burning it. It is now blown by steam into a special furnace, on the principle of the Lucigen light, and used without difficulty. It is 40 or 50 per cent. cheaper than coal, and is 20 per cent. better as a heat raiser. Steam can be got up quicker and kept at a higher pressure, and more work can be done by the machinery. From a naval point of view these are vitally important facts. No sign of a ship under full steam will be shown in the sky, for masut is a smokeless fuel. Russia and Italy are using it in their navies, and Germany has lately made some valuable experiments. At Kiel, Wilhelmshaven and Danzig are tanks from which it can be pumped into ships. Its specific gravity being so much less than that of coal, a ship's buoyancy is greatly increased when the bunkers are filled with it. Heavier armor or cargoes can be carried. The heating capacity being greater, the ship can travel faster or farther. It is yet to be learned what improvements the Germans have introduced into their furnaces, and what are the disadvantages of masut.

OLD TIMES IN HAWAII.

Reverence for Royalty Was Once a Marked Characteristic.

One of the most marked characteristics of the ancient Hawaiian religion was the extreme reverence for royalty indicated, says the Philadelphia Press. It was a crime punishable with death to pass through the king's shadow or sit higher than his head. His person was sacred and protected by a strict system of "taboo." In the royal palace the "taboo" stick, with which the king announced his excommunications, is exhibited. It is a wand with a carved stone cap. If this stick was lowered on the approach of a courier he was compelled to withdraw immediately and was considered in deep disgrace.

The king's will was absolute; but the majority of the Hawaiian monarchs seem to have been of a kindly disposition and to have made no improper use of their extreme power. It was due to one of them that the taboo system was abolished. This bore with grievous weight upon the women. They were forbidden the use of some of the most common articles of diet, such as bananas and certain kinds of fish, on pain of death.

Smallest Electrical Battery.

The smallest electrical battery ever constructed was the work of an electrician in the employ of the Boston Telephone company. It consisted of an ordinary "glass head" through which two wires, one of copper and the other of iron, were looped and twisted so as to prevent their coming in contact. The wires acted as the electrodes, and all that was necessary to cause a current was to place a drop of acidulated water in the head. Certainly such a minute battery furnished but an infinitesimal current, but it could be easily used in a delicate telephone; in fact, it is said to have actually served in signaling a distance of nearly 200 miles.

Inured to Cold.

When asked if he was not afraid of a temperature of ten degrees below zero the late Tolman Willey, of Boston, said: "Where I was born, sir, my father one Sunday took me into a meeting house which sat on four stone posts with no other underpinning. I sat in the church and listened to a sermon on hell for 60 minutes, with the wind howling underneath the church and blowing 40 miles a minute, with no fire in the stove and the mercury 40 degrees below zero. Do you think I was born in a sugar box and nursed on heliotropes?"

A VICTORY CLAIMED.

President Ratchford Talks of Success of the Strike.

While It Is Ended in Pennsylvania and Ohio, There Is Still Trouble in Other States—New Scale for Illinois Miners.

Washington, Sept. 22. — M. D. Ratchford, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who is here to attend a special meeting of the officers of the Federation of Labor, gave the following authorized statement Tuesday:

"To-day will see about 75,000 miners resume work in the bituminous coal fields of the central states. The strike generally ends Tuesday. This is the middle of the twelfth week of its duration. It was brought to a close at our convention, held at Columbus, O., September 8 to 11, the ten days' time being given to allow miners and operators to come togethern in Illinois and West Virginia to meet the prices fixed—65 cents a ton in Pennsylvania, 56 cents in Ohio and Indiana, the same to continue till the end of December. The mining situation is not likely to become disturbed again until the beginning of next year, at which time we hope to be able to settle wage differences amicably and without the necessity of a strike. It is well understood that the fight will continue from the present time in all fields and against all operators who refuse to meet the rates. The greatest trouble will be found in West Virginia and a portion of Illinois. I am still hopeful, however, that the producers in those fields will conform to the change and put their mines in operation. Failing to do this, we will fight them as we have done until the beginning of next year, at which time it is said their present contracts will expire.

Organized Labor's Victory.

"I am well satisfied with the agreement reached, and feel that it is the greatest victory gained by trades unions for years. Of course the victory is not altogether one of the miners. While they have done the striking, trades unions and organized bodies have supplied the necessaries, without which the miners could not possibly succeed. It is a victory for organized labor, and not for any particular trade, and we want our friends who have helped us to feel that it is their victory as well as ours. I feel very grateful for the assistance given us by the American Federation of Labor and the kindly disposition shown us at all times by Mr. Gompers and members of his executive committee."

"My advices from West Virginia are to the effect that our miners are standing firm, are well pleased with the agreement reached, and evince a determination to fight their battle to the end. Our purpose is to bring the miners and operators of that state together in a joint convention, that a uniform mining price may be fixed and paid for the same vein of coal and a fair relative price for other veins within the state. In short to fix a mining rate that will give to West Virginia fair competing opportunities and nothing more.

"The fixing of a mining rate that will give fair competing opportunities is the object of the miners' organization everywhere. We have been working to bring the operators of the several states together with this end in view. Though our efforts have been futile, we will continue to advocate that policy, believing there is but one sure way to keep down strikes and disputes, which are no advantage to either side, and that that is for the miners and operators interested from the various states to meet annually, mutually fix prices for each district that are fair and just, and each party to the agreement to observe it faithfully until a subsequent agreement takes its place. During the eight years that this system was in vogue strikes and disturbances of a general character were unknown, and the causes which gave rise to them can again be removed as soon as the operators interested will see their interests in this light."

More Men Return to Work.

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 22.—Peace has been restored in the anthracite region and nearly every colliery therein worked Monday. Included in these were the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre company's Audenried mines, employing 2,500 men. The strike was practically inaugurated by them and their return to work Monday caused a stampede of the other strikers.

Americans Will Resist.

Antwerp, Sept. 22.—The Americans residing here and who are liable under the new law to be enrolled for military service in case of war held a meeting Monday, organized and determined to oppose this action upon the part of the Belgian government. Resolutions to this effect were adopted at the meeting and forwarded to Bellamy Storer, the United States minister at Brussels.

Three Girls Burned to Death.

Sturgeon Falls, Ont., Sept. 22.—Three daughters of Leander Gatiou, of this place, were burned to death in the family residence Monday night. The parents and five other of the Gatiou children had barely time to escape from the burning building. The children who perished were respectively eight, ten and 13 years of age.

Twelve Buildings Burned.

Nicholasville, Ky., Sept. 20.—With the exception of the store of Joplin & Co., the entire business portion of the flourishing town of Wilmore, six miles south of this place, on the Cincinnati Southern railroad, was destroyed by fire at one o'clock Sunday morning.

FOR ANNEXATION.

Hawaiian Senate Ratifies the Treaty Unanimously.

Honolulu, Sept. 14 (via San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 22.)—The steamer Pekin carries the news to the United States that the annexation treaty has been unanimously ratified by the proper legislative body. That it was done unanimously, it is thought, will have a big effect in the United States, and remove all hesitancy that may exist on the part of the government at Washington. The extraordinary session of the senate began September 9, and the next day, when the preliminary work of organization had been done, there was nothing but the work of ratification to be accomplished, and this was rushed through, not by agreement, but because there was no desire on the part of anyone to discuss the matter. There was but one opinion on the subject, and the result was that the vote on ratification was unanimous.

THE DEFENSE READY.

The Prosecution in the Luetgert Murder Trial Comes to an End.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—It required just 20 days for the presentation of the evidence of the prosecution in the Luetgert murder trial. Ex-Judge Vincent said yesterday the defense would present its side of the case in just half that time. "My address to the jury in opening will be short and directly to the point," he said. "We deny the murder—the corpus delicti has not been proved, as the law requires, and this fact cannot be assumed nor inferred from such testimony as has been presented here. We will explain away all evidence brought out by the police department after months of investigation and manipulation. I do not care to give out in full our defense until we get started, but I promise some startling developments before we are through."

THE YELLOW FEVER.

Progress of the Scourge Thus Far in Southern States.

Washington, Sept. 22.—Surgeon General Wyman has sent a telegraphic summary of the yellow fever situation to the secretaries of the boards of health at Raleigh, S. C.; Florence, S. C.; Bowling Green, Ky.; Montgomery, Ala.; Jackson, Miss.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Little Rock, Ark.; St. Louis, Mo.; Nashville, Tenn.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Springfield, Ill.; Columbus, O.; New Orleans, La.; Austin, Tex., and Atlanta, Ga. It shows a total of cases up to September 20 as follows: At New Orleans, 67; Mobile, 19; Cairo, 4; Burkley, Miss., 10; Biloxi, Miss., 22; Edwards, Miss., 18; Ocean Springs, Miss., 11; at other points, 19; total 160.

Michael's Great Bicycling Feat.

Boston, Sept. 20.—Jimmy Michael on Saturday won the greatest cycling event ever run on any New England track. It was the international 25-mile race on Charles River park, and was run in the fastest cycling time the world ever saw. Michael's competitors were Lucien Lesna, of France, and Eddie McDuffee, of Cambridge. It was a superb day and 14,000 people witnessed the race. Michael finished in 45:58 4-5. Every American and world's record from three to twenty-five miles inclusive is now credited to Michael.

Big Wheat Shipments.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 22.—As an illustration of the remarkable wheat shipments from Kansas, a dispatch from Russell county says the shipments from that county last week were 125 cars. The total number of bushels shipped from this one county up to the 19th inst. reaches the enormous sum of 700,000. This has brought to Russell county nearly $500,000 in cash, or about $60 for every man, woman and child in the county.

Damage by Frost.

Cincinnati, Sept. 22.—Reports from all parts of the Ohio valley indicate that the frost did much damage Monday night, especially to tobacco and to the late corn. The frost was general in southern Ohio and Indiana and northern Kentucky. The quarantine against yellow fever was raised here Tuesday on account of the frost.

Many Drowned.

London, Sept. 22.—A dispatch to the Daily News from Vienna says that the steamer Ika, with a crew of ten and carrying 50 Australian passengers, was entering the port at Fiume on the river Fiumara Tuesday evening, when she collided with the English steamer Tiria and sunk in two minutes. Most of the passengers perished.

Hotel Burned.

Appleton, Wis., Sept. 20.—The Waverly house, the oldest hotel in this city, and one of the best known in the state, was totally destroyed by fire early Saturday morning. It was a four-story brick structure. Loss about $25,000. insurance, $15,000. The hotel had been closed several months.

Died While Waltzing.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—Mrs. Valiska Smith, 78 Wade street, danced herself to death Saturday night at 263 North Green street. She attended a ball given at the latter place and entered gayly into the pleasures of the evening. In the midst of a waltz she suddenly fell to the floor dead.

Victim of Hydrophobia.

Anna, Ill., Sept. 21.—Agnes Meier, the ten-year-old daughter of Joseph Meier, a farmer living south of Jonesboro, died of hydrophobia.

MEANT TO KILL.

President Diaz, of Mexico, Attacked by an Anarchist.

The Blow Fell Short and the Would-Be Murderer Was Arrested—A Mob Takes Him from Officers and Lynches Him.

City of Mexico, Sept. 17.—President Diaz was assaulted with deadly intent during the ceremonies attending the celebration of the declaration of independence. Ignacio Anulfoa, a violent anarchist, broke through the line of soldiers that marked the line of the procession to the Alameda and attempted to brain the president with a heavy cane as he was walking to the national palace. The blow, which he aimed at the president's head, fell short and the would-be murderer was immediately seized and handed over to the police.

Intense Excitement.

Intense excitement prevailed when it became known that an attempt had been made upon the life of President Diaz. In a thousand ways the deep hold he has upon the affections of the Mexican people was manifested when the fact became known that he had escaped without injury. The city is ringing with cheers for the president, and prayers of thanksgiving are being offered in many of the churches.

PRESIDENT DIAZ, OF MEXICO.

President Shows Coolness.

President Diaz was the coolest man of all who witnessed the assault. He turned around as his assailant was seized, and looked at him somewhat curiously, and then resumed his march, bowing right and left to the people. The effect upon the crowd that saw the affair was instantaneous and awakened the greatest excitement.

Speculation as to Motive.

It is variously reported that Anulfoa will be tried by court-martial, and also that he will be handed over to the civil authorities. There is no doubt that if Anulfoa had fallen into the hands of the people he would have been torn to pieces, so intense was the rage. Some think the assailant merely made the assault for the sake of gaining notoriety, having read the accounts of the assassination of Canovas.

Lynched by a Mob.

Mexico City, Mex., Sept. 18.—A most sensational ending to the attempt on the life of President Diaz occurred Friday morning. Arnulfo Arroyo was lynched by a band of the common people who were determined to revenge this dastardly attempt on the life of the president. It was an act unprecedented in the history of this country. The sensational attempt on the life of the president of the republic had a more sensational ending than the quiet people of Mexico ever dreamed could be. At one o'clock in the morning a number of men belonging to the common people forced their way into the municipal palace, ascended the stairway, overcame the guards, made their way to the office of the inspector general of police and killed Arnulfo Arroyo, whom they found there. The killing was a wild and savage scene and wild and noisy was the retreat.

Lynchers Will Be Punished.

City of Mexico, Sept. 20.—Orders have been given to investigate the lynching of Arroyo. President Diaz has decided that the inquiry shall be most rigorous and that the guilty parties be severely punished, as he feels that the act was a reproach to the nation, which has taken pride in the fact that lynch law has been unknown there. Twenty-odd men arrested are still in custody and formal papers are being drawn up in their cases.

Damaged by Frost.

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 21.—The cold weather Sunday night caught about 20 per cent. of the corn in Iowa, says John R Sage, director of the weather bureau. The other four-fifths was practically out of the way. Heavy frosts were reported from Davenport, Des Moines, Centerville, Clinton, Ogden and Osceola. Killing frosts were reported from Fairchild, Forest City, Hampton, Marshalltown, Waterloo and Charles City.

Cash for the Wheat Growers.

New York, Sept. 21.—Money continues to be ordered from the banks and the subtreasury to pay the wheat growers of the south and west. The subtreasury received orders Monday to ship $275,000 in currency to the south and the northwest. The money will be sent from Washington. The banks sent about ($[illegible],000.

MAKING CELLULOID.

The Chemical Constitution Is a Matter of Doubt.

Though the chemical constitution of celluloid is a matter of doubt, the art of manufacturing this peculiar modern product is explained in a few words—an article made by the combined action of pressure and heat, or with the aid of solvents, in that case in the cold, says the Trade Journals' Review. The camphor is dissolved in alcohol, as little as possible, and the solution sprayed through a rose on to the pyroxyline, the latter perfectly dry, a second layer of pyroxyline being then added, moistened again with camphor solution, and so on; the gelatinous lump is worked between iron rollers, to which it adheres, and the layer is slit longitudinally and rolled again.

The cakes, 0.4-inch thick, are cut into plates, about two feet by one foot, and pass for 24 hours into hydraulic presses, which are doubly steam jacketed. The mass is now sawed into plates, which are dried at about 95 degrees Fahrenheit for a week or two, and finally cut into smaller pieces, from which the articles are stamped. Further, according to a writer in the Gummi Zeitung, the method pursued is believed to consist in pouring 100 parts of ether on 50 of collodion wool and 25 of camphor, the covered mass being then stirred in earthenware vessels with rubber sticks until a homogeneous gelatinous mass is obtained, and then rolled. Apart from dyestuff and other additions, the average celluloid consists of two-thirds pyroxyline and one-third camphor.

BALLROOM VERACITY.

Unfortunately for His Vanity He Overheard a Bit of Conversation.

He was not the most graceful dancer in the world, and the first waltz around the room he stepped on her toes, caught her gown, and his general awkwardness was so marked that people began to look at them, says the Detroit Free Press. He blushed, bit his lip and stammered out:

"I—I'm so sorry, Miss Gracely, that I've spoiled your dance. Really, it's been so long since I danced that I've forgotten how. Please pardon—"

"Why, Mr. Scraper, I'm sure you're a graceful dancer. I've really nothing to pardon. I've enjoyed the waltz so much. If that awkward Mr. Paddle would keep out of folks' way dancing would be easy enough. He and Miss Waddle take up the whole floor. Mr. Scraper, you are one of the best dancers on the floor to-night."

At which Mr. Scraper felt much relieved and began to think he was overcautious in watching himself. But five minutes later he wanted to go home, when, in passing Miss Gracely, in a corner, with Mr. Paddle and Miss Waddle, he heard her saying:

"What a clown that Mr. Scraper is! Did you see him trying to dance with me? Such motions! Oh, dear! It did mortify me so. And my poor feet! They're black and blue. Just watch him now. People that can't dance ought at least to confine the practice to their own homes."

"THEM THINGS IS OURN."

Police Court Lawyers Brought to Task for Their Bad Grammar.

A very noted politician-lawyer was arguing a case once before Justice Prindiville. It was a replevin suit and the lawyer was making what he thought was an impassioned plea, says the Chicago Chronicle. He contended that the property in question belonged to his client. He waved his arms and sawed the air. As the peroration to his speech he shook his fist at the justice and bellowed in stentorian tones: "Them things is ourn."

Instantly the opposing counsel sprang to his feet, his voice trembling with indignation. "I object, your honor," he cried, "to the gentleman's language. I am surprised to hear such a statement in a court of justice. I ask that the gentleman be compelled to correct the statement which he has just made—a highly improper statement, as your honor well knows."

Justice Prindiville leaned forward, and the political attorney, greatly bewildered, said: "What's your objection?" The justice repeated the question, being himself a trifle mystified as to what the lawyer found objectionable in the language.

The objecting cousel drew himself up proudly and said: "He should have said: 'Those things are ours,' not 'Them things is ourn,' your honor." The counsel who had slaughtered Uncle Sam's English scowled, the justice smiled and the trial proceeded.

Magnetized by Lightning.

Among the curious effects ascribed to lightning is the magnetization of parts of rock struck by it, says the Detroit Tribune. The existence of such magnetized rocks has long been known, but the supposition that their condition was due in many cases to lightning has only recently been confirmed by a curious observation of Dr. Folgheraiter among the walls of ancient buildings on the Campagna near Rome. He found strongly magnetic points and zones in the walls, precisely like those occasionally encountered in rocks. The fact that the magnetization often included more than one block of stone in the wall was regarded as proving that the magnetic property had been acquired after the building was erected, and the agency of lightning was indicated by neighboring cracks in the walls.

OBSTACLES TO REFORM.

Even in a Little Matter Like This There Is Difficulty.

A short time ago an order went into operation upon the Boston street railways requiring conductors to address feminine passengers as "Madame." The always cheerful chatterer of the Boston Herald tells us that, in pursuance of the order, the conductor is trying very hard to cure himself of his habit of calling his feminine passengers "lady" and "Mrs. Lady," but he has not as yet hit upon a uniform method of addressing them, and, in his indecision, has resort to "hi," say," "missis" and "ma'am;" but he will doubtless settle upon the right thing eventually. The other day, on a Huntington avenue car, a conductor, who had evidently given much attention to the subject, won special distinction for himself by the use of the word "madame" in this regard. But there is no rose without a thorn. Among his passegers was a colored girl, who carried a large bundle, doubtless the week's wash of some patron. She asked him to stop at a certain street, and when the car arrived there he said to the gentle Afro-American; "This is your street, madame." She at once gave him an angry look, and said with marked asperity: "Who's yer callin' madame? Watcher mean by insultin' me? I'd have you know I'm a lady, I am." With which she hustled indignantly to the street. The conductor looked perplexed and as he rang the bell with a vicious jerk he sententiously observed: "She ain't no lady, anyhow, even if she ain't a madame." It is hard to please everybody.

FISH WITH NO TAIL.

Queer Discovery in a Muddy Pool in Devonshire, England.

A few weeks ago one of the most extraordinary fish ever known came to light in Devonshire, says the London Rambler. It was a chub, found in a muddy pool, and certainly it was as hideous a thing as one could well imagine. It was imprisoned in a sort of cage formed of the roots of an elm tree that projected under the water, and it had evidently wormed its way into this prison when quite small. Being unable to find its way out, it had been forced to grow in the shape of its cage instead of the natural form that all chub should take. With no room to develop, the fish's tail had disappeared altogether, save for a little deformed stump that had wedged its way between the roots of the tree. The back fin had also vanished, for there was no room for it to grow in. The whole body of the luckless chub was distorted and had grown into the gnarled and twisted form of the root cage. The scales were incrusted with mud and arranged in layers, like roof slates.

It is a puzzle to imagine how the fish fed and lived during its growing years in that watery prison, and what it did when times were hard and no food came by. It seemed contented enough and was certainly healthy and strong, in spite of its distorted shape.

THE ATTRACTIVE WOMAN.

What One Observer Thinks and Says About Her.

That superabundant brain and surpassing beauty may but seldom be combined; yet it does not follow that all women of good sense and sharp intellect are necessarily plain, says an exchange.

That bright thoughts enliven the most ordinary face until the reflection of the mind shining out in all its radiance makes one forget that the features are not pure Grecian, and leads us to believe that such a woman is in reality a great beauty.

That the vivacious creature of varying moods and quaint fancies is the one to charm. A man forgets all the type of beauty she may or may not possess, so interested does he become in the pleasing study of a mind that renders her face ever winning, irresistible and pleasing, because, like the surface of a lake, there comes a change with every varying emotion.

That the attractive woman should cultivate the mind for a grace of soul and education of spirit counts for more than limpid eyes, a rosebud mouth and a dimpled chin.

That she should ever be teachable, for there is not one iota of lovableness in the man or woman who thinks he or she knows it all.

NEVER HEARD FROM.

Ships That Have Sailed from Port Not to Return.

It is some four years now since the last mysterious disappearance of a great ship, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch. This was the Naronic, a freight steamer of unusual size, which sailed the Atlantic and was lost in 1893. Pieces of wreckage from this vessel have been picked up, however, which has not happened in all such cases. Among the mysterious disappearances of the past were the steamships President, City of Glasgow, Pacific, Ocean Monarch and City of Boston, the ironclad Captain, and the Liberia and Barton.

Twenty-seven years have passed away since the City of Boston was placed on the missing list, but some are now living who had friends and relatives on board of her.

The City of Boston cleared at the port of New York on Tuesday, January 25, 1870. She sailed for Liverpool by the way of Halifax, with 12 cabin and 45 steerage passengers. Since she left Halifax no vestige of her has ever been seen except a plank upon which was scratched a message saying that the ship was sinking. Her exact fate will never be known.

"Made in England."

According to the American Wool and Cotton Reporter there is in Rhode Island a hosiery mill whose entire output for the coming year a New York jobbing house has contracted to take on the condition that every stocking is stamped with the legend: "Made in England."

"A perfect type of the highest order of excellence in manufacture."

TROUBLE BREWING IN RIDGEWAY.

It has been some months since Ridgeway has been out of court and now they have another opportunity to indulge in a legal contest, not the township this time however, but the Ridgeway school board. It seems that through the negligance of the teachers or otherwise to enforce the rules adopted by the board for the control of the pupils, they have so demolished the property of a taxpayer in the village that said tax-payer previous to the last annual meeting presented to the board a bill for damages with the supposition that it would be considered at that time and disposed of, but the board in its wisdom did not see fit to even entertain the proposition of the tax-payer nor did they let it come before the annual meeting.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. TECUMSEH, MICH., SEPT. 24, 1897.

The action of the council in granting street privileges to the D., T. & M. R. R. is commended by everyone.

The American people will not wait. History presents to us the fact that a street car line which runs cars once an hour is always a failure yet in many instances the same lines have paid good dividends when four cars an hour were run. The passenger business of the Michigan division of the old C., J. & M. was well nigh a fizzle but now that two more trains are put on and run to accommodate the people the business is first class. This rule proves true in all kinds of business. The state line service of the Bell Telephone Co. is rotten in every particular. The writer waited three and one-half hours to talk with a Toledo man not long since and the delay was caused by the local apparatus being negligently out of repair, want of proper line service and incompetent operatives. The Tecumseh office, fortunately, is run in fairly good shape, but it is owing to good luck not to any good judgment on the part of the management. Certainly something should be done to improve the service or else give it up entirely. If sufficient lines were used and people employed to give quick and efficient service there would be no doubt of good patronage.

High School Happenings.

All the books ordered have come and school routine has begun.

Miss Naomi North class of 97 has gone back to take up Chemistry.

Schools closed yesterday that those desiring, might attend the county fair.

Examinations have been done away with and in their place each teacher will give written reviews once or twice a month.

The per cent of foreign pupils is very large this year. On the first day forty-nine were enrolled. It certainly speaks well for our school.

The class in Geometry numbers twenty-one; in General History twenty-nine; and Miss Bullock's eight grade Latin class has twenty-seven members.

Miss Hartbeck's room is blessed with a new blackboard this year; genuine slate, too. It is only those who had to struggle with the old one who can properly appreciate it.

Miss Wimple's grade has been changed to the tenth grade room and more seats put in that room; and the overflow in the grammer grades has been transported to the East branch.

The schoolboard has had a bicycle shed built on the east side of the Union building. This is a great convenience as the pupils have carried their bicycles into the lower halls and seriously inconvenienced themselves as well as others.

Our dearly beloved professor, L. M. Kellogg, is particularly happy this term on accunt of the $125 appropriation for Laborotory work. The office will be fitted up with tables and the necessary apparatus so that the classes in Chemistry and Physics can do their own Laborotory work and each student in these classes will be required to spend a certain number of hours per week in this work.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

Again the D. & L. N. freight house is on the run. This time it will land on the southwest corner of the lot.

C. N. Haskell, of the Lima Northern, was here Saturday night, and instructed Engineer Roser to locate the Adrian depot just south of the group of trees beneath which passengers now wait. It is understood the station will be constructed of stone, and that work will be commenced this week.—Adrian Times.

A railway authority says the Wabash is the market for 25 of the most modern locomotives. The heavy business on the Wabash has made it necessary for the company to increase its motive power. Every locomotive which is able to turn a wheel is now in service, yet they are scarcely able to handle the traffic.—Adrian Times.

The location of the railroad office building has been changed and work on the construction commenced. The building will face east and be located just north of the passenger station. The HERALD is informed that in every instance possible the preference will be given to Tecumseh laborers; indeed this has been the policy from the beginning.

A correspondent says: "The new Detroit & Lima Northern railroad is proving a valuable acquisition for Tecumseh. Real estate here has taken a boom, and houses are in great demand. Many officers and employes of the road are taking up their residence here on account of the general officers of the company at this point. Ground has been broken for the erection of the building for the offices, and the coaling station, formerly at Addison, has also been removed here."—Adrian Times.

And this is the latest from Jim Brailey: He says some strange things happen on railroad trains. Last Thursday when No. 43 was about to turn from the D., T. & M. to the D. & L. N. track the engine ran over a gray squirrel, but the animal was running fast and the wheels split him in two lengthwise. This is not an unusual occurrence, but the peculiar thing was that the squirrel never stopped, one half started for Allegan and the other for Lima. Then when the newspaper man asked if he thought the squirrel was hurt much "Jim" got mad. A peculiar man this Brailey.

A Dundee dispatch to the Detroit Free Press says: The Detroit & Lima Northern railroad has commenced operations here for the construction of the new road from Dundee to Detroit. They have let the contract to the Fergerson Construction company, of New York, and the Russel Lynch Construction company, of Pittsburg, has received a contract for building 83 miles of the new road from the New York company, and to-day a gang of men and 83 teams and camping outfit arrived here from Pittsburg to commence work. Ground will be broken tomorrow and the work of construction will be rushed to completion. The new road will commence just [illegible] and runs south about a half mile until it strikes the Lake Shore, then alongside that road to Trenton. It is expected that 100 teams will be at work this week. The 83 miles in contract includes a strip yet to be built into Adrian where the Wabash is now used.

According to a dispatch from Dundee the Brice people have actually begun work on the line into Detroit. An engineer who was up over the ground recently said to The Blade to-day that the proposed line almost parallels the Wabash, the road which the D. & L. N. and D. T. & M. use into Detroit at present. It will shorten the D. T. & M.'s line from Toledo to Detroit, as well as give both roads an independent entrance into Detroit. At Detroit the Michigan Central terminal, freight and passenger depots will be used. The D. T. & M. people claim that, while they will be compelled to use some of the Michigan Central's terminals, the extension connects the Brice lines with some of the most important industries of Detroit. It is expected that the extension will be complete within four months. The contract has been let to the Fergersou Construction company, of New York, and the Russell-Lynch Co., of Pittsburg.—Toledo Blade.

Charles L. Barney.

The entertainment given by C. L. Barney at Sutton's Opera house Monday night was the most marvelous exhibition of physical strength and muscular development ever seen in this section. His muscle posing was chaste and artistic and demonstrated to what perfection this art can be attained by judicious and careful training. His feats of strength were varied in character and executed with such apparent ease and perfection as to call forth the most hearty applause from the audience. His powers of endurance are wonderful as he fully demonstrated, for his work was almost continuous, nothing sandwiched in between exhibitions by him and no long waits. He is a wonder for his age. Previous to Barney's work, Will Elliott rendered a fine bass solo and generously responded to the hearty encore by giving "Rocked in the Cradle of the deep."

Harper's Magazine for October will be particularly strong in fiction, containing the first installment of "Spanish John," a story of adventure by William McLellan, and continued instalments of "The Great Stone of Sardis," by Frank R. Stockton, and of "The Kentuckians," by John Fox, Jr., together with short stories by John Kendrick Bangs, George Hibbard, and Alice Brown. Among other interesting features there will be an article on "The Strategic Features of the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea," by Captain A. T. Mahan.

It is a mighty good boy who likes to have his school teacher meet his parents.

Mrs. Lydia Kelley

Died in Holloway, Mich., Sept. 10, '97, at the advanced age of 87 years. She has made her home with her son, Allen H. Kelly, until within a few weeks. Owing to the severe illness of Mrs. A. H. Kelly, she was moved to the home of her sister, Mrs. Jane Kelly, where she patiently awaited the final summons to meet friends and loved ones gone before. Aunt Lydia was the daughter of John and Phebe Hoxsie, born in the town of Galaway, Saratoga county, N. Y. Aug. 12, 1810. When eight years of age, she with her parents moved to Sempronius Cayuga, N. Y., where they resided until 1833, when they left relatives and became one of the pioneers in the wilderness of Michigan. Lydia Hoxsie was married to Leibum Kelly, May 6th, 1840, she being his second wife. To them three children were born, Edwin C. Allen H. and Betsey Ann Kelly. She was a consistent christian, having always been a member of the Friend's society. She was a noble mother, always full of interest for her family and surroundings and was held in great esteem and veneration by all with whom she came in contact. She knew for herself that her soul was alive unto God, born of water and of blood and truly an inhabitant of the spiritual kingdom of Divine grace.

Financial Letter.

Chicago, Sept. 21, 1897.

The bears have no success in their efforts to depreciate the value of wheat, the reactions thus far having been spasmodic with a sharp upturn in every instance.

The history of the past month is that whenever wheat has been beaten down to the vicinity of the 90c mark the resultant buying has been of such a character as to quickly take the market away from the selling element and force them to buy back at a good advance the wheat they sold. It was so last Saturday when wheat fell to 90 on non-support by its friends, which encouraged short sales. The rebound was to 92 1-2. Today there was a determined effort to break the price, and under these conditions it broke to 91 5-8. Then buying orders came into the market and they, together with reports of large acceptances by Europe, sent the quotations to 93 1-2 in no time.

This inherent strength of wheat should be most gratifying to the farmer. Heretofore he has been compelled to accept a price range of from 50 to 65 cents in this market, but now the minimum value seems to be 90 cents, with the average range for the last thirty days several cents above that price. The statements made in this correspondence in regard to the general situation as evidenced by reports from this country and abroad to Schwartz, Dupee & Co. have been more than fulfilled. Wheat having risen from 65c to $1.00 and holding firm above 90c since the top was reached.

In regard to the present situation in corn it may be said that the recent decline was due far more to liquidation by weak holders than any change in the statistical position of the grain. Best estimates are that the crop will not exceed 1,750,000 bu., while the government [illegible] be higher. The relative positions of wheat and corn are such that close observers figure corn too low just now.

Provisions recovered quickly from the yellow fever scare, and with the excellent cash demand now existing it is plain that a vast amount of money must be paid out in the west for its products of this sort as well as for wheat and corn. That the present excellent prices are not believed to be fictitious or temporary is shown in the continued advance in the securities of western roads. Northwestern, Burlington, St. Paul and Rock Island have gone steadily upward, more than meeting the expectations of their friends, and it is not often that Wall street is so thoroughly in accord with the west on a matter of such great importance. Undoubtedly the wheat acreage of the world will be increased during the next year, and with good crops this will lead to lower prices, but as to the present supply of breadstuffs the outlook is most hopeful.

The following table shows the high, low and closing prices today of wheat as dealt in on the Chicago Board of Trade:

	High.	Low.	Close.
Dec.	93 1-2	91 5-8	92 3-8
May	92 7-8	91 1-4	91 3-8

County Game Warden Deuel is fulfilling his duties in a manner that must win for him the commendation of all law-abiding citizens. Heretofore he has not discovered anyone violating the game laws in this vicinity, but yesterday he caught Art Stretch, of Raisin township, shooting squirrels and soon after brought him before Squire Frasier who, upon his pleading guilty, fined him $20 and costs, being a total of $23.75. Stretch will be careful in the future not to be shooting out of season and others will do well to profit by his experience.

Owing to yesterday's being the big day of the county fair, the band concert last evening did not draw as large a crowd as usual, yet the attendance was fair. The stand was stationed at the intersection of Chicago and Evans streets, the proper place for it and the boys gave by far the best concert thus far in the series.

The Tecumseh Gun Club gave a Blue Rock Shoot at the driving park Wednesday. They had two sessions, forenoon and afternoon which proved both interesting and satisfactory to all present. Many local sportsmen and a few from away participated, all of whom did well and honors were very evenly divided. Another shoot will be held later.

Gen. Fred B. Wood, of Tecumseh, was over here yesterday and borrowed Major Howell's bicycle to ride back with. The major states that the general made remarkably fast time going back, leaving here at 10 a. m. and getting home in time to send the wheel back on the 6 p. m. train never sweating his hat band.—Adrian Times.

This is a libel. The General was ready to ship at 4 o'clock p. m. but there was no train at that hour. This was a good record considering the wheel.

Beyond My Expectations.

I bought one of your ball bearing Deering corn harvesters of your agent, John A. Heck, of Tecumseh, Mich. My corn was very heavy drilled corn and I thought no machine could handle it. I started in last Saturday and that day I cut 11 acres without any bother. I recommend it above all others I have ever seen. It runs as light as my McCormick mower.

Yours truly,

Walker Whiteside.

Professional jealousy does not seem to trouble Walker Whiteside, tragedian. His manager, Mason Mitchell, has engaged for leading support no less a man than Frederick Paulding, who has had a distinguished career in the best companies that have ever played the legitimate drama in this country, and has been a star as well.

While Mr. Whiteside has nothing to fear from comparison with the best contemporaries, his step in engaging so bright a light is highly to be commended. It will redound to his own success, however, for his own art will be reinforced and heightened by the support of so finished an actor.

The leading lady of the company will be the beautiful and charming Lelia Wolston. Other excellent people have been engaged and the company will be much stronger than any Mr. Whiteside has taken out before.

A novelty is promised for the opening here an entirely new play based on Stanley Weyman's famous and thrill-

Mr. Whiteside essays a dual role, that of the old magician and that of young Chevalier de Renaux. The test is a severe one, but no one who remembers Mr. Whiteside's fervant young Hamlet and his crafty old Shylock can doubt his complete triumph.

He will be seen at the New Croswell, Adrian, next Tuesday night supported by a superb company. New and elaborate special scenery will be e.

The four year old son of Chas. Abersold, who lives south of town on what is known as the "Tim Strong" farm was anxious to have a bon-fire and had importuned his father on different occassions for permission to have one in the lane. Last Friday afternoon a neighbor boy about the same age was over and they, with a young child of Mr. Abersold were playing around and coming into the house, by his actions attracted the attention of an older sister, who questioned him closely and partially examined him to see if he had any matches. Not finding any and he declaring he had none, she was satisfied. Soon after Mr. Abersold on going towards the barn met the boy who said, "Papa, the stack is burning." Calling to his wife and daughter to bring water, he grabbed some bags and blankets hoping to smother the flames, for a moment he thought he had succeeded but only for a moment, as suddenly the whole stack seemed on fire. When the wife and daughter reached the scene nothing could be done. While considering what to do, the daughter found the little two year old at the foot of the stack where he had fallen asleep, rushing up, she rescued the child just in time for a moment later it would have been impossible. Fire was soon communicated to the barn which in a short time was a smoking mass of ruins. It is a serious loss to Mr. Abersold for while having some insurance it will not near cover the loss.

CLOSES ITS DOORS.

The First National Bank of Benton Harbor Goes Under.

Benton Harbor, Sept. 20.—The First national bank, of this city, did not open for business Saturday, and National Bank Examiner George B. Caldwell, of Detroit, is in charge. About $90,000 is due depositors, and it is generally believed that 75 per cent. will be about as much as will be realized. The suspension is not wholly a surprise. Deposits have decreased about $50,000 the past three months. The bank's capital stock was $50,000, with a surplus of $40,000. James Bailey, cashier, makes no statement, excepting that in his opinion depositors will be paid in full. There was a crowd of anxious depositors about the door. They attribute the bank's embarrassment chiefly to bad loans. Bank Examiner Caldwell says the failure was due to the speculations of ex-Cashier James Bailey, "whose unwise investments and dangerous speculative tendencies led to his removal last June." The bank is also burdened with a large amount of real estate taken as security, which is not available for paying depositors. A thorough investigation will be made.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—Mr. Coffin, the acting comptroller of the currency, has received information of the failure of the First national bank, of Benton Harbor. The bank at last report had a capital of $50,000; surplus, $6,000; deposits, $90,000. The failure is said to be due to bad management.

Benton Harbor, Sept. 22.—Gen. D. B. Ainger, of Lansing, ex-state bank commissioner, was on Tuesday appointed receiver of the defunct First national bank of this city, and will take charge of affairs in a few days. It was found impossible to reorganize the bank, as the stockholders would not consent to surrender their stock to new men, and they are unable to respond to a 100 per cent. assessment. The bank examiner still insists that the assets are more than enough to pay all creditors in full, but depositors generally do not believe they will realize more than 50 per cent. on their deposits.

Probably Drowned.

Bessemer, Mich., Sept. 22.—Andrew Drelson and Anton Hanson, two fishermen, accompanied a party of copper prospectors 20 miles east of here on the south shore of Lake Superior a few days ago. They started back alone in a sail boat during a storm and have not yet reached home. They had only two days' provisions on board and it is feared the boat is lost and both men drowned. The fishermen have families living at the mouth of Black river.

The Railing Broke.

Saginaw, Sept. 18.—Twenty people were thrown from the grand stand at Union park by the breaking of a section of the railing. They fell about 15 feet. Miss Grace Witherspoon, of Detroit, daughter of W. H. Witherspoon, of Detroit, was rendered temporarily unconscious by striking on her head. She also sustained a fractured wrist. A boy had his arm broken and several other people were more or less shaken up and bruised.

Makes a Rich Showing.

Houghton, Sept. 18.—President Pay, of the Central mine, and several capitalists are here and are pleased with the mine's prospects. The showing is even better than they had hoped for before leaving Boston. The rich chute in the bottom of No. 6 shaft continues, and Capt. Chynoweth and other mining men, conversant with conglomerate lodes, pronounce the rock fully five per cent. copper.

Heavy Sales of Lumber.

Saginaw, Sept. 20.—The Saginaw firm known as the Merrill-Ring Lumber company, who lumber at Duluth, have sold 6,500,000 feet of lumber during the past week. The price was one dollar per thousand better than the same quality of lumber would have sold for a year ago.

To Recover an Island.

Marquette, Sept. 20.—A United States jury has decided that a valuable island near the Sault Ste. Marie locks, known as Chief's island, must be returned to the Indians. The government paid $5,000 for the island, and it is worth more now. The government deed was forged.

Died in a Barber Shop.

BABY INCUBATORS.

Model System of Treatment for Weak and Sickly Infants.

A model institution for treatment of weakly infants was opened for private inspection at the Victoria era exhibition. It is divided into three sections. One for the offices of the medical men and nurses in charge, one for a nursery, and in the central room are the nickel-plated and plate-glass incubators in which infants are laid on little white coverlets, placed upon wire hammocks. Before entering these, through a pipe four inches in diameter, air is moistened by passing through a sheet of antiseptic absorbent wool. It then passes through dry wool, which retains the soot and impurities of the atmosphere. The air then traverses another pipe to the center of the incubator. On this orifice is a disk for uniformly distributing the air; above all is a chimney with a revolving fan, which forces exhausted air to escape. Uniform heating is produced from an external boiler, circulation being effected by a copper pipe leading under the hammock. A thermostat on the wall is connected with a chain which suspends an aluminum cone lid over the lamp of the boiler, and its expansions and contractions automatically control the temperature to the degree to which the apparatus is set. A thermometer and hygrometer inside the glass door indicates respectively the temperature and moisture of the air within. The capacity of the handsome little incubators is less than a cubic yard.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

POSTAGE STAMP BED.

How a Kansas City Man Ornamented a Piece of Furniture.

Patience is a virtue which some people exemplify in remarkable ways. One of the most patient men in small things is W. S. Wear, janitor of the Karnes school, Kansas City. Last fall he read a story of a family with a whole bedroom set covered with postage stamps, pasted on until it looked like a patchwork quilt. And straightway Wear determined to indulge in the same pastime. He got the school children to begin collecting stamps for him, and after they had collected about 100,000 he commenced work, putting 10,000 on one bed.

Over 400 foreign stamps are pasted on the crib, and Wear says a stamp collector told him many of them were very valuable. The children in their enthusiasm begged old stamps, many of which had been used to send the love letters of their grandmothers. There are American stamps in the collection that the present generation never even heard of.

Wear has two or three bushels of stamps left, and will spend his idle moments decorating the rest of his household furniture with them.

SPOILING CHILDREN.

There Are Many Ways in Which This Task Is Accomplished.

It isn't a difficult task to spoil a child. No great art is demanded in accomplishing this result. Make all the nurses wait on him and fly at his bidding, writes Dr. Talmage. Let him learn never to go for a drink, but always have it brought to him. At ten years of age have Bridget tie his shoe strings. Let him strike auntie because she will not get him a sugar plum. He will soon learn that the house is his realm, and he is to rule it. He will come up into manhood one of those precious spirits that demand obeisance and service, and with the theory that the world is his oyster which with his knife he will proceed to open. But if the child be insensible to all such efforts to spoil him, try the plan of never saying anything encouraging to him. If he do wrong, thrash him soundly; but if he do well keep on reading the newspaper, pretending not to see him. There are excellent people, who, through fear of producing childish vanity, are unresponsive to the very best endeavor. When a child earns parental applause he ought to have it. If he get up head at school, give him a book or an apple. If he saw a bully on the playground trampling on a sickly boy, and your son took the bully by the throat so tightly that he became a little variegated in color, praise your boy, and let him know that you love to have him the champion of the weak. Perhaps you would not do right a day if you had no more prospect of reward than that which you have given him. If on commencement day he make the best speech, or read the best essay, tell him of it. Truth is always harmless, and the more you use of it the better. If your daughter at the conservatory take the palm, give her a new piece of music, ring, a kiss, or a blessing. Never withhold due meed of praise.—Housewife.

Breadcrumb Fritters.

Soak two cupfuls of fine, brown breadcrumbs in one quart of boiling milk. Beat this to a smooth paste, add the yolks of three eggs, one tablespoonful of melted butter, one teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, one saltspoonful of salt and the same quantity of soda. Lastly stir in the stiffly-beaten whites of the three eggs. Fry in boiling lard and sprinkle with fine sugar.—N. Y. Ledger.

Horticulture.

FOR SORTING POTATOES.

An Easily Constructed Device That Is Sure to Give Satisfaction.

I made and used last season a potato sorter, Fig. 1, which gave first-class satisfaction. It is cheap and serviceable and is used when hauling potatoes from the field to the cellar or bins in barns and sheds. One end must rest upon something solid, like the side of a bin, while the other may be suspended by a rope, so the whole will be on an incline. My method of operation was to have two bins, one for the sorted stock and one for the small potatoes. The lower end of the sorter is suspended over the bin for large potatoes. The other end extends two or three feet outside the small potato bin. This gives the dirt a chance to settle through before reaching either bin.

Fig. 2 shows the inside slat frame which is made of hard pine slats 10½ feet long, two inches wide and three-fourths of an inch thick. They are set on edge and bolted with quarter-inch bolts to slotted sticks near each end. This arrangement admits of adjustment. I have the upper end of the slats three-fourths of an inch apart and the lower end 1¾ inches. This prevents wedging of potatoes between the slats. The upper ends being close together allow the dirt to drop through in advance of the small potatoes. This end also has a hopper four inches high and reaching 2¾ feet from the end. This whole frame is suspended to the outside frame by iron hangers. These are made of three-eighths-inch rod iron and are six inches long. Notches are cut to receive these on the upper edge of the outside frame and the lower edge of the outside slat of the inner frame. A piece of tin may be tacked over to prevent their getting out.

To operate, pour into the hopper a box or basketful of potatoes, then give a vigorous shake or two by taking hold of the upper end of the hopper. This will send the potatoes rolling down the incline, where they will be separated. Two men can unload and sort 1,000 bushels a day as they come from the field. The material for making the [illegible] will not cost [illegible] side. If it is desirable to sort the seed from among the small potatoes, the slats may be set closer, and a cloth may be tacked around the side to prevent their dropping through the larger spaces at the sides thus made, or additional slats may be used.—American Agriculturist.

INSIDE SLAT FRAME FOR SORTER.

Chestnut Trees Profitable.

Those who have a chestnut grove and keep it free from depredators may find it a source of profit. We know one or two such groves which are only natural fruit, but which yield returns with no labor except for gathering the nuts better than could be got for usual farm crops. But to secure profitable returns the public must be excluded. Men and boys who club the trees while the nuts are green to bring them down will disfigure and injure the trees, so that after a few years the trees will yield little or nothing. Chestnut trees, if the fruit is of good quality, are valuable property, and their fruit should be protected. There are several improved varieties of chestnut, some of which will begin bearing when three years old. These should be chosen if new plantations of chestnuts are to be made, or scions of the new varieties should be grafted into native stock.—American Cultivator.

Satisfaction from Bulbs.

Horticultural writers make it a business to say that there is nothing else equal to bulbs for giving winter bloom. Yet, the fact remains that hundreds are disappointed just along this line. This is partly due to poor bulbs, partly to inability to follow directions, and largely to time of potting and choice of sorts. Late potting deliberately invites failure and dissatisfaction. A haphazard collection of sorts is likely to be more than half failure, and the more varied the collection the greater the failure. Only a few of the smaller bulbs and the novelties should be tried each season. The old reliables are not so interesting, perhaps, but in them lies the most of beauty and of satisfaction. Lilies, the better hyacinths, the narcissi, the alliums, and the freesias are best choice for the average grower.—American Gardening.

Sulphur Destroys Scab Germs.

The New Jersey experiment station has been unable to find any variety of potato which is exempt from scab. It is found that rolling the seed in powdered sulphur will destroy the germs of the scab. This treatment should be given just after the potatoes have been cut. Of course, if the germs of scab are in the soil the treatment of the seed alone will not prevent the development of scab on the potatoes raised. The use of about 300 pounds of sulphur per acre on land infested with scab promises to largely reduce the damage caused by it.

When potted plants do not thrive, it is well to report them, as the reason is apt to be the packing of the soil.

PLANTING AN ORCHARD.

An Improvement Upon the Method Now in Vogue Suggested.

It is a common observation that the outrows of trees in established orchards are finer and more productive than the trees in the interior plantation. This superiority is all the more conspicuous if the orchard is bordered by cultivated fields, and it is fair to presume the extra luxuriance is owing to the trees having a greater extent of unoccupied soil for the ramification of their roots. Something is also undoubtedly due to the greater space available for the expansion and spread of the branches; but it is in accordance with all experience in the cultivation of plants that a rotation of crops is absolutely essential toward securing the best results of the fertility of the soil. Keeping these facts in view, it is suggested that an improvement upon the present method of planting orchards would be gained by planting two rows of trees from 18 to 25 or more feet apart, depending upon the nature of the trees, and alternating the plants in the rows. Then allow a space, varying in extent from 300 feet to any greater distance, before planting another series of rows, and so increase the plantation as may be desired. The intervening spaces between these double rows of trees would be available for the cultivation of the ordinary crops of the farm. The roots of the trees would not only participate in the benefits of cultivation, but would have practically unlimited room for extension before meeting other roots of their kind. Immediately under the trees and for a distance on each side of the rows as far as the branches spread the surface could be kept in grass. If not sown down immediately after planting, which might not be desirable in all cases, it should be done after the trees attain a fruit bearing size, or from five to seven years after setting out. The shelter which will be afforded to other crops by these orchards will be found valuable as a protection from winds as well as in forwarding early crops. This method is particularly applicable to apple and pear trees.—Dakota Field and Farm.

GOOD USE FOR WEEDS.

When Properly Cared For They Make a Good Fertilizer.

Summer heat, when it comes, starts a numerous and enterprising crop of weeds into active life. These may be easily controlled by the frequent use of the iron rake, which stifles them at birth. But if, through inattention, they get the start of the gardener and need to be reduced by the hoe, they should be attacked vigorously at the first chance and not allowed to perfect and drop their seed into the soil. Pull up and shake the larger ones when not so near as to endanger valuable plants thereby, and hoe up all others, not merely scraping the ground over, but raking it up and pulverizing it while rooting out the weeds. These may then, while still green and succulent, be raked together and put into the compost heap, where they will be obliged to return to the gardener all that they have purloined from his soil. This [illegible] may, by a little care, be made quite an important factor in the fertility of the garden. Not only all weeds, but, as crops mature, all the garden refuse not used for mulching other plants, may be put into it, wet thoroughly and covered with a little earth and thus rotted down and retained for use as so much home-made fertilizer. It should be established in some out-of-the-way corner; a hole dug a few feet deep to accommodate it will be found convenient and the contents drenched with hose from time to time to promote decomposition, after which a few shovelfuls of earth will delay evaporation and help retain the gases. When used the addition of wood ashes and bone dust, of course, makes it by so much the richer.—Boston Transcript.

COVER FOR TOMATOES.

Prolongs the Season for Several Weeks Beyond the Usual Time.

By exercising a little extra care, the season for ripe tomatoes may be prolonged for two or three weeks beyond the usual period. As soon as there are indications of frost, cover the tomatoes in the evening with some kind of canvas or old blanket. Between the rows of tomatoes drive sticks about four feet apart and nail strips of boards on the top at the height of the tomato vines. Place the covers over these, letting the edges extend to the ground, where they must be fastened so that the wind will not blow them off. Leave no opening or the frost will get in. I prefer a heavy cover made of blankets, as this will often protect the vines when light canvas will fail. If the work is carefully done the tomatoes will stand a great deal of cold weather. — Lewis O'Fallow, in American Agriculturist.

COVER FOR TOMATO VINES.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Don't set strawberries in weedy ground.

Don't waste the ashes. Apply them to the fruit trees.

Large, heavy peas will produce a better and earlier crop.

The autumn is a good time to apply potash fertilizers.

When the raspberry fails you might as well set out new plants.

Are your sweet peas dead? You did not give them enough water.

One orchardist says that he finds Mammoth clover the best to grow in an orchard after it begins to bear.

A correspondent writes that he has kept his garden mulched all summer. Result, splendid crops and few weeds.—Western Plowman.

HEALTH-GIVING BATHS.

Dips in Water Made Fragrant by Flowers and Herbs.

For hardening and strengthening the muscles of neck, shoulders, arms and limbs nothing is more efficacious than a bath of flowers or herbs. Any woman aspiring to resemble the heroine in "Daniel Deronda," who always emerged from her bath looking "like a freshly dipped swan," is becoming initiated in the mysteries of these refreshing and fragrant dips.

Rose leaves, crushed violets, hay flowers, oat straw, shave grass and pine sprig—these form the foundation of the flower or herb bath, and consequently excursions to the garden, the field or the hay rack will be in order in summer. The flower bath is taken warm, followed by a cold shower and a vigorous rubbing until arms and neck shine like glistening marble, are firm of texture and smooth as satin.

All these baths are prepared in the same manner. Boiling water should be poured upon bags of the different blossoms or herbs, each bag containing from one-half to one pound of material and the whole allowed to boil for ten minutes; the vessel is then taken from the fire and allowed to partly cool, when it is added to the prepared bath.

Hay flowers consist of the remains of stalks, leaves, blossoms and seeds, even the hay itself. An oat-straw bath is made by boiling the stalks and heads of oats for one-half hour in a kettle and then pouring the decoction into the tub. Shave grass is prepared in the same manner by boiling the stem, cone and spore. Equisetum arvesne is the botanical name of shave grass, which is a medicinal herb of great value. Taken internally in form of a tea it purifies the stomach; externally in the bath it washes away and dissolves all that is injurious. The uses of the herb are manifold. For instance, in cases of violent bleeding at the nose a decoction of shave grass drawn up into the nostrils gives immediate relief. A supply of shave grass should be kept in every home dispensary, that in time of need it may be quickly at hand.

For the pine-sprig bath gather the sprigs, the fresher the better, small branches, even resinous pine cones, cut them in bits, put into a bag and boil for one-half hour. The chief effect of a pine-sprig bath is on the skin, which is brought into activity by it, and on the blood vessels, which it strengthens. Moreover, it is fragrant and delightful. For the mixed bath herbs and flowers of various kinds are used; this is in case the due quantity of any one cannot be procured.

A word apropos of the duration of such tubbings. A warm flower bath may last one-quarter hour, followed by a cold shower lasting possibly one minute, no longer. Flower and herb baths may be taken two or three times a week.—Eleanor Lexington, in American Queen.

A HOME DISTILLERY.

How to Produce Toilet Waters in One's Own Kitchen.

If any woman wishes to save the cost of buying toilet waters she may save it by manufacturing them at home. A very simple chemical apparatus is necessary. It consists of a spirit lamp, over which a covered tin vessel fits. Into the top of this a rubber tube fits, which is connected at the other end with a jar. Put clear water in the vessel and put a thick layer of the flowers on top. Light the spirit lamp and hang the vessel over it, but take care that the heat is very slow and gentle or the delicate bouquet of the flowers will be lost. Tube, stoppers and all must fit perfectly tight. The vapor will pass through the tube and be condensed into liquid in the cold glass jar.—Chicago Tribune.

Cloth Dyed on Both Sides.

In England a new method is being employed for dyeing cloth a different color on each side, doing away with the necessity for a lining. At first it is dyed through in the usual manner. It is then taken to a printing machine provided with a roller engraved with deeply cut diagonal lines, running in one direction over its surface, and with diagonal lines cut less deeply running in an opposite direction. This roller is dipped in a bath of thickened color and carried up to the cloth. It is so adjusted that the second color is kept from penetrating the piece more than half way. After it is applied the cloth is finished in the ordinary way.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Art of Mending.

The complaint is made that the art of mending is not practiced to-day with that punctilio that our grandmothers considered necessary. It is advised that every growing girl should be taught to darn, with all the dainty niceties of the art; that there should be instilled in her a sense of the disgrace of wearing a stocking with even a broken thread, while a darn well put in has a honorable respectable look that in no way detracts from the value of a good stocking. Darning is a lady's occupation akin to embroidery in delicacy and gentleness of touch.

This winter promises to be a very lively one in lumbering in the upper peninsula. More camps will be put in and more men employed than for several years past.

The pickle works at Bangor have taken an average of 1,500 bushels of cucumbers daily for the past two weeks. Some days 2,000 bushels were received at the works.

The rains have improved the potato crop in Oceana county. Owing to scarcity in other places, potatoes will command from 60 to 70 cents per bushel in the home market.

The Grand Rapids city hall was completed ten years ago. A tablet has just been placed in front of it, bearing a brass plate which has engraved on it a history of the building.

Corn is a failure in a large part of Van Buren county in consequence of the terrible wind and hail storms of August. Some of the mint fields suffered from the same cause.

Ontonagon's new county jail and courthouse, now being erected to replace the structure destroyed in the big fire some time since, will probably be ready for occupancy about December 1.

The blackberry and blueberry crops on Beaver island, in the Manitou group, have been the largest this year ever known. Many persons have been given employment picking the berries, which are shipped to Charlevoix.

Y., September 18, 1797. Her father, Judge Isaac de Graff, served in the American army during the entire period of the war of the revolution. Mrs. Toll has always enjoyed good health, and still retains her mental faculties to a remarkable degree. Her husband, Philip R. Toll, died a generation ago.

A CHILD'S LONG JOURNEY.

Travels from Finland to Alaska Unable to Speak English.

Traveling from Finland to Alaska without speaking a word that anyone understood, without a single traveling companion, or without meeting a person who knew him from one end of the journey to the other, is no small undertaking, but it has just been completed by an eight-year-old boy, says the Seattle Times. Magnus Nessler left a pleasant home in far-away Finland on June 3 to join his father and mother, who are working at Douglas City. He made his long journey across the great pond in the steerage of one of the big ocean steamers. Here he was not so lonely, as there were other Finlanders on the boat who talked the language he could understand. At New York there was no delay, owing to a carefully-written shipping card which had been sewed securely on the back of his coat before he started on the long journey. This did away with the necessity of talking as far as his getting through without delay was concerned. His ticket had been purchased to cover the entire distance, and the card directed him to Circle City hotel, at Juneau. He reached Seattle in time to make good connections with the Alaska boat, and was forwarded to Douglas by friends. His father and mother have not seen him since he was a baby, over seven years ago, when they left Finland to come to the United States.

Magnus is a well-built boy, with hair and eyes characteristic of his race. He is exceptionably bright, and has already picked up some English. He made friends with everybody on the steamer with whom he came in contact, although he could only talk to them by signs.

"GIVE ME ANOTHER GOURDFUL."

Last Heard Words of a King Who Had Been Drunk Fifteen Years.

In other lands there are drinks far beyond ours in strength and strangeness, says the Chicago Times-Herald. There is the Russian vodki, for instance. A gill of it poured down a Carthagenian mummy will set that long dead person to fighting all his Punic battles o'er again. In the forceful language of the west: "Two drinks of it will make a man go home and steal his own pants." The West Indian gets from the cocoanut clear pure water, toddy and arrack, which is a rock-splitting brandy. Of their toddy Boyle says "it looks like skim milk and smells like 500 slaves in a pen." The Marquesans have a seductive drink called ahoo. A number of young boys sitting in a circle chew fresh cocoanut and when it is sufficiently masticated expectorate it into a bowl that is the common receptacle. Fresh water is poured upon this delectable mixture and it is allowed to ferment. The South Sea islanders prepare the ava root in the same way. Paul du Chaillu once found a wonderful drunkard in the person of the king of Olenga-Yombi. When he was an infant his father would take him to the top of a small tree and force him to drink palm wine, until he came to prefer it to his mother's milk. It was the ingenious parent's ambition to make him the champion boozer of equatorial Africa, and he succeeded. The king of Olenga-Yombi in Du Chaillu's time had been solidly drunk for 15 years, and when last heard from was calling loudly for another gourdful.

PENSION VOTED TO A HORSE.

Oregon Fire Commissioners Retired a Faithful Equine Servant.

The board of fire commissioners has decided that the big bay horse Jerry, which has faithfully served the city in the fire department for 17 years, and is now 23 years of age, shall be given his time for the remainder of his days and be a pensioner on the city, says the Portland Oregonian. This horse and his mate were purchased by the city in the days of the volunteer fire department, to draw ladder truck No. 1, and for several years they did this work, which is now considered a pretty heavy job for the three horses attached to the truck. When the paid department was organized Jerry became a member of it, and has discharged his duties faithfully ever since. He is now entitled to be considered "aged," having served longer than the usual span of life allotted to horses, and the commissioners do not feel inclined to sell him for a trifle to some one who will perhaps starve and abuse him, and render the remainder of his life uncomfortable, so they have decided that he is to have free hay and oats at the expense of the city as long as he lives.

The White House.

The steady growth of the nation has rendered necessary a great expansion of the capitol at Washington, but nothing has been done to increase the size of the white house, says the Washington Post. The latter remains as it was when first occupied by President John Adams, at the beginning of the present century. Its narrow quarters have caused a vast amount of embarrassment to its tenants from time to time. For example, when the prince of Wales was here the utmost difficulty was found in making room for him and a few persons of his immediate suite, even when a part of the office quarters was utilized for sleeping purposes. There is an urgent demand for more rooms for the entertainment of distinguished guests of the nation on such exceptional occasions.

Novel Sport in France.

The running of auto-mobiles, or horseless vehicles, has become a national sport in France, and clubs devoted to it have been formed in the larger cities. One of the sights along the French roads this summer will be the addition of many motor wagons to the great number of bicycles.

Solid Food for Infants.

In France it is a punishable offense for anyone to give infants under one year any form of solid foods unless such be ordered by written prescription signed by a legally qualified medical man.

ENGLISH ODDITIES.

A Township Which Has Only One Resident.

Undoubtedly the most extraordinary township in England is that of Skiddaw in Cumberland. It contains but one house, the occupier of which is unable to exercise the Briton's privilege of voting because there is no overseer to prepare a voters' list and no church or other place of worship or assembly on which to publish one, says Pearson's Weekly.

The most remote village in England is that of Farley-cum-Pitton. This truly rural spot is 30½ miles from the nearest railway station. As a contrast to this may be mentioned the hamlet of Ystrad, about ten miles from Cardiff. This tiny settlement posesesses two important main roads, two railways and two large rivers.

A very unique feature is exclusively claimed by Trimley, a small village in Suffolk. In the one churchyard of the parish two churches are to be seen. Service is conducted three times a week in each of these churches at the same hour.

The deepest well in England is found at Hamilton, in Hampshire. It stretches 350 feet below the surface of the earth. About half-way down this well shaft is a subway, three miles in length, which leads to the seacoast.

On the top of the parish church tower in Bicknoller, Somersetshire, is a yew tree, now five feet high and still growing in a hardy fashion. It is generally believed that the tree owes its origin to a seed dropped by a bird.

Perhaps the most splendily decorated church in the kingdom is that of Whitley Court, Worcestershire. It is entirely constructed of white marble, the pews are chastely carved and the pulpit is of genuine Carrara marble, richly paneled with precious stones.

On the village green at Meriden, in Warwickshire, there is a large stone cross, which is supposed to mark the central point of England.

NOT WELL POSTED.

Guides Who Led the King of Siam About London Had Trouble.

The king of Siam has proved himself to be familiar with English history. He has not passed a regular examination, but has shown himself acquainted with the occupants of the tombs in Westminster Abbey, which is about the same, says the New York Journal. The king was shown about England's Valhalla by Canon Wilberforce. He coldly passed by the statues of Pitt, Livingstone and Herschel in the nave, but paused before that of Darwin. "Darwin, great man, I know him," he remarked. The helmet worn by Henry V. at Agincourt was shown him. He looked at it carefully and inquired its weight. He seemed surprised when told that it weighed nine pounds, twelve ounces. When shown the flags of the knights of the bath, he asked for the duke of Wellington's. Queen Elizabeth's tomb impressed him greatly. All of a sudden he said: "Where is Mary?" No one knew exactly what he meant. Then he went on: "Mary—Mary, queen of Scots."

"She was beheaded," he added. This circumstance seemed to impress him, for in a moment he said: "Where is the other?" Soon it was understood that decapitation was the connecting link and that he wished to see the tomb of Charles the First. He was disappointed to learn that Charles was buried at Windsor. In the Poet's Corner Tennyson and Scott received most of his attention. At St. Paul's he was shown the memorial of Gen. Gordon, but shocked his guides by inquiring with great sincerity: "Who was Gen. Gordon?" "Oh, he was a man very well known in the east," was the only answer thought necessary. Altogether Chulalongkorn showed himself to be a pretty fair historian, but better posted in ancient than modern events.

CAT AND RHINOCEROS CHUMS.

Superintendent Smith's Snyder Becomes Smile's Devoted Friend.

Superintendent John B. Smith, of the Central park menagerie at New York the other day found in the rhinoceros cage his large black cat Snyder, which had been missing for a week. While going through the elephant house in which Smiles, the old rhinoceros, is kept, Superintendent Smith saw the missing cat curled up in the hay beside the big beast, and the rhinoceros was licking the cat's fur with its tongue. Superintendent Smith watched the pair for a time and tried to coax the cat out, but it would not leave Smiles. A keeper informed him that the two had struck up a strong friendship in the past week, and when the rhinoceros was asleep the cat would frequently perch itself on Smiles' back and keep watch.

"In its native state," explained Superintendent Smith, "a bird known to hunters as the rhinoceros bird keeps watch over the rhinoceros when sleeping, and pecks at its ears to arouse it at the approach of danger. Nature, perhaps, is working on the same lines in bringing Smiles and Snyder together; but it's a queer friendship, and I shall not disturb it."

Field Glass Range Finder.

An improved range finder for field glasses has a flat dial plate, subdivided to correspond with the focus of the glasses, rigidly attached to the rear end of the adjusting screw; a fixed pointer secured near the screw to the frame of the glasses, indicating the adjustment upon a dial. A small wheel upon the adjusting screw turns it so that it will readily focus the glasses for various distances, and enabling the user to also estimate correctly the speed of advancing or withdrawing objects.

Spider Builds on Water.

What is known as the raft spider is the largest of the British species. It receives its name from the fact that it constructs a raft of dried leaves and rubbish united by threads of silk and thus pursues its prey on the water.

A WONDERFUL ESCAPE.

Related by a Keeper of the Michigan State Prison at Jackson.

(From the Jackson Citizen.)

Mr. A. E. Wing resides at 612 N. Jackson Street, Jackson, Mich. He is a keeper in the Michigan State Prison, a man of sterling integrity, and whose word is beyond dispute. He tells the following story of a wonderful escape, and the incidents connected with the dangerous position in which he was placed. He says, some months ago my attention was attracted by a swelling of my groins, which began to increase in size to such an extent that I was alarmed. It spread down my legs to my feet, and I was bloated from my waist down, so badly that I could not pull my pants, over my legs, and I had to open my shoes fully two inches before I could get them on. Even my face became puffed up; and my whole system seemed affected. I could hardly drag myself upstairs to unlock my men. I consulted a physician, one of the best in the city. He said the swelling was caused by an irritation of the kidneys, and I commenced treatment with him. But I seemed to be getting worse. I was strongly urged by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and I finally consented. After the first week I commenced to see a change, and felt much better. This was encouraging, and I continued their use. I took five boxes in all, with the happy result that I was completely cured. I have never heard of any medicine which had such a pronounced and radical effect, and yet not affect the system generally and leave it in such a good condition. I feel better now than I ever did. After the effect was once established the swelling gradually disappeared until it was entirely gone. I regard Doan's Kidney Pills as a most wonderful agent in the curing of any form of kidney disorder.

For sale by all dealers — price, 50 cents per box. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture. like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

ACROSS THE RIVER.

BY M. C. SKEEL.

IT WAS not a pleasant part of the city, the portion that lay west of the river. The streets were narrow, the pavements uneven, the houses small and dingy, for on that side of the river the settlement of the city first began, nearly a century before. The river itself was sluggish and turbid; when low, it smelled badly as well.

Across the river tall chimneys poured out constant volumes of thick, black smoke. Except on Sundays one rarely saw the blue of the sky. Snow was never purely white across the river nor the sunshine clear.

Little by little the city had crept over the stream and up the low eastern slope. There were the wide streets and avenues, the great business blocks, the handsome public buildings. One of the largest of these last, however, remained on the western side. The majesty of the others would have been darkened by it; no business man would build his store—certainly no householder his home—in its vicinity.

So between it and the city's glory the river rolled its narrow, muddy current; the smoke of the great chimneys hung above it like a pall or partly hid the gloomy walls. "Sent across the river" was said of the state's convicted criminals.

One day in early autumn two boys, one of them quite lame, crossed the bridge and made their way through the crooked streets toward the penitentiary.

"There she is, Denny," said the older one, indicating it. "Ain't she a whopper? Fifteen hundred folks in there. What you scared at? She ain't goin' to jump out and grab you 'less you've done somethin'."

The smaller boy—the lame one—had stopped short and was trembling from head to foot. "I know it," he answered; "but it looks so big—and so—awful."

He gathered up his courage with an effort, limped across the street and went close to the massive walls. "My daddy's in here," he whispered to himself, and, looking eagerly along the barrier, called, softly: "Daddy, daddy!"

"He can't hear you," said the older lad, watching him with some sympathy. "You can't remember him much; you weren't nothing but a baby."

"Yes, but I do remember him, though. Oh, he was good—good to me, daddy was. I wish I could see him. Daddy, daddy!"

"Well, we'd better be goin' back now. It won't do no good hangin' round here. You can come over again some time, if you wanter."

"I am coming—every Saturday. Oh, wait a minute, Joey, wait!"

They were near one of the prison gates. It opened and a man came out thrusting a handful of papers in his pocket as he came. Several of them slipped from his hand and fell to the sidewalk, and as he bent to pick them up he had an eager assistant in the lame boy.

"Thanky, bub—well, what is it?" said the man, seeing a question in the boyish face raised to his.

"Mister," whispered Denny; "mister, is it—your prison?"

"Mine and several million other folk's," said the man, smiling. "It's the state prison, sonny. I live there, if that's what you mean."

"My father's there," uttered Denny, breathlessly. "Could you—would you tell him that aunt has moved to town—and I come here this morning—and I'm comin' every Saturday—and give him my love—and—"

"Who is your father, and what's his name?"

"His name is Horace Menly," said Denny, dropping his head, for the man's eyes seemed to look him through and through.

"What are you coming every Saturday for? You can't see him unless there's some older person with you."

"There ain't nobody else," said Denny, dropping his head lower still; "but I'm comin' just the same."

Three years' constant association with criminals had not destroyed John Joseph's faith in humanity. He looked the lame boy keenly over once more. "I'll tell him," he said.

"Will you, mister—will you? Oh, thank you, thank you, lots."

As Guard Joseph returned from his errand outside, the boom of the prison bell struck suddenly against the walls and sunk moaning down. From the workshops across the court, on their way to supper, shuffled the long file of prisoners like some great, striped, slow-moving snake.

Number Sixty-nine was "off his feed" that night, which means that he left the prison fare untouched. Opposite his name on the prison record stood the word "dangerous." He was known to be a violent man, and was always more closely watched when the sullen mood was on him, as it had been for several days.

"There's no use talking," the guard in charge of his company had remarked an hour before to the deputy-warden, "if Sixty-nine keeps up this sort of thing to-morrow he's got to be settled with."

"All right; we'll settle him," the deputy responded.

When the silent meal was finished the snake-like line shuffled its way up the stairs and along the ranges, disappearing piecemeal into the narrow cells. There was a click of bolts falling into sockets; the voices of the guard echoed from range to range as each called aloud the number of men and the locality under his care.

"First, south, east, thirty-four."

"Second, north, west, thirty-one."

"Third, south, middle, twenty-seven."

Meaning the first, second or third range of cells, north or south side, east or west end or central portion.

Then they disappeared and the night guard came on duty—Guard Joseph it chanced to be—wearing shoes with thick, soft soles that he might make his rounds in utter silence. But something went gracefully by him that could step more softly even than he, though it had four feet to his two.

"Oho," said Guard Joseph to himself, "that puts me in mind of the kid that sent his love to Sixty-nine."

Up one flight of stairs after another went the great, tortoise-shell cat, the warden's own especial pet, clear out to that end of the fourth range known as the "murderers' wing," where he sat gravely down by a certain door. A hand stretched itself through the bars to pet and stroke the creature, that responded with a purr like a growl.

Two years before the inmate of that cell was placed there in solitary confinement for a murderous attack upon a fellow-prisoner. For two years the warden's cat had made him this nightly visit—the wretched convict's only friend.

"Sixty-nine's rather the best off," thought Guard Joseph, watching the cat in its upward journey. "He's got a boy, and a boy beats a cat, even if he is a lame one."

He walked along the corridor, and in a moment he was standing before the cell numbered 69. "What's up?" asked the convict, gruffly, as he saw the guard at the grated entrance.

"You've got a boy, haven't you, Menly?"

"Yes—one." The prisoner answered moodily. "What about him?"

"Anything the matter with him?"

"He was lame." And now there was a momentary, anxious quiver of the sullen face.

"Well, he was outside this morning—wanted me to tell you that his aunt had moved to town; that he was coming over to the prison every Saturday, and that he sent you his love."

Absolute astonishment expressed itself in the man's every feature.

"Denny! That kid! Why, the child wasn't much more than five years old, when—" He seemed to lose himself in painful reflection, and Guard Joseph went on.

He had made the round of the ranges a second time, when, passing the cell again, he saw Sixty-nine peering anxiously through the bars, and asked: "Well, what is it?"

The answer was whispered: "Is he very lame?"

"Who? Oh, the boy. Not so very. He gets about pretty brisk."

The prisoner's face worked strangely. "He'll never come again," he said, bitterly. "They won't let him."

"If he does, you'd like to see him, wouldn't you?" said the guard, preparing to move on.

"No, no," cried Menly, "not here. My God! not here." He sat down on the edge of his cot and hid his face in his hands.

The guard in the brush shop was agreeably surprised next day to find that there was no need of reporting Sixty-nine for punishment. The improvement in his manner and conduct continued until Saturday, when he was noticed to be restless and uneasy; his eyes constantly followed Guard Joseph—now on day duty—whenever that officer came within their range.

"Umph!" said Guard Joseph, suddenly recollecting the lame boy. "I guess I know what that means." And moved by the dumb entreaty in the prisoner's eyes, he went down to the guardhouse.

The moment the gate swung open, there was a shrill, joyous cry. Denny popped into view all a-tremble with delight.

"I hoped it was you, mister. I just hoped it was you. Tell daddy I've come."

When the message was carried back to Sixty-nine, he said almost humbly: "Thank you, sir. I thank you."

The guard heard him groaning in his sleep that night, and he woke himself calling on the names of wife and child.

The season rapidly advanced. Down from the frozen northern seas swept winter, with its storms of snow and sleet. The turbid river shivered under its icy sheet, or swollen by rain and thaw, carried it crashing against the bridge piers, and almost to its floor; but storm or calm, ice-bound or rushing river, little Dennis Menly toiled across it each recurring Saturday, and waited in the shadow of the prison walls for a chance to send his weekly message to his father.

Sometimes it was Guard Joseph, sometimes some of the other guards or workmen. Once or twice it was the warden himself that heard the cry: "Please, sir, tell daddy I've come," sounding huskily from the folds of a woolen comforter. Quite frequently there was a little gift with the message—an apple, a pop corn ball, some candy; once, a brief, ill-spelled poorly-written letter that the warden coughed over—for of course it was read before it was given to the convict—and that Sixty-nine hid away in the bosom of his striped jacket.

"Well, sir, it is actually making the old man right over," the warden said to the chaplain; and the chaplain responded that Sixty-nine was certainly a changed man in more respects than one.

"But it's a long, cold walk for you, my lad," the warden said to Denny on one of their meetings. "I wonder your mother lets you come."

"Oh, this ain't bad," cheerfully replied the husky voice, sinking to gravity as it added: "My mother's been dead a long time."

"Don't you want to see the little fellow, Menly?" the official asked his prisoner, and the convict shook his head.

"Not here—not while I am like this," looking down at his prison garb with shame and aversion.

He was a changed man. No one now more docile; no more faithful workman within the walls than he. His child's affection filled his solitude, softened him to repentance, nerved him to en-

FOR A BETTER STATE.

Civic-Philanthropic Conference to Be Held at Battle Creek.

Battle Creek, Sept. 20.—The programme prepared for the civic-philanthropic conference, to be held here October 12-17, contains the names of many of the best-known leaders in western philanthropy. A wide range of subjects will be discussed, and the papers read cannot fail to be of value to all interested in the betterment of civic conditions. Among those who will be present are Dr. S. G. Smith, professor of sociology in the University of Minnesota; Prof. Rustin O'Malley, of Notre Dame university; Dr. C. R. Henderson, of the University of Chicago, and Henry Wade Rogers, of Northwestern university. Gov. Pingree, Prof. C. H. Cooley, Michigan state university; Hon. S. M. Jones, mayor of Toledo; Mrs. J. M. Flower, Chicago; Mrs. T. J. Stanwood, Evanston, Ill.; Rev. W. L. Barth, Coldwater, Mich.; Rt. Rev. Bishop Gillespie, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Hon. Arthur L. Holmes, Detroit, and others have promised to be present and participate in the discussion.

SHAM ENTRIES.

Disclosed by Examination of a Dead Cashier's Books.

Shepherd, Mich., Sept. 22.—Some startling disclosures were brought out in the evidence Tuesday at the Struble inquest. It was shown from the bank records that the dead cashier had at different times made sham entries of deposits in his books amounting to nearly $24,000 and that but for these fictitious deposits the books would have shown a deficit in the bank. During most of the time when these figures were on the books Struble's funds at the bank were very low, seldom over $50 and sometimes nothing. Prosecuting Attorney McNamara testified that all of Struble's private papers were missing. The preponderance of evidence decidedly favors the suicide theory, although the attorneys for the dead man's relatives still promise some conclusive evidence in support of murder. The general opinion now seems to be that the jury will disagree.

Old Settlers Dead.

Jackson, Sept. 20.—Dr. A. H. Baird, who had practiced medicine in this city for 27 years, died Saturday night, aged 67 years. Mrs. Harriet Pulver, a resident for 60 years of Dundee, died Saturday night, aged 91. She was one of the oldest settlers of the state. Orson K. Van Amberg died Sunday at his home in Pleasant Valley, aged 96. He was one of the pioneers of Livingstone county. Clarke White, proprietor of the Southern Moss company and a member of the Jackson Sleigh company, died Sunday morning, aged 40 years.

Proved a Success.

Saginaw, Sept. 17.—The flax industry at this place has every indication of success. The crop planted in this county this spring has yielded far beyond the expectations of those who instigated the movement throughout the valley. Machinery for a flax fiber factory is in course of construction. There is also some talk of Minneapolis parties starting a thread factory at this place, if there is an assurance that flax will become a permanent product in the county.

Well-Known Physician Dead.

Sturgis, Sept. 20.—Dr. Nelson I. Packard, a prominent citizen of Sturgis, died at four o'clock Sunday afternoon after being sick for four months with typhoid fever. Dr. Packard was president of the Citizens' State bank and vice president of the National bank of Sturgis. He was a prominent mason and was a distinguished surgeon during the civil war.

Need Teachers.

Royal Oak, Sept. 18.—There seems to be a great scarcity of school teachers in this locality this year, which is something unusual. There have been only one or two applicants for schools in several cases, where good salaries are paid; and in some instances the officers have been unable to secure a teacher at all.

Alone and Paralyzed.

Manistee, Sept. 20.—H. N. Dustin, a prominent insurance man of this city, lay on the ground on the Old Free Soil road for 36 hours in the wind and cold Thursday afternoon. He started to drive home and was stricken with paralysis in the woods. A farmer found him and brought him to his home. He has been unconscious since.

To Remove to Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Sept. 20.—Negotiations are in progress looking to the removal of an eastern furniture manufacturing company's plant to Grand Rapids, and it is probable that before long the second city's list of industries will be increased by this one, which will afford employment for nearly 300 men.

Paroled.

Charlotte, Sept. 17.—It is learned here that Joseph Wasson has been paroled from Jackson prison by Gov. Pingree. Wasson was convicted of arson in 1892, and sentenced to Jackson by Judge Hooker for eight years. It is not learned on what grounds Wasson was released.

Died on the Trail.

Muskegon, Sept. 18.—Word has been received from Snohomish, Wash., announcing the death of Alva Van Buren, a Muskegon furniture dealer, who had started for the Klondike. He dropped dead on the trail, 40 miles from Skaguay, Alaska, about September 6.

Booming a New Railroad.

Albion, Sept. 20.—The proposed railroad between this city and Charlotte by way of Duck lake is being boomed. Brooklyn citizens will probably raise $5,000, and the same amount is expected in Albion. The road will be 24 miles long and cost $160,000.

Killed in a Runaway.

Niles, Sept. 21.—George Davey, aged 87, a pioneer of Michigan, was killed at Bangor in a runaway.

LITERARY NOTES.

During September Harper's Bazar will contain instalments of a serial story, entitled "Father Quinnaillion," by Octave Thanet; accounts of the performances of Wagner's Nibelungen Cyclus; a play for out-door acting "A Summer Idyl" by Alice Ruth Carter; notes of women's colleges for the autumn term; and a humorous story by Grace Livingston Furniss, entitled "Jenk's Jobometers."

* * *

Very few lists of the ten best short stories by American writers have failed to contain Mr. T. B. Aldrich's "Marjorie Daw," and either Dr. E. E. Hale's "Man without a Country" or his "My Double, and how he undid me." All three of these stories appeared originally in the Atlantic Monthly, both of Dr. Hale's near the beginning of its career, and "Marjorie Daw" after the middle of its forty years.

* * *

No illustrated article in the September Magazine Number of The Outlook will attract more general attention than that on "Modern Rome" by Professor Rodolfo Lanciani, who is the greatest living authority on this subject, and has the highest possible rank as an archaeologist and art critic. The illustrations are furnished by Professor Lanciani, and include some beautiful and typical Roman scenes.

Harper's Weekly during September will contain many features of particular interest, among them illustrated articles on the "Comedie Francaise," by Katherine de Forrest; on Kansas as "A Great Grain and Cattle Market"; on "The University of California"; and on the two great new libraries in Chicago and at Columbia College, New York City. The Weekly of September 29 will be the "Sportsman's Number," and will contain 32 pages.

It does not seem possible that the table for eight people can be provided for ten dollars a week. But Mrs. Rorer, the most famous cook in America, says it can be done. She has tried it and knows. She proves her case in The Ladies' Home Journal for October. She gives twenty-one menus covering a week's meals, gives full, practical directions by which any woman can make as attractive meals as Mrs. Rorer explains, for this small sum of ten dollars.

The September issue of "TABLE TALK" contains among the many interesting subjects treated within its pages, "Some Unique Luncheons" by Mrs. Burton Kingsland; "Civilized Man Cannot Live without Cooks" by Katherine Read Lockwood; "Some Spanish-American Cookery" by Sharlot M. Hall; "Women of Colonial and Revolutionary Times" by Mary Loyd; recipes for the most seasonable canning and preserving, and also for the promiscuous dishes requested by housekeepers from all over the country. Its menus are freshly prepared each and every month, by Miss Cornelia C. Bedford, one of the leading authorities in the country, and "The New Bill of Fare" by Mrs. M. C. Myer is, as usual, one of the chief features of the issue. Any of our readers wishing to see a sample copy of "TABLE TALK" can secure it free of charge, by sending name and address to Table Talk Publishing Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

As the result of the development of our public school system and the cheapening of books, there has grown up a large class of men and women who seek broader education, or desire to extend their knowledge along special lines. Their duties in life, or lack of means, exclude them from the universities. The Cosmopolitan Magazine has undertaken the task of bringing liberal education, in its broadest sense, within the reach of those who have the aspiration, but are deprived of the opportunity. Dr. Andrews, late of Brown University, has undertaken the Presidency of the Cosmopolitan's educational movement. The work, thus begun, is not intended to take the place of regular university work, but to supply a gap in existing educational facilities. Those who are really in search of knowledge will find direction and aid. It can do nothing for those who have not the desire to study. An intending student sends to the Cosmopolitan, New York, his name, occupation, previous courses of study, studies desired to be pursued, objects and purpose for which course is designed, and the number of hours', daily or weekly, study which can be given. No charges will be made to students.

DEATH OF NEAL DOW.

Father of Prohibition Passes Away at His Home in Maine.

The Foremost Character in the Temperance Movement in the United States for the Past Sixty Years —Sketch of His Career.

Portland, Me., Oct. 4.—Gen. Neal Dow died at his residence in this city at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The end was peaceful, and he retained consciousness until an hour before he died, recognizing his children, who were gathered at his bedside. Gen. Dow's death was due to the infirmities of old age.

[Gen. Neal Dow was born in Portland, Me., March 20, 1804. In the campaign for temperance no single man has achieved greater results than he, and none has labored more faithfully in the face of opposition. Neal Dow was still in his teens when he won his first triumph in persuading a fire company to which he belonged to omit the wines at their annual banquet, and secured the abolition of the local custom of ringing the town hall bell at eleven and four o'clock as a signal for everyone to leave work and get a drink. It was at the age of 33 that he began his fight for prohibitive legislation, when a bill was framed by Gen. James Appleton but not submitted to the legislature.

Two years later, in 1838, an effort was made to secure prohibition in Portland. The matter was put to a popular vote and 144 affirmative votes polled. The fight was continued until 1843, when a majority of 440 decided the question in his favor. The same year the legislature was appealed to, and in 1846 the first state prohibitive law was passed. In 1849 a bill providing more stringent penalties was enacted, but the following year the law was repealed. In 1856 it was again put in force and has since remained on the statute books.

Gen. Dow was twice mayor of Portland and was offered the presidential nomination on the whig ticket in the '60s, but declined to accept. He also served two terms in the legislature. Like most prominent northerners, he was an abolitionist and made many stirring speeches on behalf of the negro, ranking with Garrison, Whittier, Pillsbury, Sumner and Hale.

In 1862 he went to the front with a Maine regiment as colonel, going first to New Orleans to the support of Gen. Butler. Afterward he was in command of Ship island and at Pensacola. He was twice wounded, and by his gallantry won the rank of brigadier general. He was captured while wounded by Logan's cavalry and sent to Libby prison. At his exchange, broken in health, he was forced to retire. In 1880 he was nominated for president by the prohibition party, but did not accept and voted against himself.]

Portland, Me., Oct. 6.—The funeral services of the late Neal Dow were held at the Second Parish church in this city yesterday. The attendance was very large.

FIERCE STORMS IN JAPAN.

Thousands of Houses Destroyed and Several Lives Lost.

Tacomah, Wash., Oct. 4.—Yokohama papers contain full accounts of a severe storm which passed over the country on September 9, and reports of great havoc are coming in from all quarters. At the latest date 376 houses were totally destroyed in Tokio, 7,728 partially damaged and 14,043 submerged. In Shidzuoka there were 1,060 houses demolished, 4,000 seriously damaged, 38 persons killed and 42 injured. At Toyama 750 houses were flooded, bridges washed away, the rice crop ruined, and other damage done. An American sailing vessel went ashore at Awagone and a number of lives were lost. At Yejiri the whole town is in ruins. In Koishikawa 1,506 houses were submerged, among them the Presbyterian mission and Baptist schools. Most of the legation buildings were badly damaged.

Postal Finances.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Henry A. Castle, auditor for the post office department, has closed the books of the postal service for the fiscal year ended June 30 last. The results, compared with the preceding year, show that the receipts increased $166,254 for the year, expenditures increased $3,470,745, while the deficit was increased by $3,304,490. For 1895 receipts were $82,665,462; expenditures $94,097,042, and the deficit was $11,431,579.

Vast Output of Wine.

San Francisco, Oct. 4.—The vintage of California this year promises to reach 20,000,000 gallons, or 25 per cent. more than last season. About one-half of the grape crop has already been converted into wine. The growers are now receiving an advance of from five to ten dollars a ton for their grapes.

A Hotel Wrecked.

Charlevoix, Mich., Oct. 6.—The big hotel at Lindsay Park, which was to have been the largest summer hotel at the northern Michigan resorts, was blown down and Pierre Kendall and Guy Hamilton were killed and ten other persons were injured.

NEARING THE END.

The Famous Luetgert Murder Trial Drawing to a Close.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Proceedings in the Luetgert trial yesterday were monotonous and painfully technical. Dr. Allport was on the stand all day, undergoing a severe cross-examination by Assistant State's Attorney McEwen, who sought to throw discredit on the witness' ability as an expert osteologist.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—In the Luetgert murder trial on Saturday Drs. L. A. Merrillat and Joseph Hughes, professors in two veterinary colleges of Chicago, both positively identified the bone which the state claims is a human femur as the lower part of the shaft of a hog's femur.

Chicago, Oct. 5. — For the time being counsel for the defense in the Luetgert case yesterday assumed that the bones offered by the state as evidence were human, and then showed that if the theory is correct the murdered or missing woman was but 40 inches in height. The defense then dropped its line of expert testimony, and put on witnesses to impeach the evidence of witnesses for the state.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—The end of the famous Luetgert murder trial is nearer than was thought. The defense yesterday rested its case, and there is nothing now to come but the rebuttal evidence of the state and arguments of the attorneys—probably about two weeks in all.

The main witness for the defense yesterday was Mrs. Charles, wife of Luetgert's business partner. Mrs. Charles denied that one of the rings found in the vat looked like one Mrs. Luetgert used to wear.

FOR RIVERS AND HARBORS.

Western Waterways Convention Opened at Davenport.

Davenport, Ia., Oct. 6.—In accordance with the call issued by E. D. Wood, chairman of the executive committee appointed by the last convention on western waterways, delegates appointed by the governors and mayors of various western states and cities and commercial, transportation and other organizations met here Tuesday. The general purpose of the congress is to prepare and submit to the president and congress of the United States a memorial and resolutions asking for continued and more liberal aid in securing improved and permanent navigation of rivers and harbors of the west and southwest. Since the last convention an object lesson has been afforded the promoters of this movement in the form of the destructive floods in the southwest last spring and a repetition of which can only be prevented through the erection of levees at government expense and the deepening of the channel at the Mississippi's mouth.

WOE IN CHINA.

Sixty Villages Destroyed by Floods and Thousands of Lives Lost.

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 5.—The steamer Victoria brings news of the most distressing floods that have visited China for many years. Sixty villages near Tung Chou, containing over 80,000 inhabitants, have been destroyed by floods, and the people drowned or forced to flee. There is no means of finding how many thousands have been drowned, but the number is estimated by Chinese authorities at 15,000 to 20,000. The flooded district is within 12 miles of Peking, the capital of China. As a rule Chinese officials make very little stir when a calamity like this happens, but the proximity of the disaster has resulted in its being brought to the attention of the emperor, who has ordered that all possible relief be given.

Horses Burned at Winona.

Lacon, Ill., Oct. 5.—At two o'clock in the morning Burgess Brothers' barn at Winona was burned. Thirty valuable horses, which had just been shipped in from the state fair at Springfield, were roasted alive. Many of them wore the first and second premium colors awarded there. The loss is $50,000; insurance on barn alone. The fire is supposed to have been started by tramps in the hayloft.

Town Swept by Fire.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Willow Springs, the prettiest hamlet on the Chicago & Alton road between this city and Joliet, is in ashes. But six buildings remain to mark the spot where Thursday stood a thriving village with bustling enterprises and tasteful residences. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

Goes to the Highest Bidder.

London, Oct. 6.—Consul-General Osborne, at the request of an Englishman, cabled to Attorney-General McKenna asking whether the Union Pacific could be purchased by Englishmen. The attorney-general replied that it would be sold to the highest bidder, irrespective of nationality.

Government Finances.

Washington, Oct. 2. — The monthly statement o the government receipts and expenditures during September show the receipts to have been $31,933,098 and the expenditures $35,368,815, an excess of expenditures over receipts of $3,435,717.

SAGASTA CHOSEN.

The Liberal Leader to Form a New Spanish Cabinet.

Capt. Gen. Weyler to Be Recalled from Command in Cuba—Belief That the New Regime Will Benefit the Insurgents.

Madrid, Oct. 4.—Sagasta has been commissioned by the queen regent to organize a ministry, and doubtless will send Marshal Blanco to replace Weyler as captain general of Cuba. The new cabinet will be sworn in to-day. The chief obstacle in the way of a liberal solution of the crisis was that the loyalist volunteer corps strongly supported the union constitutional party in opposing the removal of Gen. Weyler. But the general drift of the crisis was favorable to the liberals.

The liberal government will divide the command in Cuba, sending out a civilian viceroy—probably Canalejas—and as commander in chief of the military forces Marshal Blanco.

The finacial question is demanding the greatest attention, and the liberals at the outset of the coming session of parliament will expose frankly the position of the Spanish treasury.

Sagasta's Policy.

London, Oct. 4.—The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says: Sagasta in accepting the portfolio expressed his intention to give the largest possible measure of Cuban home rule, to reverse the conservative policy in Cuba and the Philippines, to recall Gen. Weyler, if he did not resign, to prepare for a dissolution of the cortes and to select able representatives to go to Washington and European capitals, as well as to the colonies of Spain, to prove to America and Europe that Spain is at last going to do spontaneously and sincerely what the United States has suggested could be accomplished more quickly and better by mediation or the interference which the Spanish people would certainly not brook, and to which no Spanish government could assent.

Weyler Is Out.

London, Oct. 4.—A special dispatch received here from Madrid says Capt. Gen. Weyler has been recalled from Cuba. His successor, it is added, has not yet been officially announced, but Marshal Blanco will in all probability be given the place.

The Feeling in Washington.

Washington, Oct. 4.—In the view of the administration, the United States and Cuba have all to gain and nothing to lose in the liberal accession to power in Spain. Even if the party is not willing to go as far as the extreme Cuban sympathizers in the United States wish, it is felt that there will certainly be a most liberal offering of concessions to secure peace in Cuba.

The New Cabinet.

Madrid, Oct. 5.—The new ministry is constituted as follows: Senor Sagasta, president of the council of ministers; Senor Gullon, minister for foreign affairs; Senor Groizard, minister of justice; Gen. Correa, minister of war; Admiral Bermejo, minister of marine; Senor Pulgcerver, minister of finance; Senor Capdepon, minister of the interior; Count Xiguena, minister of public works; Senor Moret, minister for the colonies.

Too Much for Spain.

New York, Oct. 6. — Tomas Estrada Palma, chief of the Cuban junta, has just received a letter from Gen. Gomez, commander in chief of the Cuban army.

"Weyler's successor in Cuba," writes the general, "in order to cope with the rebellion at its present standing, will be obliged to demand 200,000 troops and $100,000,000 and even then he will fail as ignominiously as Weyler has failed.

"Our men were never imbued with a more hopeful spirit than they are at present. The campaign in Las Villas has been an utter failure. The Spanish soldiers avoided us at every possible opportunity. This served to encourage our men. I am glad to say that we are all confident of ultimate success. If Weyler be recalled his successor here, whoever he may be, will be surprised to see the spirit of victory which animates the brave Cuban troops. We cannot be subdued and no one knows this better than Weyler."

Suel J. Spaulding Gets Free.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 6.—The supreme court has affirmed the decision of the lower court in not holding Suel J. Spaulding, who embezzled $13,000 from the secretary of state pharmacy commission. The court holds he is not a public officer, but merely the employe of the commission. Spaulding appropriated sums to speculate in grain.

Langtry Found Insane.

London, Oct. 5.—Edward Langtry, former husband of Mrs. Lily Langtry, the actress, who recently obtained a divorce from him in California, and who is said to have privately married Prince Paul Esterhazy, has been found wandering in a demented condition on the railway line near Chester and has been sent to a lunatic asylum.

No Starvation at Dawson.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 6. — J. C. McArthur, dominion government surveyor, who just returned from the north, says there will be no starvation at Dawson this winter. When he left there were 3,000 head of sheep and 400 head of cattle on the Dalton trail which would reach Dawson between September 15 and 20.

Cubans Starving.

Havana, Oct. 5.—The concentrados are arriving at Havana in large numbers, as they have nothing to eat and in the small towns are dying in the streets. Havana herself is in great want of food. A woman from Artemisa saw three children die of hunger in a train on the way to Havana.

TO PROMOTE GOOD WILL.

National Fraternal Congress in Session at Port Huron.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 6.—The annual session of the National Fraternal congress opened Tuesday in Society hall. The congress is composed of nearly 200 delegates appointed by secret, benefit and assessment societies, such as the Royal Arcanum, National Union and Royal League, and represents about 40 such orders. Its purpose is to discuss questions of mutual interest to such organizations and to promote good will and harmony between them. It has no legislative functions, its decisions taking the form of recommendations, which are reported back by the delegates to the supreme councils of their various bodies. At the same time, it exercises a great influence for good among fraternal organizations.

The congress represents 40 fraternal organizations, which this year have a benefit membership of 1,732,230, and a social membership of 48,410, making a total of 1,780,440. The Ancient Order of United Workmen is the oldest and also has the most members. The Maccabees is second in point of membership, the Modern Woodmen of America, third; the Royal Arcanum fourth and the Independent Order of Foresters fifth.

In a unanimous opinion Friday the supreme court ordered a new trial, declaring that the court below should have ordered a verdict for the company.

WRECKED BY A GALE.

Summer Hotel Near Charlevoix Blown Down—Two Men Killed.

Charlevoix, Mich., Oct. 6.—The big hotel at Lindsay park, which was to have been the largest summer hotel at the northern Michigan resorts, fell with a crash Tuesday afternoon, and is a total wreck. It was all enclosed and roofed, but the lower stories, it is asserted, were not properly braced, and the fierce gale striking on the 440 feet of side wall caused the most exposed end to waver, and gathering momentum as it fell, the huge mass rose like a wave and sank with a crash which was heard for a mile, burying 40 workmen in a mass of broken timber and splintered boards. In a few moments hundreds of willing hands were chopping and cutting away the wreckage, and in a short time the injured were being taken out and the wounded cared for. It was a terrible spectacle, and the cries of the imprisoned men caused the rescuers to work like demons. In an hour all were out. Pierce Kendall, of Charlevoix, and Guy Hamilton, of Grand Rapids, are dead. The badly injured are: Charles Heintzleman, James Gillett, Cy Cain, C. W. McNeill and Willis Silsby, from Grand Rapids and Traverse City, and William Phelps and William Wood, of Charlevoix. F. A. Smith and A. M. Hall, spectators, were quite badly injured, as was Charles Gabriel, the electric lighting contractor. The money loss will be well up in the thousands, but the building will undoubtedly be rebuilt. The accident is said to have been due to rushing heavy work in the upper stories before the lower partition walls were properly braced.

MOTHER AND CHILD BURNED.

Mystery Surrounding the Deaths of Mrs. J. H. Heythaler and Baby.

St. Clair, Sept. 30. — There is mystery surrounding the deaths of the wife and babe of Joseph Louis Heythaler, and to many the only solution of the mystery is the theory of murder and suicide. The three months' old baby was burned to a crisp here Wednesday and the mother suffered burns from which she died a few hours later. The origin of the fire is the mysterious part of the occurrence. The woman gave no alarm until there had been fire in the cottage some moments. Then when the first persons arrived on the scene they found fire in the corners of three of the four rooms downstairs, the woman's clothing ablaze and the baby burned to a crisp on a bed on which kerosene had been spilled or poured. The oil can was standing on the floor before the bed. The mother was reluctant to tell how it had happened. To Capt. H. S. Bale she said she had tried to light the fire with oil, and flames had set her clothes on fire, then she had run into the bedroom and from her the baby and the bed caught fire.

MUST NOT BE KILLED.

Lives of Deer Must Be Spared During the Close Season.

Lansing, Oct. 2. — In reply to a query from Conrad Carlson, clerk of Gogebic county, Attorney General Maynard in an opinion leaves no room for misunderstanding the provisions of the fish and game laws relative to the killing of deer. The question was asked whether the killing of deer for the hunter's own consumption during the close season would be tolerated under sections 22 and 23 of the laws of 1897. The attorney general says that the statute leaves no room for doubt that deer cannot be killed during the close season, and any person having the carcass of a deer in his possession must show affirmatively that the animal was killed during the open season. It is said that the intent of the legislature to prohibit the killing of deer for any purpose, except during the open season, is clear.

In June of this year his health failed, and he at once came to Colorado, accepting the position of assistant professor of Latin in the state university.

The order is for 490 pieces and will fill five car loads. The company at present is utilizing every available foot of space where they can place a man. At present the factory is running 12 hours a day.

Heavy Loss by Fire.

Fennville, Oct. 2.—A disastrous fire occurred Thursday afternoon at the Central mint farm, near Pearle, which belongs to Judge Severens, of Kalamazoo, by which he suffers a loss of $12,000, with little insurance. The contents of the buildings, one item being 4,000 pounds of peppermint oil, hay and grain stacks, all went down in the fiery ruin and nothing was saved.

Offers a Big Price.

Benton Harbor, Oct. 6.—Charles H. Cox, who owns property on the Pottawatomie claim in Chicago, has offered Chief Pokagon $1,000,000 for the claim. It is likely the Indians will accept, as they would get about $1,000 each.

Fire at Charlotte.

Charlotte, Oct. 1.—Three large buildings that were formerly used by the Dobson carriage works, but now used as a finishing room and storage rooms, caught fire and were destroyed. Loss, $2,500.

Awarded $3,000.

Lansing, Oct. 1.—The claim of Mrs. Margaret Heims for $3,000, whose son was killed at Ironwood while in the service of the state, has been allowed by the state board of auditors.

BATTLE BETWEEN SNAKES.

Anaconda and Boa Fight to a Finish and Nearly Kill a Woman.

A battle royal between two large snakes and an attempt on the part of the surviving reptile to count a woman among its victims were the cause of a great deal of excitement at New York the other afternoon, says the New York Journal.

The two snakes were a ten-foot anaconda and an 8½-foot cross between a python and a boa constrictor. They were put into a box together. Suddenly there was a commotion on the inside of the box that brought over Miss Madeline, to whom they belonged, in a hurry. She found the two snakes intertwined so that it was hard to tell which was which. The anaconda was making frantic efforts to get the boa's head into its wide-open jaws, and the boa, on the other hand, was contracting its muscles around the body of the enemy with strength born of despair.

Miss Madeline made a quick dive into the box through the glass lid, which had been broken in the melee, and seized the boa at the back of its head with one hand, while with the other she clutched the anaconda in the same spot. With all her might she began tugging away, but to no purpose. The snakes then wound themselves around her body. During the struggle one of the woman's hands slipped, and quick as a flash the boa turned and bit her hand, making a deep flesh wound.

Miss Madeline dropped the snakes then in a hurry. The anaconda twisted itself with renewed vigor around the boa's body, and with a spasmodic, sudden jerk finally succeeded in breaking its enemy's back. It was caught and put back into the box after much difficulty.

PASSING UP HIS ADVICE.

Queer Method of a Business Man Giving Charity to a Tramp.

Catching at the stranger's coat tail he murmured in a depreciating tone: "Could you give me a little assistance, sir?" The stranger turned and looked him over. His eyes were bloodshot, his clothes dirty, his whole appearance decidedly the worse for wear.

"What do you want?" was the reply to the tramp, reports the Chicago Chronicle.

"A job, after I get a square meal," said the tramp.

"What can you do?" asked the stranger.

"I can keep books, sell goods, drive a delivery wagon, compound prescriptions, set type and do farmwork."

The stranger scribbled a few words on a card, handed the tramp a dollar and said: "Take this card to this address and I think it will get you work. Take that dollar, get a bath, a shave, a hair cut, something to eat and a drink of whisky. That will brace you to meet my friend. So long."

"There's just one thing more," said the tramp. "How do you happen to give me just a dollar and all these directions with it?"

"Because I got a dollar from a man on this very corner about ten years ago," said the stranger, "just as you are getting it from me, and I'm passing up his advice and his money just Underground City.

In Galicia, in Austrian Poland, there is a remarkable underground city which bears out this description, as it has a population of over 1,000 men, women and children, scores of whom have never seen the light of day. It is known as the City of the Salt Mines, and is situated several hundred feet below the earth's surface. It has its town hall, theater and assembly room, as well as a beautiful church, decorated with statues, all being fashioned from the pure crystallized salt rock. It has well-graded streets and spacious squares, lighted with electricity. There are numerous instances in this underground city where not a single individual in three or four successive generations has ever seen the sun, or has any idea of how people live in the light of day.

Catarrh and Malaria.

People who are or have been affected by catarrh are most subject to chronic malaria. The explanation is this: Malaria is a germ disease. Germs find their way into the blood through the mucous membranes. If the mucous membranes are healthy the germs can not enter the blood. This is why some people do not get malaria. But if the membranes are effected by catarrh even slightly, the malaria germs find easy access into the blood. Pe-ru-na is the remedy. It not only destroys malaria germs, but so restores the mucous membranes to health, that no more germs can find entrance. Pe-ru-na is the most reliable remedy for chronic malaria. It cures by eradicating the germs from the system. Send for Dr. Hartman's latest book. Sent free by The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, O.

TECUMSEH, MICH., OCT. 8, 1897.

The citizens of Tecumseh will soon have an opportunity to secure the Lima Northern railroad shops and the HERALD has simply this to say: They will take advantage of the opportunity. Tecumseh can buy the shops cheaper than any other city and, when the time comes, will simply proceed to do so.

Senator William Jibb, of Monroe, was in Adrian the other day and stated to The Times that he would accept a renomination if it was tendered him. The News is informed that another candidate is in the field for the honor, against whom Mr Jibb will have no show.—Tecumseh News.

Now this is really almost too bad. "Old Bill Jibb" lauded to the skies last fall by the News as the only man in the district fit to be senator, he goes up to Lansing and really works hard, succeeds in making a good record and now must be turned down, but—let's see, does our friend Samsen run the politics in this county now or not? The HERALD has forgotten.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

Running a railroad and running a newspaper are of course entirely different pursuits. But from the newspaper standpoint, it looks very much as if the decision just handed down, that a milage ticket in this state must be made out to any or all members of a man's family will be a blessing in disguise to the railroads that are making the fight against it. The facts are that a man will let the members of his family go far oftener when they can travel on his own mileage at two cents a mile than when they must pay a straight three cent rate. As a result of this decision many families will own mileage books who never thought of doing so before, and in the general round up of accounts that follows, we have no doubt the railroad companies will find their receipts larger than ever, without an increase in expenses. We believe the decision will prove to be an advantage to both the railroads and the public. The next thing to result in doubling the travel probably will be the adoption of a mileage book that anyone can ride on without any red tape, signing of names or any other obstructions. The easier the roads make it for the people to travel over their lines, the more people will want to go, and the more they go the greater will be the receipts of the railroad company. Putting restrictions on travel so that many people will only go when they are compelled to, is not a modern method of getting business.—Adrian Telegram.

A dispatch from Maybee, Monroe county, says: The Detroit & Lima Northern surveying party are having a hard time trying to get around this town without moving buildings. They now parallel the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern from Jones Hill [illegible] outskirts of this town, where they make an angle of [illegible] degrees north, running for 40 rods, then they again angle to the east. In their survey Saturday they did not get as near to the Michigan Stone & Supply company quarries as intended, which lies between here and Scofield, a quarter of a mile north of the L. S. & M. S. The road intends to put in a switch at the quarry. Chas. Bordine, a farmer living west of here, gave the survey party some trouble by forbidding them to cross his farm. His farm is now crossed by the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, and he does not like the idea of being again crossed by a railroad. He has had a number of accidents caused by the running away of his horses, frightened by the Lake Shore trains. The right of way has been secured from a number of farmers between Dundee and here.

Dundee, Mich., Oct. 5.—Surveyors this week are running a new line east from Dundee for the Detroit, Toledo & Milwaukee railroad. The new line is north of the line surveyed a few weeks ago. It begins upon the land of Wm. Penfield, north of the A [illegible] A. depot, run to the farm of B. E. Bullock, and Bone Hill, and strikes the line beside the Lake Shore track, with few changes to Trenton. The new line is said to be considerably shorter than the one lately surveyed. The prospects for the location of the Lima Northern railroad shops in Dundee, are growing brighter every day, but Tecumseh is working hard to get them.

Peter June, of Britton, was found yesterday morning by Albert Koptke near what is known as the Lowe crossing of the Wabash road, west of that village. He was terribly bruised and cut and his collar bone broken. He evidently was struck by one of the night trains. When or how it was done no one knows. His condition is critical.

Miss Matie Galarneau, who has been visiting her cousin, Miss Maude Pinard, returned to her home at Lima, O., the first of the week after a pleasant visit of several weeks.

A telegram to the Detroit Evening News last evening from Lansing contain this startling information: "Col. Atkinson's assertion that Henry C. Smith, of Adrian, carried the family mileage book case through the courts alone, and at his own expense, is emphatically denied here. He commenced the suit, but after it had slept in the Adrian circuit for many months, Railroad Commissioner Billings had Attorney General Maynard take hold of it for the purpose of having the question settled by the supreme court. Maynard conducted the case in both courts with Watts, Hean & Smith, the Adrian firm, of which Henry C. Smith is a partner, as local attorneys. The firm's bill for $346 for services in the case was paid by the state." We have yet to see where Mr. Smith has made any public claim to having carried this through at his own expense. The Detroit Evening News contained such a statement, but Mr. Smith never authorized it.—Adrian Telegram.

The supreme court of Michigan has sustained the validity of an act passed by the legislature of 1891, compelling railroads to issue a 1,000-mile ticket, good for any member of a family, for $20, and in express terms says that the legislature had the power to enact such a law. The issue went up on the refusal of the Lake Shore railway company to sell a family ticket in compliance with the act, and the decision will have wide influence in bringing commutation rates within reach of families throughout the the entire state. Speaking generally, this latest deliverance of the Michigan supreme court is in line with a multitude of other court decisions, and the sooner the railroad companies realize that as public carriers they are amendable to the state laws regulating rates on a reasonable basis, the better for all concerned.—Chicago Chronicle.

Adrian, Mich., Oct. 6.—Application has been made to the ticket agent of the Wabash for a family mileage ticket, in accordance with the edict of the Supreme Court in the case of Smith against the Lake Shore, announced last week at Lansing. The amusing feature of the situation lies in the fact that Smith, who figured as plaintiff in the Lake Shore case is the attorney for the Wabash road, and the agent declined to issue the books and refers the applicant to the road's attorney here. The Wabash has never issued such tickets, and it remains to be seen if the plaintiff who demands a family mileage of the Lake Shore will advise his own road not to issue a similar ticket to someone else.—Toledo Blade.

The plan of reorganization of the Cincinnati, Jackson, & Mackinaw has just been made public. The first bonds are to receive 36 per cent of par in certificates of interest in Detroit, Toledo & Milwaukee, 30 per cent in new first mortgage 5 per cent bonds in the Cincinnati & Northern railroad company, and 34 per cent in preferred stock of the same road. Common stock will receive Cincinnati & Northern common stock at the rate of one share for five.—Toledo Blade.

Stakes were set and ground broken for the new Lima Northern passenger depot this morning. The building will be of stone and the dimensions are 22x42. It is located south of the freight depot and stands within twelve feet of the track. A long covered platform will fill the intermediate space between the track and the building, a very convenient protection for passengers in stormy weather.—Adrian Times.

Yesterday morning, while transferring freight here, Mr. H. A. Corcoran had the misfortune to have the fingers of his left hand badly crushed by a 500 lb. crate of sheet copper falling on them. After having them dressed, he took the train for Lima, Ohio, where he resides.

The Wabash showed a remarkable increase in the freight earnings for the month of September at this point alone. The company showed an increase of $7,000 on out-bound business and $15,000 on in-bound traffic over the same month for last year.—Blade.

The Wabash railroad has placed an order for 500 freight cars, divided equally between the St. Charles Car Company [illegible] Missouri Car and Foundry.

O. A. [illegible] C., J. & M., arrived yesterday and will be chief clerk in the auditor's office.

NEW NECK TRIMMING.

Designed to Be Worn with the Hair Low in the Back.

There are ever so many neck trimmings for those who wear the hair high, but the young women who affect the down-hanging coiffure have trouble to accommodate the neck trimming to the hair. All are too high in the back.

The Yvette neck ruching, while very high at the sides and front, is very low in the back of the neck, and is just the thing for those who wear a braid.

THE YVETTE RUFFLE.

It requires a yard and a half of ribbon and half a yard of silk to match. Cut from the silk four circular ruffles and sew upon the ribbon, beginning an inch and a half from the middle of the back. Cross the ends of the ribbon and bring around and tie in a knot in front.

If the hair is worn high a very pretty way to deal with the Yvette is to sew the circular ruffles upon the ribbon, leaving a plain space in front instead of the back. Carry the ribbon around the neck, cross and bring to the front and there knot. This is extremely becoming to all faces, and gives the chin a little more space than the other way.

TAN AND SUNBURN.

The Light Not the Heat of the Sun Responsible for Them.

While it was formerly believed that the sun's heat was responsible for tan and sunburn, it has now been proven that it is the light of the sun which colors the skin. Persons exposed to sunlight on mountain tops, at low temperature, are burned as if they had undergone heat as well. Painful burns often result from light reflected from snow and water. Persons exposed to severe heat in mines, firerooms of steamers and rolling mills do not become tanned in the same manner as those working in the sun. The present theory is that the actinic rays of sunlight produce tan or sunburn. These rays affect chemically certain substances upon which they fall. Blue or violet rays have much greater effect upon a sensitive plate than red rays, and this is also true of the human skin. Red glass allows red light rays to pass through it freely and rejects the complementary blue rays. Blue glass admits blue or violet rays and excludes red. A red fabric would be the most effective protection against sunburn. Blue is a most undesirable color for veils. A woman, a member of a party of tourists, wore a striped red and white [illegible] rays. She found herself burned in stripes, the white affording no protection, as all rays pass through it. The pigment or coloring matter of the skin is the portion which receives the chemical action of the sunlight. It is not definitely known why some people burn red, while others freckle or tan. The darkening of the skin is an effort of nature to protect the sensitive parts beneath. The darker the surface upon which sunlight falls, the more difficult it is for it to penetrate. Wind and heat by irritating the skin sometimes produce congestion which predisposes to the effect of the sun's rays.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Mrs. Rorer's Pop-Overs.

Beat two eggs without separating, until thoroughly mixed. Add one cup of milk. Put one cup of flour into another bowl; add to it gradually the eggs and milk; beat until smooth. Strain through an ordinary gravel strainer. Put at once into greased hot gem-pans, and bake in a moderately quick oven for 45 minutes. If these are properly made and properly baked they should swell six times their original bulk, and may be used for breakfast or luncheon, or served with a liquid pudding sauce as a dessert. Whole wheat flour, if sifted three times, may be substituted for white flour. Iron gem-pans insure better results than those made of lighter metals.—Mrs. S. T. Rorer, in Ladies' Home Journal.

For the Sachet Bag.

A recipe for sweetly perfumed sachets never comes amiss, and as the one given here is detested by moths just as infinitely as it is enjoyed by human beings, the mixture is well worth mixing. Take one ounce each of cloves, nutmeg, cinnamon, carraway seeds, mace and tonka beans, pound to powder, and mix them with six ounces of orris root, which must also be in powder. These ingredients may be obtained ready crushed at a good druggist's. The best bag in which they can be inclosed is one of not overfine muslin, and the miller's sack design, with the opening tied round with ribbon, is a good one.

NEW GAME OF WITS.

It Is Called Character Quotations and Is Entertaining.

The game of "character quotations" is a new-fashioned way of holding the mirror up to nature and of seeing ourselves as others see us. It also furnishes an excellent method of passing a pleasant evening, for when are people so interested as in talking about themselves?

Long slips of paper are handed to each participant in the game, who obligingly affixes his signature to the bottom and passes it on to his neighbor on the right. Beginning at the top of the paper, the neighbor writes his impression of the character and personality of its owner in an appropriate verse of poetry selected at random from some remembered author. If the stanza is comic, so much the more fun; if it is fulsome or sentimental, so much the more confusion for the recipient when it is read to the jeering assembly.

When the first neighbor has written his impression he in turn sends it around the circle, after having folded down his own poetical estimate. If his memory fails him altogether, or no suitable rhyme comes to mind applicable to a special individual, he is forced by the laws of "character quotations" to compose a stanza himself. At the conclusion of the game, when the papers are covered with scribbling, the man on the right of the lady reads her praises aloud, after which she retaliates with his. Then the real object of the play is seen—to fit each estimate to the proper writer and to proportion future punishment to the nature of the crime.—Chicago Chronicle.

SPORTING JEWELRY.

Novelties for the Girls Who Cycle, or Hunt, or Golf.

So great is the love of outdoor sports that all sorts of pretty trinkets come in gold and silver for sporting jewelry. The girl who cycles is wearing a tiny silver bicycle brooch with the tires set in semi-precious gems and the handle bars inscribed with her name and the name of her wheel. The pedals of the bicycle are of a very pretty open filigree work, and the saddle is a little enamel affair, as pretty as it is delicate.

The hunting horn ring has a fox's head curled down over a big open silver horn lined with scarlet enamel. The ring has a little attachment, so it can be made big enough to slip over the hunting glove.

A gold bracelet is a wonderful thing. It consists of a big silver golf stick that is curled to fit the wrist. The handle is a twist of silver. One end is flattened exactly like a golf stick, and a big pearl is set in it for the golf ball.

These little articles come in imitation jewelry, which is just as satisfactory, if the articles are desired for the novelty only. They are the fancy of the hour and the outdoor sporting girl likes to make herself attractive in them.

The Culture of Ferns.

It is [illegible] in with the [illegible] them; wash the inside of the pots clean, and give especially good drainage; use open, rich, fibrous soil, light rather than heavy, and instead of filling the pot with soil to the brim leave plenty of room to hold water. Ferns should never get quite dry at the root, yet it will not do to keep them soaking wet. Many of them, especially the maidenhair and gold and silver ferns, dislike being splashed overhead, and hot sunshine must never fall directly upon these delicate kinds. Ferns are sure to be killed by little dribblings of water every day. The same rule that applies to watering other plants is good with ferns: When the top of the soil looks dry fill the pot with water to the brim, so that the ball of soil may have a thorough soaking.—Vick's Magazine.

To Make Caramel Custard.

For six ordinary-sized custards melt six tablespoonfuls of sugar, stirring carefully to prevent burning. Pour into the bottom of the custard cups, give each a sort of whirl that the sugar may also line the sides. Beat three eggs without separating; add three tablespoonfuls of sugar, half a teaspoonful of vanilla, and a cup and a half of milk. Stir until the sugar is dissolved; pour the mixture into the cups on top of the caramel. Stand in a baking pan half filled with water, and cook in the oven 15 minutes. Turn while hot from the cups. Serve cold. —Mrs. S. T. Rorer, in Ladies' Home Journal.

Protecting Women's Feet.

Now a woman has invented a means of protecting the feet of her sex from the trampling of men as they go out and in between the acts at a theater. It consists of an iron case, lined with felt, to be clamped to the floor in front of the seats. The top of the case is rounded, so that nobody can be tripped up by it. When a man rises to leave the theater the women in his row have simply to slip their feet in these cases, and they are safe. The man can work his way back and forth without hurting them in the least.

Horticulture.

IMPROVED PLANT PIT.

Its Distinctive Feature Is a Well-Planned Air Flue.

To safely keep fruits and vegetables during severe weather is a problem with many. An idea, simple in design, is a cold frame, warmed some degrees above the outside temperature by air without fire heat. Its distinctive feature is an air flue, leading from a point down the incline on which the pit is situated through the earth mainly below the frost line, in order to temper the fresh air that is admitted, somewhat. A chimney for creating an air shaft is also included, as portrayed in Fig. 2. In Fig. 1 is given a view of the pit in perspective, showing also the manner of banking up with earth and the door at the entrance. Fig. 2 gives a lengthwise sectional view and shows the peculiar interior arrangement. In its construction there is first a pit, some four feet deep and about seven feet wide, as long as desired, of the shape shown. Above this the framework is erected, resting on a foundation of stone. The sides of the house are banked up nearly to the top; above the bank, glass is used on ends and roof.

HANDY GARDEN PIT.

SECTIONAL VIEW OF PIT.

Some 50 feet from the pit, a trench two feet deep is dug and extended to the side of the pit, and opening into it from beneath the foundation. Five-inch drain tile are laid in the bottom, beginning at the pit and running to the surface, the ditch being filled in again. At the rear end of the pit a ventilator pipe runs up from the pit, thus causing in all mild weather, when the pipe cutoffs are open, a constant current of air to pass under the stage on which the plants stand. The cold air in its underground passage becomes warm enough to keep plants, ordinarily, from being harmed by the cold.—Farm and Home.

GOOD GARDEN SOIL.

It Is One in Which the Atmosphere Can Circulate Freely.

What is or what is not good garden soil is often a great question. The customer often complains to the nurserymen that, though he planted his trees in the very best soil, yet he had little success. Very few people seem to understand that good soil is one in which the atmosphere can freely circulate. The earth must not allow the air to circulate to such an extent as to lose its moisture, but it must have an abundance of small spaces which will contain small quantities of air before plants will thrive. We sometimes speak of "air plants," but, in truth, all plants are [illegible] plants, no matter whether [illegible] growing on [illegible] the earth. Air is of far more consequence to the roots than to the leaves. When, therefore, we have a stiff clay earth to deal with, we make a good soil by applying sand, or vegetable matter which when it rots will leave small spaces in which air may be collected. It is for the same reason that we crush hard clods, for a hard clod has no air spaces. When broken to pieces—pulverizing is the technical term—we simply give the chance for atmospheric air to spread throughout the whole mass. For the same reason, what is known as a wet soil is a bad soil, because water drives out the air. There is no air in earth which is water-tight. It has been noted that the use of a hole in the bottom of a flower pot is not so much to allow the escape of water as it is to permit fresher air to flow in the spaces of earth when the water leaves it. In the language of gardening, a good soil is one which is perfectly "aerated."—Meehan's Monthly.

Save the Hardiest Kinds.

If peaches were as hardy as apples, there is no fruit that would pay the horticulturist as well as the peach. But from ten to fifteen per cent. below zero will surely kill the fruit buds. To improve the hardiness of the trees, seeds of the hardiest varieties of both seedlings as well as budded varieties should be selected and planted out; when these come into bearing, the choicest and hardiest kinds should be cared for and the poor and most tender be cut out.—Western Plowman.

Usefulness of the Ladybird.

It has been already demonstrated that the ladybird is the most useful of the various beetles imported to combat insect pests. In several instances it has eradicated the black scale in badly-infested orchards. When these insects are established in sufficient numbers it is better not to fumigate or spray the trees, as these processes are antagonistic to the multiplication of the beetle. During the last three years about 400,000 of one description of ladybird have been colonized in southern California.

HOW TO KEEP ONIONS.

They Must Be Handled Quite as Carefully as Apples.

Half the secret of keeping onions well is in housing them in a perfectly dry, sound condition. If to be sold before cold weather, keep in any dry place with plenty of air; a loose floor where air can pass up through them is best. For winter use, keep at a low temperature; if kept from actual freezing there is no danger of the temperature being too low. They must be kept dry, but if they become frozen they should not be handled, merely covered and kept in the dark until the frost gradually leaves them. It is not the freezing which does the mischief, but moving them when frozen, and repeated thawing and withdrawing of frost. Wherever the essential conditions prevail of uniformly low, dry temperature, absence of light and not too severe frost, they may be safely stored for winter. Moisture and heating in bulk should be guarded against. To avoid gathering moisture and heating, the bulbs should not be over two feet deep, better less. If too warm they grow and rot.

For winter storage, place them in a building with tight floors under which the frost cannot get. On such a floor place scantling, upon which lay narrow boards one-half inch apart. Upon this drying floor build up a false partition one foot within the outside walls. Thus arranged, they have a free circulation of air all around and under them. When the temperature sinks to 20 degrees it is well to fill in the space with straw to stop the circulation of the cold air. They can be put in bins of this structure, from two to three feet deep. Cover with hay or cornstalks sufficiently to protect them. Always handle them as carefully as apples, as even slight bruises cause them to mold or rot.—N. E. Farmer.

HANDY FRUIT PICKER.

It Lands Apples, Peaches and Pears Without Bruising.

The cut shows a device for gathering ripe apples, peaches and pears, without bruising. A A are two rings about four inches in diameter, on arms of scissor-like device, acting as spreaders for mouths of velvet pouches, for seizing and holding the fruit—one at a time, of course. C is a spring for keeping the device open. B is a lever to which one end of a string is attached; the other end, after passing through the guide loops, E E E, is in the hand of the operator.

Tightening the string, the device closes. Slacken the string and the device opens to let go the ripe fruit which it has seized. D is socket of device screwed on top of the three-foot lengths of bamboo or some such light but strong material. The rod can be lengthened by adding these three-foot lengths. [illegible] the pieces reduces the device into small compass for transportation or for [illegible] during winter.—John Saunders, in Farmer.

HORTICULTURAL DOTS.

Too many varieties of any kind of fruit are usually not as profitable as fewer ones.

Try growing the sugar beet next season if you wish to, but build no castles in the air.

Plum trees are best planted when two years old, and the rows had better run north and south.

A squash vine that is badly infested with the squash vine borer should be pulled up and burned.

People around Chicago, even on high-priced land, make money by turning cabbage into sauerkraut.

Carrots make splendid stock feed; ought to be grown on every farm, unless the farm has ensilage.

A writer says that the use of paris green for cabbage worms is very dangerous, and we think so, too.

Mulch the rose bushes with barnyard manure after the first freezing. Do the same with the grape vine.

Burn up the leaves that fall in the door yard or throw them in the barnyard. Don't winter-protect insects.

Lay the grape vine on the ground at the beginning of winter, and if it is a tender variety furnish protection.

Unfermented grape juice is, we think, greatly overrated as a nourishing drink, but there is a steady market for it.—Western Plowman.

Cultivation in the Orchard.

It matters not how or in what way a tree has been propagated, whether by budding, whip-grafted, a piece-root or whole root used, or grown from a cutting, so it is a good, straight, thrifty, well-rooted tree, with an evenly balanced top; a good tree is a good one and a poor tree is a poor one. It all depends upon the planter, upon the care he gives it, whether it ever becomes a tree and bears fruit. Cultivation is the one thing needful; cultivation is the essential part above all others.

THE AMERICAN GIRL IN FICTION.

As a Heroine She Is Smart and Delights in Managing Men.

Sometimes the characteristic type of the American heroine of fiction is vulgar, sometimes cold-blooded, or unkind, or willful, or indiscreet, but she is never stupid, writes "Loch" in Ladies' Home Journal. That is the verdict of contemporary observers on the American girl. Whatever she may be or do she always has her wits about her; she is "smart." While her father delights in managing factories, stock operations, or railroads, she delights in managing men. And in every kind of fiction which she dominates the men seem to be uniformly glad to be managed by her. Often in fiction she has been lacking in certain graces—chiefly the supreme grace of tact. But there are signs that our novelists have discovered that the American girl possesses this grace also, and so it happens that to-day she trails through fiction not only with fine clothes, and a beautiful face, and generous deeds, and witty, if impertinent, remarks—but there is developing around her a gracious manner, an unconscious simplicity that shows itself in consideration for the weaknesses of others—in addition to that keen knowledge of their foibles which was always hers. What we have yet to hope for is that her wealth or her poverty may be made less obtrusive and less a significant part of her always attractive personality.

SHUNNED LIKE LEPERS.

A Colony of Degenerate Human Freaks Who Live Like Beasts.

A most revolting form of human degeneracy is to be seen on Snake creek, in the Indian nation, Indian territory, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. A small colony of human freaks, with dirty, whitish hair, and white, glassy eyes, eke out a miserable existence in the midst of the most filthy surroundings, being ostracized from the companionship of the other Creeks. These degenerates are the result of frequent intermarriage among a class of mongrel whites, negroes and Indians, and the degeneracy has kept dropping down the scale of human intelligence until it is said these people eat snakes, toads and other reptiles. They use a peculiar jargon, many expressions resembling the clucking of hens and the unpleasant noises made by belligerent geese. Their hair is somewhat kinky, but stands out nearly straight, giving them a very frightful appearance. They live out in the open air, except in very unpleasant weather, when they crawl into rude caves or dugouts, reeking with filth and vermin. Many of them are afflicted with sores, and are deformed or cross-eyed. They are too lazy to be mean, but the very sight of them is sickening, and they are shunned like lepers. A subagent has been asked for to look after their annuities and to secure for them something like human comforts. They have many children, and their offspring are most pitiful looking objects.

IMPROVEMENTS IN GILDING.

Modern Methods Insure Better and Less Dangerous Work.

In nothing has the superiority of modern over former methods been made more manifest than in the various processes employed for gilding, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Now the greater portion of gilded articles are gold-covered by means of the electrical bath. Formerly gilding was done by laborious and troublesome processes, in certain stages very detrimental to the health of the workmen. The old-time glider used an amalgam of gold and mercury, causing it to adhere to the bronze article by means of nitrate of mercury, the nitrous and mercurial fumes being poisonous, always endangering the health of the workman, and sometimes inducing incurable disease. Now the article to be gilded is placed in an electric bath, the current is turned on, and in a short time the piece is ready for the finisher. Gilding with leaf and gold powder is still practiced, the work being mostly done by hand, but its delicacy is such as to require long practice and great experience. An amateur gilder has no earthly chance of success—his work will always show the inexperience of the workman.

WILL NOT WAIT TEN DAYS.

Miners in Pittsburgh District in a Hurry to Get to Work.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 15.—Work has been resumed in a number of mines and it is expected that all will be running full on Thursday morning, notwithstanding the ten days' clause in the resolution accepting the operators' compromise proposition. The general sentiment along the Wheeling division is for an early resumption.

Ohio Miners at Work.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 15.—The coal miners in the Massillon district, held a delegate mass meeting and decided to accept the new rate for mining at the expiration of the ten days' limit. Four hundred men at the Goshen mines have returned to work, ignoring the ten days' clause, and 400 others will resume today at the Midvale mines. All the mines in the Silver Creek and Clinton district near Akron resumed operations Tuesday.

A Destructive Beetle.

Palmyra, Wis., Sept. 18.—Farmers in the northern part of the town report a hitherto unknown beetle destroying their corn crops. Corn and husks are destroyed with rapidity and by the acre, leaving an entirely cleaned corncob.

A SMOOTH MOUNTAINEER.

How He Worked a Chattanooga Merchant on Ginseng.

The Chinese may be very shrewd people and experts at doing up and bunco-ing the average "Melican man" when it comes to three-card monte or poker, but they are not in it with the East Tennessee mountaineer from up in the land of Houks and pensions," says the Chattanooga Times.

Several days ago Mr. H. Goodman, the hide and leather dealer, purchased a large quantity of ginseng from Oneida, Tenn., which place is in the mountains above Harriman. Mr. Goodman paid a good stiff price for the drug, which cures all the ills that Celestial flesh is heir to, and brought the same to his store in this city.

For dried ginseng Mr. Goodman thought this stuff was unusually heavy, but paid no more attention to it until he went to empty it from one box to another. As he did so he discovered quite a large amount of bird shot in the bottom of the box. He could not account for the presence of the shot, and began examining the ginseng, with the result that he found the greater number of roots stuffed with shot.

Ginseng is purchased from the "sang digger" by the pound, and the roots were cut into when green and stuffed full of shot. A further examination revealed the fact that there was a large number of bogus roots in the ginseng, which Mr. Goodman's employes spent some time in sorting out.

This is a new way of dosing Chinamen with American lead. The Celestials were filled with American lead during the California and Colorado riots and during the Japanese war, but this is the first case on record where an attempt was made to fill them with American lead through and in their favorite drug.

HAD NO EYES FOR THE BABY.

The Judge Was Devoted to Chess and Thought of Nothing Else.

The late Judge Sheldon, of Rockford, Ill., legal luminary and millionaire, was a noted chess player, devoting his entire evenings for many years to playing at the houses of his friends, where the ladies complained bitterly of his devotion to the game, to their almost total neglect. One of these, says the Chicago Times-Herald, was a charming young mother who had known the judge since her childhood. Her father was a favorite partner of the judge, and the two spent their evenings together in the home library playing chess in the silence which the game involves, and, as unsociable and taciturn as they were, the young woman intruded upon them, determined that the judge should see and admire her beautiful baby.

"Isn't he a darling?" she asked, holding him forward for her father's bachelor friend to admire.

Absolute silence.

"Now, dear Judge Sheldon, do just look at my sweet boy. Why, he is a perfect little angel."

The judge never lifted his head.

"I think the precious looks just like you, don't you?"

This appeal moved him. He lifted his eyes and looked at the baby with a blank stare. Then he turned again to the chess table and said in his usual commanding voice:

"Check!"

GOOD DIVING.

It Is the Chief Essential to Marriage at Himia Island.

At Himia and other of the Greek islands in the Mediterranean diving for sponges forms a considerable part of the occupation of the inhabitants. A visitor to that rather unfrequented region, writing of the island customs, says: "Himia, which is a little island directly opposite Rhodes, is worthy of notice on account of the singular method by which the Greek inhabitants get their living. On the bottom of the sea in this locality the common sponge is found in greater abundance than in any other part of the Mediterranean. The natives make it a trade to gather these, and derive a good income, their goods being always in great demand among the Turks, who use an incredible number of sponges in the ablutions prescribed by their religion. DISEASE OF THE EASTER LILY.

Result of a Government Investigation of a Flower's Ailment.

A special bulletin has been issued by the agricultural department on disease of the Bermuda, or Easter lily, which is of much interest to the florists of the country. It points out that the forcing of the lily has become an important industry in the United States. The bulbs are grown almost exclusively in Bermuda, where they mature in July and are then shipped to this country to be forced in the following fall, winter and spring.

During the past five or six years the disease affecting the lily has seriously interfered with the profitable growth of the plant. The government began an investigation of the plant two or three years ago, and the preliminary report says the disease destroys in this country from 20 to 60 per cent. of the entire crop, exclusive of the bulbs which fail to grow or that make worthless plants, the loss from which ranges from 5 to 30 per cent.

The disease is characterized by spotting and distortion of the leaves and flowers, and usually the stunting of the plants. The principal causes assigned are worn-out soil, premature removal of flowers and flower stems, premature harvesting of bulbs, carelessness in selection of propagating stock, bad treatment during the forcing, and the depredation of insects. As remedies it is suggested that only strong and vigorous plants be used for propagation, crop rotation should be practiced, chemical fertilizers used and premature digging avoided.

ACEPHALOUS ROOSTERS.

Demonstrated That the Barnyard Monarch Can Live Without a Head.

It was once thought impossible that a human being could live and walk with a broken neck, and perhaps still more doubted that a rooster could live, stand and be fed after the hatchet had severed its head from the body. But such are the real hard facts, says Forest and Stream. The phenomenal rooster was exhibited some years ago in Huntington, W. Va. The exhibitors said they got the fowl from a farmer who had decapitated it, after which it got upon its feet. However this may be, the headless, living rooster was not a deception. It was fed through a tube inserted in its throat. It is obvious that the farmer's stroke was a little too high, and that a portion of the back brain still remained, and partially performed its functions. How long the fowl lived I did not hear. One thing is certain—he died "game."

A negro, seeing "millions in it," then experimented on the gallinaceous tribe, and succeeded in turning out a fair duplicate of the aforesaid acephalous curiosity (for whom I made a picture of the rooster with which to advertise), and he started on a tour of exhibition. He returned not long after and told me he was doing well, and could have made some money at decapitating roosters for other parties who wanted them for exhibition, but that he was prevented by the authorities, upon the accusation of cruelty.

THE ALASKAN DOG.

Cruel Treatment Is the Reward for Their Affection and Intelligence.

The Alaskan dog is almost human in intelligence. He weighs about 100 pounds. Heavily laden he will travel as many as 60 miles a day.

With 20 dogs in a team no two of them are in a straight line from the driver. When unhitched for the night they pile upon the first blanket that is thrown upon the snow, and there they stay. When you crawl into your sleeping bag and pull a robe over it the dog will get under the robe. Unless you are careful he will be inside of the bag in the morning. Their endurance is phenomenal, and they are capable of strong affection. They are great fighters.

A traveler who ... from Alaska says of the treatment accorded these faithful animals:

"The cruelest thing of ... used on them is the ... known to man. Thirty feet in length and two inches thick near the ... handle, it has a lash ten feet long that cuts like a knife. The Russian knout ... in it. When the dog is struck you hear a sharp yelp, and then your sleigh whirls past a bit of fur or possibly a piece of bloody skin lying on the snow."

NO BIBLE FOR BOSTONIAN.

He Visited Kansas in Early Days and Created a Bible Boom.

In the early days of Atchison a rich Boston man named Claflin came to town to assist in celebrating the opening of the Central branch, says the Atchison Globe. He was entertained by George W. Glick, and the morning after his arrival he came downstairs and asked Mr. Glick for a Bible before breakfast. Mr. Glick said he would get one, but found there was not a Bible in the house. He slipped over to Cottonwood Brown's, supposing he would have one, but he didn't, and then he went to Virgie Parker's. Parker didn't have one, either, and finally Mr. Glick was compelled to confess to his guest that there wasn't a Bible in the neighborhood. The late L. A. Anderson operated a Bible depository in Atchison at that time, and used to tell how Glick, Brown and Parker slipped into his store one morning, one after another, and bought a Bible each. It was the morning after the Boston man inquired for one.

MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY OPENS.

All Records for Attendance Promise to Be Beaten This Year.

Ann Arbor, Oct. 1.—The university opened its doors for business Friday with a rush. From all indications the attendance will be larger than it has been for years. The registration has already reached the 2,000 mark, and the increase in the law department is phenomenal, over 150 more being already enrolled than at the same time last year. The university authorities are unanimous in the opinion that the attendance will not only reach the 3,000 mark, but go away beyond it. The freshman classes show an increase in all departments. The authorities are particularly gratified with the increase, especially noticeable from Chicago, Minneapolis and Missouri cities. The dental department comes in with an increased attendance.

A WONDERFUL ESCAPE.

Related by a Keeper of the Michigan State Prison at Jackson.

(From the Jackson Citizen.)

Mr. A. E. Wing resides at 612 N. Jackson Street, Jackson, Mich. He is a keeper in the Michigan State Prison, a man of sterling integrity, and whose word is beyond dispute. He tells the following story of a wonderful escape, and the incidents connected with the dangerous position in which he was placed. He says, some months ago my attention was attracted by a swelling of my groins, which began to increase in size to such an extent that I was alarmed. It spread down my legs to my feet, and I was bloated from my waist down, so badly that I could not pull my pants, over my legs, and I had to open my shoes fully two inches before I could get them on. Even my face became puffed up; and my whole system seemed affected. I could hardly drag myself upstairs to unlock my men. I consulted a physician, one of the best in the city. He said the swelling was caused by an irritation of the kidneys, and I commenced treatment with him. But I seemed to be getting worse. I was strongly urged by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and I finally consented. After the first week I commenced to see a change, and felt much better. This was encouraging, and I continued their use. I took five boxes in all, with the happy result that I was completely cured. I have never heard of any medicine which had such a pronounced and radical effect, and yet not affect the system generally and leave it in such a good condition. I feel better now than I ever did. After the effect was once established the swelling gradually disappeared until it was entirely gone. I regard Doan's Kidney Pills as a most wonderful agent in the curing of any form of kidney disorder.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this.

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture. like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

A SMOOTH MOUNTAINEER.

How He Worked a Chattanooga Merchant on Ginseng.

The Chinese may be very shrewd people and adepts at doing up and buncoing the average "Melican man" when it comes to three-card monte or poker, but they are not in it with the East Tennessee mountaineer from up in the land of "Houka and pensions," says the Chattanooga Times.

Several days ago Mr. H. Goodman, the hide and leather dealer, purchased a large quantity of ginseng from Oneida, Tenn., which place is in the mountains above Harriman. Mr. Goodman paid a good stiff price for the drug, which cures all the ills that Celestial flesh is heir to, and brought the same to his store in this city.

For dried ginseng Mr. Goodman thought this stuff was unusually heavy, but paid no more attention to it until he went to empty it from one box to another. As he did so he discovered quite a large amount of bird shot in the bottom of the box. He could not account for the presence of the shot, and began examining the ginseng, with the result that he found the greater number of roots stuffed with shot.

Ginseng is purchased from the "sang digger" by the pound, and the roots were cut into when green and stuffed full of shot. A further examination revealed the fact that there was a large number of bogus roots in the ginseng, which Mr. Goodman's employes spent some time in sorting out.

This is a new way of dosing Chinamen with American lead. The Celestials were filled with American lead during the California and Colorado riots and during the Japanese war, but this is the first case on record where an attempt was made to fill them with American lead through and in their favorite drug.

HAD NO EYES FOR THE BABY.

The Judge Was Devoted to Chess and Thought of Nothing Else.

The late Judge Sheldon, of Rockford, Ill., legal luminary and millionaire, was a noted chess player, devoting his entire evenings for many years to playing at the houses of his friends, where the ladies complained bitterly of his devotion to the game, to their almost total neglect. One of these, says the Chicago Times-Herald, was a charming young mother who had known the judge since her childhood. Her father was a favorite partner of the judge, and the two spent their evenings together in the home library playing chess in the silence which the game involves, and, as unsociable and taciturn as they were, the young woman intruded upon them, determined that the judge should see and admire her beautiful baby.

"Isn't he a darling?" she asked, holding him forward for her father's bachelor friend to admire.

Absolute silence.

"Now, dear Judge Sheldon, do just look at my sweet boy. Why, he is a perfect little angel."

The judge never lifted his head.

"I think the precious looks just like papa, don't you?"

This appeal moved him. He lifted his eyes and looked at the baby with a blank stare. Then he turned again to the chess table and said in his usual commanding voice:

"Check."

BEDS OF EUROPEAN SOLDIERS.

National Characteristics Reflected in the Different Military Regulations.

The soldier's bed differs notably in the different European armies, the principal varieties being given below, and in them may perhaps be seen the reflection of national characteristics, says the London Mail. In England the bed is hard; the soldier lies on a thin mattress that rests on canvas stretched over a frame. In Spain the soldier has only a straw bed, but he is allowed besides this a pillow, two sheets, two blankets and a covered quilt, sometimes even a cover for his feet. It is almost sybaritic. In Germany and Austria he has a simple straw bed, with one or two covers, neither sheet nor mattress. In Russia until recently the soldier slept with his clothes on, on a camp bed; but now ordinary beds begin to be used—the result of contact with more civilized countries. After this it cannot be doubted that the French soldier's bed is the best of all, with its wooden or iron bedstead, a straw bed, a good mattress, sheets, a brown woolen coverlet and an extra quilt for cold weather. Thus the bed of the French soldier is the softest of all soldiers' beds, as that of the French peasant is acknowledged also to be the best of all European countries.

GOOD DIVING.

It Is the Chief Essential to Marriage at Himia Island.

At Himia and other of the Greek islands in the Mediterranean diving for sponges forms a considerable part of the occupation of the inhabitants. A visitor to that rather unfrequented region, writing of the island customs, says: "Himia, which is a little island directly opposite Rhodes, is worthy of notice on account of the singular method by which the Greek inhabitants get their living. On the bottom of the sea in this locality the common sponge is found in greater abundance than in any other part of the Mediterranean. The natives make it a trade to gather these, and derive a good income, their goods being always in great demand among the Turks, who use an incredible number of sponges in the ablutions prescribed by their religion. A girl in Himia is not permitted to marry until she has brought up a certain number of sponges and given proof of her skill by taking them from a certain depth. In some of the other islands this custom is reversed, and the father of a marriageable daughter bestows her on the best diver among her suitors. He who can stay longest in the water and bring up the biggest lot of sponges marries the world."

DISEASE OF THE EASTER LILY.

Result of a Government Investigation of a Flower's Ailment.

A special bulletin has been issued by the agricultural department on disease of the Bermuda, or Easter lily, which is of much interest to the florists of the country. It points out that the forcing of the lily has become an important industry in the United States. The bulbs are grown almost exclusively in Bermuda, where they mature in July and are then shipped to this country to be forced in the following fall, winter and spring.

During the past five or six years the disease affecting the lily has seriously interfered with the profitable growth of the plant. The government began an investigation of the plant two or three years ago, and the preliminary report says the disease destroys in this country from 20 to 60 per cent. of the entire crop, exclusive of the bulbs which fail to grow or that make worthless plants, the loss from which ranges from 5 to 30 per cent.

The disease is characterized by spotting and distortion of the leaves and flowers, and usually the stunting of the plants. The principal causes assigned are worn-out soil, premature removal of flowers and flower stems, premature harvesting of bulbs, carelessness in selection of propagating stock, bad treatment during the forcing, and the depredation of insects. As remedies it is suggested that only strong and vigorous plants be used for propagation, crop rotation should be practiced, chemical fertilizers used and premature digging avoided.

ACEPHALOUS ROOSTERS.

Demonstrated That the Barnyard Monarch Can Live Without a Head.

It was once thought impossible that a human being could live and walk with a broken neck, and perhaps still more doubted that a rooster could live, stand and be fed after the hatchet had severed its head from the body. But such are the real hard facts, says Forest and Stream. The phenomenal rooster was exhibited some years ago in Huntington, W. Va. The exhibitors said they got the fowl from a farmer who had decapitated it, after which it got upon its feet. However this may be, the headless, living rooster was not a deception. It was fed through a tube inserted in its throat. It is obvious that the farmer's stroke was a little too high, and that a portion of the back brain still remained, and partially performed its functions. How long the fowl lived I did not hear. One thing is certain—he died "game."

A negro, seeing "millions in it," then experimented on the gallinaceous tribe, and succeeded in turning out a fair duplicate of the aforesaid acephalous curiosity (for whom I made a picture of the rooster with which to advertise), and he started on a tour of exhibition. He returned not long after and told me he was doing well, and could have made some money at decapitating roosters for other parties who wanted them for exhibition, but that he was prevented by the authorities upon the accusation of cruelty.

THE ALASKAN DOG.

Cruel Treatment Is the Reward for Their Affection and Intelligence.

The Alaskan dog is almost human in intelligence. He weighs about 100 pounds. Heavily laden he will travel as many as 60 miles a day.

With 20 dogs in a team no two of them are in a straight line from the driver. When unhitched for the night they pile upon the first blanket that is thrown upon the snow, and there they stay. When you crawl into your sleeping bag and pull a robe over it the dog will get under the robe. Unless you are careful he will be inside of the bag in the morning. Their endurance is phenomenal, and they are capable of strong affection. They are great fighters.

A traveler who recently returned from Alaska says of the treatment accorded these faithful animals:

"The whip that is used on them is the cruelest thing of the kind known to man. Thirty feet in length and two inches thick near the short handle, it has a lash ten feet long that cuts like a knife. The Russian knout isn't in it. When the dog is struck you hear a sharp yelp, and then your sleigh whirls past a bit of fur or possibly a piece of bloody skin lying on the snow."

NO BIBLE FOR BOSTONIAN.

He Visited Kansas in Early Days and Created a Bible Boom.

In the early days of Atchison a rich Boston man named Claflin came to town to assist in celebrating the opening of the Central branch, says the Atchison Globe. He was entertained by George W. Glick, and the morning after his arrival he came downstairs and asked Mr. Glick for a Bible before breakfast. Mr. Glick said he would get one, but found there was not a Bible in the house. He slipped over to Cottonwood Brown's, supposing he would have one, but he didn't, and then he went to Virgie Parker's. Parker didn't have one, either, and finally Mr. Glick was compelled to confess to his guest that there wasn't a Bible in the neighborhood. The late L. A. Anderson operated a Bible depository in Atchison at that time, and used to tell how Glick, Brown and Parker slipped into his store one morning, one after another, and bought a Bible each. It was the morning after the Boston man inquired for one.

An Eagle's Curiosity.

M. Cabalzar, a French aeronaut, reports that he met with a strange adventure in a recent ascent from Annecy, in Savoy. Feeling that the balloon was being pulled violently, he looked out, and was amazed to see a gigantic eagle climbing, with extended wings, down the ropes toward the car. Here it remained, staring fixedly at M. Cabalzar, till the balloon neared the ground an hour afterward, when it was frightened away by the shouts of a crowd of peasants.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

Paul Rowland while running on the walk at the East Branch school this forenoon, fell and cut one knee severely.

Yee Hawk is laying for the fellow who stole his ducks last night. He bought six nice ones for his own special use and during the night some one swiped them.

The alarm sounded Sunday, was an incipient fire in the rear of James Hunt's barn, where he thoughtlessly had thrown some ashes onto a manure heap. It might have proven serious had it not have been discovered when it was, but no damage was done.

"Doc." Smith has received his commission as postmaster of Adrian and will take posession in the near future. From the standpoint of service done the party, he is exactly the man who should have this plum. Aside from this "Doc" is one of the best fellows on earth and the HERALD would like to see him have it anyway.

Mr. Harry Davis, formerly boss weaver in the Clinton Woolen Mill, and Mr. Fell, of Rawsonville, were here yesterday looking the town over and consulting with some of the capitalists relative to operating a mill here. Both gentlemen have had practical experience in this business and our citizens would do well to lend them all the aid possible and, if sufficient encouragement is given, Tecumseh may soon have a woolen mill.

Monroe Kelly, who lives with a son-in-law near Round lake, met with a sad accident here yesterday. He went down to the coaling station to see an acquaintance and coming down the steps, fell and broke his leg. D. P. Anthony being there took him to Dr. Catlin's office who reduced the fracture. He was then taken to Arthur Gove's home where he now is. Mr. Kelly seems to be unfortunate, for a number of years ago while crossing the Lake Shore bridge below Sutton's, he fell through and broke his hip from which he has since been lame.

The class in German II have nearly completed Qmmensee and will take up L'Anabbiata by Bernhardt, the first of next week.

There was a fire drill Thursday forenoon. Of course there were the usual number of new pupils who got frightened, thinking it was a real fire, but on the whole the affair was very orderly.

The class in physics are wrestling with the laws of forces this week. The school board has adopted a new book this year and the class are required to use Carhart and Chutes philosophy.

Financial Letter.

Chicago, Oct. 5, 1897.

The expected slump in wheat came today. At the opening December was quoted at 89 1-2--3-4, but the last named figure was the high point, and a mass of selling orders sent the price down rapidly to 88 7-8. May going a quarter lower. A quick rebound above 88 followed, and for the next two hours there was not much fluctuation, the top once more and 88 the low. It was expected that the visible would show an increase of 2,000,000 bushels, and when the figures came 1,651,000 there was some buying which steadied the market. The closing continental cables showed Paris a trifle higher, while Antwerp was unchanged. The clearances were light, wheat and flour amounting to 291,000 bushels. Primary receipts were not larger than looked for, 1,909,000 bushels wheat against 1,633,000 bushels a year ago, while corn was 510,000 bushels as compared with 819,000 the corresponding day in 1896. Corn became more in demand [illegible] showing and the feeling is general that prices have seen their worst on this crop.

The same is true of provisions. There was a better demand today in all the options, purchases being made chiefly through commission houses, the pit traders selling. Friends of provisions say the yellow fever is the only thing in the way of higher prices now, and after the first frosts, which cannot be far in the future, there will be a sharp advance, especially in ribs, of which the south is a great consumer.

Half an hour before the close there was a strong buying movement, principally by shorts who ran on the reported export of 500,000 bushels. This carried the price above 89. The range was:

	High.	Low.	Close.
Dec. wheat	89 3-4	87 7-8	89 3-8
May wheat	89 3-8	87 1-8	89 3-8
Dec. corn	29 5-8	29 1-8	29 1-2-5-8
May corn	33 1-4	33 3-4	33 1-8

An esteemed contemporary says: The papers are making a great ado about a Sandusky (Ohio) man who has shrunk ten inches in the last thirty-five years. We do not think that is a wonderful thing. The people of Tecumseh are at work to secure a new industry in the shape of a woolen mill. The plan proposed is that a stock company be organized with a capital of $30,000, and the projectors will furnish $5,000 of this sum, the citizens to take the remainder. With that amount of capital it is said a three run mill can be operated employing 40 people. LABOR CHIEFS IN SESSION

Seventeenth Annual Session of the National Federation Opens in Nashville, Tenn.

DELEGATES FROM MANY STATES ATTEND.

President Gompers Reads His Address—He Says the Membership Has Largely Increased—Strikes During the Year—Larger Receipts—Good Balance in Treasury.

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 14.—The National Federation of Labor began its annual convention session in this city Monday with an attendance of more than 100 delegates from different states and an equal number of visitors. The federation met in the hall of the house of representatives at the state capitol at one o'clock. President Gompers presiding. President Gompers read his annual address, which was in part as follows:

"With two exceptions all our affiliated national unions show a large increase of local unions and in membership. There is an increase of about 34,000 members in the organizations affiliated.

Strikes of the Year.

"There have been quite a number of strikes within the past year, but the change in the causes which have produced them is worthy of note.

"The strikes of this year with few exceptions have been for higher wages, shorter hours and the extension and recognition of union principles. Our organizations report, with gratifying unanimity, the very large number of successes achieved, advantages gained and the growth and extension of the power of organization enjoyed.

"The movement to reduce the hours of labor is always one which commands the first attention of organized labor.

"We hold that no condition is satisfactory nor any solution complete which fails to eliminate the curse of unemployment, and so long as the degrading influences of nonemployment with us our best efforts as this evil shall be directed to the reduction of the hours of labor of all until the desired end is attained.

Postal Savings Banks.

"The establishment of a postal savings bank system and also a postal telegraph system, long since demanded by organized labor, seems nearer accomplishment than at any previous time.

"It is submitted whether it would not be wise to modify our position in so far as to interpose no objection to the passage of a law providing for compulsory arbitration in disputes between the organized employes of the railroads and the railroad companies, and the giving of an award by such lawful arbitrators; but we should hesitate to give our indorsement to any legislation, state or national, empowering the compulsory enforcement of an award and the specific enforcement of a contract to labor.

Afternoon Session.

Vice President McGuire presided at the afternoon session, which was well attended. Secretary Morrison presented his report, showing an increase in receipts of $2,349 over the previous year. An extra amount had been expended in organization and 34,280 new members were enrolled. The greatest item of expense was $3,539 for organization, and of this $2,000 had been used in sending organizers among the miners during the great strike. Expenses for the year were $19,113. During the year, the report states, 376 strikes had been officially noticed, involving 165,407 workers. Of these 189 were won, 91 compromised and 33 lost.

Treasurer John B. Lennon then submitted his report showing the income of the federation from November 1, 1896, to November 1, 1897 to be $21,808 and the expenses $19,113, leaving a balance in the treasury of $2,694 which, added to $1,000 now in the hands of the secretary, gives a total balance of $3,694.

The Second Day.

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 15.—At yesterday's session of the American Federation of Labor a resolution was adopted favoring postal savings banks and another opposed to the annexation of Hawaii. A resolution was also adopted providing for the organization of all stationary engineers preparatory for making the fight for an eight-hour day on May 1, 1898.

Work Resumed.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 15.—Operations were resumed in two window glass factories Tuesday at the manufacturers' terms, and others will start up, it is said, as soon as authorized to do so by the American Glass company. The factories resuming Tuesday are Hires, at Quinton, N. J., and S. Indell Bros., at Baltimore. The cutters and flatteners will receive an advance of 12 per cent. over last year's wages instead of 17 per cent. as demanded.

To Discuss Reform of Primaries.

New York, Dec. 13.—Ralph M. Easley, secretary of the Civic federation of Chicago, has issued the call for a national conference in this city January 14 and 15 of men interested in securing primary election reform legislation. The call is signed by representatives of reform organizations and civic officials in all parts of the country.

A Double Hanging.

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 17.—At Abbeville, Ala., Jim Glover and Sam Fields, both colored, were hanged on the same gallows. Glover was convicted for killing his wife and Fields for killing his mistress.

THE CROPS.

Condition of Wheat Not Up to the Average.

Lansing, Dec. 10. — The December crop report says the average condition of wheat in the state December 1 was 88 per cent. of condition in average years. The figures for southern counties are 84, central 91, and northern 101. The average condition in the state is three, in the southern counties five and in the central counties two per cent. lower than on December 1, 1896. These figures represent, as accurately as it is possible for figures to represent, the judgment of correspondents as to the condition of the growing wheat crop. From the statements of correspondents in southern counties, it is clear that fields in that section are unusually spotted. The plant has made small growth and does not cover the ground as in average years. Wheat sowed early on thoroughly well cultivated ground is in nearly full average condition. This is particularly true of level fields, or those moderately so. But a large percentage of Michigan wheat was sowed late on ground that it was impossible to properly fit owing to its extremely dry condition. The warm, wet weather that prevailed in the early part of November was exceptionally favorable and of marked benefit, but it was too late for wheat to make its usual fall growth. The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed by farmers since the November report was published is 2,054,321, and in four months, August, September, October and November, 7,662,316. This is 2,966,642 bushels more than reported marketed in the same months last year. Fall pasture has been fairly good. Percentages for live stock are: Horses ... and sheep and swine, 95. Considerable hog cholera is reported in central and southern counties.

YANTIC REACHES DETROIT.

Ship Now in Possession of Michigan Naval Reserve.

Detroit, Dec. 9.—The United States steamship Yantic arrived at one o'clock Wednesday morning, after a long and vexatious voyage from Boston. The ship is now in possession of the Detroit naval reserve. She will be docked and overhauled. Her false forward woodwork, which was taken off in order to get the steamer through the St. Lawrence canals, will be replaced, as well as her spars, riggings, etc., which are now piled upon the decks. Crowds of people visited the new acquisition of the lake navy. The vessel is 33 years old, but sound and well-adapted for a training ship.

Demand an Increase.

Negaunee, Dec. 13.—Officials of the miners' union have served formal notice of the demand on local mining companies for an increase in wages, averaging 15 per cent., to take effect December 15, with implied threat of strike if the raise is not promptly given. The mine managers claim miners on contract are averaging better than the demands of the union. The Negaunee and Ishpeming mine operators will join in resisting the demands of the union.

Menominee, Dec. 13.—The Ann Arbor Railroad company has just issued a circular to shippers, agents and connections, saying that instead of closing the Menominee-Frankfort car ferry route during the winter months from December 1 to March 31, it, and also the new Manistique route, would hereafter be kept open the entire year, and that present rates via or from these points would be continued in force until otherwise corrected or canceled.

MOTHER! There is no word so full of meaning and about which such tender and holy recollections cluster as that of "MOTHER"—she who watched over our helpless infancy and guided our first tottering step. Yet the life of every Expectant Mother is beset with danger and all effort should be made to avoid it.

Mother's Friend so assists nature in the change taking place that the Expectant Mother is enabled to look forward without dread, suffering or gloomy forebodings, to the hour when she experiences the joy of Motherhood. Its use insures safety to the lives of both Mother and Child, and she is found stronger after than before confinement—in short, it "makes Childbirth natural and easy," as so many have said. Don't be persuaded to use anything but

This is the only certain way of being permanently cured, because it is the only way that gets rid of the poisons. You know that poison is unhealthy. Shaker Digestive Cordial clears the stomach of fermenting food, and purifies the blood and system of indigestive poisons. It cures indigestion and the diseases that come of it. Headache, dizziness, nausea, stomach-ache, weakness, flatulence, constipation, loss of appetite, irritability, etc. There are a few of the symptoms, caused by indigestive poisons, cured by Shaker Digestive Cordial. Scoff and Cough.

The man who scoffs at the friendly advice to "take something for that cough," will keep on coughing until he changes his mind or changes his earthly residence. A great many scoffers have been converted by the use of the standard remedy—Carter's Cough Cure. But some are scoffing yet; they wheeze with asthma, bark with bronchitis or groan with the grippe. Singular, isn't it? the number of stubborn people, who persist in gambling with health and perhaps life as the stake, when they might be effectually cured of cough, cold or lung trouble. Buy a few doses of Carter's Cough Cure. Price 25c. At S. E. Parrish's.

A WONDERFUL ESCAPE.

Related by a Keeper of the Michigan State Prison at Jackson.

(From the Jackson Citizen.)

Mr. A. E. Wing resides at 612 N. Jackson Street, Jackson, Mich. He is a keeper in the Michigan State Prison, a man of sterling integrity, and whose word is beyond dispute. He tells the following story of a wonderful escape, and the incidents connected with the dangerous position in which he was placed. He says, some months ago my attention was attracted by a swelling of my groins, which began to increase in size to such an extent that I was alarmed. It spread down my legs to my feet, and I was bloated from my waist down, so badly that I could not pull my pants, over my legs, and I had to open my shoes fully two inches before I could get them on. Even my face became puffed up; and my whole system seemed affected. I could hardly drag myself upstairs to unlock my men. I consulted a physician, one of the best in the city. He said the swelling was caused by an irritation of the kidneys, and I commenced treatment with him. But I seemed to be getting worse. I was strongly urged by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and I finally consented. After the first week I commenced to see a change, and felt much better. This was encouraging, and I continued their use. I took five boxes in all, with the happy result that I was completely cured. I have never heard of any medicine which had such a pronounced and radical effect, and yet not affect the system generally and leave it in such a good condition. I feel better now than I ever did. After the effect was once established the swelling gradually disappeared until it was entirely gone. I regard Doan's Kidney Pills as a most wonderful agent in the curing of any form of kidney disorder.

For sale by all dealers—price, 50 cents per box. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

Financial Letter.

Chicago, Dec. 15, 1897.

There was not a great deal of action in the wheat market today, although December fluctuated a cent and a half. Big receipts here and elsewhere, and an increase in the world's visible were factors which gave the bears courage to sell more freely than they have for several days, but on the other hand talk about possible damage to the winter wheat should a severe cold wave strike it just now was a bull argument of which the most was made. It was also noted that stocks at Minneapolis and Duluth do not show as large as the bulls would like to have them. December sold as low as 90 3-8@1-2 but the recovery from that point was prompt and for the rest of the session the feeling was much better.

Corn holds its own well, and in provisions there was a steady advance which the bulls argue is but the beginning of a noticeable movement in their favor. The cash demand continues good, and some observers of the situation argue that the arrivals of hogs will decrease daily until after the holidays.

The price range of wheat today was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.
December	98 1-2	97	97 1-4
May	94 3-8	90 3-8@1-2	91 1-8

Mrs. D. E. Bowen.

Mrs. D. E. Bowen, of the township of Clinton, died Wednesday morning, December 8, aged 43 years, 4 months and 9 days.

Her maiden name was Mary L. Gillett. She was born in the town of Summerfield, Monroe county, Mich. Her mother dying when she was but ten years of age and her father two years later, she made her home with an uncle, Daniel Gillett, of Tecumseh. She was married Dec. 24, 1873, to Daniel E. Bowen, of Clinton, Mich.

The deceased was a great sufferer from cancer for many months and was faithfully cared for through all the weary weeks by a kind and devoted husband and loving children. Everything was done that human skill could devise to relieve suffering, but to no purpose. She retained her mental faculties to near the last and often conversed with her family and friends about her dissolution, giving good evidence that she was prepared to go. She was a faithful wife, a tender mother and beloved by all who knew her.

Arrangements for the funeral services were made in accordance with her wishes. The funeral was held at the house last Friday, conducted by Rev. R. S. Hudson, of Tecumseh. The remains were placed in the Tecumseh cemetery.

She leaves, beside her husband, a son, a daughter and three brothers.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to the friends and neighbors for their kind assistance in our great bereavement in the loss of wife and mother; also to the choir and those that brought flowers.

D. E. BOWEN AND CHILDREN.

At the woolen mill meeting called by President Williamson for Monday night only about half a dozen of the faithful put in an appearance and the meeting seemed to stand adjourned sine die. We hope in the near future that some proposition may be made in this line which will bring about the desired result.

Congratulations are in order for our hustling young townsman, T. A. Lowry. The New York Life Insurance Co., of which he is special representative, offered a prize of a trip to their big convention in Chicago, all expenses paid, to the three agents in each state, who wrote the largest amount of business during the first thirteen days of December. Mr. Lowry was one of the winners in Michigan in this great contest and left last night to dine with the great insurance Moguls, of New York City and other great centers. Tom is making his as an insurance man.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

Attorney General Maynard, who will assist in the trial of the case commenced by Gov. Pingree to compel the Michigan Central railroad company to sell family 1,000-mile tickets for $20, required by the law of 1891, believes he will be able to show on the hearing next week that the Michigan Central company has forfeited its rights under its special charter by consolidating with other companies. It is claimed that the reports to the railroad commissioner's office show that it owns all the stock, and manages and operates several lines with which it has officers and stockholders in common. It is also claimed that the Michigan Central company, instead of being the lessee of those lines, has in fact issued bonds in its own name to pay their indebtedness.—Adrian Times.

Yesterday the Ann Arbor railroad removed the balance of the Y. took down the target, and removed the crossing diamond, at the Lake Shore depot, and the locality now presents the appearance of desolation. The Lima Northern is running trains between the old depot and Trenton, daily, until their new section of road is ready for use, when trains will run to and from A. A. depot.—Dundee Reporter.

The Ann Arbor Railroad Co., has given an order to the Pullman Car Co. for 400 freight cars to be equipped with automatic couplers and air brakes. Work will commence on the cars about Dec 1. John Walton, of Owosso, foreman of the car department will be stationed at Pullman as inspector of materials and work.—Dundee Reporter.

Grand Haven, Mich., Dec. 16.—Jerry Boynton, the veteran railroad magnate, of Michigan, reached town late yesterday afternoon, loaded down with maps, charts and profiles of his proposed railroad from Bowling Green, O., to this city, making Grand Haven the western terminal, and thence by car ferry to Milwaukee.—Toledo News.

In the matter of David Holmes vs the D. & L. N. railroad, the Circuit court Tuesday made an order that the bill of complaint be dismissed unless the bill be amended to comply with the rules before the 20th and a rule fee of $5 be paid.

A funny circumstance took place in the divorce proceedings, in which Lucinda Davy secured a decree from Wm. Davy, all of Tecumseh. In taking testimony John Welch, also of Tecumseh, figured as a witness, and before the judge had signed the decree he was down in the clerk's office after a license to marry the woman. The deputy clerk was innocently making out the license, he having given the woman's name, and if it had not been for his lawyer, Welch would have signed the affidavit there and then. He is 70, and the woman 52. A license was issued yesterday immediately after the decree was signed, and they are undoubtedly married.

THE CHRISTMAS TURKEY.

How to Carve It Neatly and Without Loss of Temper.

The master of the house invariably insists that a tender turkey and a sharp knife are all that he needs to make him a thorough master of the situation as host for a Christmas board. But even he will be glad of a few hints to lighten his labors.

This is the way they carve a turkey at banquets where special carvers are hired. They have the art of separating the joints of the bird down to such an exact science that in one minute they can cut the most gigantic turkey into pieces each a good size for a plate.

THE FIRST CUT.

Plant the fork into the turkey's breast, and cut off the left wing. This is done with a downward sweep that catches the joint. The fork meanwhile, with a prong on each side of the breastbone, is held stiff and firm in the left hand.

THE SECOND CUT.

Now press the blade of the knife downward, and remove the leg and second joint. As this falls upon the dish they must be lifted to a small platter to be out of the carver's way. There should always be a warm platter near the carver.

THE THIRD CUT.

The third move of the carver is to slice off the breast, removing it in layers parallel to the breast bone. This makes a slice of very good grain, better than if it were cut crosswise.

THE FOURTH CUT.

The fourth stroke is upward from the pope's nose so as to catch the "oyster bone" on the side. This reveals the stuffing, which can be sliced off.

THE FIFTH CUT.

The wish bone is next removed. This done by slipping the knife under the int of the bone, after the breast is ed off, and sweeping it downward ard the neck. A very nice portion of eat comes with it.

EFFECTIVE POULTICES.

Some Directions of Value to Inexperienced Housekeepers.

The making of poultices and plasters is a part of the duties of a professional nurse in which every housemother ought to excel. There are many emergencies in which the prompt use of mustard might break up a cold and prevent a serious illness, but often it is so carelessly made and applied that its efficacy is destroyed. The mustard leaves of the drug store are convenient, but no better than a homemade plaster, which can be prepared at a moment's notice if a stock of old cotton and linen always be kept on hand.

A mustard plaster means boiling water poured over powdered English mustard until a rather thick paste is formed. In many cases the mustard is mixed with one-third of its quantity of flour, and for an infant the proportions should be half and half. Spread the mustard paste thin and hot on a thick piece of cotton, and cover it over with a thin piece of old linen. Lay a piece of oiled silk or rubber cloth over the outside of the plaster, after applying it, to keep in the heat and prevent the dampness of it penetrating the clothing. The moment the irritation becomes sufficient, or when the time the doctor has ordered the application has elapsed, remove the plaster and cover the irritated skin with cotton wadding, to keep the cold air from striking it.

A flaxseed poultice, often ordered by physicians for various purposes, is made by pouring boiling water over powdered flaxseed and stewing the mixture until it is a thick paste. Spread it about half an inch thick on a heavy cotton cloth, and cover it with thin old linen, rubbing the surface of the linen with sweet oil to prevent the poultice sticking. Renew the poultice as often as it grows cold, as long as the patient remains awake. Do not disturb a sleeper to do this unless so ordered by a physician.

A bread-and-milk poultice, sometimes ordered, means stale bread crumbs stewed in milk until a soft, thick paste is formed. Apply it like the flaxseed poultice.

An Indian meal poultice means Indian meal stewed in boiling water for a few moments until it is a thick, soft mass.

When a slippery elm poultice is ordered, pour boiling water over powdered slippery elm until it can be stirred to a thick paste. Spread it as directed above. Add a little powdered charcoal, if needed.

Always remember that all poultices must be applied very hot and be frequently changed to be of any value. They lose power when they become cold. A fresh one should be made for each application.

These directions are given for the benefit of young, inexperienced housekeepers who are sometimes called upon to perform a nurse's duties, with no idea of the simple art of the poultice and plaster maker.—N. Y. Tribune.

She Fulfilled the Contract.

It is not generally known that one of the most expert wirers of buildings for electric light in the east is a woman. This person is the wife of a theatrical electrician, whose labor she shares, from wiring a theater to designing a switchboard. Some time ago, when it so happened that her husband had gone to Nebraska, she received word that a large Polish ball in Chicago, for which her husband had the wiring contract, must be lit on a certain night, on which an entertainment was to be given. The alternative was the forfeiture of a heavy amount. Taking with her two men to do the heavier work she set forth to work on the wiring with her apprentice and kept at it all that day and night and through the next day until eight o'clock in the evening. Then she fainted; but she had finished her job.

UPHOLDS CHEAP FARES.

Governor Pingree Emphatically Declares There Is Profit in a Three-Cent Rate.

SAYS EXPERIMENT IS NOT A FAILURE.

On the Contrary, There Was a Profit of Six Per Cent. Cleared on Detroit Street Railway Stock During the Year Just Closing—Says Managers Hurt Their Own Business.

Detroit, Dec. 14.—Gov. Pingree on Monday gave out a signed statement for publication denying that three-cent street car fares have proved a failure. He says that "the railway managers damn their own business by saying three-cent fares do not pay, hoping to receive sympathy from the aldermen and mayor," and that the next move has been for the newspapers to take up the cry. The governor asserts that if the $1,800,000 bonds of the Detroit railway were sold the owners got back all they paid for constructing the road; if they were not sold they have received upon their bonds a greater profit than have most of the manufacturing concerns of the city for three years past. Gov. Pingree says that a subsequent issue of $1,000,000 bonds, which was made at the time of the consolidation agreement between the rival systems, was in reality a pure gift, made by the owners of the road to themselves, upon which they expect the people of Detroit to pay interest and eventually the principal. The governor asserts that for the last year, after paying interest upon all "honest bonds," there was a clear profit of more than six per cent. to the stock.

Detroit, Dec. 12.—The Evening News says: "A report comes to the News from a high source—in fact, from several sources—that the Detroit railway (3-cent fare street railway lines) was unable to meet the interest on the bonds when the latest payment became due. There also comes a reiteration of the report that Tom L. Johnson declines to keep a promise alleged to have been made at the time of the so-called consolidation of the citizens' and the Detroit companies, that if the Detroit didn't earn enough above operating expenses to pay its bonded interest, he would see that it was paid." The News quotes a business associate of Albert Pack, president of the Detroit railway, as saying that the experiment of three-cent fares in Detroit had been a failure.

RAILROAD CENSURED.

Verdict of Coroner's Jury in St. Clair Tunnel Accident.

Port Huron, Dec. 12.—The coroner's jury, in the inquest on the accident in the St. Clair tunnel November 28, in which two men were suffocated, rendered a verdict censuring the Grand Trunk Railroad company for pulling too heavily loaded trains through the tunnel and also for not taking prompt action in rescuing the bodies of Conductor Arthur Dunn and Brakeman John Dalton. The jury recommended that some system of signals be adopted for use inside of the tunnel.

PARDONED BY GOV. PINCREE.

Edward Rogers, Sentenced for Life, Freed from Prison.

Jackson, Dec. 14.—Edward Rogers, who was sent to the state prison from Saginaw in August, 1891, for life, has been pardoned by Gov. Pingree. Rogers' sister will take him to her home in California. He has a family in New York city, but left home during a drunken spree. At Saginaw he became infatuated with a woman whom he killed because she refused to marry

Davis, president of the National association, will preside at the meeting, and he is endeavoring to secure some prominent men to address the delegates.

Horticulture.

GREENHOUSE HEATER.

A Splendid Apparatus That Can Be Installed at Small Cost.

The boiler is made of 1¼ inch iron pipe which anyone can have cut and put together at any machine shop or one can do the work himself if he has the requisite tools. It consists of two or more coils built up one within another, as shown in Fig. 1. The inside coil requires 15 pieces 12 inches long, 15 pieces nine inches long. The outside coil requires 18 pieces 16 inches long, 22 pieces 20 inches long. The whole requires 62 elbows, four return bends, two tees and one close nipple. In the engraving the inner coil starts at the lower tee and swings in the opposite direction to outer coil.

The bottom part of boiler has pipes on three sides only, as shown in cut, leaving front open. The inner coil forms a magazine for coal, for burning which the boiler should be set on a firm base, with grates so placed as to be removable.

THE BOILER.

Some good shaking grate, which can be procured of any heater manufacturer, is preferable. If wood is used, six inches of fire brick is placed under boiler at sides and back, to make fire box deeper. The whole boiler should be inclosed in brick work and must be placed below the level of greenhouse floors. Such a boiler will heat 3,000 feet of glass to 55 degrees. The capacity can be increased by adding coils. The houses should be piped with two-inch pipe, four flows and four returns being sufficient for a house 20 feet wide, placed as shown in Fig. 2. Let the supply pipe be three-inch and connect at boiler by a union, then rise at once to a point well above level of tops of any doors. Here place an automatic air valve and let all pipes have a gradual fall back to boiler. Place a three-inch return under door sills. Also connect to boiler by a union. Near where return connects with boiler put in a one-inch pipe leading to a tank well above the whole system (a barrel will answer if kept full), and the higher up the better, for the more pressure you have the swifter circulation you will get. Fill the system at tank, and if the job has been well done and draft is good you will have a heating apparatus that will work to perfection and very economically.—Orange Judd Farmer.

ARRANGEMENT OF GREENHOUSE PIPES.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

The peach will thrive best grafted on plum stock.

Root pruning is one way of dwarfing fruit trees.

Few kinds of fruit are easier grown than the cherry.

Mulch the strawberries as soon as the ground freezes.

Black knot is a fungus growth. Cut off and burn all affected branches.

Orchard grass and clover are good for seeding down an orchard.

Paris green is the best remedy for the rose slug on rose bushes.

Having a good garden depends largely upon having a large manure pile.

Red raspberries are the sweetest. The plants increase by suckers or sprints.

While quantity is what the buyers prefer, appearance in fruit is a great factor.

Dipping or submerging is the best remedy for the red spider on house plants.

An orchard should never be plowed deep on account of the injury to the roots of the trees.

There is nothing that will tend to the development of roots as bone and ashes mixed with muck.

That a tree does not bear a good crop of fruit every year is not an indication that it is diseased.

To prevent sheep from gnawing trees apply a wash of whale oil, soap, sheep droppings and lime.

Thoroughly whitewashing the trunks of trees destroys lichens, insects and pests that live on the bark.

One advantage of rolling ground as a location for the orchard is that it gives a better circulation of air.

Set each tree with care, placing it in rich soil, and packing fine, mellow soil thoroughly in around the roots.

The quince is one of the best shipping fruits that can be grown. It is easily propagated by cutting. — St. Louis Republic.

Brain Work for Winter.

During the winter plans should be made for lawns, the setting of shrubs and trees for ornament, and, above all, the small fruits should be provided for which are so delicious and really essential to the health and prosperity of the family. Too many farmers neglect these necessaries, which are at the same time real luxuries. Nothing gives more substantial evidence of thrift on a farm than to see all these things in abundance about the homestead.—Farm and Home.

How Repairs Are Made.

A sample of wasteful and extravagant road work was lately noticed by the government road commissioners in a Canadian town. For 75 years broken stone and gravel had been placed on one street until there is a depth of from two to three feet of stone. The money spent on it was sufficient to pave all the streets in town with asphalt, brick or other good material.

DON'T KILL THE TOADS.

They Are Valuable Friends to the Gardener and Fruit Grower.

Bulletin 46 of the Hatch (Mass.) station says the toad lives ten to forty years, does not begin to raise young till the fourth year, but then lays over 1,000 eggs a year. It has lived two years without food, but cannot live long under water. It never takes dead or motionless food. It takes its food by means of its tongue alone, and it operates this so rapidly that the eye cannot follow its motions. It catches and devours bees, wasps, yellow jackets, ants, beetles, worms, spiders, snails, bugs, grasshoppers, crickets, weevils, caterpillars, moths, etc. The station examined with a microscope the contents of the stomachs of seven toads in April, 30 in May, 36 in in June, 26 in July, ten in August and seven in September—149 in all. On an average it was found that 80 per cent. of the toad's food consists of harmful insects, and 11 per cent. was of such beneficial insects as bees, spiders, lady bugs, etc. The stomach that doesn't clinch at yellow jackets, wasps, blister beetles and click beetles or pinch bugs, would seem to be prepared for anything in the bug line, and it doubtless is. The quantity of food that a toad's stomach can accommodate is remarkable. In one were found 77 myriapods, in another 55 army worms, in another 15 gypsy moth caterpillars, in another nine ants, six cut worms, five myriapods, six sow bugs, one weevil and one wire worm beetle. In 24 hours the toad consumes enough food to fill its stomach four times. Feeding at the rate above mentioned a single toad will in three months devour over 10,000 insects. If every ten of these would have done one cent damage, the toad would have saved ten dollars. Evidently the toad is a valuable friend of the farmer, gardener and fruit grower, and can be made especially useful in greenhouse, garden and berry patch.

PLANTING FRUIT TREES.

Be Sure to Cut Off All Injured or Defective Roots.

When planting a tree, cut off all injured or defective roots. If unevenly rooted, or roots all on one side, an incision in or through the bark will greatly accelerate root growth, by starting new roots. Avoid top mutilation when planting, and at all other times. The only occasion for cutting a tree is to prevent forks. Thinning the branches will prevent this. Foliage is essential to root development. Good tops are better than good roots. When transplanting I care little whether a tree has roots at all when planting. It must have a top. I will supply the roots. How? By giving it a good top. Nurserymen have long instructed their patrons to conform the top to match the roots. Bah! There never was a greater mistake. More than 20 years ago, in root-grafting apples, I experimented with scions of water sprouts four or five feet long on bits of roots not over an inch in length. They grew readily. The roots of a tree are only necessary to start growth and hold the tree in an upright position until roots are formed. The first apple orchard I planted the trees were the large, overgrown ones that were unsalable. They were four years old and so large that two men were necessary to handle. They were carried from the nursery and roots closely trimmed. Not a branch of the top was touched with saw or knife. This was in 1886. In 1890 these trees bore an immense crop, and being sold on the trees, were guessed by the purchasers at two barrels of marketable fruit per tree.—Western Fruit Grower.

PROTECTION FOR TREES.

An Effective Guard Which Costs But a Few Cents.

There are few farms where some such device as the one portrayed herewith may not be of great value. It is cheap, yet effective in its purpose; can be used for large trees and shrubs, as well as for smaller ones. Where a valuable tree or shrub is in danger from rabbits, this guard will protect it. In many localities it is almost indispensable in the winter, as it serves the tree from being broken by snow and ice and during the summer animals will not molest it. This is also an effective method for covering many half-hardy shrubs or young trees which cannot be bent down to the ground. By surrounding the tree with straw and keeping it in place by such a device, very good results will generally be obtained. No description or instructions as to its construction are necessary, as it speaks for itself. Care should be taken when used in the summer that the air and sun are not excluded.—Farm and Home.

PROTECTION FOR TENDER SHRUBS.

MICHIGAN FARMS.

Interesting Facts in Secretary Gardner's Report.

Lansing, Dec. 10.—Secretary Gardner's report on farms and farm products shows that the average value of crops was $192 per farm less in 1896 than in 1890; total decrease in the 149,434 farms of the state, $28,681,328. In 1890 the value per farm was $499; 1891, $477; 1892, $425; 1893, $403; 1894, $370; 1895, $279; 1896, $307.

The area of improved land in farms is 9,020,220 acres; of unimproved land, 4,302,093 acres, a total area in farms of 13,322,093 acres. The improved land as now returned is less than in 1896 by 2,141 acres, but is more than reported in any year previous to 1896. The average size of farms is 89.07 acres.

The average price of No. 1 white wheat in Detroit in September, 1891, was 95¾ cents per bushel. The area sown to wheat that fall and harvested in 1892 was 1,622,244 acres, the largest acreage ever reported except in 1880, 1881, 1882 and 1887. The price fell gradually to 54½ cents in 1894, and the acreage sown was 14,806 acres less than in the previous year. The average price of wheat in Detroit in September, 1895, was 62 cents.

The wheat crop in the state in 1896 amounted to 17,861,999 bushels. It was greater than the crop of 1895 by 961,016 bushels, but, excepting the crop of 1895, it was less than any crop grown since 1876.

The number of sheep sheared in 1896 was 1,333,127, a decrease as compared with the number sheared in 1895 of 419,287. After 1878 there was an increase each year to and including 1884. After 1884 there was a decrease each year to and including 1890, and after 1890 there was an increase each year to and including 1893. The number sheared in 1894 was 27,365 less than in 1893, the number sheared in 1895 was 288,284 less than in 1894, and now there is a further decrease of 419,257.

FATAL FIRE AT OWOSSO.

One Life Lost at Burning of a Large Casket Factory.

Owosso, Dec. 9.—The Owosso casket works were partially destroyed by fire Wednesday morning. The loss will exceed $50,000, and there is $34,000 insurance. Frank Wilcox, 27 years old and unmarried, who was night watchman, died endeavoring to extinguish the flames. The fire started in the varnish room, and Wilcox upon discovering it seized a Babcock extinguisher and fought the fire bravely. He inhaled flames, however, and was found dead later with the apparatus lying beside him. While the firemen were at work about the building a section of the wall fell and Linemen William Ross, William Robertson and Ed Wright were seriously though not fatally injured. Mayor Edwin A. Gould, while assisting to remove the men to a place of safety, was badly shocked by stepping on a live electric wire. The plant will be at once rebuilt.

PATTON FOR SENATOR.

Gov. Pingree's Reported Choice as Against Mr. Burrows.

Lansing, Dec. 12.—The appointment of ex-Senator John Patton, of Grand Rapids, as a member of the Blair monument commission by Gov. Pingree is accepted by politicians as being full of significance. It is taken as a strong indication that Mr. Patton has been selected as the Pingree candidate for United States senator as against Senator Burrows, and the alliance is believed to be a strong one for the governor. There is impending a very bitter fight for the senatorship in this state, and the selection of Mr. Patton as the Pingree candidate will render the situation very complicated and insure the most interesting political campaign Michigan has known for years.

Held for Trial.

Lansing, Dec. 15.—The first victory of the state's attorney in the prosecution of the People's saving bank wreckers was scored Tuesday when the magistrate held ex-Cashier Charles H. Osband to the circuit court for trial on a charge of making false entries upon the books of the bank. Bail was furnished pending the trial, which will take place in January. The examination of Directors Charles Broas and Christian Briesch was partially completed.

Receiver Appointed.

Detroit, Dec. 14.—State Insurance Commissioner Milo D. Campbell has ordered the appointment of a receiver for the Mutual Fire Insurance company, limited, which concern Mr. Campbell claims is not only insolvent, but has been violating the law under which it was organized. THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, the economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe which combines as successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the alertness, timeliness, and energy of journalism with the sound judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged in the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; is "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

THE PEOPLE'S PARTY.

Proceedings of Their National Convention in St Louis.

William J. Bryan Nominated for President and Thomas E. Watson for Vice President—The Platform Adopted.

St. Louis, July 25.—The national convention of the populist party which met in this city on Wednesday selected Senator Butler, of North Carolina, as temporary chairman and appointed the various committees. On Thursday Senator Allen, of Nebraska, was made permanent chairman and the day was passed in speech-making.

Yesterday the convention remained in session until midnight. At the conclusion of many speeches naming candidates for the vice-presidential nomination the roll was called, and Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, was nominated on the first ballot, the nomination being afterwards made unanimous. This was the result of a strong fight against the nomination of Arthur Sewall, of Maine, the democratic nominee for the same office. Contrary to all precedent, the report of the committee on rules, which was adopted, placed the nomination of vice-president before that of president.

The Platform.

The report of the committee on resolutions, which was adopted, is as follows:

"The people's party, assembled in national convention, reaffirms its allegiance to the principles declared by the founders of the republic and also to the fundamental principles of just government as enunciated in the platform of the party in 1892. We recognize that through the connivance of the present and preceding administrations the country has reached a crisis in its national life, as predicted in our declaration four years ago, and that prompt and patriotic action is the supreme duty of the hour. We realize that while we have political independence, our financial and industrial independence is yet to be attained by restoring to our country the constitutional control and exercise of functions necessary to a people's government, which functions have been basely surrendered by our public servants to corporate monopolies. The influence of European money-changers has been more potent in shaping legislation than the voice of the American people. Executive power and patronage have been used to corrupt our legislatures and defeat the will of the people, and plutocracy has thereby been enthroned upon the ruins of democracy. To restore the government intended by the fathers, and for the welfare and prosperity of this and future generations, we demand the establishment of an economic and financial system which shall make us masters of our own affairs and independent of European control, by the adoption of the following declaration of principles:

The Financial Planks

"1. We demand a national money, safe and sound, issued by the general government only, without the intervention of banks of issue, to be a full legal tender for all debts, public and private, a just, equitable and efficient means of distribution direct to the people and through the lawful disbursements of the government.

"2. We demand the free and unrestricted coinage of silver and gold at the present legal ratio of sixteen to one, without waiting for the consent of foreign nations.

"3. We demand the volume of circulating medium be speedily increased to an amount sufficient to meet the demands of the business and population and to restore the just level of prices of labor and production.

"4. We denounce the sale of bonds and the increase of the public interest-bearing debt made by the present administration as unnecessary and without authority of law and demand that no more bonds be issued except by specific act of congress.

"5. We demand such legislation as will prevent the demonetization of the lawful money of the United States by private contract.

"6. We demand that the government, in payment of its obligations shall use its option as to the kind of lawful money in which they are to be paid, and we denounce the present and preceding administrations for surrendering this option to the holders of government obligations.

"7. We demand a graduated income tax to the end that aggregated wealth shall bear its just proportion of taxation, and we regard the recent decision of the supreme court relative to the income tax law as a misinterpretation of the constitution and an invasion of the rightful powers of congress over the subject of taxation.

"8. We demand that postal savings banks be established by the government for the safe deposit of the savings of the people and to facilitate exchange.

Transportation.

"9. Transportation being a means of exchange and a public necessity, the government should own and operate the railroads in the interest of the people and on a nonpartisan basis; to the end that all may be accorded the same treatment in transportation, and that the tyranny and political power now exercised by the great railroad corporations which result in the impairment, if not the destruction, of the political rights and personal liberties of the citizen may be destroyed. Such ownership is to be accomplished gradually in a manner consistent with sound public policy.

"10. The interest of the United States in the public highways built with public moneys and the proceeds of extensive grants of land to the Pacific railroads, should never be alienated, mortgaged or sold, but guarded and protected for the general welfare as provided by the laws organizing such railroads. The foreclosure of existing liens of the United States on these roads should at once follow default in the payment thereof by the debtor companies, and at the foreclosure sales of said roads the government shall purchase the same if it becomes necessary to protect its interests therein, or if they can be purchased at a reasonable price; and the government shall operate said railroads as public highways for the benefit of the whole people and not in the interest of the few, under suitable provisions for protection of life and property, giving to all transportation interests equal privileges and equal rates for fares and freights.

"11. We denounce the present infamous schemes for refunding these debts and demand that the laws now applicable thereto be executed and administered according to their interest and spirit.

"12. The telegraph, like the post office system, being a necessity for the transmission of news, should be owned and operated by the government in the interest of the people.

Land.

"13. True policy demands that the national and state legislation shall be such as will ultimately enable every prudent and industrious citizen to secure a home, and therefore the land should not be monopolized for speculative purposes. All lands now held by railroads and other corporations in excess of their actual needs should by lawful means be reclaimed by the government and held for natural settlers only, and private land monopoly, as well as alien ownership, should be prohibited.

"14. We condemn the frauds by which the land-grant Pacific railroad companies have, through the connivance of the interior department, robbed multitudes of actual, bona fide settlers of their homes and miners of their claims, and we demand legislation by congress which will enforce the exception of mineral land grants after as well as before patent.

"15. We demand that bona fide settlers on all public lands be granted free homes as provided in the national homestead law, and that no exception be made in the case of Indian reservations when opened for settlement, and that all lands not now patented come under this demand.

Direct Legislation.

"16. We favor a system of direct legislation through the initiative and referendum, under proper constitutional safeguards.

General Propositions.

"17. We demand the election of president, vice president and United States senators by a direct vote of the people.

"18. We tender to the patriotic people of Cuba our deepest sympathy in their heroic struggle for political freedom and independence, and we believe the time has come when the United States, the great republic of the world, should recognize that Cuba is and of right ought to be a free and independent state.

"19. We favor home rule in the territories and the District of Columbia, and the early admission of the territories as states.

"20. All public salaries should be made to correspond to the price of labor and its products.

"21. In times of great industrial depression idle labor should be employed on public works as far as practicable.

"22. The arbitrary course of the courts in assuming to imprison citizens for indirect contempt and ruling them by injunction should be prevented by proper legislation.

"23. We favor just pensions for our disabled union soldiers.

"24. Believing that the elective franchise and an untrammeled ballot are essential to government of, for and by the people, the people's party condemn the wholesale system of disfranchisement adopted in some of the states as unrepublican and undemocratic, and we declare it to be the duty of the several state legislatures to take such action as will secure a full, free and fair ballot and an honest count.

"25. While the foregoing propositions constitute the platform upon which our party stands, and for the vindication of which its organization will be maintained, we recognize that the great and pressing issue of the pending campaign upon which the present presidential election will turn is the financial question, and upon this great and specific issue between the parties we cordially invite the aid and co-operation of all organizations and citizens agreeing with us upon this vital question."

Nominate Bryan for President.

St. Louis, July 27.—The national convention of the people's party, after four days' session, completed its labors on Saturday by nominating William J. Bryan, of Nebraska, for president, on the first ballot, the vote being as follows:

Bryan, 1,047; Norton, of Illinois, 331. Ignatius Donnelly got one vote in Connecticut and two in Ohio. Eugene V. Debs got eight in Ohio. Coxey got one in Ohio.

INDIANA POPULISTS.

They Nominate a State Ticket and Declare Against Fusion.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 29.—The populists met in state convention yesterday and adopted a platform that follows closely the St. Louis declaration of principles and declares that the populist organization, national, state and local, "shall be maintained at all hazards." The following nominations were made:

Governor, Thomas A. Wadsworth, Daviess county; lieutenant governor, A. P. Hanna, Montgomery county; secretary of state, Silas M. Holcomb, Gibson county; auditor, N. M. Jennings, Johnson county; treasurer, F. J. S. Robinson, Clay county; attorney-general, D. H. Fernandez, Madison county; supreme court reporter, Thomas W. Force, Martin county; appellate judges, A. J. Padgett, Adam Stockinger, I. N. Pierce, J. N. Thornburg N. J. Bosard; statistician, J. S. McKeever, Washington county; superintendent of instruction, J. B. Freeman, Howard county.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Dun and Bradstreet Show a General Depression Throughout the Country.

New York, July 25.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

"The week began with extreme depression in stocks and speculative markets, owing to the heavy outgo of gold and the fall of the treasury reserve below the minimum. The populist and silver conventions caused some apprehension, and large withdrawals of gold for hoarding were rather feared than seen. Then came a sharp recovery, with the union of banks to turn $20,000,000 of gold into the treasury and of international bankers to control foreign exchange. The produce markets have been seriously depressed, lard making the lowest quotations on record, corn falling to 32 cents, wheat to 61¾ cents and cotton to 7.12 cents. Failures for the week have been 281 in the United States, against 202 last year, and 29 in Canada, against 27 last year."

Bradstreets says:

"The industrial situation is somewhat more depressed, particularly in iron and steel. Production is materially curtailed among manufacturers of woolens and cottons as heretofore and in locomotive hardware, silver, jewelry and lumber industries. The principal activity in the dry goods trade appears to consist of preparations to show fall goods."

Killed Each Other.

Gainesville, Fla., July 27.—In a duel here Saturday Dr. J. D. Cromwell and G. I. Kennard, prominent citizens, killed each other.

Valuable Horses Burned.

Whiting, Ind., July 27.—The barns of the Forsythe race track were destroyed by fire and five valuable horses were cremated.

FRIENDS OF SILVER.

They Assemble in National Convention in St. Louis.

William J. Bryan Nominated for President and Arthur Sewall for Vice President—Text of the Platform Adopted.

St. Louis, July 25.—The national silver party convention opened its session Wednesday and Francis Newlands, of Nevada, was made temporary chairman. William P. St. John, of New York, was chosen as permanent chairman and the usual committees were named. On Thursday the day was passed in listening to several addresses and to adopting the following platform:

The Platform.

"The national silver party of America, in convention assembled, hereby adopts the following declaration of principles:

"First—The paramount issue at this time in the United States is indisputably the money question. It is between the British gold standard, gold bonds and bank currency on the one side, and the bimetallic standard, no bonds, government currency (and an American policy) on the other.

"On this issue we declare ourselves to be in favor of a distinctively American financial system. We are unalterably opposed to the single gold standard, and demand the immediate return to the constitutional standard of gold and silver, by the restoration by this government, independently of any foreign power, of the unrestricted coinage of both gold and silver, into standard money at the ratio of sixteen to one, and upon terms of exact equality as they existed prior to 1873; the silver coin to be of full legal tender, equally with gold, for all debts and dues, public and private, and we demand such legislation as will prevent for the future the destruction of the legal tender quality of any kind of money by private contract.

"We hold that the power to control and regulate a paper currency is inseparable from the power to coin money; and, hence, that all currency intended to circulate as money should be issued and its volume controlled by the general government only, and should be a legal tender.

"We are unalterably opposed to the issue by the United States of interest-bearing bonds in time of peace, and we denounce as a blunder, worse than a crime, the present treasury policy concurred in by a republican house, of plunging the country into debt by hundreds of millions in the vain attempt to maintain the gold standard by borrowing gold; and we demand the payment of all coin obligations of the United States, as provided by existing laws, in either gold or silver coin, at the option of the government, and not at the option of the creditor.

"Over and above all other questions of policy, we are in favor of restoring to the people of the United States the time-honored money of the constitution—gold and silver, not one but both—the money of Washington and Hamilton, and Jefferson and Monroe, and Jackson and Lincoln, to the end that the American people may receive honest pay for an honest product; that the American debtor may pay his just obligations in an honest standard and not in a dishonest and unsound standard appreciated 100 per cent. in purchasing power, and no appreciation in debt-paying power, and to the end, further, that silver standard countries may be deprived of the unjust advantage they now enjoy, in the difference in exchange between gold and silver—an advantage which tariff legislation cannot overcome.

"We therefore confidently appeal to the people of the United States to hold in abeyance all other questions, however important and even momentous they may appear, to sunder. If need be, all former party ties and affiliations, and to unite in one supreme effort to free themselves and their children from the domination of money power—a power more destructive than any which has ever been fastened upon the civilized men of any race or in any age. And upon the consummation of our desires and efforts, we evoke the aid of all patriotic American citizens, and the gracious favor of Divine providence.

Yesterday the report of the joint conference committee which recommends uniting the silver forces and leaves the details to each political party—silver and populists—was adopted.

Candidates Chosen.

Mr. Pace, of Nebraska, moved that the convention proceed to the nomination of a candidate for president and vice president.

Mr. Pace's motion was adopted, and E. C. Little, of Abilene, Kan., was recognized to place William J. Bryan's name before the convention. He did so in a graceful, at times forceful, speech. Several seconds followed, and finally nominations were declared closed, and a motion to nominate Mr. Bryan by acclamation was adopted unanimously by a rising vote.

Alexander Troupe, of Connecticut, placed Arthur Sewall's name before the convention for vice president and the nomination of Mr. Sewall was made by acclamation.

After the appointment of notification committees the convention adjourned sine die.

Lee Protests.

Havana, July 28.—Strenuous efforts are being made by Gen. Lee on behalf of the government against the order of Gen. Weyler prohibiting the export of fruit. This prohibition is causing an immense damage to American commerce and business. The principal reason for the prohibition of the export of fruit at certain seaport towns is that they are virtually under the control of the rebels.

Places Tariff Second.

New York, July 29.—Marcus A Hanna, the chairman of the republican national committee, does not consider a high protective tariff the overwhelming issue in this campaign. He considers the issue to be honest finances and a protective tariff. "That is the way I should define it," said Chairman Hanna to a New York Herald representative at the Waldorf hotel Tuesday night.

A Lover's Crime.

St. Paul, Minn., July 27.—Henry B. White, of Northfield, fatally shot Miss Tillie Strumpf in this city because she refused to marry him and then fatally shot himself.
